

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. ERRATA AND ADDENDA.

I.

OBSERVATIONS by the ARMOURERS' and BRAZIERS' COMPANY on the EVIDENCE of MR. LUCRAFT, inadvertently omitted from Vol. I.

Armourers' Hall, 81, Coleman Street,
London, E.C., 16th February 1883.

SIR,

I AM instructed by the Company of Armourers and Braziers to call the attention of the City of London Livery Companies' Commissioners to certain inaccuracies and omissions in the evidence given before them by Mr. Lucraft with reference to this Company, which raise the inference that he has given his evidence without having informed himself as to the terms of the instruments creating the charities, the administration of which he calls in question. The only deduction which can be drawn from Mr. Lucraft's evidence as to Thomas Dring's Charity is that the bequest of 20*l.* was given to the Company upon trust to invest that sum in the purchase of land; but on reference to the will of the testator it will be found that he expressly gave the Company the option of either laying out the money in the purchase of some freehold estate, or otherwise employing it at interest. Mr. Lucraft is also in error in stating that the objects of the testator's bounty were "the poor," as the gift in the will is expressly limited to the "poor of the Company." He adds that the Company now grant 4*l.* per annum to the poor, wholly ignoring the fact, which appears on their returns, that the Company voluntarily augment the income of the charity by the sum of 58*l.* per annum.

It may be remarked that one reason which would probably have been sufficient in itself to prevent the Company from investing this money in the purchase of freehold land was the difficulty which they must undoubtedly have encountered of finding any profitable investment in freehold land for so small a sum as 20*l.*, bearing in mind the fact that the costs of the purchase would, strictly speaking, have to be first deducted from that sum.

The attention of the Commissioners is called to the fact that the Company have, ever since the testator's death, paid interest on the amount of the bequest at the rate of 20*l.* per cent. per annum, not taking into account the amount by which they have voluntarily augmented the income of the charity; and it is submitted that they have done far more than they were under any legal obligation to do.

In his evidence as to John Scott's Charity also, Mr. Lucraft states that the object of the charity was to benefit the poor; but this statement is inaccurate, as the gift in the will is to the poor of the Company only, and not to the poor generally. He further states that the Company still only pay 4*l.* per cent. on the amount of the original bequest, making no reference whatever to the fact shown by the returns of the Company that the income of the charity is voluntarily augmented by the sum of 80*l.* per annum.

The Company cannot but regret that the Commissioners should have felt themselves justified in publishing this evidence, which, on the face of it, is at variance with the returns sent in by the Company, without having first given them an opportunity of contradicting or explaining it; and I have to request, on their behalf, that this letter may be published, with the evidence taken by the Commissioners.

I am, &c.,

(Signed) MARSHALL PONTIFEX,

H. D. Warr, Esq., Secretary,
Livery Companies' Commission. Clerk.

City of London Livery Companies Commission,
2, Victoria Street, Westminster, S.W.,

SIR, 24th February 1883.

I BEG to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 16th inst., which shall be laid before the Commissioners in due course.

I am, &c.,

(Signed) H. D. WARR,
Secretary.

Marshall Pontifex, Esq.,
Armourers' Hall.

II.

Wherever it is not stated as a heading to the returns of any Company contained in Vols. 2 and 3 that "the returns were delivered under protest," these words are to be considered added. All the Companies protested against the inquiry as illegal.

The following sums have been expended in and about the enlargement of the Hall and rebuilding the premises in Cheapside. They are not included in the above account, being expenditure from capital:—£951, £638, 13s. 5d., £7,954, 3s. 10d. Against these sums the Company received from the Commissioners of Sewers for a strip of frontage in Cheapside purchased by them to widen the street, £2,000, and for sale of old materials and sundries £1,694, 18s. 2d., together £3,694, 18s. 2d., and by which the amount paid by the Company in the above years was reduced to £1,257, 18s. 1d. The whole of the Company's Charity income for the above years was expended in various ways, and practically in very much the same way as mentioned in the returns originally sent by the Company to the Royal Commission, with the exception of the balances which were in the Company's hands at the end of each year.

The title of this Company is “The Wardens and “Commonalty of the Mystery of Mercers of the City of “London.”

The Company consists of four wardens, the senior of whom is called master warden, the next upper warden, the next house warden, and the fourth renter warden.
The senior warden vacates his office every year, and is supplied by the next in rotation. The renter warden is elected annually by the Court of Assistants. The Court of Assistants are composed of 30 or 40, according as the wardens are or are not included in the number.
The present number of assistants is 31. They elect the members to fill the vacancies in their body from the livery. The liverymen are called (except in a few cases) by the court from the freemen to take up their livery. A person becomes free of the Company by patrimony, servitude, or by honorary election. Patri-mony admits all the children of freemen. Servitude must be by seven years actual servitude to a freeman in any business.

The Court of Assistants is divided into the working court and the nominal court, as some members for special causes are excluded from voting in the court, and are not summoned.

There is no person carrying on the trade of mercer on the list of the company.

Courts are generally held four times a year, at which all the Company is summoned, and there are occasionally extraordinary general courts.

A 14546.

BANCK'S CHARITY.

John Bancks conveyed to Sir Baptist Hicks and others by an indenture of the 12th May 1619 a messuage and appurtenances in Holloway, Middlesex, and also three crofts, containing 6 acres on trust to pay the rents after the grantor's death to the Mercers Company, who should for ever dispose of all the same as follows:—

To Christ's Hospital	5	0	0
Seven sermons	7	14	0
Renter warden	1	0	0
Company's chaplain	0	6	8
„ clerk	0	10	0
„ beadle	0	3	4
„ sexton	0	6	8
Dinner every third or fifth year	3	0	0
Three workmen	0	6	0
Company of barber surgeons	1	0	0
Clerk of that company	0	2	0

And the said John Bancks also by his will gave 200*l.* to be lent to young men of the Company yearly from five years to five years for ever at the rate of 53*s.* 4*d.* yearly for every 100*l.* (and not 3*l.* per cent., as stated in the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry, Vol. 6, page 307).
The Company seem erroneously to have admitted in their answer in the suit hereafter referred to, a liability to 3*l.* per cent. instead of 2*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*

The payment to Christ's Hospital was purchased by the Company under the Acts for the redemption of the land tax in the year 1811.

The Company at the time of the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry was in the habit of applying no more than 17*l.* per annum to charitable purposes; although the income of the estate had considerably increased. The Commissioners observed that the case appeared to stand in the same circumstances as Sir Thomas Bennett's Charity, and that the excess ought to be disposed of amongst the different objects of the charity. An information was filed on the 21st December 1821 in the Court of Exchequer by Sir Robert Gifford, Knight, then Attorney General against the Mercer's Company and the trustees of the estate, praying that it might be declared that the said Company were mere trustees for the distribution of the income of the Charity estate, and that an account might be taken of the rents and profits of the said Charity estates received by the said Company since 1816, and of the application thereof, and that they might answer and pay what should appear to have been received by them beyond what they had applied to the purposes of the said charity, and that an account might be likewise taken of the interest accruing from the sum of 200*l.* bequeathed as aforesaid and that the said Company might pay into court in trust in the cause what should be found to have been received by them in respect thereof from such time as the court should think fit to direct and that it might be referred to the master to approve of a scheme for the due application of the arrears of the said rents and interest of all future income arising from the said estate and the said sum of 200*l.*, and that in the meantime, if necessary, a receiver might be appointed of the rents and profits of the said estate with all usual powers, and that such further and other directions and orders might be given for the due administration of the funds of the said Charity as the nature of the case might require.

The cause came on to be heard on the 27th April 1826, and on the 30th May 1826 the Lord Chief Baron declared the company to be trustees of the rents and of the augmented income of the said estate and of the interest of the said 200*l.*, and that the surplus rents and interest after answering the several payments of the deed of 12th May 1619 were applicable to the same purposes as the said J. Bancks directed the rents of such estate to be applied to by same deed, without prejudice, nevertheless, to the question how far the Company were entitled to partake of the said increased rents with reference to their share in the said original rent given them by the said deed, and directed accounts to be taken of the said rents accordingly. And it was referred to the master to take an account of the 200*l.* directed by the will to be lent to young men as therein mentioned and to receive proposals from the Attorney General and the defendants for the application of the surplus rents of the estate in question and of the interest of the 200*l.* and to tax the costs.

The Company appealed to the House of Lords and the judgment on the appeal was pronounced on the 16th July, 1828, affirming the decree in the Court below; on the principle which had been laid down in the case of Bennett's Charity. The Master made his report on the 25th July 1831, and found that the company had possessed and received for rents and profits of the Charity estate and for interest accrued on the said 200*l.*, from the 21st December 1821, to the 30th May 1826, the date of the decree the several sums mentioned in the first schedule thereto annexed, amounting in all to 404*l.* 10*s.* 0*d.*, and allowing thereout payments to the amount of 53*l.* 16*s.* 4*d.*, the Master charged the Company with 350*l.* 13*s.* 8*d.* in their hands on balance of rents of the said estate, and for interest on the said 200*l.*, but such balance was insufficient to pay the costs of the said decree and order respectively directed to be taxed and paid out of the funds that should be reported due from the company arising from the increased rents of the estates in question.

And he found that the annuity of 5*l.* to Christ's Hospital in the year 1811 was purchased by the Company from the hospital under the authority of certain Acts of Parliament for the redemption of the land tax, and such purchase money was paid by the company out of the funds then in their hands which had arisen from the rents of the said charity estate.

And he approved of the following scheme for the future application of the surplus or increased rents of the estate in question and the interest of the 200*l.*, according to the purposes pointed out by the said deed of 12th May 1619.

That the following annual salaries or stipends shall be paid out of the increased rents and profits of the said estate and the interest of 200*l.*, viz.:

That after payment of the said annual sums and all outgoings charged on the said estate and all proper charges for managing the estates and collection of the rent (such charges not exceeding 4 per cent. on the clear rental) the residue of the rents and interest, with the addition thereto of the annual sum of 5*l.* therein-after directed to be retained out of the proportion of the residue thereafter allotted to Christ's Hospital shall be divided into seven equal parts.

That five of such seven parts shall be paid yearly to the treasurer of Christ's Hospital (after retaining thereout the annual sum of 5*l.*, the amount originally allotted by the donor to Christ's Hospital, and by them sold in 1811 to the Company) to be applied by the governors of the hospital to the purposes pointed out in the schedule to the indenture of the 12th May 1619 if practicable or expedient, and if the same shall be found not to be practicable or expedient, then to be applied to the general purposes of the hospital.

That one other of such seventh parts shall be yearly paid to the Company of Barbers, and laid out by the master wardens and assistants of the said company in the purchase of good warm woollen coats and cloaks and other articles of wearing apparel or bedding, and beef and bread; to be distributed in the manner directed by the said J. Bancks on the 11th May yearly to such number of poor householders or widows of the said last-mentioned Company as in the discretion of that Company shall be deemed proper. But nevertheless the said master, wardens, and assistants are to be at liberty in cases of emergency and where it shall appear that a small pecuniary assistance would be usefully bestowed, to make such donation in money as to them shall be deemed necessary, such donation not to exceed 20*s.*; and in no case shall any person enjoy the benefit of this charity that shall be in receipt of parochial relief.

That the remaining seventh part shall be applied towards providing for the charges of a dinner every year for such of the Master, Wardens, and Court of Assistants of the Mercers Company as shall with the assistance of the clerk and beadle view the state of reparation of the said charity estate and give notice for the amendment of the defaults thereof.

That the said Company of Mercers shall use all due diligence and endeavours by means of public advertisements or otherwise, to lend out the said 200*l.* to such persons and on such terms as are pointed out by the said J. Bancks in his will, and that the interest to arise by such loans shall be applied together with the rents of the said estates, as before directed.

That distinct accounts shall be kept of the receipt and expenditure in respect of the Charity, and such accounts shall be audited once a year, and when so audited signed by the wardens of the Court of Assistants of the Company.

That the estate and premises belonging to the said Charity shall be duly and properly managed and let to the best advantage at the most improved annual rent under the superintendence of the said Company of Mercers or their officers.

The court by its decree of the 21st November 1831 confirmed the master's report, and ordered that the said Charities be respectively carried on and the rents of the estates in question and the interest of the 200*l.*

be applied after the costs of the suit should have been provided for according to the proposal approved by the said master, and the master was directed to carry on the account and to tax the costs and report in what manner it would be for the benefit of the charity the same should be provided for. The master, by his further report of the 15th July 1883 found a balance in the Company's hands of 478*l.* 4*s.* 4*d.* on account of the rent and interest of the 200*l.*, making with the former sum 828*l.* 15*s.* 0*d.*, and the master thereby certified that he had taxed the costs at 1,288*l.* 7*s.* 1*d.*, and found that 459*l.* 12*s.* 1*d.* remained to be provided. And the master found that the Company were trustees of Sir Thomas Bennett's Charity, and that in the cause in the Court (Exchequer) relating thereto the surplus rents of the estate were apportioned, and thereof a sum of 508*l.* 11*s.* 2*d.* was apportioned to that branch of Sir T. Bennett's Charity, which was for the benefit of poor prisoners confined for debt in the two Compters and Ludgate sides of the Debtors' Prison in Whitecross Street, and the said sum of 508*l.* 11*s.* 2*d.* was under the last-mentioned order on further directions to be invested by the defendants so that the investment might be applied in augmentation of that branch of the said Charity. And he found that the said 508*l.* 11*s.* 2*d.* had been invested by the Company in the purchase of 575*l.* 9*s.* 2*d.* Consols. And he further certified that a report of E. Driver, surveyor, as to the annual value of the estates had been laid before him, and he was of opinion that it would be for the benefit of the said Charity of J. Bancks, and prejudicial to the aforesaid branch of Sir T. Bennett's Charity, that the said Company should by sale of the whole or a competent part of the said 575*l.* 9*s.* 2*d.* Consols raise and advance so much money as should be required for discharging the remaining costs of the suit on the security of the said Charity estate and the said 200*l.*, and that they should be at liberty out of the surplus rents of the said estate and interest of the 200*l.* which should remain after discharging the necessary outgoings and making such payments for charitable purposes as had been hitherto made in respect of the said J. Banck's Charity, to apply and retain to themselves, as trustees of Sir T. Bennett's Charity from time to time until the transfer and appropriation to that Charity as after proposed, such half-yearly sums as would have accrued due for dividends on the said amount of the Consols so to be sold as aforesaid, and that the defendants should from time to time invest on a separate account the remainder of such rents and profits and interest in the purchase of like annuities and should in like manner invest the dividends to accrue due thereon so as to accumulate the same until by those means a sum in like Bank Annuities should be raised equal to the amount of the said Bank Annuities so to be sold as aforesaid, which sum should then be transferred or appropriated to the aforesaid Charity of Sir T. Bennett in discharge of the amount of Bank annuities so to be sold as aforesaid for discharging the remaining costs of the suit as aforesaid.

This has been accordingly done as stated in the Report of Sir Thomas Bennett's Charity.

The estate consists of about 6 acres of land, and a cottage called Wace's Cottage, which is on the right hand of the Holloway Road, leading from Islington to Highgate. The Company's surveyor has settled a plan, with an adjoining proprietor for bringing the ground within the scope of operations for building purposes. The house is dilapidated, and the rent now received from the present tenant (I. Maner) who is subject to removal at three month's notice, is only	£	s.	d.
An acknowledgment for an easement permitted to a neighbouring proprietor	30	0	0

	£35	7	8

The 200*l.* is not now lent by the Company, nor is this sum included in the scheme for the Loan Charities elsewhere set forth.

The Company have continued to pay the increased allowances under the scheme, notwithstanding the, estate has for several years fallen short of the necessary amount. The balance has, therefore, been accumulating against the estate since the year 1856. The management expenses appear to be very heavy. The charges on the estate for the solicitor and surveyor have been in the last four years, as follows:

Solicitor.				Surveyor.

1860	-	24	17	0	1860	-	24	3	6

There have been, I am informed, negotiations between the solicitor and the neighbouring proprietor and arrangements for laying out the ground for building, which is the explanation afforded of the very high professional charges on so small an estate in the absence of any complication of tenancy. The other payments are insurance 1*l.* 10*s.* a year, and the property tax, and a little rent charge of 1*s.*

The disbursements on account of the Charity are annually 39*l.* 18*s.* 0*d.*, being 29*l.* 8*s.* 0*d.* for the seven sermons, the preacher being nominated by the house warden. The renter warden 4*l.* 10*s.* 0*d.*, chaplain 1*l.* 10*s.* 0*d.*, clerk 2*l.* 5*s.* 0*d.*, beadle 0*l.* 15*s.* 0*d.*, and the chapel keeper 1*l.* 10*s.* 0*d.* The payments have been kept up notwithstanding the deficiency of the estate in the expectation that the property will at an early day produce an improved rental sufficient to reimburse the balance advanced by the Company. At the end of the year 1860 the Charity was debited in the books of the Company the sum of 150*l.* 2*s.* 8*d.

SIR THOMAS BENNETT'S CHARITY.

Sir Thomas Bennett, by bargain and sale of the 17th January 1616, granted to trustees the Rectory of Kirton, Lincolnshire, and by a deed of the same date it was declared that the said bargain and sale was made upon trust, that the Mercers' Company should receive the rent of 150*l.* then reserved thereupon, and all other rents, issues, and profits of the same, and should thereout make the following payments:

	£	s.	d.
Fee farm rent to the King reserved in letters patent	-	-	29 0 0
To the receiver	-	-	0 1 0
To 15 poor aged men and women of Wallingford (26 s. 8 d. yearly)	-	-	20 0 0
To 4 poor brethren of the Company	-	-	20 0 0
For redeeming 12 poor prisoners	-	-	24 0 0
For clothing poor men, women, and children wandering in the streets of London	14	0	0
To the poor of Christ's Hospital	-	-	20 0 0
For a dinner on St. Andrew's day	-	-	20 0 0
To the wardens	-	-	1 0 0
To the clerk	-	-	1 0 0
To the beadle	-	-	0 10 0
	£149	11	0

The schedule to the deed contains directions for filling up the trustees from time to time, and that if the rents and profits should fall the Company should make proportionable abatement in the payments.

On the enclosure of the commons in Kirton, allotments on common land, making together 593*a.* 1*r.* 27*p.* were made to the Mercers Company in lieu of tithes. It appears that the Company held also as a part of the rectory, a messuage and cottage and 3 or 4 acres of land making about 60*a.* 0*r.* 0*p.*, and also certain fields occupied by the vicar of Kirton.

There appears, after the enclosure, to have been a large expenditure on the erection of a dwelling-house and farm buildings on the glebe estate. This expenditure was made by William Watson, in consideration of the lease hereinafter referred to, which was surrendered in 1816 in consideration of an annuity of 400*l.* per annum.

*MERCERS' COMPANY. BANCK'S CHARITY.

Under the authority of two orders of the Board dated respectively 2nd day of November 1877 and 13th day of August 1878, the Company entered into two agreements for the grant of leases of portions of the estate at Holloway, referred to on page 3, for terms of 90 years, from Midsummer 1877, at reserved rents of 130*l.* and 147*l.* 10*s.* respectively, the lessees covenanting to erect buildings on the demised properties.

Under the authority of a further order of the Board dated 28th February 1879, an exchange was effected between the Company and the trustees of the estate of Mr. Henry Allen Poynder, of a portion of the Holloway estates.

The Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 6, p. 305) advert to the residue of the income after the specific payments therein contained, being carried to the Company's general account, and express their opinion that the increase of income should be applied proportionably to the charitable purposes and that it might be necessary to apply for the direction of the Court of Chancery.

It appears that in or as of Hilary Term, 1824, the Attorney General filed an information in the Court of Exchequer against the Company and the trustees of the estate, praying a declaration that the Company were mere trustees for the distribution of the rents, &c. to be paid over to them by the trustees among the objects of the said charitable foundation, and that the whole of such rents ought to be applied accordingly as well as the dividends of the stock which had arisen from the accumulation of a part of the funds; and if the whole amount of such payments could not be properly so applied, that the same ought to be applied to other objects of charity as near as might be to the objects pointed out by the founder, or that it might be declared that the surplus rents and dividends ought to be applied to such purposes as His Majesty by his sign manual should be pleased to appoint, or as the Court should direct, and that the usual accounts should be taken, and that if necessary it should be referred to the Master to approve of a scheme for the application of the arrears and of the future rents and profits of the said premises and of the dividends of the stock purchased with the said accumulations.

The cause came on to be heard on the 27th April 1826, and judgment was given by the Lord Chief Baron on the 30th May 1826, whereby the Company was declared to be trustees of the rents and of the augmented rents of the said estates, and that the surplus rents after answering the several payments directed to be made by the deed of the 17th January 1616 were applicable to such purposes as Sir Thomas Bennett had pointed out and directed the rents of such estates to be applied as directed by the said deed of 17th January 1616, without prejudice nevertheless to the question how far the Company were entitled to share in the said increased rents with reference to their share in the said original rent of 150*l.* given to the Company by the said deed of 17th January 1616, and his Lordship directed accounts to be taken of the said rents accordingly.

From this decree, the Company appealed to the House of Lords, assigning specifically the following reasons.

First.—Because the donor had given the estate absolutely in use to the appellants and by the declaration of trusts he had imposed on them the obligation of making certain specific annual payments out of the rents, which at the time of the gift did not amount to the annual produce of the estates; therefore, instead of there being any ground of implication that the donor intended to dedicate the whole usufruct of the land to charitable purposes, on the contrary, the direct conclusion of the law is, that there is no such intention, and the Court of Equity cannot imply a further intention because the subject relates to public Charity.

Secondly.—Because the appellants were the express objects of the donor's regard; and as one of the purposes he had in view in making the gift is declared to be to manifest his love and affection to his brethren the freemen of the Mercers Company, it may be reasonably concluded that he intended to effect this purpose by giving to the appellants the surplus rents which should remain after the purposes particularly specified were answered.

Thirdly.—Because in conferring the trust the donor made the appellants liable to responsibilities in respect of the rent reserved to the Crown, and otherwise, and must therefore be understood to have intended the appellants to receive any benefit which might remain after they had fully performed the trusts particularly declared.

The judgment of the House of Lords was delivered on the 16th July 1828, when the Lord Chancellor after stating the case and the arguments before him; concluded as follows:—

“I have gone further into detail than I should otherwise have done, because it has been contended at the Bar that to confirm the decision of the Chief Baron would be to overrule the decision of the case of the Attorney General v. The Corporation of Bristol. The principle of that decision is that which I have stated, that if there is a part of the sum unappropriated it is a circumstance which the Courts of Justice, and particularly in that case, have considered as an evidence of the intention of the donor as to what should take place with respect to any future increase of that sum, but it is only evidence of the intention, and I apprehend the circumstances to which I have adverted are in this case sufficient to rebut any inference of such an intention arising from the nonapplication of the small fractional sum to which I have adverted. I was extremely desirous of knowing what the opinion of the learned Lord by whom that case of Bristol had been decided was. That noble Lord has looked into the decision in this case, and he does not consider it at all inconsistent with the decision of that case. On the contrary, he agrees with me in opinion that the decision of the Court below is perfectly correct. Under these circumstances I should propose to your Lordships that the judgment be affirmed.”

The case then went back to the Court of Exchequer, and the Master of that Court made his report of the 15th July 1831, having set forth in the third schedule thereto a scheme of which he approved as a fit and proper proposal for the application of the surplus or increased rents of the estate, and this report was confirmed by the order of the Court on the 21st November 1831.

That the following sums shall be annually paid out of the yearly rents and profits of the estate, viz.,

To Mr. Watson during the remainder of the term of 61 years from Lady Day 1773 the yearly sum of	400	0	0
For the yearly fee farm-rent issuing out of the said estates, and payable to a purchaser from the Crown, deducting land tax at 4 s. in the pound, if such fee farm-rent is liable to land tax	29	0	0
To the Wardens of the Mercers Company for their pains	6	0	0
To the clerk of the Company	6	0	0
To the beadle of the Company	3	0	0

That, after making the foregoing payments, and paying the insurance of the premises, and also the necessary charges attending the management of the estate and collection of the rent (such charges not exceeding four per cent. on the clear rental), the residue of the said rents, with the addition thereto of the annual sum of 20*l.* hereinafter directed to be retained out of the proportion of the residue hereinafter allowed to Christ's Hospital, shall be divided into 18 parts.

That three of the 18 parts shall be yearly paid to the mayor, burgesses, and commonalty of Wallingford, to be by them distributed among 15 of the most deserving poor and aged men and women of the said borough and town (not receiving parochial relief), such poor persons to be chosen and appointed by the said mayor, &c., and to continue to receive the benefits of the said charity during their good behaviour.

That three other of such 18 parts shall be divided amongst four of the most deserving poor brethren of the said Company of Mercers who shall have obtained their freedom by service or patrimony, such poor brethren to be appointed at the General Court of the Company as soon as conveniently may be after any vacancy shall happen, of which meeting of the Court due notice shall be given, and such poor brethren, when nominated, are to enjoy the benefits of the Charity during their good behaviour and the pleasure of the said Court.

That four other of such 18 parts, together with the interest of the stock now standing in the books of the Governors and Company of the Bank of England in the name of the Mercers Company, and belonging to the account of the poor prisoners of this charity, shall be applied yearly in the procuring of the discharge of the greatest number of the most deserving poor prisoners confined for debt in the said two Compters and Ludgate sides of the Debtors Prison in Whitecross Street as to the Wardens of the Company shall seem practicable, so that not more than 10*l.* shall be applied for them for the release of any individual, but if any object should appear to the Wardens to be deserving of being relieved, and whose discharge could be obtained on payment of a sum not exceeding 20*l.*, then with the consent of the Court of Assistants of the Company to be signified by an entry in the book of the Charity, stating the particular circumstances of the case, the said Wardens may apply such sum accordingly.

That two other of such 18 parts shall be applied annually by the Wardens in the purchase of good woollen clothing, shoes, stockings, shirts, and such like to be distributed by them to such poor persons in the city of London as in their discretion shall be deemed the most deserving and requiring such relief.

That three other of such 18 parts, after retaining thereout the annual sum of 20*l.*, being the amount originally allotted by the donor to Christ's Hospital, and by them sold in 1811 under the Land Tax Redemption Acts to the Company, shall be paid annually to the Treasurer and Governors of Christ's Hospital, to be by them applied in the relief of the poor children in such Hospital.

That the remaining three of such 18 parts shall be retained by the said Company towards dinner for the wardens, assistants, and livery at their hall, yearly, on Saint Andrew's day or on such other day as to the Company should seem meet.

That in the distribution of the Charity by the Wardens preference shall in all cases be given to the most deserving of such persons as have never received parochial relief or have been the longest without having received such relief, and in no case is any part of the said Charity to be given to any, that at the time shall be in the receipt of parochial relief, or who shall have been in such receipt, and shall for the purpose of enabling them to receive the benefit of the Charity colourably, or for a short time only have ceased to receive such parochial relief.

That distinct accounts shall be kept of the receipt and expenditure in respect of this Charity, and such accounts shall be audited once a year, and when so audited signed by the Wardens and three of the Court of Assistants of the Company.

That the estate and premises belonging to the Charity shall be duly managed, and let and made productive to the best advantage under the superintendence of the Company or their officers.

By a further report of the 7th August 1833, made under the said order of November 1831, the monies in hand after taking the account to that time, amounting to 2,288*l.* 10*s.* 2*d.* were apportioned in manner following.

The sum of 381*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.* being three eightieths to be retained by the Company to their own use; the sum of 381*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.* other three eightieths to the poor persons of the borough of Wallingford; the sum of 381*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.* other three eightieths for the benefit of four poor brethren of the Company; the sum of 508*l.* 11*s.* 2*d.* being four other of the eightieths for poor prisoners in London; the sum of 254*l.* 5*s.* 8*d.* other two eightieths for the distribution of clothing for poor persons in the city of London; and the sum of 381*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.* being the other three eightieths for the benefit of Christ's Hospital.

The sum of 508*l.* 11*s.* 2*d.* appropriated for the four eightieths of the poor prisoners in London, was invested in 575*l.* 9*s.* 2*d.* consols, producing 171*l.* 5*s.* 3*d.* per annum, which was carried to the account of that branch of the Charity until it was disposed of under the decree in Banck's Charity (see the report on that charity). It was replaced on the 18th November 1848, and now forms part of the 2,000*l.* consols hereinafter mentioned as belonging to that branch of the Charity.

The income of the estate at present is as follows:

	£	s.	d.

The three eighteenth share of the borough of Wallingford is remitted to the Treasurer of the Charity Trustees, together with the dividends on the stock appropriated to this branch of the Charity, amounting to 12*l.* 19*s.* annually.

The three eighteenth to the poor mercers is divided amongst four freemen. In 1859 they received 32*l.* 12*s.* each which included the dividends on the 431*l.* 11*s.* 9*d.* stock, apportioned to that account.

The four eighteenth to the prisoners is not wholly expended in any year. The sum appropriated

The Governor of Whitecross Street Prison (Colonel Hicks) delivers an account of prisoners for debt, whom he supposes to be objects of the Charity, to the Company, generally the debt not exceeding 5*l.*, but on some occasions 10*l.*, and the sum granted by the Company is paid to him, the governor of the prisoners.

The accumulations on this account on the 31st December 1860, were as follows:

A balance of 788 l. 18 s. cash, of which a sum of 500 l. consols was ordered to be invested by the Court of the Company, during the progress of this inquiry (March 1861) -	60	0	0

THE CLOTHING OF THE POOR IN LONDON.

The two eighteenthths applicable to this purpose is placed in the hands of the Renter Warden. In the last two or three years about 50*l.* has been laid out in flannels and calicos which are made into bundles of ten yards of calico and seven yards of flannel, and the bundles are distributed by the Renter Warden upon his own knowledge or the recommendations of others. The rest is given away in money to persons known or recommended to him in the same manner.

The vicarage of Kirton is considered to be worth about 400*l.* per annum. There is a good parsonage house which has been lately rebuilt by the aid of Queen Anne's Bounty, and about four acres of glebe land. The present vicar, the Rev. William Ludlow, was presented by the Company in 1845. He is nominated by the General Court of the Company. A question was suggested before me on behalf of the borough of Wallingford, whether the advowson was not a trust which in conformity with the practice adopted in other cases, should be made available by sale or otherwise for the benefit of the objects of the Charity? On this point I referred the parties to the Board.

Mr. J. K. Hedges, a solicitor of Wallingford, and clerk to the Charity Trustees there, attended my inquiry at the Mercer's Hall, and furnished me with an account showing the several amounts received by that borough for the last 20 years, which account I annex to my Report.

BLUNDELL'S GIFT.

Peter Blundell, by his will 9th June, 1599, gave to the Company 150*l.* to purchase lands and houses, and pay 40*s.* yearly to the poor of Bedlam, and the residue "to be so employed and bestowed as the Wardens of "the said mystery for the time being for ever shall "have and take the benefit thereof for their labour and "pains in and about the establishing and yearly paying "of the said 40*s.* yearly for ever as aforesaid." And he gave the Company by his said will 200*l.* The Company laid out the 350*l.* in the purchase of property in Cornhill, which has been taken for the New Royal Exchange. It is now represented by 9,511*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.* Consols in the Court of Chancery, 2*l.* a year is paid to Bethlehem Hospital, and three-sevenths of the remainder is paid to the Master and Wardens, and the residue is carried to the Company's account.

LADY JOAN BRADBURY'S CHARITY.

Dame Joan Bradbury, (being authorised by Letters Patent) by an indenture tripartite of the 2nd March 1523, declared the uses of a conveyance of the 12th of May in the 8th year of the Reign of King Henry 8th, which conveyed 29 acres of land in Marylebone, 20 acres of land, 40 acres of meadow and 60 acres of pasture in the Town of Westminster, and the parish of 'St. Giles' and Saint Martin's-in-the-Fields (a portion of which now remains vested in the Mercers Company and forms the Bradbury Estate, in the table of such lands) partly for 30*s.* a year, to be distributed in coals to and among the poor householders and inhabitants of the parish of St. Stephen, Coleman, within 12 days before or after Christmas in every year.

The greater portion of the rents of this large estate are by the foundation deed directed to be applied in the maintenance of services for the souls referred to in the deed. I do not find that any steps have been taken on behalf of the Crown, under the Statute of Edward the 6th, but it is possible that this estate may be comprised in the grant to the various companies made in the reign of Edward the 6th, and confirmed by the statute of James 1st mentioned in my report on the Fishmonger's Company's Charities.

It appears that the estates which are in Westminster and are very extensive, now produce a rental of 8,709*l.* 10*s.* a year.

The sum of 30*s.* a year is paid to the Churchwardens of St. Stephen's, Coleman Street, and a further sum of 16*s.* 8*d.* to the officer of the Company, to the Master and Wardens 15*s.* 8*d.*, to the Clerk 1*s.* 8*d.*, making together 2*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*

VISCOUNT CAMPDEN'S EXHIBITIONS.

The Viscount Campden prior to 1685 devised as follows:—

Whereas I have an estate of inheritance in fee farm after the decease of the Earl of Northumberland, in a certain portion of tithes arising within the territories and hamlets of Woodhorne, Seaton, Wytherington, Creswell, Horton alias Horne-ton, Hirst, Errington, and Linton, all which premises were parcel of the Rectory of Woodhorne in the County of Northumberland, and late were parcel of the lands and possessions of the late Monastery of Tinmouth in the said county.

And after giving one moiety to the Church of Hampstead in the County of Middlesex, he gave the other moiety of the said tithes to the said Company for the better maintenance of such scholar and scholars as from time to time for ever from and after the death of the said Earl of Northumberland should be preferred from Paul's School to Trinity College in Cambridge; and when such scholar and scholars should come to better preferment from Trinity College, then his will was that such other scholar or scholars of Paul's School that be fitting to be preferred to Trinity College aforesaid should have the benefit of his gift. And his will was that the fee farm rent reserved to his Majesty and his successors should, after the death of the said Earl of Northumberland, for ever be satisfied and paid unto his Majesty, his heirs and successors, equally out of the profits of the said tithes by those that should enjoy the benefit of the surplusage of the said tithes.

The tithes are collected by a receiver in Northumberland, who is appointed by the Company. The amount of the gross receipt in 1860 was 457*l.* 19*s.* 10*d.*, out of which there was paid for taxes and collection 89*l.* 5*d.*, leaving a balance of 368*l.* 19*s.* 5*d.* for the Campden Exchequer Fund for that year.

The accumulations of capital on the fund are now represented by 20,000*l.* reduced 3*l.* per cent. annuities, and 1,000*l.* 3*l.* per cent. consolidated annuities, producing together 630*l.* annual dividend, making a total net receipt for 1860 of 998*l.* 19*s.* 5*d.* Of this sum 820*l.* was paid for exhibitions. There were eight exhibitors, namely—

William Lawrence	120
Francis Whyley	120
Paul Whalley	100
Thomas Miller	120
F. M. Williams	100
W. D. Sweeting	80
T. W. Spurling	100
W. M. Deane	80

The exhibitions are held for four years, and all of them must be given to scholars of St. Paul's School who proceed to Trinity College, Cambridge.

The election is the result of examinations at the school. The annual exhibition varies from 80*l.* to 120*l.* It depends on the recommendation of the examiners.

LADY CAMPDEN'S CHARITY.

Elizabeth Viscountess Campden bequeathed to the Mercers Company, if they would take the same, and if not, to the Company of the Merchant Tailors, by her will of the 14th February 1642, the sum of 3,100*l.* to purchase the inheritance of two church livings, parsonages, or rectories in Yorkshire, Lincolnshire, or Durham, to be in the gift of the Mercers Company, and she also gave to the Company the further sum of 1,000*l.* to be lent to eight young men gratis, together with a legacy to the Company, if they should undertake the things required.

CHURCH LIVING FUND.

In execution of the first direction of the testatrix, the Company in the time of the Commonwealth, instead of purchasing church livings, established two lectureships, one at Grantham, and another at Wakefield. In 1804 an arrear of 931*l.* 5*s.* 0*d.* had accrued owing to a vacancy of the Grantham Lectureship. This was added to the 3,100*l.*, the amount of the original gift, which had theretofore been made a charge on the Company's estates under the deed of 1699, as represented by 150*l.* a year, part of the 548*l.* 1*s.* 0*d.* a year secured by that deed. This made together 4,031*l.* 5*s.* 0*d.*, from which was deducted 17*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.* for law charges, leaving 4,013*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.* The Company does not appear to have invested this sum in any separate form for many years. The first distinct investment on this account appears to have been on the 23rd January 1824, when 5,975*l.* cash was laid out in 6,666*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* 3*l.* per cent. consols so as to produce an exact dividend of 200*l.* That investment continued until the 29th May 1838, when the Company purchased 4,095*l.* 13*s.* 10*d.* consols with the sum of 4,013*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.* cash, being the amount due to the charity estate on the account settled in 1804. The larger investment then ceased to be treated in the books of the Company as the fund of the Charity, the investment itself having been made, not as a binding appropriation or as the produce of money really belonging to the Charity, but merely as an arrangement of convenience. Taking the Charity in 1804 to be entitled to the sum of 4,013*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.* as ascertained in that year, the interest thereof at five per cent. would be about 200*l.* a year, and it appears that by order of the Court of the Company of the 20th December 1804, each of the two lectureships was increased from 75*l.* to 100*l.* per annum, which has ever since been paid, the lectureship having always been kept full, and during any vacancies in the regular appointments the duty is supplied by other clergymen, who are remunerated on the same scale. As the dividends of the stock purchased in 1838 amount to no more than 122*l.* 17*s.* 4*d.* a year, the Company have since that time made up the annual sum of 200*l.* by a payment of 77*l.* 2*s.* 8*d.* out of their own income.

Upon the present extent of the liability of the Company in respect of these lectureships, it may be a question whether the 4,013*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.* should not be treated as if invested as it ought to have been in 1804, and at the price of consols at that day it would probably have produced at least sufficient to pay the full sum of 200*l.* a year, and it may be a question therefore whether in order fully to satisfy the claim of the Charity, a sufficient amount of stock ought not to be provided to make up the 200*l.* a year, and in fact whether the 6,666*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* should not be substantially restored. I do not know whether it may be fairly assumed that the Company has admitted this liability by paying annually 200*l.*

A purchase of a tithe-rent on lands in East Bainton and Houghton-le-Spring, in the county of Durham, producing a gross income of 134*l.*, and net 120*l.*, for which 2,700*l.* is demanded, with a portion of this Charity fund, has been approved of by the Company.

The Company have been always under the impression that they are not at liberty to purchase an advowson or church living. The directions of the will are:—

"To purchase the inheritance of two church livings parsonages or rectories, called appropriations or impropriations of 100*l.* a year or more to either of them, if the said sum would reach unto it, the same to be in Yorkshire, Lincolnshire, or the Bishopric of Durham if convenient, if not, in some other places or counties where either of the said Companies should best fit themselves with such livings to be purchased, and find most want of preaching ministers. And that the same church livings or appropriations so purchased should be by one of the said Companies from time to time successively after their wonted customs of election by most votes at their general courts, conferred upon two worthy ministers respectively that had taken the degree of Master of Arts at the least, and should be under the age of 27 years during such terms, and in such manner, and with such provisions, that if they or either of them should prove non-residents, or have any other benefit or church living with cure of souls besides, or should so neglect their charge or otherwise misbehave themselves, that the said Company should think fit to remove them; that then the said Wardens and Commonalty and their successors should and might remove, displace, and dismiss them or either of them out of the said appropriations, or either of them, and elect others according to their discretions."

Under this the Company have considered themselves confined to the purchase of a tithe-rentcharge arising out of or coming within the description of a rectory, living, or parsonage, "anciently appropriated to some "abbey, monastery, or religious house or houses now "commonly called appropriations or impropriations of "100*l.* a year or more to either of them."

I cannot conceive that this is the correct construction of the gift. The testatrix connects the locality of the charge with the Ministerial wants, which would be a matter of no importance if a tithe-rentcharge arising in one locality could be bought, and the income appropriated to the performance of duties in another. When the proposed net income of 120*l.* a year from the Houghton-le-Spring tithes shall be purchased, it is contemplated that it may be dealt with in one of two ways, either that the Company shall receive the rentcharge of 120*l.* a year in Durham, and pay it over to the lecturer at Grantham, or, direct the lecturer of Grantham to collect it himself. The result appears to me to be almost absurd. It is due, however, to the Company to say that they have been advised by somewhat high authority.

The Company in 1821 took the opinion of Sir Anthony Hart, who said, "I am of opinion that the "Trustees cannot lay out the fund in the purchase of "any spiritual benefice; an advowson impropriate is a mere lay fee, and the rents and profits may be held "and used as those of any other real estate. Consequently the trustees, by having the authority to withhold the rents and profits, from any lecturer who "may neglect his duty or misconduct himself will "thereby effectually enable themselves to operate his removal. But if the fund should be laid out in the "purchase of an advowson, the lecturer must be presented and become the parson of the parish from which he could not be removed by the authority of the trustees, nor could the lectureships be removed "to any other place; the trust would then cease, and the estate would be merely subject to the ecclesiastical "law of the land."

The difficulty which appeared to Sir Anthony Hart as an objection to the purchase of an advowson that the incumbent could not be removed for the causes referred to in the will, may be obviated by a resignation bond. There is nothing in the provisions of the will which require that if the ministers should prove non-residents, or have any other benefice or cure, or otherwise neglect their charge or misbehave themselves, they shall be removed, which is in any respect simoniacal. Such a clause is in aid of, rather than contrary to, ecclesiastical law as well as policy; its legality is supported by express decision (Bagshaw v. Bosseley 4, T. R. 78, and see Burns Ecclesiastical Law, Vol. 3, p. 633), and it is wholly unaffected by the Statute on the subject of Resignation bonds.

It is plain that the method of dealing with the bequest advised and adopted is subject to the greater difficulty that the Company have no absolute power of appointment of their nominee to the spiritual care of any parish or district whatever. This is exemplified in fact by the refusal of the pulpit at Wakefield to their lecturer.

The lecturer at Wakefield preaches at one of the district churches, and delivers a lecture on each Sunday. The rector of the parish Church refused to admit the lecturer appointed by the Company. The lecturer at Grantham preaches in the parish church, he is the curate appointed by the rector, some arrangement of ministerial duty having been made under the authority of the Bishop.

LOAN FUND.

The sum of 1,000*l.*, which by the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 6, p. 317) did not appear to have been lent according to the will, was the subject of a suit in the Court of Chancery by the Attorney General, at the relation of John Kemble Chapman, against the Mercers' Company. The result of which was that the Company were ordered to account for the sum of 1,000*l.* and interest at 5*l.* per cent. for 20 years, and that a scheme was settled for the further appropriation and administration of the 2,000*l.* and subsequent interest with which the Company was thus charged. I subjoin copies of the decrees and also of the scheme.

The costs amounted to 379*l.* 15*s.* 9*d.*, of which the Company bore 239*l.* 5*s.* 3*d.* and the remainder, 140*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.*, was paid out of the Charity fund, which reduced the 2,000*l.* to 1,859*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.* The balance, or the greater part thereof, has been subsequently lent at various times in sums of 500*l.* without interest pursuant to the scheme.

The present borrowers are:—

Thomas Mann	200
Thomas Robins	150
Thomas Totton	250
Wilton Parker	500
John Frasby Scarborough	500

They are members of the Company, and are on the Livery. There are few members not on the Livery, and none who would be proper borrowers. It has not been the habit to publish the advertisements, as the Company have considered the application sufficient without that publicity, and it is obvious that a perpetual course of advertisements must exhaust the fund. The accounts have not been passed before the master, as such a disbursement would still more rapidly have extinguished the fund.

Since the suit a sum of 5*l.* 14*s.* has been expended on advertisements, and 58*l.* 7*s.* 5*d.* in law costs (partly for taking the opinion of the Court on the nature of the securities), thus reducing the capital fund to 1,801*l.* 2*s.* 1*d.* The loans above stated amount to 1,600*l.*, and the balance in hand therefore is now (January 1861) 201*l.* 2*s.* 1*d.*

CHELTSEY'S GIFT.

Robert Chertsey devised to the Mercers' Company, by his will 1st April 1555, certain property in St. James, Garlickhithe, conditioned to pay to three poor householders free of the Company 7*d.* a week each. The Company pay 4*l.* 11*s.* a year to three poor freemen of the Company. They are persons who receive other pensions from the Company, or are otherwise benefited. One of the persons is an under-beadle or labourer at the Hall.

CLARKE'S GIFT.

Mrs. Catherine Clarke having paid to the Company 240*l.*, the Company by indenture of 20th June 1611, covenanted to pay 12*l.* a year to the vicar, churchwardens, and overseers of Harrow, Middlesex, for 12 of the poor inhabitants. The fund has been increased by the amount of 124*l.* 2*s.* 3*d.* per cent. consols, produced from arrears, standing to the account of the Company, the dividends on which are 3*l.* 14*s.* 5*d.* The annual sum of 15*l.* 14*s.* 5*d.* is paid on the receipt of the vestry clerk of the parish of Harrow.

COLLIER'S SCHOOL AT HORSHAM, SUSSEX.

Richard Collier by his will of the 23rd January 1532 directed that his messuage called the Sonne in our Lady-le-Bow, London, should be sold and the money employed in building a house to keep a free school at Horsham, for 60 scholars, and the master to have a salary of 10*l.* a year, and the usher 10 marks (6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*) to be admitted by the vicar and churchwardens and eight honest men of the parish; and the testator willed that the poor people of the same parish and next about the same should be preferred, and that the vicar and churchwardens should present the said master and usher to the Mercers' Company, and the wardens were to pay the salaries of the master and usher, and the said wardens and Company to have for their performance of the same the house called the Keay, with the appurtenances in Cheapside, in the parish of St. Pancras, in the ward of Cheap, to be made sure to the said Company for evermore paying that afore-recited. And the wardens to have 20*s.* yearly for their painstaking, and more to be taken out of the same when it should be needful to see such reparations as should be meet to be done. And if the said wardens refuse the said house for the premises aforesaid, then the testator willed that the vicar and churchwardens of Horsham aforesaid should receive the rents that the wardens aforesaid should have done and the residue and overplus of the same more than the charge of the schoolhouse by them to be received yearly to be bestowed in the reparations of the said messuage on the maintenance of highways about the said town and parish of Horsham where as it should be needful so that it should be not passing 6 miles from the said parish.

In addition to the foregoing devise the Will of Richard Collier contains the following residuary gift:

"Also if both my said children decease as aforesaid or they come to their lawful age and without lawful issue of their body or bodies Then I will that all the residue of my lands and tenements not before bequeathed that I have or any other to my use within the realm of England That the Mercers' Company make sale thereof at as good a price according as it is in value to good consciences And the fourth part of the money thereof amounting to be reserved to the said Company to their Charity Box to bear out the charges of such as fallen in decay within the same Company to be in poverty and feeble according to the discretion of the said wardens to pray for my soul and for brethren's souls of the said Company Also I will that the other three parts that so come of the lands aforesaid be in the custody of the said Company and within the space of 3 years to be bestowed on the highways most needful within 8 miles of the city of London at the discretion of the wardens so that it be not done of a singular mind that one of the said wardens may have more to any way they may have any land lying or any other cause of partiality but indifferently where most need of indifferency to be done on the North East and West side of the city and none thereof on the South side of the city or Thames and also to be taken out and paid of the said 3 parts of money aforesaid for the said expenses of the year £4 for a banquet for the wardens and assistants to devise as is aforesaid what is to be done for the year following in the making of the said highways and to see the accompt of that is past."

It does not appear that the Company took any estate under this residuary devise. The Commissioners of Inquiry mention (vol. 2. page 168) that in 1749 there was a claim made on the part of the parish of Horsham in respect of a fund supposed to be applicable under the will for the repairs of the highways, upon which the Company took the opinion of the Attorney and Solicitor General of that day, who were of opinion that the Company, subject to the claim of the school, was entitled to any surplus of the estate in their hands. I have not seen the documents on this subject, but as stated by the Commissioners of Inquiry they would seem to show that the Company possessed nothing under the residuary clause; and at this day they have no knowledge of any estate but that which is stated below, and which is described in their books as the "Collier and Mallory Estate," the Mallory Estate (or one fifth) having always from the commencement of the account been held by the Company subject to no Charitable Trust.

The present estate falling under the endowment is as follows:—

	£726	0	0

The four fifths of this sum applicable for Collier's endowment is 580*l.* 16*s.* The amount carried to the account of Collier's Estate in the year ending 31st December 1860 was 520*l.* 17*s.*

4. The property at Horsham consists of a Master's residence, Usher's residence, school in the centre, a room about 40 feet by 30, a playground. Each of the Masters have a garden on the East side. These premises were rebuilt in 1840, and occupy with the ground and garden something less than two acres - In hand.

The management expenses are deducted from the gross amount of the rent, and the balance is then divided into the five aliquot shares of which the Charity is entitled to four.

The general management of the estate includes the following expenses. (1860):—

Property tax - - -	31	0	2
Receivers poundage - - -	18	3	0
Law charges - - -	1	12	6
Surveyors - - -	3	3	0
	£74	18	8

This left 651*l.* 1*s.* 4*d.* for division between the estate, of which four fifths (or 520*l.* 17*s.*) was, in 1860, carried to the account of Collier's Estate and the school.

The ordinary disbursements on the school, are (1860):—

Masters' salary (including allowance of 15 l. for 20 additional scholars) -	175	0	0
Usher - - -	100	6	8

Tradesmen, carpenter, plumber and bricklayer - - -	4	17	10
	£358	17	7

On the 31st December 1860 a sum of 726*l.* 6*s.* 6*d.* was due to the Charity Estate. The fund is thus separately accounted for, notwithstanding the claim of the Company as absolutely entitled to the residue.

In the year 1811 there appears to have been a suit at the relation of the Company, the object of which was to settle a scheme for the government and regulation of the said school, and the appointment of the Master and Usher, and for settling their salaries, and that a reference might be made to one of the Masters of the Court to approve of such scheme, and that proper persons might be appointed by the Court to be trustees of the schoolhouse and premises, and that the legal estate in the same might be conveyed or vested in such trustees, and the possession of such house and premises be delivered to such persons as Master and Usher of the said school as the Court should approve.

In this suit the Master by his report of the 12th August 1812 certified that he had approved of the following scheme:—

Scheme.—That the said school should consist of 60 scholars to be selected by the vicar and churchwardens and schoolwardens of Horsham, from the poor people in especial of the said parish and the next about the said parish, and they to be preferred to the said school, that notwithstanding of the said parish of Horsham, none should be refused likely to learn, and that the parents of the said scholars be at no charge for their learning or for pens, ink, or paper, or books, or other requisites or for admission.

That scholars be admitted from the age of eight years and be permitted to remain until the age of 14 years.

That the qualifications for the admission of children to the school be to have a perfect knowledge of the alphabet, but that preference be given to the best reader.

That the scholars be taught reading, writing, and arithmetic, and the principles of religion, and sent to be catechised in the church at the usual season attended by a proper person, also that any number of boys at the discretion of the schoolmasters be also taught the Latin language.

That the hours of attendance in the school be from 9 till 12 in the morning, and from 2 till 4 in the afternoon during the winter half, and 2 till 5 in the summer, and that both at Christmas and Midsummer four weeks holidays and no more be allowed, also two afternoons in the week besides six whole days in the year, the times of such vacations and holidays to be fixed by the master who shall teach the boys assisted by the usher in such manner as the master shall require, but the master shall himself be answerable for teaching Latin to such as shall be appointed by the Schoolwardens and in the principles of religion, and that as so large a number of 60 scholars will require the full exertion of two teachers, the personal attendance of both master and usher in the school is indispensable during school hours.

That the master and usher shall send back any boy who shall not appear with clean hands and face, and hair well combed, or not decently dressed, and if such boy will not return so cleaned and dressed within a reasonable time he shall receive moderate correction, and if ungovernable he shall be reported to the Schoolwardens who shall have power further to punish or dismiss him as they shall think proper, and to the intent that the Schoolwardens may know how the boys conduct themselves, a book shall be kept of their daily attendance wherein the name of each boy shall be daily written on his entrance into school and the hour of his coming, against which the master and usher shall make remarks as they shall think proper.

That an account be regularly kept by the Master of the books, pens, ink, slates, and other requisites for the said school, taking care that there be no waste in order that such accounts may be transmitted yearly to the Mercers' Company, signed by the schoolwardens.

That the vicar, churchwardens, and parishioners in vestry assembled, at which eight parishioners at least shall be present at the time the churchwardens are chosen, do yearly appoint two parishioners to be schoolwardens, whose names shall be transmitted yearly to the Mercers' Company by the Master.

That the Mercers' Company having allowed a gratuity of 100*l.* per annum to the Master during pleasure in addition to the salary of 10*l.* allowed by the testator's will, and to the usher a gratuity of 60*l.* per annum during pleasure, in addition to the salary of 10 marks allowed by the will, the said Master did recommend the said Mercers' Company to continue to allow a gratuity of 100*l.* per annum during pleasure, and 60*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* per annum during pleasure in addition to the salaries allowed by the said will.

That the master and usher should have and enjoy the houses and all the premises attached thereto, in the same manner as the master and usher have heretofore enjoyed the same.

That the boys should be permitted to play in the ground called the Croft as heretofore, and that it should not be let out to hire.

That neither the schoolmaster nor usher should teach any other scholars to the detriment of the said school, or whereby the scholars may be neglected, nor should the said schoolmaster or usher be suffered to execute his office by deputy except in case of sickness or other extreme necessity; and that the master and usher should give their personal attendance in the school during the whole time of school hours.

That the school should be under the direction and management of the said vicar, churchwardens, and schoolwardens for the time being, and of the relations the Mercers' Company, and that they should have full power and authority from time to time to make such rules and orders for the government of the said school as they in their discretion should think proper, and as should appear most likely to promote the intention of the testator and the benefit of the objects of the said Charity and from time to time to vary and alter all such rules and orders, or to revoke the same as occasion should require.

By the decree on further directions, made apparently in the year 1813, but with the date of which I have not been furnished, the Court ordered that the said Master's Report should be confirmed, and that the scheme for managing the said school and for carrying into effect the charitable intention of the said testator be carried into execution.

It appears that some further inquiries were then directed, but which do not appear to be now material.

The Rev. J. F. Hodgson, the vicar, attended my inquiry, and gave me information as to the state of the school and the educational condition of the parish.

The master and usher are appointed by the local governors for the time being assisted by eight of the parishioners of Horsham, appointed by the vestry. The local governors are the vicar, the three churchwardens, and two inhabitants appointed by the parish annually, at Easter, when the churchwardens are chosen. The appointment is subject to the approval of the Mercers' Company.

The present Master is Mr. William Pirie, who was appointed about the year 1822. He is now nearly 70 years of age.

The present usher is Richard Cragg, appointed about five years ago.

The number of boys in the school is now and has since 1857 been 80. All of them are admitted and educated free of expense. No private or pay pupils are taken. At the last examination (May 1861) when there were 20 vacancies, 94 candidates from the parish of Horsham applied for admission.

The course of instruction in the school is reading, writing, and arithmetic, and some encouragement is given to drawing, but without any regular instruction in it. The boys are either the children of the poor or poor tradesmen, and have very rarely and never of late years desired to be taught Latin.

The population of Horsham, is about 6,600, and has National schools for boys and girls, and British schools. These are supported by school pence, subscriptions, and sermon. It appears in fact that this foundation school supplies only the place of a National school. There are more boys in the National school, but they are said to be younger. There is said to be a certain prestige about the school which induces the scholars to stay a little longer than in the National school. The two schools operate as a lower and upper school.

There is no examination except at the will of the master who generally invites the vicar and local governors twice a year, to attend the examination which the master himself conducts. The vicar hears the Catechism of the children in Lent; but he is not perfectly satisfied with the religious instruction at other times. He considers that the school should be subject to regular inspection and examination by independent examiners.

It is also stated that it is hurtful to the school that the boys should be compelled to leave at 14 years of age, as instances have been found in which they have been compelled to proceed to other schools.

The school has been the subject of a correspondence with the Board (see file 1,148); in the result of which the Commissioners inquired the grounds upon which the Mercers' Company rested their claim to the surplus income of the Charity estate.

To this the Mercers' Company replied that they rested their claim to the residue of the estate (after providing for all the wants of the school) upon the will of the founder, as also upon the decree of the Court of Chancery of the 5th April 1813, which did not question the fact.

With reference to the suit referred to it should be observed that it was an information filed at the relation of the Mercers' Company for the purpose of obtaining the directions of the Court in the government of the Charity, and no adverse question was therefore likely to be raised.

I append a correspondence I have had with the vicar, as the result of some verbal suggestions which were made at the inquiry, with reference to an extension of the benefits of this institution.

DAUNTSEY'S SCHOOL AND ALMSHOUSE CHARITY.

Alderman William Dauntsey, by his will, 10th March 1542, directed his executors to purchase certain land at West Lavington, Wilts, and to cause a house called a Church house, and a house for a school to be kept in, and eight chambers to be built on the same; that the said schoolhouse to be for children to be taught therein. One of the said chambers for the schoolmaster, five of the said chambers for five poor aged and impotent men, and the two remaining for two honest, aged poor women. And the testator gave all his messuages, &c. to the Mercers' Company, to pay to the schoolmaster 10*l.* a year and to each of the almspeople 10*s.* 10*d.* a quarter.

The establishment of the Charity on the footing designed by the testator is witnessed by a Deed of the 20th October 1583, made between the brother and heir and one of the executors of the founder, and the Company; and the Company thereby covenant, in consideration of the devised property upon which they had entered, to uphold the schoolhouse and chambers, and to pay the schoolmaster his yearly stipend, and the bedesmen and bedeswomen their stipends and wages according to the will, and the heir of the founder covenants with the Company for their quiet enjoyment of the devised premises on the due performance of such conditions.

It appears that on the 20th March 1633 a decree was made in the Court of Chancery in a suit by Sir John Danvers and his wife (that lady claiming as heiress of Alderman Dauntsey) against the Company, whereby it was ordered, apparently by consent, that the Company should pay 100*l.* to Sir John Danvers for repairing and enlarging the school and almshouse, and thenceforth pay 60*l.* per annum for the maintenance of the schoolmaster, almsmen, and almswomen, and it was thereby ordered and decreed by consent that the said Master, Wardens, and Commonalty, and their successors, in consideration of the premises, should for ever peaceably and quietly hold and enjoy all such messuages, lands, &c. as were theretofore given, devised, or limited by the said Alderman Dauntsey, or by his direction to the said Master and Wardens, without any claim or demand of the said Petitioners or either of them or of any other persons claiming by, from, or under them. And it was ordered that the said Master, Wardens, and Commonalty having of their own pious inclination advanced the charitable use to a far greater proportion and yearly stipend and allowance than had been formerly paid should not from thenceforth be further questioned by the said plaintiffs or their heirs touching the same; but thereof or of any further increase be for ever freely acquitted and discharged: the said plaintiffs nevertheless hoping that if any extraordinary improvement should thereafter be made of the said messuages and land devised as aforesaid, the said Master, Wardens, and Commonalty and their successors being of such integrity and piety that being likewise entrusted by the said will, out of their due respect to charity and justice, they would not fail to enlarge the said allowance in case any such extraordinary improvement should be as aforesaid.

The estate devised by the Company under this devise consists of the property in Gracechurch Street, Corbet Court, St. Peter's Alley, New Cannon Street, Watling Place, and Queen Street, called the Dauntsey Estate, and producing altogether an income of 1,462*l.* 10*s.* per annum.

The payments made to the almsmen and almswomen, which at the time of the Reports of the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 6, p. 288) were 5*s.* each per week and 13*s.* 4*d.* each quarterly, and 110*l.* per annum for the schoolmaster, were in 1842 increased to 8*s.* per week. The schoolmaster's stipend was also from time to time increased, and has for some years past received an annual sum of 170*l.* from stipend and gratuities, the limits of each of which do not appear very clearly defined. The schoolmaster also is allowed 50*l.* per annum for an usher, 15*l.* per annum for coals, and the whole amount of his rates and taxes, which in 1859 amounted to 23*l.* 14*s.* 1*d.* The school and almshouses are insured at the sum of 3,300*l.*, and the premium on this amount is 7*l.* 17*s.*

The schoolmaster's allowance on the whole therefore appears to be:—

170	0	0 for himself.
50	0	0 „ usher.
15	0	0 „ coals.
23	14	1 „ rates and taxes.
7	17	0 „ insurance.

The present schoolmaster is the Reverend Edward Wilton, who was appointed on the 25th June 1832.

The usher is unknown to the Mercers' Company, nor are they acquainted with the state of the school or with the almspeople.

The number of the almspeople was increased in the year 1831 from 7 to 10.

The almspeople now receive 8s. per week, and 3l. per year for clothing each person, making altogether 238l.

In the year 1839 the Company, in addition to the other payments, granted to the Reverend E. Wilton a sum of 75l. for the outfit of his son for India.

The whole fund (except for insurance) is remitted to the schoolmaster, and is applied by him. The Company receive no vouchers except as showing payments in taxes.

I append the communication I have received from the Reverend E. Wilton in reply to my inquiries as to the condition of the institution.

FERMOR'S CHARITY.

The Honourable Elizabeth Fermor, by her will of the 8th August 1704, directed that a sum of 1,000l. should be laid out in the purchase of lands of the largest and most durable income, of which income 10l. should be applied to the benefit of a free school, to be taught within the parish of Fairford, in Gloucestershire, and that her uncle, Samuel Barker, Esquire, and his heirs should for ever have the nomination of a person to teach 20 poor children at a time, inhabitants of Fairford aforesaid, to read English and write, for which the person so teaching should have the yearly sum of 10l. And she gave the residue of the said yearly income to a minister to preach every Sunday afternoon, and if he be not the minister of Fairford, then 5l. to the said minister for permitting him to preach. And if he should not be permitted so to preach, then the bequest for preaching to go to the use of the poor widows in Lady Mico's Almshouses at Stepney. And if the yearly profits should exceed 50l., then such overplus should go to the said poor widows.

The 1,000l. is stated to have been invested in the year 1718 by order of the Court of Chancery in the purchase of an estate called Chaceley Hole, in the parish of Chaceley, in the county of Worcester.

The Mercers' Company, as trustees of Lady Mico's Almshouses at Stepney, appear to have been in 1817, for the first time, made acquainted with the bequest. The rent of the farm, which had been originally 52l., was raised gradually to 140l., which it had reached in 1811, and the rent had been apportioned between the vicar and master of the school. The estate consists, it is stated by the Commissioners of Inquiry, of "an ancient farmhouse and buildings and several parcels of land containing 91a. 3r. 34p." (Vol. 6, page 318). I do not find that the Company have any later particulars respecting it. It appears, however, that much has been expended since 1840 in repairs and improvements on the property, for I find the following items of charge in the accounts rendered by the agent of Mr. Raymond Barker, who acts as the trustee of the estate, under the deeds (I presume) of the 24th and 25th June 1718. I cannot understand that any conveyance has been subsequently executed by which Mr. Barker has been appointed trustee, and as it is scarcely probable that the estate has descended to him as heir-at-law, up to this time, it is likely that the legal estate is outstanding.

The funds for the earlier repairs were obtained by loan from the Gloster Bank, on which interest was paid, and which loan was gradually reduced by the excess of rents.

The Gift for this purpose of education at Fairford seems to have been always understood as being only of one annual sum of 10l.. I have not had any copy of the instrument itself, nor has any such copy been found amongst the papers of the Company. On the purchase of the estate in 1718, a rentcharge of 25s. per annum was reserved to one Nicholas Smithsend and his heirs, and this rentcharge appears, so far back as the accounts can be traced, to be added to the 10l. paid to the schoolmaster, making his annual sum 11l. 5s. I cannot ascertain the origin of this addition, otherwise then as above stated. The school and the other charities of Fairford were the subject of an inquiry by Mr. Simons, to whose Report (4th November 1856), I beg to refer.

A sum of 40l. a year has been annually allowed to the lecturer, in respect of what is described in the accounts as an "Evening Lecture," and after deducting land tax and income tax (no commission being charged), the balance has been paid to the Company as above stated.

The Company do not interfere with the letting of the estate. It is according to the accounts rendered, let to a Mr. Lane, at 110l. a year. Mr. Trinder (the agent of Mr. Barker) states in his letter to the Company, that the house is greatly out of repair, and that repairs to the extent of 30l. have been ordered. It will be seen in the Report on Lady Mico's Almshouses that, the Company in fact, provide all the deficiency for the maintenance of that institution, and therefore, any failure of diminution of productiveness in the Chaceley estate is purely to the loss of the Company. The excess of payments are not in any case carried in as charges against the Charity.

FISHBORNE'S CHARITIES.

Richard Fishborne by his will 30th March 1625, bequeathed to the Company,

I. 500l. to purchase lands and hereditaments of the clear yearly value of 25l., for a sermon in the Mercers' chapel, on the first Sunday in Michaelmas Term, and on every Sunday following (except at Christmas) until the first Sunday in Lent, 20s. for each sermon, and to the keeper of the said chapel 40s.; also

II. A further sum of 2,800l. to purchase two or more rectories in Lincolnshire, Yorkshire, or some other Northern County to be in the Gift of the Company; also

III. A further sum of 1,000l. to be lent to five young men of the Company gratis on bond; also

VI. Also a further sum of 300l. to defray the costs of suits at law to arise about such purchases as aforesaid.

VII. Also a further sum of 1,000l. to purchase lands of the yearly value of 50l. to be distributed in clothing to 30 poor brethren of the Company or their widows; and VIII. Also a further sum of 2,000l. to purchase lands of the yearly value of 100l. for good and charitable uses in Huntingdon.

The whole of the sums were received by the Company from the estate of the testator, with as it appears a small surplus. The endowments are divisible into three classes:—

First.—Those directed to be applied as a loan fund and to discharge the expense of suits at law and which have therefore no specific local application, (Nos. III. and VI.) in the above list.

Second.—The sum to be employed in the purchase of church livings, viz., 2,800l. (No. II.)

Third.—The monies directed to be invested in lands for various other objects above stated (Nos. I., IV., V., VII., VIII.).

First Class.—The sum of 1,000 (III.) is part of the subject of the Report on the "Money Legacies for Loans" and is dealt with under the decree of the 7th March 1833 therein stated. The 300l. (VI.) for law suits appears to have been absorbed in the funds of the Company, unless it can be considered as part of the 345l. 4s. 6d. mentioned below (No. 2).

The Church Livings. (II.)

Second Class.—It will be convenient here to state the terms of this endowment more fully. The founder bequeathed to the said Wardens and Commonalty 2,800l. therewith to purchase two or more parsonages, rectories, or church livings anciently appropriated to some abbey, monastery, or religious house or houses, commonly called impropriations, the same to be in Lincolnshire, Yorkshire, or some other northern county or counties, where the said Company of Mercers should best fit themselves with such a purchase and find most want of preaching the Word of God to be; and the same church livings or impropriations so purchased, his will was should be from time to time successively for ever by the said Company after their wonted custom of elections by most votes at their general meeting conferred, bestowed, and conveyed upon two or more ministers respectively for such term and in such manner and with such provision as that if they should prove non-resident or have any other benefice or church living besides, then the said Wardens should remove, displace, dismiss, and eject them out of the said impropriations or any of them, and elect and place another or others in his or their room according to their good discretion. And the testator entreated the said Wardens that they would be careful to make choice of such as be well known to be honest, discreet, and learned men fearing God and painful in their ministry that by their life and doctrine they might win many souls to Christ Jesus. And although testator hoped that said 2,800*l.* would purchase such church livings or impropriations to the value of 200*l.* a year or thereabouts, yet because his confidence was that the Company would husband it to the best for the performance of his good intent therein, his meaning was not to enjoin them to a precise yearly value nor that they should bestow the whole sum, but that they fit the purchases to the money bequeathed as well as conveniently they might, reserving in their hands sufficient to defray the charge of travail, counsel and conveyances incident about such purchases.

It appears that the Company in the years 1628 and 1631, purchased impropriate rectories and church livings in several counties, in which purchases they laid out the whole of the sum of 2,800*l.*, and a further sum of 345*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.*, making together 3,145*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.* (See the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry, Vol. 6, p. 308). These purchases comprised the advowsons of the rectories of Canwick and Reepham in Lincolnshire, and the tithes of several parishes in Northumberland. I describe the purchases in Lincolnshire to be advowsons, as it appears that the Company have the right of presentation to those parishes, although it is said that upon the presentation it is the habit of the Company to grant a lease of the tithes to the Vicar during his incumbency; this implying that he takes the vicarage in one right and the tithes in another. The tithes in the Northumberland parishes are appropriated as to some of them to the support of a lectureship in the parish of Hexham, and as to the remainder to a lectureship in the town of Berwick-upon-Tweed.

1. The Rectory of Reepham, or Reepham, Lincolnshire.—This living is filled by the presentation of the Company, who (as stated by the clerk of the Company) have no knowledge of its value, except that which is shown by the clergy list, in which it is stated to be 176*l.* a year with a population of 368 persons. The Reverend J. Jones, the present rector, was presented in 1853.

2. The Rectory of Canwick, in Lincolnshire.—The Company also present to this living, the same observations applying as to the last. The present rector is the Reverend G. Quilter, who was appointed in 1818. The living appears in the clergy list of the value of 231*l.* a year, with a population of 213 persons.

3. Hexham Lectureship.—The Company appoint a lecturer at Hexham, in the county of Northumberland, who is bound by the terms of the appointment to deliver a lecture in the afternoon of Sundays in the parish church (with the leave of the rector), and also to perform duty twice a month on alternate Sundays at the Church of St. John, Lee, when the duty is not performed by the clergyman of that parish, and alternately on Sundays in the morning at the Chapels of Bingfield and St. Oswald, and an afternoon service; and a sermon at each of the above chapels on those Sundays when the morning duty is not performed. He receives the tithes of Swinbourne, Kepwick, Errington, Bingfield and Colwell in the county of Northumberland. The present lecturer is the Reverend C. Lee, who was appointed in 1825. The value of the lectureship was:

I annex to this report (documents Nos. 1, 2, and 3) letters from the incumbent of Hexham and from the lecturer, showing that the former, with the spiritual charge of 6,000 persons, is provided with an income of no more than 130*l.* a year, whilst the present value of the lectureship derived from the tithes of the several parishes above-named is 563*l.* 7*s.* 8*d.* It would be desirable that the Company should put themselves in communication with the Bishop of the diocese, and obtain the benefit of his advice in the reappropriation of these ecclesiastical rights and duties in which I should think the public benefit might well be reconciled with the perfect integrity of the powers and patronage of the Company.

4. The Berwick Lectureship.—The Company also appoint a lecturer for the town of Berwick-upon-Tweed. He receives the tithes of Chillerton and Binisford in the county of Northumberland. His duty is, “to perform divine service, and preach in person in the church of Berwick-upon-Tweed, in the forenoon of every Thursday, and it is provided by his appointment that in the event of a new church or chapel to be built in Berwick, the lecturer shall if required by the present Court, for the greater benefit of the interests of the established religion, take upon himself the duty of the new church or chapel, upon such conditions as the Court shall appoint, or vacate the lectureship.” The present lecturer is the Rev. William Procter, who was appointed in 1824.

In this case also I annex several documents numbered respectively 5, 6, 7, and 8.

The Company appropriate the net rents, not amongst all the above charities or charitable objects, the bequests to which constitute the purchase money, but amongst the several endowments distinguished above as I., IV., VII., and VIII., and Mrs. Robinson's Exhibition Charity; and having appropriated so much of the net income as corresponds with the several portions of the purchase money received from these sources, they carry the surplus to the Company's account, subject only to the specific payments for the other charitable purposes. The late Commissioners of Inquiry approved this arrangement, for they say, "as these benefactions were donations of money given merely to secure specific annual payments, the Company deem themselves (and we think justly) entitled to all the benefits of the security in which they have invested them beyond the amount of those annual payments, which are only to be considered as charges on the estate."

I should have thought that where the gifts were vested in the Company on charitable trusts the objects of the trust would have been entitled to the income produced by the investment whatever that income might be.

I proceed, however, to state the actual division of the produce, taking the year 1860, of which the rents and charges are above given.

I.—Chapel Sermons.

The proportion of the Chalgrave net rent, in respect of this 500*l.* was 49*l.* 3*s.* 3*d.* The sum is divided unequally amongst about ten different clergymen and the chaplain. The chaplain receives 5*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* a year, the chapel keeper 2*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, the clerk of the chapel 1*l.*, making for these the fixed charges of 9*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* annually. The sermons preached in the Mercers' chapel are 16 in number. The attendance of hearers is very irregular and uncertain. The intention to preach the sermon is previously advertised. Some of the sermons are on week days, and others on Sundays. The preachers are nominated by the House Warden for the time being.

IV.—The Parish of St. Bartholomew.

The proportion of the Chalgrave rent in 1860 was 98*l.* 6*s.* 5*d.* This was divided as follows:—

The lecturer five-tenths	49	3	3
(This is paid on the personal receipt of the lecturer.)
The poor of the parish four-tenths	39	6	8
(The poor who are nominated at the vestry attend at the Company's Hall and receive the apportioned sums (see my Report on the Parish of St. Bartholomew.)
The House Warden receives four fifths of one tenth	7	17	3
And the clerk has one fifth of one tenth	1	19	3
(These are carried by the Company to the account of their officers.)
	£98	6	5

There was at the time of the last inquiry a sum of 577*l.* 10*s.* 3*d.* Consols standing to the account of this parish arising from arrears, the dividends of which were added to the rent. In 1822 a sum of 2,096*l.* 7*s.* 11*d.* was laid out on the repairs and rebuilding of the Chalgrave farmhouse and offices. This disbursement was charged directly, according to their shares, to the different charities interested. The 577*l.* 10*s.* 3*d.* stock belonging to this portion of the charitable objects was sold out and produced 472*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.* cash. The St. Bartholomew share of the expense of the repairs was 413*l.* 11*s.* 8*d.* A balance of 59*l.* 5*s.* 10*d.* was paid to the parish in cash in October 1827.

VII.—The Clothing of Poor Mercers. (1,000*l.*)

The proportion of the Chalgrave rent applicable to this purpose is 98*l.* 6*s.* 5*d.*

* FISHBORNE'S CHARITY.

Under the authority of an order of the Board, dated 28th July 1880, the Company granted a lease of the ironstone underlying the estate belonging to this Charity, situate in the parish of Canwick, in the county

This is distributed in money at Easter as equally as possible amongst 30 poor brethren or widows or daughters of freemen. The fund in 1860 afforded 3*l.* 15*s.* 7*d.* or 3*l.* 15*s.* 8*d.* a piece. The recipients are selected or approved by the Master and Wardens.

VIII.—The Huntingdon Benefaction (2,000*l.*)

The proportion of the Chalgrave rent applicable for the benefit of the town of Huntingdon was 196*l.* 12*s.* 10*d.* Of this there was paid—

	£	s.	d.
To the Lecturer of Huntingdon, the Rev. J. Burke, who is appointed by the Company	60	0	0
The residue is remitted to the Mayor of Huntingdon for charitable uses	136	12	10

The Company is not supplied with any account of this distribution by the local authorities.

There was at the time of the last inquiry a sum of 2,000*l.* consols to the credit of this branch of the endowments arising from arrears, and which had formed part of a larger sum part of which had been sold for the redemption of the land tax.

The sum of 2,000*l.* was sold out in 1822 for application towards the expenses of the repairs and improvements on the Chalgrave estate, as before stated. It produced a sum of 1,637*l.* 10*s.* cash, and it appears that the share of this Charity of these expenses was 827*l.* 3*s.* 3*d.* A balance of 857*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.* was on the 15th June 1824 paid over to the Corporation of Huntingdon. I do not understand the grounds of the appropriation. The lecturer appears to have enjoyed his moiety of the dividends, and would, therefore, on the same principle, be entitled to the moiety of the capital, but unless some division of the fund afterwards took place in the town of Huntingdon (into which I have at present no means of inquiry), the appropriation of the balance of the proceeds of the stock appears to have been made in prejudice of the rights of the lecturer.

The Reverend F. G. Vesey, Rector of All Saints, Huntingdon, attended at the office of the Charity Commission, and informed me that a service is performed by the lecturer, and a lecture delivered in each of the two churches on alternate Sundays. The lecturer is blind, and reads the service from the raised books printed for the use of the blind. There are now two full services in both churches in Huntingdon, on every Sunday, and the incumbents are of opinion that the lectureship has ceased to be necessary or useful, and that being only an appropriation of part of a fund to be applied to good and charitable purposes it might with great benefit, on the first vacancy in the office of lecturer, be applied to the purposes of church education. I have received the following letter from the Reverend J. W. Burke, the lecturer.

"Sir, April 16th, 1861.
"In reply to your communication of the 12th instant, I have to inform you that the duty which I perform in the town of Huntingdon, is as follows: In Saint Mary's Church I preach once a fortnight on the Sunday evening, taking the whole service the first Sunday evening of every month that comes in rotation for my lecture. In All Saints Church, I have, as lecturer, a full service once a fortnight on the Sunday afternoon. In addition to this I voluntarily take an afternoon service every other fortnight, so that I officiate every Sunday afternoon in this church.

"It does not appear to me that any permanent advantage would be likely to accrue from any other assignment of the lecturer's duties, as the Huntingdon benefices are of very small value.

"I have, &c. &c.

"J. W. BURKE."

The proportion of the rent distributed in manner aforesaid, with that applied for Mrs. Robinson's Exhibitions, amounting together to 491*l.* 12*s.* 1*d.*, leaves a sum of 153*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.*, which is claimed by the Company, as charged only with 55*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* per annum in respect of the other charitable gifts. (See my Reports on Lady Margaret North's, Lady Elizabeth Martin's, Mrs. Catherine Clarke's, Sir Henry Rowe's, and Sir Ralph Warren's Charities).*

of Lincoln, for the term of 43 years, from 6th April 1877, at the annual minimum rent of 200*l.*, with a further royalty of 9*d.* per ton on all ironstone gotten in excess of that amount.

THE CHARITIES OF SIR THOMAS GRESHAM.

Sir Thomas Gresham, by his will, 5th July 1575, gave one moiety of the Royal Exchange and all pawnshops, messuages, &c. adjoining the same to the Corporation of London for four lectures of divinity, astronomy, music, and geometry, 50*l.* a-piece, and also to pay 53*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* yearly unto eight almsfolks, and 50*l.* a year to the poor prisoners.

And he gave the other moiety to the Mercers' Company for three lectures of law, physic, and rhetoric, 50*l.* each; for four dinners in Mercers' Hall 100*l.*, and to the Hospitals of Christ, St. Bartholomew, Bethlem, Southwark, and the Poultry Compter, 50*l.*

These endowments were the subject of an inquiry by Mr. Martin in 1856, and to his report of the 13th February 1857 I beg to refer.

LADY GRESHAM'S GIFT.

Dame Isabell Gresham devised to the Company certain premises (now in Gresham Street and Milk Street) to the intent that they should yearly bestow 9*l.* 10*s.* to poor householders of the parishes of St. Lawrence Jewry, St. Mary Aldermanbury, and St. Vedast Foster, out of which the Renter Warden to retain 6*s.* 8*d.*, and the clerk 3*s.* 4*d.* The sum of 3*l.* a year is annually paid to the vestry clerk of St. Lawrence Jewry, the like sum to the vestry clerk of St. Mary Aldermanbury, and the like sum to the vestry clerk of St. Vedast Foster, and the 10*s.* is paid to the two officers of the Company.

HUNGERFORD'S APPRENTICING CHARITY.

Dame Margaret Hungerford, by her will of the 23rd January 1671, bequeathed to the Mercers' Company 1,000*l.* to be kept by the Company as a stock, and the produce bestowed in binding out apprentices, boys from Wiltshire or Gloucestershire to be preferred.

The Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 6, page 319) state, that the Company, under a decree of the Court of Chancery of the 6th March 1675, are directed to pay 30*l.* a year on account of this benefaction. They add that this was or was supposed to be charged on the Henry the Eighth's estate. It will be seen, by my Report on the Money Legacy Charities, that the Henry the Eighth estate is charged with these Charities, and this must, I presume, be treated as an additional charge thereon, although I cannot find any deed defining the particular portion of the property; that, however, is probably unimportant, as the liability is fully admitted.

In addition to the 30*l.* a year there is an accumulation of arrears, invested in 400*l.* consols, and producing 12*l.* a year, making 42*l.* a year.

No advertisements are published in the counties of Gloucester and Wilts, but many applications are received every year from all parts of those counties, and the Company endeavour to select the case of the greatest poverty and destitution, or the largest families with the smallest means.

I append the copy of the petition and the circular which accompanies it, which is sent to all persons applying for the printed forms and for particulars.

There are at present nine applications for the three premiums of this year. The Company allow 14*l.* for each boy. They are all bound for seven years, and according to the indentures are to be taken into the master's house, but that condition is believed, in many cases, to be varied by arrangements with the parents; but no variation of that nature is permitted with the sanction of the Company.*

LADY ELIZABETH MARTIN'S GIFT.

Lady Elizabeth Martin by her will, 6th October 1581, gave to the Company 100*l.* to be lent to two young men, paying in respect thereof yearly 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* as follows:

To the churchwardens of St. Antholin for bread	-	-	-	5	4	0
Clerk of that parish	-	-	-	0	6	0
To the preachers	-	-	-	0	10	0
To the Wardens of Company	-	-	-	0	13	4

To this endowment is added the interest on the arrears, amounting to 69*l.* 5*s.* 2*d.* 3*d.* per cent. consols, producing 2*l.* 1*s.* 7*d.* dividends, making for the parish 8*l.* 1*s.* 7*d.* a year which is paid annually to the churchwardens.

The wardens are credited with the 13*s.* 4*d.*

* MARGARET HUNGERFORD'S CHARITY.

Under the authority of an order of the Board dated 30th April 1878, the annuity of 30*l.* above referred to, was redeemed by the payment of the sum of 1,000*l.* sterling, to the banking account of the Official Trustees

This sum of 100*l.* was invested as part of the purchase money of the Chalgrave estate, and it appears to me that it is entitled to a sixty-fifth share of the rent, which would increase the amount from 6*l.* to about 10*l.* 10*s.*, or about 4*l.* 10*s.* more yearly.

PART II.

THE MERCERS' SCHOOL.

King Henry the Eighth, by his Letters Patent of the 21st April 1542, for the valuable considerations therein mentioned (being a sum of 969*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*) granted to the Wardens and Commonalty of the Mystery of Mercers, of the city of London, and their successors the church, called the Church of the College of Acon, thenceforth to be called the Mercers' Church, and the church and parsonage of Saint Mary Colechurch, and divers messuages, tenements, shops, and other hereditaments sett, lying, and being in the parishes of St. Olave Old Jewry, St. Mary Colechurch, St. Stephen Walbrook, Saint Martin Ironmonger Lane, and St. Stephen Coleman Street in London, part of the possessions of the said late College of Acon, of London, which parsonage, messuages, tenements, and other the premises at the time of making the said grants were rated to be of the clear yearly value of 68*l.* 19*s.* 6*d.* over and above 7*l.* 8*s.* 10*d.* reserved yearly for the same to the King's Highness for ever, and over and above all yearly charges and reprises.

It appeared to me important to consider the text of this instrument with the view of ascertaining the limits of the trust, if it had that character, or otherwise, the extent of the liability which it created as against the Company. The Company at my request caused a translation of the Letters Patent to be made, which I append to this report.

By an indenture of the same date as the letters patent the Mercers' Company covenanted to keep three priests and chaplains to sing a mass in the said Mercers' church for the soul of the king and all his progeny for ever, and also to find and keep a free grammar school within the said city perpetually, and to find a sufficient master to teach five and twenty children and scholars freely in the same school continually for ever: and the wardens and commonalty are thereby empowered to nominate and appoint from time to time the said three priests and chaplains, and as many other priests and chaplains and other ministers to serve God and to say masses and other divine service in the same church as to the said wardens and commonalty shall seem convenient, and at their will and pleasure to remove the said priests, chaplains, and ministers, and on the vacating of such offices within eight weeks to appoint other priests or chaplains or schoolmaster to serve as aforesaid, so that the same number of priests and chaplains and the said schoolmaster shall be observed and kept.

The property which passed to the Company under this grant consists of what is in the table of the Company's property set forth in another part of this report, described as King Henry the Eighth's estate (see page 2,845*l.*), producing at this time an annual rental of

The expenditure of the Company annually on the school has been a subject of an annual return to the Board, accompanied by a note that the Company are only required by their covenant with the Crown to keep and find a free grammar school for twenty-five scholars in London, but they have for many years provided gratuitous education for 70 boys.

The expenditure of the year 1859 is as follows:—

of Charitable Funds for investment in consols in trust for the charity.

The amount was subsequently invested in the purchase of the sum of 1,054*l.* 0*s.* 4*d.* consols in the name of the Official Trustees.

The school is situated in College Hill, on the left side of Queen Street, in the line between Cannon Street West and Thames Street. The school consists of a schoolroom and master's residence, erected on the site of part of the estate of Whittington's Charity. The present school premises were built in 1830 by the Company at an expense of about 4,500*l.* A rent of 120*l.* per annum (appearing in the above account) is credited annually to Whittington's Charity in respect of the site.

The school up to 1832 was attended by 35 boys, and the number was then increased to 70. Before this augmentation in number the presentation to the school was by the master and wardens. Theoretically it is still the same, but the master and wardens now appoint boys recommended by the Court of Assistants, who nominate in rotation. I append a copy of the rules and orders adopted by the Company with reference to the scholars. The school is generally full, and the nominations are much sought after. The vacancies are filled up monthly. It is considered to be rather of the character of a mercantile than a classical school, although classical studies occupy the principal part of every morning.

There is no payment as expenditure required from the scholars except for books. The scholars are necessarily the children of persons resident in the City or neighbourhood. None of the masters are permitted to take boarders.

The "Rich" exhibitions are not always full. There is at present but one. The Company have raised the amount from 6*l.* to 70*l.* The last year (1859) there were two from the school, and one who had been appointed in 1855 for the exhibition having obtained a fellowship, his exhibition then ceased. None are allowed to hold the exhibitions more than five years.

The first increase of the exhibition by the Company was in 1796, when they were raised to 15*l.* In 1817 they were augmented to 50*l.*, it being found that the smaller sum was not a sufficient inducement to go to the University. In 1854 the present sum of 70*l.* was granted.

MORLEY'S CHARITY.

Richard Morley by his will, 2nd March 1727, devised to the Mercers' Company a messuage or tenement called the "Angel and Crown," near Newbury, Berks, on trust to apply the rents towards the support and maintenance of four poor men.

The house which still bears the same name is let to E. Slocock for 42 years, from Lady Day 1836 at a rent of 55*l.*

The sum of 137*l.* 10*s.* 0*d.* consols, arises from accumulations beyond the sum of 10*l.* each which had been paid to the four poor men up to the year 1856. The dividends amounting to 4*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.* per annum, are added to the rent and equally divided among four poor men selected by the General Court and not necessarily mercers. They are generally given to old servants or persons who are not mercers. They have received 13*l.* 0*s.* 1*d.* each for the last five years.

LADY MARGARET NORTH'S EXHIBITIONS.

Lady Margaret North appears by an indenture of 4th December, 17th Elizabeth to have paid to the company a sum of 500*l.* to advance learning and provide for the relief of some of her kinsmen, the company agreeing to pay yearly to four male children to be taught first in some grammar school and afterwards at Oxford or Cambridge to each 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*

The four exhibitions amount to 26*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, which is paid out of the rents of the Chalgrave Estate (see my report on Fishbourne's Charity) and to this there is added the dividends on 1,850*l.* 3*l.* per centum consols standing to the account of the company the dividends on which amount to 55*l.* 10*s.*, making an annual income of 82*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*

This is disposed of in four exhibitions of 20*l.* a year each. They are held for five years, and are open to students of either university. They are nominated by the Court of Assistants. The Company require certificates of residence, and it is a rule that they must not have any exhibitions of more than 80*l.* a year from any other source.

RAND'S CHARITY.

John Rand devised to the Mercers' Company, by his will of 27th August 1706, his moiety of three freehold messuages and premises in Tower Street, on trust to pay out of the rents once a year, for acquitting and discharging out of the prisons of Ludgate, Wood Street Compter, and Poultry Compter, so many poor men and women, not exceeding 40*s.* a piece to each, so far as the said rents would go, and he gave 20*s.* a piece to the said master and wardens.

The property of the charity is as follows :—

The site of No. 44 and No. 46 Great Tower Street, and of Trinity Buildings, now let on building lease to Sylvanus Phillips for 61 years, from Lady Day 1830, at a rent of

Mr. Phillips is stated to be the proprietor of the other moiety. The lease to him of the 6th January 1832, describes the premises devised as "All that undivided moiety or equal half part of the said wardens' and commonalty of and in all those two messuages and tenements situate in Tower Street in the parish of Allhallows, numbered 44 and 46, and also all those eight messuages in the rear of the said messuages called Trinity Buildings, lately erected and built on a site of a messuage lately pulled down by the said Sylvanus Phillips and numbered 45 in Tower Street, all which said messuages and premises were theretofore described as three messuages in the occupation of Benjamin Nichols, John Nanwell, and Samuel Townsend."

At the time of the last inquiry (vol. 6, p. 323), a sum of 1,000*l.* 3*l.* per cent. consols arising from the accumulations of this charity stood to the account of the Company. This sum of 1,000*l.* consols was sold out in March 1830 and produced 922*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.* cash. A portion of the amount, viz., 839*l.* 9*s.* 10*d.* was invested in Exchequer bills, which was subsequently sold, to make the payments to Mr. Phillips under the agreement with him.

In January 1832 there was paid to Sylvanus Phillips, for repairs and rebuilding the houses in Tower Street and Trinity Buildings, a sum of 916*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, and a compensation for extra expenses 45*l.* It appears that in January 1830, the premises had been represented by Mr. Phillips (upon a report of Mr. Tite the architect) to be in such a dilapidated state that they could not, as to those in the rear, be repaired, but in his (Mr. Tite's) judgment the best plan of occupying the ground would be to repair the front house and rebuild the back, the cost of which was estimated at 1,500*l.*, and the entire annual value, as it then stood, was estimated at 80*l.* a year. After reports of the Company's surveyor and some negotiations it was resolved that the stock before referred to should be sold out. At the same time (February 1830) it was resolved that the premises in Tower Street should be let to Sylvanus Phillips on lease for 61 years at a net rent of 45*l.*, the Company agreeing to expend a sum not exceeding 920*l.* or such sum as the stock should produce, on the repairs and rebuilding the premises, upon Sylvanus Phillips expending at least an equal sum for the like purpose, under the inspection and to the satisfaction of the Company's surveyor, and paying an additional rent equal to six per cent. upon the amount expended by the Company. The rent during the term is thus made up to 100*l.* a year, and the accumulated stock is, of course, sunk.

By a bond entered into by the said Sylvanus Phillips, John King, and Charles Phillips, bearing date the 6th October 1842, reciting the lease of the 6th January 1832, and reciting also, another indenture of the same date, between the said S. Phillips of the first part, the company of the second part, and Thomas Watney and others of the third part, for better securing payment of the rent of 100*l.* a year reserved by the said lease, the said S. Phillips demised all the other undivided moiety of the said premises of which he was seized in fee simple unto the said Watney and others for 61 years, in trust for the said company. And reciting that the said S. Phillips, being desirous that the said last-mentioned undivided moiety should be reassigned to him and released from all claims of the company created by the last-recited indenture, agreed to give to the company the bond of himself and J. King and Charles Phillips, and also the security provided by an indenture of even date herewith which the said company had agreed to accept in lieu of the security provided by the recited indenture without prejudice to any remedy of the said company to enter upon the premises.

It was conditioned, that if the said S. Phillips should, during the said term of 61 years, pay to the said company the said rent of 100*l.*, then the above written bond to be void, otherwise to remain in full force.

The last application of the income for the relief of prisoners was, on an application of the governor of the debtor's prison, in Whitecross Street, in the year 1858, when five prisoners were relieved at an expense of 9*l.* 10*s.* (varying from 1*l.* 10*s.* to 2*l.* each), and whose debts varied from 108*l.* to 22*l.*

In the year 1857 nine persons were relieved, whose debts varied from 91*l.* to 13*l.*, at an expense of from 4*l.* to 5*l.* each, six by the Insolvent Debtors' Court, and three by arrangement. There appear to be different wards in Whitecross Street corresponding with the names of the more ancient prisons, as Ludgate, Poultry, and Giltspur Street Compter.

There was, up to the 31st December, 1860, a balance of 492*l.* 6*s.* to the credit of this charity, of which an investment of a portion in 300*l.* consols, has been directed by the company.

RICH'S CHARITIES.

Thomas Rich, by his will, of the 21st August 1672, devised to the Mercers' Company (after his wife's death) all his tenements and hereditaments in St. Mary Axe, upon condition that the company should pay yearly two exhibitions of 6*l.* a piece unto two poor scholars taught in the Mercers' Chapel School, and from thence sent to the University; and also to pay to Christ's Hospital annually 12*l.* for two other exhibitions, and that the residue should be expended by the master and wardens in a collation for their pains.

And the testator gave also to the company (after the death of his wife) all his dwelling house, gardens, orchards and appurtenances in West Ham upon trust out of the rents to pay yearly for ever,

£ s. d.

"To the clerk of the company for going over yearly to see that the two school charities be duly performed - 1 0 0

"To the wardens and such of the assistants as they should call for a collation or otherwise, to mind the clerk of his duty - 3 0 0

And to divide the residue into two parts, and pay one moiety thereof to the schoolmaster of the Mercers' Chapel School for his better maintenance in the management thereof, and pay the other moiety for the teaching, educating, and instructing of so many poor men's children, born in the parish of Lambeth, who are not able to maintain them in learning the Latin tongue, writing, cyphering, or reading, as the same will yearly amount unto, at such rates as they should agree upon for their teaching.

And the testator gave to the wardens and commonalty 100*l.* to be lent to young freemen of the Company from three years to three years, upon security for repayment with interest at 3*s.* 4*d.* per annum only, such interest to be divided between the clerk and officers of the Company, as therein mentioned (see Money Legacy Charities. "Thomas Rich's Gift.").

The Company are possessed of a house in St. Mary Axe, No. 52, occupied by George Head, trustee of Dr. Smith, a tenant under the Company, upon a lease expiring in 1871, at a rent which far exceeds the two sums of 12*l.* charged thereon.

The sums appropriated as exhibitions, the same not having been filled up for many years, were invested in the funds, and are now represented by one year's interest on 5,000*l.* consols, being part of the sum of 74,121*l.* 0*s.* 4*d.* standing in the name of the Wardens and Commonalty of the Mystery of Mercers of the City of London

The income of the Exhibition Fund for the Mercers' School is therefore - 12 0 0
The rentcharge for Mercers' School and the dividends - 180 0 0

In addition to the accumulations which have been invested, there was, at the end of 1859, a balance of cash amounting to 474*l.* 8*s.* 9*d.*

I have mentioned in my report on the Mercers' School, the gradual increase in the amount of the exhibitions which has been made by the Company. They were raised in 1854 to 70*l.* a year, and it will be seen that the state of the accumulated fund would now admit of a further increase to 96*l.* per annum, or, which would probably be better, to the establishment of three exhibitions at from 60*l.* to 70*l.* a year instead of two.

The choice of the exhibitioner has generally been by the recommendation of the head-master. In any case of competition, the election would be in the General Court, at which the whole of the members of the Company are summoned.

The general body would not, in such case, be controlled in their choice by any report of the master or examiners of the school.

The West Ham estate was in the year 1845 taken by the "Eastern Counties Railway Company" by agreement with the Company, at the price of 1,750*l.* The sum has been invested in the sum of 1,951*l.* 2*s.* 1*d.* 3*d.* per centum consols which stands to the account of the Company (being part of a larger sum of 74,121*l.* 0*s.* 4*d.* like stock), the dividends being 58*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.*

The income tax and the annual charges of 4*l.* for the Company and the clerk being deducted, left in 1859 two sums or moieties of 26*l.* 12*s.* 10*d.*

Of this, one moiety (or 26*l.* 12*s.* 10*d.*) is paid to the head master of the Mercers' School, in addition to the salary and gratuity amounting to 350*l.* a year paid to him, as mentioned in my report on that school.

The other 26*l.* 12*s.* 10*d.* is paid by the Company to the master of the Free Grammar School, Lambeth (Mr. Bailey).

MRS. ROBINSON'S EXHIBITIONS.

Mrs. Mary Robinson by her will proved 26th September 1618, gave to the Company 500*l.* to purchase land of the yearly value of 25*l.* for four poor Cambridge scholars, so as they should become students in divinity and preachers of the gospel. The fund standing to the credit of this charity is 1,800*l.* 3*l.* per centum Consolidated annuities, and 1,040*l.* 9*s.* 3*d.* 3*d.* per centum Reduced annuities which arose from accumulations. The sum of 500*l.*, with several other charitable bequests amounting altogether to 6,560*l.*, was laid out in the purchase of the Chalgrave estate in Bedfordshire (see Report on Fishborne's charity). The net rental of that estate was, in the year 1860, 644*l.* 19*s.* 9*d.*, of which 49*l.* 3*s.* 2*d.* belongs to Robinson's Exhibition Charity.

The fund therefore consists of—

Dividends in 1,800 l. consols -	54	0	0
Do. on 1,040 l. 9 s. 3 d. Reduced stock -	31	4	2

The last year's (1860) expenditure was 105*l.*, being for three exhibitions of 30*l.* a year, and half a year's exhibition, 15*l.* There are generally four exhibitions of 30*l.* a year for students at Cambridge at any College. They are elected by the general court, and produce, half-yearly, their certificates of residence. The exhibition is generally retained for five years.

There was at the end of 1860, a balance of cash in favour of this charity of 446*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.*

Rowe's Gift.

Sir Henry Rowe, by his will (date not known) gave to the Company 200*l.* to be lent to two young freemen at 5*l.* per cent., and distributed as follows:—

Poor of St. Martin Outwich, in bread -	2	12	0
Coal -	2	4	0
Poor of Hackney (in bread) -	2	12	0
Beadle of the Company -	0	8	0

This gift formed part of the investment in the "Chalgrave estate" (see Fishborne's charities), and I should apprehend that the objects of the charity are entitled to two sixty-fifths of the rents of that estate, amounting to 21*l*. The Company, however, only pay the specific sums. Of these 4*l*. 16*s*. is paid to the collector for the parish of Hackney, with the interest on a sum of 48*l*. 3*s*. consols, accumulations from arrears and producing 1*l*. 9*s*. 2*d*. dividend, making together 6*l*. 5*s*. 2*d*.

The Company, also, pay a like annual sum of 6*l*. 5*s*. 2*d*. for the like reutcharge and accumulations and dividend thereon to the overseer of the parish of St. Martin Outwich. The beadle of the Company receives 8*s*. a year.

ST. PAUL'S SCHOOL.

The Commissioners of Inquiry reported on this institution and its endowments at much length (see p. 240-241, Report, vol. 3). Shortly before the commencement of my inquiry, a suit had been instituted by information and Bill (with the previous sanction of the board) by the Attorney-General and Baron Rothschild against the Mercers' Company in respect of certain estates in Buckinghamshire, regarded as forming part of the endowment of the school. In the defence to that suit, the Mercers' Company amongst other points were advised to assert that the estates in question were not the property of the school, but were estates held by the Mercers' Company in their own right, charged only with certain duties in respect of the maintenance of the school. I understand that the same point is insisted upon with reference to the general estates treated by the Commissioners of Inquiry as the property of the Charity. Under these circumstances, as the nature and extent of my inquiry would be necessarily affected very materially by the determination of the question in favour of the claim of the Company, at the request of the officers of the Company attending on the occasion, I have thought it right to defer the investigation as to St. Paul's School until the suit now before the Court of Chancery is disposed of.*

* ST. PAUL'S SCHOOLS.

The Bill and information filed by Baron Rothschild, with the sanction of the board in the year 1860 was dismissed by Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood by a decree dated 12th May 1862.

The case of this school was subsequently certified to Her Majesty's Attorney-General by the Charity Commissioners on the 22nd February 1866.

The result of the proceedings by the Attorney-General was a decree by Vice-Chancellor Sir W. M. James, dated 11th February 1870, declaring that the Company held the whole of Dean Colet's estate as trustees for the benefit of the school.

The decree also directed an inquiry to be made whether it was fit and proper and for the benefit of the Charity that application should be made either to the Committee of Council on Education, or to the Endowed Schools Commissioners, or to Parliament, as to a scheme for the future regulation and management of the Charity.

A scheme for the regulation of Dean Colet's estate and of St. Paul's School was framed by the Charity Commissioners under the provisions of the Endowed Schools Acts, and approved by Her Majesty in Council, on the 24th March 1876.

Under the authority of an order of the Charity Commissioners, dated 4th July 1879, this scheme was amended in certain particulars. The following is the scheme so amended, by which the school is at present regulated:—

Charity Commission.

Mercers' Company.
Foundation—St. Paul's School.

H
30,010
Scheme.

In the matter of the Foundation called or known as "St. Paul's School," in London, founded by Dean Colet; and

In the matter of "The Charitable Trusts Acts, 1853 to 1869."

Whereas an application in writing was made to the Board of Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, on the 10th day of May, 1878, in the matter of the above-mentioned foundation, by George Fenn Aston, Esquire, being the chairman of the governors of the said foundation, and the person authorised in that behalf by a resolution passed at a duly constituted meeting of the said governors, held on the said 10th day of May, 1878.

And whereas it is expedient that the provisions of the scheme established for the regulation of the said foundation under the Endowed Schools Acts, on the 24th day of March, 1876, should be partially varied.

And that with that object a new scheme should be established for the regulation of the said foundation, in manner hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas notice of the intention of the said board to make an order for that purpose has been published by the affixing of the same, according to the direction of the said board, to or near a principal outer door of St. Paul's School aforesaid, on the 25th day of February, 1879, and by advertisement in the "Times" newspaper, on the 26th day of February and the 5th day of March, 1879, being in each case more than one calendar month previously to the date hereof.

A 14546.

Now the said Board do hereby order that the aforesaid scheme (a printed copy whereof, identified by the signature of the secretary of the said Board, is hereto annexed) shall be varied in the manner and to the extent appearing in the new scheme set forth in the schedule hereto, which by this present order is approved and established as the scheme for the future regulation of the said foundation.

SCHEDULE SCHEME.

Part I.—General.

1. The object of the above-named foundation shall be Object. to supply liberal education for boys and girls by means of schools in or near London.

2. From the date of this scheme all the particulars Repeal. which by the Endowed Schools Acts, 1869, 1873, and 1874 are capable of being hereby repealed and abrogated shall, so far as relates to the management of the foundation, but not to the vesting of the property thereof in the Mercers' Company, hereinafter called the Company, be repealed and abrogated.

3. From the date of this scheme all rights and powers Jurisdiction (if any) reserved or belonging to, or claimed or capable of being exercised by, any body corporate, persons or person, other than Her Majesty, as visitors or visitor of the foundation, shall be transferred to Her Majesty, and all such rights and powers, and also any like rights and powers vested in Her Majesty on the 2nd day of August, 1869, shall be exercised only through and by the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales.

4. From the date of this scheme all jurisdiction of Jurisdiction the ordinary relating to or arising from the licensing of of ordinary. any master in any endowed school of the foundation shall be abolished.

5. Notwithstanding anything herein contained, this Saving of scheme shall not affect any of the following vested rights and interests, viz.:—

- (1.) The interest of any scholar who was a scholar on the foundation of St. Paul's School at the date of this scheme.
- (2.) The tenure by any person of any exhibition payable out of the endowments of the foundation, which was held by him, or had been awarded to him, on or before the date of this scheme.
- (3.) Such interest as any teacher or officer of the foundation appointed to his office before the 25th June 1868, may have.
- (4.) Such interest as Mrs. Mary Ann Roberts may have in any pension or compensation allowance payable out of the endowments of the foundation to which she was entitled on the 25th June, 1868.

Part II.—Management of Property.

6. All the estates and property of the foundation shall continue to be and shall be vested in the Company, and all such of the said estates and property as shall not for the time being be used or occupied for the purposes of the several schools of the foundation, or of their respective playgrounds and appurtenances, shall continue to be managed by the Company, or by their court of assistants, or by their officers acting under their orders, according to the general law applicable to the management of property by Trustees of Charitable Foundations. Any money arising from the sale of timber or from any mines or minerals belonging to the foundation, shall be treated as capital, and invested in any such securities as may from time to time be authorised by any Act of Parliament or by the Court

Management of property.

C

MRS. SAVAGE'S CHARITY.

Mrs. Jane Savage, by her will (date not known), gave to the Company 2,000*l.* to be laid out in the purchase of lands of the annual value of 100*l.*, 20*l.* to the Company for their own proper use, and 80*l.* for discharging poor prisoners for debt out of Ludgate, Newgate, and the two Compters.

The property of the Charity consists of an income of of Chancery for the investment of trust funds, except in any special cases in which the Company may be authorised by the Charity Commissioners to apply such money or any part thereof as income.

Raising money.

7. All capital sums which, under the provisions of this scheme, the Company may be required to raise shall be raised by them by sale or mortgage of the real or personal property of the foundation, or by both those means, or otherwise, on such terms and subject to such conditions as may be sanctioned or prescribed by the Charity Commissioners in each case.

The provisions of the Charitable Trusts Acts, 1853, and the Charitable Trusts Amendment Act, 1855, as to discharge of debts by means of instalments, a sinking fund, or otherwise, shall not apply to any money charged or to be raised under this clause, but the Charity Commissioners may at their discretion require that any debts created under this clause shall be discharged in such manner and within such time as they may think fit to prescribe.

Conduct of business.

8. The Company shall make such arrangements as they think fit for the custody of all muniments, title deeds, and other documents belonging to the estates and property of the foundation, for deposit of money, for drawing cheques, and for the appointment and payment of a clerk and of officers for the conduct of the business relating to the estates and property of the foundation.

Accounts.

9. The accounts of the estates and property of the foundation shall be made up and balanced on the 31st day of December in every year. The accounts shall be signed by the master or one of the wardens of the Company within two calendar months after the day to which they are made up. As soon as practicable after the accounts are so signed they shall be audited.

Audit.

10. With respect to the audit of the said accounts, the following provisions shall have effect:—

- (1.) The auditor in each year shall be appointed by the Lord Mayor, and shall receive such remuneration as the Company, subject to the approval of the Charity Commissioners, may direct; and such remuneration, together with the expenses of or incident to the audit, shall be paid by the Company out of the income of the foundation.
- (2.) The audit shall be held at the office of the Company, or at some other convenient place to be named by them, and at a time to be fixed by the auditor, but to be as soon as possible after the accounts are signed.
- (3.) The auditor, at least 14 days before holding the audit, shall serve on the Company, and on the governing body hereinafter constituted under this scheme, notice of the time and place of holding the audit.
- (4.) The clerk of the Company, or some person authorised by them, shall attend the audit, and produce to the auditor all books, bills, vouchers, and documents relating to the accounts.
- (5.) Any member of the Company, or of the said governing body, may be present at the audit, and object to the accounts.
- (6.) The auditor shall, as nearly as may be, have the like powers and be under the like obligation to allow and disallow items in the accounts, as in the case of an audit of the accounts of the School Board for London, and the governors or any person aggrieved by the decision of the auditor shall have a right of appeal to the Charity Commissioners, whose decision shall be final.
- (7.) Subject to the provisions of this clause, the Charity Commissioners may from time to time make such regulations as may in their opinion be necessary respecting the form of keeping the accounts and the audit thereof.

When the auditor has completed the audit, he shall sign the balance-sheet.

Statement of accounts.

11. The Company shall in each year cause a statement of accounts, showing their receipts and expenditure in respect of the foundation for the preceding year, to be printed in such form, and with such particulars, as may be from time to time prescribed by the Charity Commissioners, and shall send the same within 30 days after the balance-sheet is signed by the auditor to the governing body hereinafter constituted under this scheme, and to the Charity Commissioners, and publish an advertisement thereof in two London daily newspapers, and cause copies to be sold to all applicants at a price not exceeding 3*d.* for each copy.

12. The present and any future buildings and playgrounds used for the purposes of the school or schools of the foundation, with their respective appurtenances, shall, so long as they respectively continue to be so used, be respectively managed by the governing bodies hereinafter constituted under this scheme without interruption by the Company.

13. The Company may, with the sanction of the Charity Commissioners, from time to time make such donations and annual allowances or subscriptions out of the income of the estates and property of the foundation as they may think fit, having regard to the income derived from the estates in respect of which donations or subscriptions are proposed to be made. After paying such donations or subscriptions, and after defraying the expenses of management incurred under the provisions of Parts I., II., and VII. of this scheme, including a reasonable sum for providing the yearly apposition dinner, the Company shall pay the net income of the foundation to the governing body of the boys' school hereinafter constituted under this scheme, at such times and intervals and in such manner as may be authorised or prescribed from time to time by the Charity Commissioners.

Application of income.

Part III.—Constitution of Governing Body of School.

14. The governing body of the boys' school of this foundation shall consist, when complete, of 22 governors, of whom one shall be the master and three the wardens of the Company for the time being, nine shall be appointed by the court of assistants of the Company, and the remaining nine shall be appointed as follows:—

Governing body of boys' schools.

Three the Hebdomadal Council of the University of Oxford;

Three by the Council of the Senate of the University of Cambridge; and Three by the Senate of the University of London.

Every governor other than the master and wardens of the Company shall be appointed to hold office for five years and then retire.

15. For the management of the girls' school or schools to be established under the provisions of this scheme, the governing body of the boys' schools shall, as soon as conveniently may be after the completion of the buildings for any such girls' school in pursuance of the provisions of this scheme, and at their first meeting in every fifth year afterwards, appoint four women to act jointly with them as governors of the girls' school or schools of the foundation. The whole body of 26 governors so constituted shall have the management of such girls' school or schools, and of the buildings thereof, and of the income to be appropriated under this scheme for the education of girls.

Management of girls' school.

16. The word "Governors" in this scheme shall mean the governing body of 22 members for the boys' schools, or the governing body of 26 members for the girls' school or schools, as the circumstances and context require. If any doubt arises as to the meaning of the word "Governors" in any instance, the matter shall be referred to the Charity Commissioners, whose decision shall be final.

Interpretation of "Governors."

17. If, during his term of office, any governor, other than the master and wardens of the Company, become bankrupt or incapacitated to act, or expresses to the governors in writing his wish to retire, or fails for the space of one year to attend any meeting, the governors shall, after notice to such governor at his last known place of residence in England, cause a record of the fact to be entered in their books, and notify the same to the body by whom he was appointed; and upon such record being entered the governor to whom it applies shall cease to be a governor, and thereupon or upon the death of any governor other than the master and wardens of the Company, the proper body shall proceed to appoint a successor to the vacant place. A governor vacating office by retirement or non-attendance only shall not be thereby disqualified for re-appointment.

Vacation of office.

18. No master or mistress of any school of the foundation may be a governor.

Masters.

19. Religious opinions or attendance or non-attendance at any particular form of religious worship shall Religious opinions.

60*l.* 8*s.* (as stated in the printed reports, vol. 6, p. 321), or four fifths of the income of the entire sum (75*l.* 10*s.*), the remaining one-fifth being given to the Company, which constitutes a charge on the property called Henry the Eighth's estate, and also the dividends on 450*l.* 3*l.* per cent. consols, producing 13*l.* 10*s.* a year. This not in any way affect the qualification of any person for being a governor under this scheme.

of office.

20. Every governor shall, at or before the first meeting he attends in that character, sign a memorandum declaring his acceptance of the office of governor and his willingness to do his duty as such, and to act in the trusts of this scheme; and until he has signed such a declaration he shall not be entitled to act.

Governors.

21. The governors shall from time to time summon and hold meetings in some convenient place to be fixed by themselves as often as may be found necessary for the management of the several schools, with their respective sites, playgrounds, and appurtenances (hereinafter referred to as the trust) and at least twice in each year, on some convenient days to be appointed by themselves.

Chairman.

22. The master of the Company shall be ex officio chairman of the meetings, and the governors shall, at their first meeting in each year, make regulations for supplying his place whenever he is absent.

Quorum.

23. A quorum shall be constituted whenever seven governors are present; and any such quorum may act notwithstanding a vacancy or vacancies in the whole number of governors. Whenever any decision is made in favour of which less than a majority of the governors for the time being entitled to act have voted, it shall be competent to any two governors, within seven days from the day of the decision, to demand that the decision shall be once reconsidered at a special meeting, to be held at an interval of not less than 14 and not more than 21 days after the meeting at which such decision was made.

meetings.

24. The chairman or any two governors may at any time summon a special meeting for any cause that seems to him or them sufficient.

Notice.

25. All special meetings shall be convened by notice in writing to the governors, specifying the object of the meeting. And it shall be the duty of the clerk to the governors to give such notice when required by the chairman or any governors having a right to summon such a meeting.

Voting.

26. Save as herein otherwise provided, all matters and questions shall be determined by the votes of the majority of the Governors present at any meeting; and in case of equality of votes, the chairman of the meeting shall have a second or casting vote.

Adjourn-
meetings.

27. If at any meeting there is not a sufficient number of Governors present to constitute a quorum, or if the business at any meeting is not fully completed, the Governors present may adjourn the meeting to a subsequent day, of which notice shall be given to all the Governors.

Books.

28. A minute-book and proper books of account shall be provided by the Governors, and kept in some convenient and secure place of deposit to be provided or appointed by them for the purpose.

Minutes.

29. Minutes of all proceedings of the Governors shall be entered in the minute-book and duly signed. In the same book shall be recorded the entry into office of every new Governor, and the names of all the Governors present at each meeting, whether a quorum is constituted or not.

Accounts.

30. Full accounts shall be kept of the receipts and expenditure of the Governors, and such accounts shall be stated for each year, and examined and passed annually at some meeting within the first two months of the ensuing year, and signed by the Governors then present.

Publication
and reports.

31. The Governors shall in the first quarter of each year cause abstracts of the accounts for the preceding year to be prepared in accordance with the forms appended to this scheme, unless some form is prescribed by the Charity Commissioners, in which case the form so prescribed shall be followed. The Governors shall at the same time and in the same manner cause annual statements of the progress of the schools to be prepared. Such abstracts of accounts and such statements for the past year they shall cause to be printed together and published forthwith, and shall advertise such publication in at least two London daily newspapers, and sell copies of the whole set of abstracts and statements so published at such price as they shall think fit, not exceeding sixpence for each copy, to all applicants.

32. The Governors shall make arrangements for the custody of all documents belonging to the trust, for deposit of money, for drawing cheques, and for the appointment of a clerk for the conduct of their business. If any such clerk is himself a governor he shall not receive a salary.

documents and appoint-
clerk.

33. The property of the trust, so far as the management thereof is under the provisions of this scheme vested in the governing bodies of the schools, shall be managed by the governors, or by their officers acting under their orders, according to the general law applicable to the management of property by trustees of charitable foundations.

ment.

34. In order to raise any capital sum which the governors may from time to time be authorised to expend under the provisions of this scheme, the governors may serve their precept on the company requiring them to raise the same in manner hereinbefore provided, and the company shall forthwith proceed to raise and pay the same to the governors accordingly. If any doubt arises as to the validity of any precept, the company or the governors may refer the question to the Charity Commissioners, whose decision shall be final.

PART IV.—The Schools.

35. So soon as conveniently may be after the date of this scheme the governors shall proceed to acquire such sites, including adequate playgrounds, in some place or places situated within the jurisdiction of the Metropolitan Board of Works as shall be necessary for carrying out the provisions of this scheme, it being intended that the foundation shall ultimately comprise:—

buildings.

(1.) A school, to be called St. Paul's School, divided into two departments, one of which shall be a classical department for about 500 boys, and the other a modern department for about 500 boys:

(2.) A school or schools, to be called Dean Colet's School or Schools, for not less than 400 girls in all:

such schools and departments, respectively, to be established in such order of priority as the governors may deem to be most expedient:

The acquisition of site shall, so far as regards the size and each situation of the same, be subject to the approval of the Charity Commissioners. So soon as any such approval has been obtained the Governors shall proceed to erect on the approved site buildings, according to plans to be subject to such approval as aforesaid, suitable for the School intended. For all or any of the above purposes they may from time to time expend such capital sums as may be sanctioned by the Charity Commissioners.

36. The Governors shall, whenever a convenient opportunity offers, and with the sanction of the Charity Commissioners, entirely remove St. Paul's School from the existing buildings in St. Paul's Churchyard. From and after such removal the said buildings and their appurtenances and the site thereof shall be managed by the company as part of the general property of the foundation.

37. All the schools of the foundation shall be day schools, but the Governors shall have power to admit to all or any of the schools boys and girls boarding in the houses of masters or mistresses, or in such other houses as may from time to time be approved by the Governors.

Day schools.

38. There shall be a head master of each department of St. Paul's School. The head master of the classical department shall be called the high master of St. Paul's School; he shall be a graduate of some university in the United Kingdom, and subject as hereinafter provided shall have the superintendence and control of the whole school.

Masters and mistresses.

The head master of the modern department of St. Paul's School shall also be a graduate of some university of the United Kingdom, and subject as herein-after provided shall have the superintendence and control of the modern department.

There shall be a head mistress of Dean Colet's School, or of each such school if more than one is established, who shall have such qualifications for office as the Governors may think fit to prescribe.

39. No person shall be disqualified from being a Holy master in any of the schools by reason only of his not orders, being, or not intending to be, in holy orders.

is applied to the discharge of prisoners for debt in Whitecross Street prison. In the year 1859 the sum of £11. was applied in the release of 23 prisoners. A list was sent by the governor of the prison (Colonel Hicks), till lately to the Company, and upon that list their order was made. There was, at the end of the year

Religious instruction.

40. Subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, the Governors and the high master shall make proper provisions for religious instruction in the several schools; and such religious instruction shall be in accordance with the principles of the Church of England.

Endowed Schools Act, 1873, s. 11.

41. No alteration in any regulations made by the governors respecting the religious instruction given in any school or department shall take effect until the expiration of not less than one year after notice of the making of the alteration is given.

Endowed Schools Act, 1869, s. 15.

42. The parent or guardian of, or person liable to maintain, or having the actual custody of any day scholar in any school or department of the foundation may claim by notice in writing addressed to the head master or head mistress of such school or department, the exemption of such scholar from attending prayer or religious worship, or from any lesson or series of lessons on a religious subject, and such scholar shall be exempted accordingly; and a scholar shall not by reason of any exemption from attending prayer or religious worship, or from any lesson or series of lessons on a religious subject be deprived of any advantages or emoluments in any school of the foundation or out of any endowments affected by this scheme to which he or she would otherwise have been entitled. If any teacher in the course of other lessons at which any such scholar is in accordance with the ordinary rules of the school, present, teaches systematically and persistently any particular religious doctrine, from the teaching of which any exemption has been claimed as provided by this clause, the governors shall, on complaint made in writing to them by the parent, guardian, or person liable to maintain or having the actual custody of such scholar, hear the complainant, and inquire into the circumstances, and if the complaint is judged to be reasonable, make all proper provisions for remedying the matter complained of.

Appointment of head master and head mistress.

43. Every head master and every head mistress shall be appointed by the governors. Every such appointment shall be made at a meeting to be called for the purpose, as soon as conveniently may be after the occurrence of a vacancy, or after notice of an intended vacancy. In order to obtain the best candidates the governors shall for a sufficient time before making any appointment give public notice of the vacancy, and invite competition by advertisements in newspapers and by such other methods as they may think fit.

Dismissal without assigning cause.

44. The governors may dismiss any head master or head mistress without assigning cause after six calendar months' written notice, given in pursuance of a resolution passed by a majority of votes of the whole number of governors for the time being entitled to act, at a meeting duly convened for the special purpose of considering the matter.

Dismissal for urgent cause.

45. For urgent cause the governors may by a resolution passed by a majority of votes of the whole number of governors for the time being entitled to act, at a meeting duly convened for the special purpose of considering the matter, suspend any head master or head mistress from office, and in that case they shall appoint another special meeting to be held at an interval of not less than a fortnight after the former one, and may then, by a resolution likewise passed by a majority of votes of the whole number of governors for the time being entitled to act, wholly and finally dismiss him or her. Full notice and opportunity of defence at both meetings shall be given to such head master or head mistress, as the case may be.

Declaration by head masters or head mistresses.

46. Every head master or head mistress, previously to entering into office, shall be required to sign a declaration to be entered in the minute book of the governors, in the following form:—

"I, _____ declare that I will always, to the best of my ability, discharge the duties of 'high master (or head master of the modern department) of St. Paul's School (or head mistress of Dean Colet's School, as the case may be), during my tenure of office, and that if I am removed by the governors, according to the constitution of the said school, I will acquiesce in such removal, and will thereupon relinquish all claim to the office and its future emoluments and deliver up to the governors, or as they direct, possession of all their property then in my possession or occupation."

47. Every head master and head mistress to whom a residence shall be assigned by the governors shall dwell in such residence. Every head master and head mistress shall have the occupation and use of his or her residence (if any), and of any other property of the foundation of which he or she may become occupant, in respect of his or her official character and duties, and not as tenant; and shall, if removed from office, thereupon deliver up possession of such residence and other property to the governors or as they may direct. No head master or head mistress shall, except with permission of the governors, allow any person to occupy his or her official residence or any part thereof.

Occupation of trust property by head masters and head mistresses.

48. Every head master and head mistress shall give personal attention to the duties of the school in his or her charge. No head master or head mistress shall hold any office or appointment which, in the opinion of the governors, may interfere with the proper performance of his or her duties under the trusts of this scheme, and no head master shall hold any benefice having the cure of souls.

Personal attention of head masters and head mistresses.

49. No master or mistress of any rank in the schools shall receive or demand from any scholar, or from any person whomsoever on behalf of any scholar any gratuity or payment, other than such payments as are prescribed or authorised by this scheme.

No gratuities to masters or mistresses.

50. Within the limits fixed by this scheme the governors shall in each school and department prescribe the general subjects of instruction, the relative prominence and value to be assigned to each group of subjects, the division of the year into term and vacation, the payments of the scholars and the number of school hours in each week, and of holidays to be given in each term. They shall take general supervision of the sanitary condition of all the school buildings and arrangements. They shall from time to time determine what number of assistant masters, mistresses, or teachers shall be employed in each school or department. They shall every year assign to each school and department the amount to be paid out of the income of the trust for the salaries of assistant teachers, and for the provision of a proper plant or apparatus for carrying on the instruction given in such school or department.

Jurisdiction of governors over scholastic arrangements.

51. Before acting under the last preceding clause the governors shall in all cases consult the head master or mistress of any school or department concerned, in such a manner as to give him or her full opportunity for the expression of his or her views.

Governors to consult head master.

52. Subject to the rules prescribed by or under the authority of this scheme, the high master as to the classical department of St. Paul's School, and the head mistress as to the school or schools for girls, shall have under his or her control the method of teaching, the arrangements of classes and school hours, and generally the whole internal organization, management and discipline of his or her school or department, and shall have authority over all scholars attending the same in all places and at all times during the school terms: Provided that if the high master or head mistress expels a scholar from school, he or she shall forthwith make a full report of the case in writing to the governors.

Jurisdiction of head masters and head mistresses.

53. As to the modern department of St. Paul's School, subject to the rules prescribed by or under the authority of this scheme, and subject also to the general superintendence and control of the high master, the head master thereof (who shall be called the "master of the modern school,") shall exercise the like power and authority as to the method of teaching, the arrangements of classes and school hours, and generally the whole internal organization, management, and discipline of the modern department, and over all scholars in that department, as is by the preceding clause given to the high master with respect to the classical department: Provided that it shall not be in the power of the master of the modern school to make or alter any regulation as to any of the matters aforesaid, or to expel any scholar, without the concurrence of the high master, or (in case of difference between them) of the governors; and if the high master should, as to any of the matters aforesaid, think any direction or regulation necessary or expedient to which the master of the modern school shall object, or shall think the expulsion of any scholar necessary to which the master of the modern school may not be willing to consent, the matter so in difference shall, as soon as conveniently may be, be reported

SERMONS IN LENT.

I have appended to this report a translation of the letters patent of the 21st April 1542 (33 Hen. 8.), whereby the King granted to the Mercers' Company the church and possessions of the college of Acon in consideration of a sum of 969*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.* paid by the Company, and by an indenture of the same date, reciting the grant, and which must be regarded as a part of the same transaction, the Company, besides

* SAVAGE'S CHARITY.

By an order of the Board of Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, dated the 29th October 1878, the Commissioners in consideration of the transfer by the Company of the sum of 3,333*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* consols into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in trust for the Charity exonerated the property situated in Cheapside, referred to in the report, from the annual payment of 60*l.* 8*s.*, constituting the endowment of this Charity.

to the governors, who shall decide thereon; and in the meantime it shall be the duty of the master of the modern school to conform himself to such directions (not being inconsistent with this scheme or with any regulation made by the governors), as pending the decision of the matter by the governors, the high master shall think fit to give.

Appointment and removal of assistant teachers in Classical Department and girls' schools.

54. The high master as to the classical department of St. Paul's School, and the head mistress as to the school or schools for girls shall have the sole power of appointing, and, subject to an appeal to the governors, of dismissing all assistant teachers in such school or department; but shall forthwith notify every appointment in writing to the governors. The high master or head mistress shall also determine, subject to the approval of the governors, in what manner the sum assigned by the governors to his or her school or department for assistant teachers and plant or apparatus shall be distributed. The governors shall pay the sum assigned either through the hands of the high master or the head mistress of such school or department, or directly as they think best.

Appointment and removal of assistant teachers in Modern Department.

55. The master of the modern school shall have power, with the concurrence of the high master, to appoint, and (subject to an appeal to the governors), to dismiss all assistant teachers in the modern department of St. Paul's School, who shall not be assistant teachers in the classical department also. He shall also with the concurrence of the high master, subject to the approval of the governors, determine in what manner the sum assigned by the governors to the modern department for assistant teachers and plant shall be distributed. If there should be any difference on that subject between the high master and the master of the modern school, the matter so in difference shall be determined by the governors. The governors shall pay the sum assigned either through the hands of the master of the modern school, or directly as they think best.

Appointment and removal of assistant masters in both Departments of St. Paul's School.

56. The governors shall have power, if and so far as it may seem to them expedient, to authorize the instruction of combined classes in both departments, and also to authorize the employment of the same persons as assistant masters in both departments of St. Paul's School for subjects of instruction common to both; and to determine how such last-mentioned assistant masters shall be appointed and dismissed; and also to authorize so far as may be thought expedient, the instruction of combined classes in both departments; and the mode of distributing and making payment of the sum or sums which may be assigned for such last-mentioned assistant masters shall be in the discretion of the governors.

Head masters or head mistresses may submit proposals.

57. The head master or head mistress of any school or department, may from time to time submit proposals to the governors for making or altering regulations as to any matters within his or her province, and the governors shall consider such proposals and decide upon them.

Income of masters and head mistresses.

58. The high master shall receive a fixed stipend of 300*l.* a year. The master of the modern school and the head mistress of Dean Colet's School shall each receive a fixed stipend of 200*l.* a year.

They shall also be respectively entitled to receive a further or capitation payment calculated on such a scale, uniform or graduated, and at such a rate as may from time to time be fixed by the governors, being not less than 3*l.* nor more than 6*l.* a year, for each scholar attending the school or department, provided that when the number of scholars in such school or department exceeds 300, the minimum payment for each scholar in excess of that number shall be 2*l.* yearly. All payments under this clause shall be made terminally, or quarterly, as the governors shall think fit.

Admission of scholars to both Departments of St. Paul's School.

59. It shall be in the power of the governors at any time when there shall be less than 500 scholars in either the classical or the modern department of St. Paul's School, to authorize the admission of any number of scholars (not exceeding the difference between the total number for the time being in both departments, and one thousand), for the purpose of receiving instruction in any subjects common to both departments, for such length of time (to be determined either by the age or the proficiency of such scholars respectively, or otherwise as the governors shall think expedient), as may in the opinion of the governors be desirable, before the final distribution of such scholars between the classical and the modern departments; and all such scholars shall, so far as relates to government and discipline, and to the regulation of the instruction given to them, be under the authority of the high master and the master of the modern school respectively, in the same way as if they were scholars in the modern department; and for the purposes of the accounts directed by the 31st clause of this scheme, such scholars shall be deemed to be in the modern department, but in every such case, every such scholar shall be entitled to be placed in the classical or modern department as the case may be, whenever his parents or guardians shall so request, if, and so soon as there may be a vacancy therein, subject to his passing such examination as may be appointed by or with the consent of the governors for that purpose; priority being given in every such case according to the order of each boy's admission into the school.

60. Subject to the regulations made by or under the authority of this scheme the boys' and girls' schools of the Foundation, and all their advantages, shall be open to all boys and girls respectively who are of good character and of sufficient bodily health, and who are residing with their parents, guardians, or next friends, or are boarders under the provisions of this scheme.

To whom schools are open.

61. Applications for admission to any school shall be made to some person appointed by the governors, according to a printed form to be by them approved and delivered to all applicants for admission.

Mode of admission.

62. A register shall be kept of all applications showing the date at which every application is made for the admission of a scholar, the date of admission, withdrawal, or rejection, the cause of rejection, and the age of the candidate at the date of the application: Provided that every person requiring an application to be registered shall pay such fee as the governors may fix, not exceeding 10*s.*

Register of applications.

63. Every candidate for admission into St. Paul's School, or into the school or schools for girls, shall be examined by or under the direction of the high master or the head mistress of the girl's school, who shall appoint convenient times for that purpose, and give reasonable notice thereof in writing to the parents or guardians of those whose turn is approaching. No scholar shall be admitted to any school except after passing such examination. Those who are found fit, shall, if there is room for them, be admitted in order according to the dates of their application: Provided nevertheless, that each governor shall have the privilege of nominating in every year one candidate for admission into some school of the Foundation, and every candidate so nominated, if found fit and otherwise admissible, shall be entitled to priority of admission over all candidates not so nominated.

Entrance examinations.

64. Except as is herein otherwise expressly provided, each scholar shall pay such entrance and tuition fees as the governors shall fix from time to time, provided that no such entrance fee shall exceed 5*l.*, and that no such tuition fee shall be less than 20*l.* or more than 30*l.* a year. No preference shall be given to any scholar in respect of such fees on account of his or her place of birth or residence. No extras of any kind shall be allowed without the sanction of the governors and written consent on behalf of the scholar concerned.

Payments for entrance and tuition.

65. All payments for entrance and tuition shall be made in advance in such manner and to such person as the governors shall from time to time appoint for the purpose, and shall be accounted for by the person receiving them to the governors, and treated by them

Payments to be made in advance.

maintaining the Mercers' school (as to which see the report thereon), was to provide every Sunday, in the time of Lent, a learned man to make a sermon within the said church, thenceforth to be called "The Church of The Mercers."

Six sermons are preached in the six Sundays in Lent as part of the income of the trust applicable exclusively to the benefit of the school in respect of which they were made.

Ages of scholars.

66. The governors shall make regulations from time to time for fixing the age of admission to the several schools. No scholar shall be allowed to remain in any school or department beyond the end of the school term or half year in which he or she attains the age of 19 years. And the head master or head mistress of each school or department shall be at liberty to make regulations for the withdrawal of scholars in cases where from idleness or incapacity to profit by the instruction given they are materially below the standard of position and attainment proper for their age: Provided that so far as relates to the modern department, all such regulations shall be made with the concurrence of the high master. No scholar shall be allowed to remain in any school beyond the end of the term in which he or she attains the age of 13 years, unless he or she has within the previous year passed a satisfactory examination in reading, writing, arithmetic, English grammar, and dictation, and the elements of geography; and the governors shall make regulations for testing the attainments of such scholars by some examiner to be appointed by them.

Examinations.

67. There shall be once in every year an examination of the scholars in each school or department of the Foundation by an examiner or examiners appointed for that purpose by the governors, and paid by them, but otherwise unconnected with such school or department. The examiners shall make a report in writing to the governors on the proficiency of the scholars and on the position of the several schools and departments as regards instruction and discipline, as shown by the results of the examination. The governors shall communicate to the head master or head mistress of each school or department the report relating to such school or department.

Reports of head masters and head mistresses.

68. The head master or head mistress of each school or department, shall make an annual report in writing to the governors on the general condition of such school or department and on any special occurrences during the year. He or she may also mention the names of any scholars who in his or her judgment are worthy of praise or substantial reward, having regard both to proficiency and to conduct.

Classical Department of St. Paul's School for Boys.

Entrance examination.

69. The examination for admission to the classical department shall be graduated according to the age of the candidates, but it shall never fall below the following standard; that is to say—

Reading;
Writing from dictation;
The first four rules of arithmetic;
The geography of England;
The outlines of English history; and
The elements of Latin grammar.

The governors may raise the minimum standard from time to time if they deem it advantageous for the school.

Subjects of instruction.

70. The subjects of secular instruction in the classical department shall be as follows:—

English, Latin, and Greek languages and literatures;
Arithmetic and mathematics;
History and geography;
Natural science;
French and German;
Drawing;
Class singing.

The Governors shall have power to add other subjects to the above list, and to direct that arrangements be made for giving special importance to any one or more of the subjects; but subject to such power the head master shall settle the arrangements and classification of instruction in the prescribed subjects.

MODERN DEPARTMENT OF ST. PAUL'S SCHOOL FOR BOYS.

Entrance examination.

71. The examination for admission to the modern department, or into St. Paul's School without being immediately placed in either department, shall be graduated according to the age of the candidates, but it shall never fall below the following standard; that is to say,—

Reading;
Writing from dictation;

The first four rules of arithmetic;
The geography of England;
The outlines of English history; and
The elements of French grammar.

The Governors may raise the minimum standard from time to time if they deem it advantageous for the school.

72. The subjects of secular instruction in the modern department shall be as follows:—

English, French, and German languages and literatures;
Arithmetic and mathematics;
History and geography;
Natural science, and, in particular, experimental physics and chemistry;
Latin;
Drawing;
Class singing.

Subjects of instruction.

The Governors shall have power to add other subjects to the above list, and to direct that arrangements be made for giving special importance to any one or more of the subjects; but subject to such power and to the general superintendence of the high master, the head master of the modern school shall settle the arrangements and classification of instruction in the prescribed subjects.

DEAN COLET'S SCHOOL OR SCHOOLS FOR GIRLS.

73. The examination for admission to any school for girls shall be graduated according to the age of the candidate, but it shall never fall below the following standard, that is to say—

Reading;
Writing from dictation;
The first four rules of arithmetic;
The geography of England; and Plain needlework.

Entrance examination.

The Governors may raise the minimum standard from time to time if they may deem it advantageous for the schools.

74. The subjects of secular instruction in the school or schools for girls shall be such as to give a liberal education, and shall be settled from time to time by the Governors. They shall include—

The English language and literature;
The Latin, French, and German languages and literatures;
Arithmetic and mathematics;
History and geography;
Natural science;
Domestic economy;
Calisthenics;
Laws of health;
Drawing;
Class singing.

Subjects of instruction.

The Governors shall have power to direct that arrangements be made for giving special importance to any one or more of the prescribed subjects; but, subject to such power, the head mistress shall settle the arrangements and classification of instruction in the prescribed subjects.

Part V.—Scholarships and Exhibitions.

75. There shall be 153 boys scholars on the foundation, of whom, subject to the proviso hereinafter expressed, 77 shall be scholars in the classical department, and 76 scholars in the modern department of St. Paul's School; and there shall also be 39 girls scholars on the foundation in the school or schools for girls: Provided that during the continuance of the interest of any scholar hereinbefore saved, the Governors shall have liberty to treat as scholars on the foundation all scholars whose interests are so saved, and to augment or diminish at their discretion that number of scholars on the foundation in the several schools.

Scholarships.

Every scholar on the foundation shall be entitled, by virtue of his or her scholarship, to entire exemption from the payment of tuition fees.

76. Of the scholarships tenable in each school (the schools for girls, if more than one, being considered for the purpose of this clause as one school), one third shall be open only to candidates between the ages of 12 and 14 years whether attending the schools or not, and shall be awarded, in the case of boys, according to the result of competitive examination; and, in the case of girls, either according to the results of competitive examination or according to some like test of merit to be from time to time prescribed by the Governors. remaining two thirds of the scholarships tenable in each school shall be awarded according to the results of competitive examination under such regulations as the Governors may make from time to time. Reasonable notice by advertisement in the public newspapers shall be given of all scholarships open to candidates not attending the schools.

Regulations as to scholarships. 77. The Governors shall make regulations from time to time for determining the period of tenure of all scholarships tenable at the schools. Every scholarship tenable at the schools shall be liable to forfeiture on the order of the Governors in case the head master or head mistress of the school at which it is held reports that the holder is guilty of misconduct is irregular in attendance, or fails to maintain a reasonable standard of proficiency; and no such scholarship shall be granted to any scholar already attending any school, if the head master or mistress reports that such scholar is rendered undeserving of it by misconduct.

Campden Exhibitions from classical school. 78. The Governors shall in each year employ the net income payable to them under the provisions of a scheme framed by the Endowed Schools Commissioners, for the management of Lord Campden's exhibitions, or such portion thereof, being as near as may be the sum of 1,000l., as they deem expedient, in the establishment and maintenance of exhibitions to be awarded annually by open competition among boys who have been educated in the classical department of St. Paul's School for such time previous to the award thereof as the Governors may from time to time determine, and to be tenable at any University or other place of liberal education to be approved in each case by the Governors.

Leaving Exhibitions from modern school. 79. The Governors shall in each year employ the sum of 1,000l. in the establishment and maintenance of exhibitions, to be awarded annually by open competition among boys who have been educated in the modern department of St. Paul's School, for such time previous to the award thereof as the Governors may from time to time determine, and to be tenable at any University or other place of liberal education, or for the purpose of fitting the holder for some profession.

Leaving Exhibitions from high school or schools for girls. 80. The Governors shall in each year employ the sum of 700l. in the establishment and maintenance of exhibitions, to be awarded annually by open competition among girls who have been educated at the school or schools for such time previous to the award thereof as the Governors may from time to time determine, and to be tenable at any college or place for the higher education of women, or at any training institution for school mistresses or governesses, or applicable for the professional training of the holder in any other way which the Governors may expressly sanction in each individual case.

Exhibitions when voidable. 81. All exhibitions tenable by scholars after leaving the schools, shall be tenable only for the purposes of education, general or professional. They shall be payable by instalments at such intervals as the Governors shall direct. If the holder of an exhibition dies, his or her representatives shall be entitled only to the next ensuing payment of an instalment whenever payable. If the holder becomes a bankrupt, or is guilty of gross misconduct or idleness, or wilfully ceases to pursue his or her education, it shall be competent to the Governors to determine the exhibition as from the last preceding payment of an instalment.

Particulars of exhibitions to be settled by governors. 82. Subject to the provisions of this scheme, the Governors shall from time to time make regulations for determining the number, value, period, and conditions of award and tenure of all exhibitions tenable by scholars after leaving the schools, and all other matters relating to such exhibitions.

Part VI.—Application of Income.

Pensions. 83. The Governors may from time to time, with the sanction of the Charity Commissioners, grant a pension or retiring allowance to any teacher or officer of any school of the foundation; and every accruing instalment of any such pension or allowance shall be, until paid, a charge upon the income of the endowment of the trust.

Repairs and improvements. 84. The Governors shall charge the income of the endowment of the trust with the payment of a sum of TRINITY HOSPITAL, GREENWICH.

Henry, Earl of Northampton, by his will of the 14th June, 1614, ordered his executors to procure that the hospital, begun by him at East Greenwich, should be founded and incorporated and endowed with lands therein mentioned.

300l. per annum to be placed to a separate account, entitled the Repairs and Improvements Fund Account, and applied to ordinary repairs or improvements of the property used for the purposes of the schools of the foundation, and if not wanted for that purpose to be accumulated and paid to the credit of such separate account for repairs and improvements. The Governors at their discretion may draw upon the accumulations, if any, for the purposes of repairs or improvements, ordinary or extraordinary.

85. After defraying the expenses of any legal claims which may be chargeable on the trust and the cost of any ordinary repairs or improvements which the money standing to the credit of the Repairs and Improvements Fund Account may be insufficient to answer, the Governors shall employ the net income of the trust for the general purposes of the schools in accordance with the provisions of this scheme: Provided that the amount assigned out of the net income of the endowment of the trust for the purposes of the school or schools for girls shall not in any year after such school or schools shall have been established be less than one fourth part of the said net income for that year, and that the residue of the said net income shall be so applied as at all times to maintain the modern department of St. Paul's School in as full and complete a state of efficiency as the classical department.

86. If in any year there is any residue of the income assigned to any school, the Governors may employ it in increasing the stipend of the head master or head mistress or the amount applicable to the maintenance of assistant teachers and of school plant or apparatus, in improving the accommodation of the school buildings, in aiding the games of the scholars, or generally in promoting the spirit and efficiency of such school. Whatever they do not think fit to spend in these ways they shall on passing the yearly accounts state as unapplied surplus, applicable exclusively to such school, and deposit in a bank; and whenever the sums so deposited rise to 500l. over and above a reasonable current balance, they shall invest the same in the name of the official trustees of charitable funds to the credit of the trust, for the benefit of the school or schools in respect of which such unapplied surplus shall have been stated.

Part VII.—General.

87. The company or Governors may receive any additional donations or endowments for the general purposes of the foundation or schools thereof. They may also receive donations or endowments for any special objects directed by the donors, provided that such objects are certified by the Charity Commissioners to be for the general benefit of the foundation or of any school thereof, and not calculated to give privileges to any scholar without regard to merit, and not otherwise inconsistent with or calculated to impede the due working of the provisions of this scheme.

88. If at any time any doubt or question arises among the Governors, or between the company and the Governors, as to the proper construction or application of any of the provisions of this scheme, the Governors and the company, if necessary, shall apply to the Charity Commissioners for their opinion and advice thereon, which opinion and advice when given shall be binding on the Governors and on the company, if concerned.

89. The Charity Commissioners may, upon the application of the company or of the Governors, from time to time, in the exercise of their ordinary jurisdiction, frame schemes for the alteration of any provisions of this scheme, provided that such schemes be not inconsistent with the first clause of this scheme, or with anything contained in the Endowed Schools Acts, 1869 and 1873.

90. The Governors shall cause this scheme to be printed and a copy to be given to every person who shall become a Governor, and to every master, mistress, and teacher appointed to any school of the foundation, and copies shall be sold at a reasonable price to all purchasers.

And, by Letters Patent, of the 5th June, 1615, King James 1st granted that the said edifice so begun should for ever be an hospital for the support and relief of poor indigent men, to be called "The Hospital of the Holy

" and Undivided Trinity, in East Greenwich, founded " by Henry Howard, Earl of Northampton," and to consist of a warden and 20 poor men, to be nominated by the Mercers' Company.

Sealed by order of the Board this 4th day of July 1879.

(L.S.) HENRY M. VANE,
Secretary.

Under the authority of an order dated 17th November 1876, the governors granted an annual pension of 800*l.* to the Rev. Dr. Kynaston, the late high master of St. Paul's school.

Under the authority of an order dated 27th April 1877 the governors granted pensions of 100*l.* and 50*l.* respectively to Tito Pagliardinis and Leonce Stievenard the French and assistant French masters of the school.

By an order of the board dated 6th July 1877 the sum of 230*l.*, representing the endowment of the "Kynaston prize or prizes" was authorised to be paid to the banking account of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds at the Bank of England.

The amount was subsequently invested in purchase of 22*l.* 2*s.* 4*d.* Metropolitan Consolidated stock 3*l.* 10*s.* per cent.

The governors of the school appointed under the provisions of this scheme have taken the requisite steps for the removal of the existing boys schools from St. Paul's Churchyard to another site, in pursuance of the directions contained in the 35th clause of the scheme.

For effecting this object the governors have purchased, under the authority of an order of the board dated 9th April 1878, a suitable site in the parish of Hammersmith containing 16*a.* 1*r.* 20*p.* for the sum of 41,000*l.*

By a subsequent order dated 22nd July 1881, the governors were authorised to expend a sum not exceeding 116,000*l.* in erection of new school buildings for about 1,000 boys on this site, in accordance with plans which had been previously approved by the Commissioners.

These buildings are now in course of erection. The new school buildings for Dean Colet's schools for girls have not as yet been commenced.

The Board have from time to time upon the application of the Mercers' Company authorised the grant of leases and of other dealings with Dean Colet's estate, the particulars of which are subjoined:—

I. Under the authority of an order of the board dated 21st July 1868, the sum of 1000*l.* consols representing the bequest of Hannah Barber for Keen's scholarship was, on the 24th July 1868, transferred into the name occasion, when subsequent Acts had removed the difficulty as to visitatorial jurisdiction.

The Letters Patent and the statutes for the government of the hospital, made and signed by the Earls of Arundel, Suffolk and Worcester, and John Griffith, one of the executors of the Earl of Northampton, are set forth and occupy six folio pages of that report (pp. 5-10), to which I beg to refer:—The estates purchased by the executors were conveyed to Fowke and others, citizens and mercers, as trustees of the endowment, by an indenture of the 27th August 1625, mentioned in the said report (p. 11), and various other premises have been purchased from time to time out of the funds of the hospital. Report (pp. 12, 13, 14.)

On the 8th November 1832, an information was filed by the Attorney-General, at the relation of Benjamin Holman and Edmund Outtriss (two of the poor men in the hospital) against the Corporation of the Hospital of "The Holy and Undivided Trinity in East Greenwich, founded by Henry, Earl of Northampton," and William Smith, the then warden of the hospital, and the Mercers' Company, for an account of the hospital estates, both originally and subsequently acquired, and of the receipts and expenditure for the preceding 30 years, "and a true account of the sums paid, laid out, and expended in, and about the entertainment and expenses of, and attending the visitation of the said Mercers' company, or visitors yearly, and every year during the same period," and that it might be referred to the master to take the accounts of the estate, and he might be directed to enquire what balances of the rents and income of the said hospital had been from time to time, and how long in the hands of the warden thereof, and that the said defendants William Smith and the Mercers' Company, or some of them, might be charged with interest on such balances so suffered to remain in the hands of the warden, and that the master might also be directed to take an account of all sums of money paid, laid out and expended, out of the moneys belonging to the said hospital, for or upon the entertainment of the said Mercers' Company, or the visitors elected therefrom at their visitations of the said hospital, and that all such sums as should be found to have been so expended above the sum of 5*l.* per annum might be decreed to be answered and paid by the defendants William Smith and the wardens and commonalty, some or one of them. And that the said master might also be directed to enquire whether some and what augmentation or increased allowance ought not to be made to the pensioners of the said hospital, and to approve of the same, and also to settle and approve of a scheme for the application of what should be found to be the surplus income of the said hospital above the just expenditure thereof in the augmentation and increase of the said charity.

The information was amended by stating that the pensioners had been excluded from the management of the estates, and that leases had been granted without their assent. The defendants in their answer on the question of law, whether such assent was required, set forth the accounts asked for by the ex-governor, and submitted that under the 24th and last of the statutes and ordinances of the hospital (see report, p. 10), that the sum of 5*l.* named in the said statutes and ordinances as the limit to the expense of the said visitation on Trinity Monday, was wholly inadequate to pay the necessary expenses of such visitation, or to provide what the said statutes direct, and that the intention of the framers of the said statutes and ordinances could not be effected for any such sum, and that under the last statute thereinbefore set forth, an increase of such expense was contemplated, and was under the circumstances justifiable.

The statute referred to is not fully set forth in the report, as stated in the answer of the defendants. It is as follows:—

"Lastly, notwithstanding these foresaid rules and ordinances, we reserve to ourselves power and authority, according to His Majesty's said Letters Patent, at all time and times during our natural lives to add, to take away, to declare, direct, and change any of the said rules and ordinances; and because no present wisdom can foresee and provide for all future events, that time may produce in change of prices both of land and of victuals, We do also ordain and do give power and authority to the Mercers' Company, whereof the 2 senior wardens and 6 of the assistants, to be always 8; and the heir of the said Earl of Northampton for the time being at all times and from time to time after our decease for the better government of the hospital, or disposal of the lands to greater profit, to alter or change any of these ordinances or rules, and new statutes to ordain, as in their judgment and discretion shall seem most convenient, so the said statutes be not repugnant to the will of the founder nor to the power given to us by His Majesty's said Letters Patent, and we do further ordain that the founder's heir for the time being (if he be free of the said Mystery of Mercers), shall always be one of the 12 to be yearly nominated and approved as aforesaid to be one of the visitors of the said hospital."

It appears that at this stage of the cause considerable discussion took place between the solicitors of the relators and those of the Mercers' Company on the terms of the decree. The following correspondence has been referred to. On the 2nd March, 1835, Messrs. Yates and Turner sent to Messrs. Croft and Whiteside the proposed terms of the decree, as follows:—

"Refer it to the master to inquire of what the charity estates consist.

"Take an account of the rents and profits received by the defendants for 20 years, or for 6 years prior to the filing of the information, as counsel may agree on, and of the application thereof.

of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in trust for the Charity.

II. Under the authority of an order dated 23rd February 1877, a yearly payment of 8*l.* in favour of the Charity issuing out of Rushing Wells Farm was redeemed upon the terms of the payment of the sum of 200*l.* to the banking account of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in trust for the Charity.

The sum of 200*l.* was laid out in the purchase of 209*l.* 19*s.* 6*d.* consols in the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds.

III. By an order dated 2nd November 1877 the board authorised the Company to grant a lease of No. 8 High Street, Whitechapel, for a term of 61 years at the yearly rent of 35*l.*, the lessee to expend 1,000*l.* in buildings.

IV. Under the authority of an order dated 4th January 1878, the Company granted a lease of "The Masons Arms" public house, No. 37, Watney Street, St. George-in-the-East, for a term of 30 years, at the annual rent of 45*l.* Lessees to expend 450*l.* in improvements.

V. Under the authority of an order dated 12th February 1878, the Company granted a lease of a piece of ground in the rear of Nos. 205, 207, 209, 211, Oxford Street, Mile End Old Town for a term of three years from Lady Day 1909 at a peppercorn rent, the lessees paying a premium of 50*l.*

VI. Under the authority of an order dated 8th March 1878, the Company granted a lease of the "Albion" public house, No. 212 High Street, Shadwell, for a term of 60 years at a rent of 60*l.*, the lessees covenanting to expend 2,000*l.* in buildings on the property.

VII. Under the authority of an order dated 9th October 1880, the Company effected a sale of the reversion in fee simple of certain property forming part of two houses numbered 26 and 27 Fish Street Hill to the Fishmongers Company, at the price of 1,125*l.* sterling.

VIII. Under the authority of two orders dated 7th February 1882, a quit rent of 2*l.* 11*s.*, charged upon certain hereditaments situate within the manor of Hale, and belonging to Mr. A. C. de Rothschild, was redeemed in consideration of the payment by him of 92*l.* 11*s.* to the banking account of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds and three quit rents of 8*s.* 0*d.* and 10*s.* 11*d.* respectively, charged upon certain hereditaments situate in manors of Hyde and Hale, belonging to Sir N. M. de Rothschild, were redeemed by the payment by him of the sum of 32*l.* 3*s.* 7*d.* to banking account of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds.

These sums were subsequently invested in the purchase of the sum of 124*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.* consolidated 3*l.* per cent. annuities in the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds.

"Refer it to the master to approve of a scheme for the appropriation of the balance, if any, due from the defendants on the said account, and of the future surplus income for the augmentation and increase of the said Charity and for the benefit of the objects and purposes of the said Charity.

"Costs of the parties, as counsel may agree on."

On the 13th March 1835 Messrs. Croft and Whiteside replied, that they could not advise their clients to agree to minutes at all similar to those contained in the letter of the 2nd March.

The discussion was re-opened on the 25th March, 1836, by a letter from Messrs. Yates and Turner (the suit having on the 20th January 1836 come on and been ordered to stand over that the corporation of "Trinity Hospital" might be added as a party), referring to their letter of the 2nd March 1835, and the minutes thereby proposed, and adding, that such minutes might possibly be reduced into a reference for a scheme only if it should be considered that that would meet the justice of the case, and to state that if they were not such as Messrs. Crofts could advise their clients to adopt Messrs. Yates and Turner would thank them to make any specific objections or alterations they might be advised, and they added, "that if the spirit of this communication be recognised by your clients, the suit may be cheaply and speedily disposed of."

The defendants solicitors replied on the 24th May 1836, that "the terms hitherto proposed are such as they could not afford any facility for obtaining; it is evident that no scheme is requisite, full powers being vested in the visitors and the heirs of the founder, and indeed the only point on which the opinion of the court is required, is the amount proper to be allowed the defendants for the expenses of the annual visitation."

The relator's solicitors replied, "We should be well pleased if we could adopt the proposition contained in your letter of the 14th inst., but we are advised that the court will not determine the amount proper to be allowed the defendants for the expense of the annual visitation without the usual reference to the master. If, however, your counsel differs in his opinion, we submit the least expensive and most expeditious course would be for them to meet in conference and settle the proper minutes. We beg that this communication may be received, as it is made, without prejudice."

Counsel appear to have been consulted, and to have expressed great doubts whether the Attorney-General or the court would permit the proceedings on behalf of the charity to be confined to such a result as that which was proposed. It seems, however, that the parties succeeded in obtaining the decree, getting rid, in fact, of the suit, and at the same time paying all parties their costs.

The Company appear to have felt a doubt how far they might properly submit to so limited a decree, even with reference to their own duties to the charity: and they therefore submitted the case to Mr. Jacob and Mr. Lowndes, who gave the following opinion, which I extract, as explaining the terms of the decree.

"We are of opinion that the Mercers' Company, and the heir of the founder, have the power in themselves to make new ordinances and statutes, and to frame a scheme for the future management of the charity, provided the same be not repugnant to the will of the founder, or to the power given by the letters patent of James 1st, but, if any object the company may have in view for the future management of the charity, should not be consistent with the will of the founder, or, it should be doubtful whether that object were, or not, consistent therewith, the company might then, for their protection, have recourse to the Court of Chancery by a summary application on petition, by which there would be less expense and more facility than by any proceedings in the existing information.

"We, therefore, think that the decree to be made on the hearing, may prudently be restricted to the terms proposed, but we should recommend either that the bill should be dismissed as to its other objects beyond the inquiry as to the expense of the annual visitation, or that there should be added to the proposed minutes a direction that the warden shall be at liberty in future to expend an annual sum not exceeding what the master shall certify to be a proper allowance in defraying the expenses of the annual visitation, and in this latter case, the reservation of further directions shall be struck out of the proposed minutes."

The cause came on to be heard on the 29th June 1836 before the Vice-Chancellor of England, when it was referred to the master to state what would be a fit and proper allowance to be made to the defendants for the expense of the annual visitation of the hospital for the future, regard being had to the founder's will and the altered circumstances in the value of money, and of the charity property and income therein also mentioned and it was ordered that the information with respect to all matters and questions, other than the future expense of the said annual visitation, should stand dismissed out of the court, and that it be referred to the master to tax all parties their costs of and relating to the suit, as between solicitor and client, to be paid and retained by the defendant William Smith out of the charity funds who was also to pay to the defendants the Mercers' Company all proper costs charges and expenses incurred by them as trustees, or visitors in relation to the suit, to be taxed and settled by the said master.

The master, by his report of the 2nd May 1837, set forth so much of the second ordinance (see vol. 28, p. 6) of the hospital as prescribed the number of members of the company, who were to be chosen visitors, and that the total annual rental of the property of the said hospital at the time of the endowment thereof, amounted to the sum of 400*l.* or thereabouts, and that the then annual rental of the hereditaments with which the said hospital was originally endowed, amounted to the sum of 1,850*l.* or thereabouts, and the master found that having referred to the founder's will and the altered circumstances in the value of money, and the charity property and income, that an annual sum of 50*l.* would be a fit and proper allowance to be made for the expenses of the annual visitation. The cause was heard, on further directions, on 26th May 1837, and the report having been confirmed, it was then declared that the said sum of 50*l.* would be a fit and proper allowance to be made accordingly.

The costs which, up to the first report, had amounted to 756*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, and the further costs were taxed and paid out of the charity funds. It thus appears that the only benefit of the suit was to settle the visitation allowance, which was thus reduced to 50*l.* from 89*l.* 11*s.* 8*d.*, which it had been in 1833 (see report, p. 17) at an expense not much short of 1,000*l.*, the interest of which would nearly have produced the difference.

The portion of the estate of the charity which lies in the parishes of Greenwich, Lewisham, and Bexley, in the county of Kent, consists of various detached properties. Upon this portion of the estate no building operations have been carried on, owing to apprehensions entertained by the Company, in consequence of legal advice they received, that they had no power to advance any moneys for the purpose of making roads or facilitating the improvement of the estate and buildings.

The sum of stock has been produced by the addition of the surplus income from time to time, to the 8,500l. Consols, which stood to the credit of the Charity at the time of the last report (Vol. 28, p. 15). The Commissioners then stated that the Hospital was in such a bad condition that it would be necessary to rebuild it in the course of a few years, and that the accumulation then made had been with that view. The intention of rebuilding has not yet been carried out.

The surplus income above the expenditure of the charity, on its present footing, may be therefore stated at about 1,100*l.*, although upon a computation of six years the accountant of the company informs me that he does not calculate the annual income at more than 2,965*l.*, nor the annual expenditure at less than 2,224*l.*; and therefore the annual surplus at more than 741*l.* The accumulations up to this time are represented by the stock invested to the account of the charity, as above-stated. The last three years the investment has been 700*l.* stock annually. The number of inmates continue the same as at the foundation, namely, twelve poor men out of East Greenwich, and eight from Shottisham.

The form of notice sent by the company to each parish, on the occasion of a vacancy, is appended to this report, as also the statement of qualification which accompanies. The parishes propose two persons, in the form pointed out; and in the case of East Greenwich both of the nominees attend the general court of the company, and one of them is selected. In the case of Shottisham, personal attendance is dispensed with, and the election is made commonly of the first of the two names appointed. They are all at present necessarily single men.

* EARL OF NORTHAMPTON'S CHARITY.

The properties of the hospital situated at Charing Cross, and more particularly referred to on page 141 of Mr. Hare's report, have all been sold by the Company, with the sanction of the Charity Commissioners, or under the provisions of the Lands Clauses Acts.

Under the authority of an order of the Board, dated 19th December, 1871, the Company effected a sale to Lord Harrington of a part of the Charing Cross estate situate in Craig's Court, at the price of 7,600*l.*, which is now represented by 8,194*l.* 1*s.* 4*d.* consols, standing in the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds, in trust for the charity.

The remainder of this estate was acquired by the Metropolitan Board of Works for street improvements. It appears from the accounts rendered by the Company to the Commissioners that the purchase moneys of this estate are represented by a sum of 54,054*l.* 9*s.* 1 consols standing in the name of the Paymaster-General of the High Court to the credit of the charity.

Several building leases of portions of the hospital estates at Greenwich and Lewisham, in the county of Kent, have been sanctioned from time to time by the Board under the provisions of the Charitable Trusts Amendment Act, 1855 (18 & 19 Vict. cap. 124).

The particulars of these dealings with the property are as follows, viz. :—

1. Under the authority of an order of the Board, dated 29th May 1877, the Company granted a small strip of land of the hospital in the Greenwich Marshes for the formation of the road and the development of the estate.

2. Under the authority of an order of the Board, dated the 25th July 1878, the Company, in consideration of the surrender of the existing lease of the property, granted a new lease of a portion of the hospital property at Mottingham, in Kent, to Mr. McLeod, at a yearly rent of 10*l.*

Under the authority of a subsequent order of the Board, dated 4th October 1878, the Company purchased from Mr. McLeod at the price of 500*l.* a piece of land adjacent to the property in lease to him.

3. In pursuance of the provisions of a building agreement, dated 26th November 1878, the Company, under the authority of several orders of the Board, have granted building leases of hospital land situate in Greenwich Marshes, and containing 11*a.* 0*r.* 10*p.*, to Messrs. Smith and Gale, for a term of 80 years, from 24th June 1878, at an annual reserved rent of 292*l.*, the lessees to expend 30,000*l.* in building.

The Company are now in receipt of the full rent under the terms of this agreement.

Under the authority of an order of the Board, dated the 2nd May 1879, the Company granted to the trustees of William Hatchliffe's Charity certain strips of land adjacent to the estate of that charity in consideration of the grant by those trustees to the Company of a perpetual right of way over land belonging to the Hatchliffe Charity to some back land belonging to the hospital.

In the year 1878 the Commissioners authorised the Company to promote a Bill in Parliament for the purpose of giving a retrospective sanction to certain leases of the hospital property, which had been granted by the Company without the sanction and authority prescribed by the 29th section of the Charitable Trusts Amendment Act, 1855 (18 and 19 Vict. cap. 124).

The Act which was passed in the following year is as follows, viz. :—

An Act to establish and render valid certain building leases and a certain agreement for a building lease of parts of the estates of the warden and poor men of the hospital of the Holy and Undivided Trinity in East Greenwich, founded by Henry Howard, Earl of Northampton, commonly called Trinity Hospital, Greenwich. [Royal Assent, 29th June 1880.]

Whereas by an Act of Parliament made and passed in the thirteenth year of the reign of Her late Majesty

The Mercers' Company have solicited a Bill, to be intituled, "An Act for the rebuilding of Trinity Hospital, East Greenwich, and for the better leasing of the Estates of the Hospital, and for other Purposes," which Bill is now before the House of Lords.

On the subject of this Bill, an application was made to the Charity Commissioners by the Mercers' Company at the beginning of the year 1861, to which a reply of the Board was transmitted, dated the 17th April, 1861, to which I beg to refer.*

Queen Elizabeth, and intituled, "Fraudulent Deeds made by spiritual persons to defeat their successors of remedy for dilapidations shall be void, &c.," it was enacted that from thenceforth all leases, gifts, grants, feoffments, conveyances, or estates, to be made had done or suffered by any master and fellows of any college, dean, and chapter of any cathedral or collegiate church master or guardian of any hospital, parson, vicar, or any other having any spiritual or ecclesiastical living, or any houses, lands, tithes, tenements, or other hereditaments, being any parcel of the possessions of any such college, cathedral, church, chapter, hospital, parsonage, vicarage, or other spiritual promotion or anyways appertaining or belonging to the same or any of them to any person or persons, bodies, politic, or corporate (other than for the term of twenty-one years or three lives from the time as any such lease or grant should be made or granted, whereupon the accustomed yearly rent or more should be reserved and payable yearly during the said term), should be utterly void and of none effect to all intents, constructions, and purposes:

And whereas by an Act of Parliament made and passed in the fourteenth year of Her said late Majesty, intituled, "An Act for the assurance of gifts, grants, &c., made and to be made to and for the relief of the poor in the hospitals, &c.," it was enacted that these words (master or guardian) of any hospital mentioned in the above-recited Act were intended and meant of all hospitals, Maison Dieus, bead houses, and other houses ordained for the sustentation or relief of the poor, and so should be expended, declared, and taken for ever:

And whereas by an Act of Parliament made and passed in the eighteenth year of the reign of Her said late Majesty, intituled, "An Act for the explanation of the statutes intituled against defeating of dilapidations, and against leases to be made of spiritual promotions in some respects," it was enacted that all and every bond and covenant whatsoever thereafter to be made for renewing or making of any lease or leases customary to the true intent of the first hereinbefore recited Act should be utterly void:

And whereas by "The Charitable Trusts Act, 1853," it was enacted (section 21) that if in any case it should appear to the trustees or persons for the time being acting in the administration or management of any charity or the estates or property thereof that any part of the charity lands or estates might be beneficially let on building, repairing, improving or other lease or leases for working any mine, or that the digging for or raising of stone, clay, gravel, or other minerals, or the cutting of timber would be for the benefit of the charity or that it would be for the benefit of such charity that any new road or street should be formed or laid out, or any drains or sewers made through any part of the charity estates, or that any new building should be erected or that any existing building should be repaired, altered, rebuilt or wholly removed or that any other improvements or alterations in the state or condition of the lands or estates of such charity should be made, it should be lawful for such trustees or persons to lay before the Board of Commissioners (the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales) in the said Act mentioned (hereinafter referred to as "the board") a statement and proposal in relation to any of the matters aforesaid, and that it should be lawful for the said board if they should think that the leases or acts to which the statement and proposal related (with or without modifications or alterations) would be beneficial to the charity to make such order under their seal for and in relation to the granting of such leases, or the doing of any other such acts as aforesaid, and any circumstances connected therewith, as they might think fit although such leases or acts respectively should not be authorised or permitted by the trust, and by section 26 of the same Act it was enacted that the leases, sales, exchanges, and other transactions authorised by such board under the powers of the same Act should have the like effect and validity as if they had been authorised

APPENDIX.

Whereas there is a place now void in the Hospital of the Holy and Undivided Trinity in East Greenwich (of the foundation of Henry Earl of Northampton) by the death of , late one of the almsmen or directed by the express terms of the trust affecting the charity :

And whereas by "The Charitable Trusts Amendment Act, 1855," section 29, it was enacted that it should not be lawful for the trustees or persons acting in the administration of any charity to make or grant otherwise than with the express authority of Parliament under any Act then already passed, or which might thereafter be passed or of a court or judge of competent jurisdiction, or according to a scheme legally established or with the approval of the board any sale, mortgage, or charge of the charity estate or any lease thereof in reversion after more than three years of any existing term or for any term of life, or in consideration wholly or in part of any fine, or for any term of years not exceeding twenty-one years, and by section 38 of the same Act it was enacted that all leases, sales, exchanges, partitions, and transactions authorised by the board under "The Charitable Trusts Act, 1853," or under the Act now in statement should be valid and effectual, notwithstanding among other Acts there mentioned the hereinbefore stated Acts of the thirteenth, fourteenth, and eighteenth years respectively of Her late Majesty, Queen Elizabeth, or any disabling Act (applicable to the charity the estates whereof should be the subject of such transaction), and by section 39 of the same Act it was enacted that it should be lawful for the board to prepare and under their seal to approve of any scheme for the letting of the property or any part of the property of any charity, and that all leases granted by any trustees or persons acting in the management of any charity pursuant to or in conformity with such scheme should be valid :

And whereas by letters patent of His late Majesty King James the First, dated the 5th day of June one thousand six hundred and fifteen, the warden and poor men of the Hospital of the Holy and Undivided Trinity in East Greenwich, founded by Henry Howard, Earl of Northampton, were incorporated under that name as a charitable corporation or hospital for the support and relief of poor and indigent men, and were empowered to hold lands in mortmain as therein mentioned :

And whereas the said charitable corporation has been commonly known by the name of Trinity Hospital, Greenwich, and is herein referred to as "the hospital" :

And whereas the hospital is or claims to be seized of or entitled to divers lands and hereditaments in the several parishes of Greenwich, Lewisham, Lee, Bexley, Beckenham, and Motingham, all in the county of Kent, specified in the third column of the schedule hereto as part of the endowment of the hospital :

And whereas the hospital has from time to time by divers indentures and by certain articles of agreement the dates whereof are specified in the first column of the said schedule (and which indentures and articles of agreement are hereinafter included in the expression "building leases"), and by the style or name of the Warden and Poor Men of the Hospital of the Holy and Undivided Trinity, in East Greenwich, of the foundation of Henry Howard, Earl of Northampton, granted or purported to grant, or agreed or purported to agree to grant leases for building purposes of the said several parcels of land specified in the said third column of the same schedule, which are respectively set opposite to the said dates in the first column, and are hereinafter referred to as the said demised premises for the respective terms specified in the second column opposite to such parcels respectively to the persons respectively whose names are in the fourth column of the said schedule set opposite to such parcels respectively :

And whereas all the messuages, erections, and buildings, which by the aforesaid indentures respectively were required to be completed by the respective lessees, have been built and covered in, and a considerable portion of the land comprised in the articles of agreement of the twenty-fourth day of December, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven, has also been built upon and covered in :

And whereas such terms respectively, or other the interest of the persons named in the fourth column of the same schedule, under or by virtue of such building leases respectively, are now vested or believed to be vested in the several persons respectively whose

These are to will and require you, or so many of you that can attend this work of charity, the next Sunday after the receipt hereof, to meet together after evening prayer, in the parish church of St. Mary's, where having first taken names are in the fifth column of the same schedule set opposite to the names of the said respective persons named in the fourth column thereof :

And whereas the said several building leases were so granted or made, or purported to be granted or made, as aforesaid, in consideration of the expenditure of divers large sums of money in building upon the said several parcels of land, and also of the yearly rents specified in the sixth column of the same schedule, which rents are respectively much less than the present rack-rent annual value of the properties comprised in the aforesaid indentures respectively, but without the sanction of the Board :

And whereas notice of the application to Parliament for this Act has been served upon the several persons mentioned in the fifth column of the said schedule, and also upon the several other persons, associations, societies, and bodies corporate named in the seventh column of the said schedule, being all the persons, associations, societies, and bodies corporate known to claim any interest in the parcels of land specified in the third column of the said schedule and set against their names respectively :

And whereas it is apprehended that by reason of the aforesaid matters or some of them, the said building leases, may be invalid :

And whereas it is expedient that the said building leases should be established and rendered valid by authority of Parliament :

And whereas the Board have sanctioned the application to Parliament for this Act :

May it therefore please your Majesty that it may be enacted and be it enacted by the Queen's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal and Commons in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows :—

1. This Act may be cited for all purposes as "The Short title. Trinity Hospital Greenwich Leases Act, 1880."

2. The several building leases already granted or made by the hospital by the name of the Warden and Poor Men of the Hospital of the Holy and Undivided Trinity, in East Greenwich, of the foundation of Henry Howard, Earl of Northampton, by the indentures and articles of agreement respectively, the dates whereof respectively are specified in the first column of the schedule to this Act, to the several persons respectively whose names are in the fourth column of the same schedule, set opposite to such dates respectively for the terms respectively specified in the second column of such schedule and set opposite to such dates respectively, and the hereditaments comprised in which building leases respectively, are in the third column of the same schedule specified opposite to the dates of the same indentures and articles of agreement specified respectively in the first column, and the counterparts of such building leases shall be and the same are hereby established and rendered valid, notwithstanding any of the said recited Acts of Parliament, or any other law or statute to the contrary, or the said misdescription of the said hospital, and the said building leases and every of them, and all underleases and other instruments creating derivative estates and interests in the said demised premises or any part thereof, and all building leases hereafter to be granted under the said articles shall be deemed to be and to have always been capable of taking effect according to the tenor thereof respectively, and to be and to have always been valid and effectual accordingly, to create the several estates and interests thereby respectively purported to be created or granted, subject, nevertheless, to the conditions therein respectively contained. And all persons who by virtue of such building leases, underleases, or other instruments shall have entered on the said demised premises or any part thereof, or shall have been in receipt of the rents and profits of the same, whether directly or otherwise, shall be deemed entitled to the benefit of such building leases, underleases, or other instruments, and shall be bound thereby.

3. Saving always to the Queen's most excellent Majesty, Her heirs, and successors, and to all and every other person and persons, bodies politic and corporate, and their respective heirs and successors, executors, Confirming scheduled leases and agreement.

Saving clause.

The income derivable from the endowments of the hospital having largely increased in the result of the sales of the London estate and the gradual development of the hospital properties at Greenwich and other places in its vicinity, the Company made an application to the Charity Commissioners under their corporate seal in the year 1876 for the establishment of a scheme to provide for the regulation of the charity and the application of its increased income.

The following scheme was accordingly established under the authority of an order of the Board, dated 29th July, 1879:—

In the matter of the Charity known as the Hospital of the Holy and Undivided Trinity, of the foundation of Henry Howard, Earl of Northampton, in the parish of Greenwich, in the County of Kent; and

In the matter of "The Charitable Trusts Acts, 1853 to 1869."

Whereas an application in writing was made to the Board of Charity Commissioners for England and Wales on the 28th day of July 1876, in the matter of the above mentioned Charity, under the Common Seal of the warden and poor men of the above-mentioned hospital, and by the direction testified by their concurrence in the said application, of the Right Honourable Roundell Baron Selborne, the master, and Philip Blundell Bicknell, the renter warden of the Commonalty of the Mystery of Mercers of the city of London, the trustees of the said hospital, and of Wilton Parker, the warden of the said hospital:

And whereas the gross annual income arising from the endowment of the said Charity amounts to 50l. or upwards:

And whereas it is desirable that a scheme should be established for the future regulation of the said Charity:

And whereas notice of the intention of the said board to make an order for the foregoing objects has been published by the affixing of the same, according to the direction of the said board, to or near principal outer gates or doors, of Trinity Hospital aforesaid, and of the parish church of St. Mary, Bungay, in the county of Suffolk, on the 24th day of October 1878, in each case; of the vestry clerk's office, and of the parish church of St. Alphage at Greenwich, on the 25th day of October 1878, in each case; of the parish church of Shottesham, in the county of Norfolk, on the 27th day of October 1878; of the Hall of the Mercers' Company in the city of London, on the 4th day of November 1878; and of the parish church of Castle Rising, in the said county of Norfolk, on the 14th day of November 1878, and by advertisements in "The Kentish Mercury," the "Greenwich and Deptford Chronicle," the "Lynn Advertiser," and "Norfolk Chronicle and Norwich Gazette," newspapers on the 2nd and 9th days of November, 1878, in the "Times" newspaper on the 29th day of October, and 6th day of November 1878, and in the "East Suffolk Gazette," newspaper on the 5th and 12th days of November 1878, being in each case more than one calendar month previously to the date hereof:

And whereas no notice of any sufficient objection to the said proposed order has been received by the said board:

Now the said board do hereby order that the scheme set forth in the schedule hereto be, and the same is hereby approved and established as the scheme for the future regulation and management of the said Charity, and of the endowments thereof.

SCHEDULE.

1. The Charity and the funds and endowments thereof shall continue to be managed and administered under the title of "The Earl of Northampton's Charity," by the wardens and commonalty of the Mystery of Mercers of the city of London (hereinafter called the trustees), as the trustees thereof, subject to and in conformity with the provisions of this scheme.

2. The warden and poor men of the hospital of the Charity at Greenwich shall permit the trustees to receive and take the annual and other rents, issues, and profits of all the real estates vested in them, and from time to time to manage and let the same, and to use, order, and dispose of the goods and personal estate held by them, in accordance with the provisions of this scheme; and for the purposes aforesaid, the warden and poor men of the hospital at Greenwich shall in their corporate capacity make and execute all such deeds, leases, and other instruments, and do and perform all such acts, as the trustees shall require. The trustees shall be at liberty to use the corporate name of the said warden and poor men for the purpose of bringing or defending such actions and other proceedings as the trustees shall think fit, and shall be authorised to institute or defend, the warden and poor men being saved harmless and indemnified therein out of the Charity estates. The common seal of the hospital shall be kept by the clerk of the trustees. Subject as aforesaid, nothing in this scheme contained shall affect or prejudice the powers of the warden and poor men, being inmates of the hospital at Greenwich, to do all such acts as the warden and poor men of the said hospital are empowered to do by the Letters Patent, dated the 5th day of June, in the 13th year of the reign of King James the First, and by the statutes made in pursuance of those Letters Patent.

Warden and poor men to conform to requirements of trustees.

3. All the estates and property of the Charity not required to be retained or occupied for the purposes thereof, shall be let by or under the direction of the trustees for the best rents obtainable for the same, Management.

previous to divine service, but I have not received any information to forward to you on the subject of the notice. I have ventured to inclose a copy of the qualification, which is always sent down with the notice of a vacancy. It has been ever the custom to act on the impression that the persons nominated must be legally having regard to the stability of the tenant or lessee, and also having regard to any covenant entered into by him for the improvement of the land. Public notice of the intention of the trustees to let any land or other property belonging to the Charity shall be given in such manner as shall be considered to be most effectual for giving full publicity to such intention, and no tenancy shall be created in reversion or for more than twenty-one years certain, or, save as hereinbefore provided, for less than the improved rackrent value, without the sanction of the Charity Commissioners or a competent court.

Expenses of management and ordinary repairs.

4. The cost of the ordinary maintenance and repair of the buildings belonging to the Charity (other than those which may from time to time be in the occupation of the trustees for the purposes of the Charity, and those which are required to be kept in repair by the lessees or tenants thereof), and the outgoings, charges and expenses of and incidental to the management of the estates and properties of the Charity, including the salaries and remuneration of the officers necessary for that purpose, shall be defrayed by the trustees in the first instance out of the income of the Charity, provided that the aggregate amount so to be expended shall not in any one year exceed 550*l.*, except with the assent of the Charity Commissioners.

Repairing fund.

5. For the purpose of providing the requisite funds for the extraordinary reparation and renewal of the buildings and properties belonging to the Charity, the trustees shall, as soon as practicable after the establishment of this scheme, constitute and establish a "reserve fund," and shall reserve a sum of 500*l.* out of the accumulated surplus funds of the Charity, and invest and accumulate the same in their names, or in the names of four of their body, in 3*l.* per cent. annuities at compound interest to a separate account to be entitled "The Repairs and Improvement Fund," and shall further yearly and every year reserve and set apart out of the income of the said Charity a sum of 100*l.*, and shall invest and accumulate the same in like manner in augmentation of the said fund until the same shall amount to 2,000*l.* The said fund shall be applicable to the extraordinary structural repair of the houses and property of the Charity, for the repair of which provision is made by the last preceding clause of this scheme. If and when the said sum of 2,000*l.* or any part thereof shall be so applied, the same shall be again made up in like manner to that amount.

Division of charity into branches.

6. The Charity shall, for the purposes of this scheme, be divided into three branches, to be called respectively "The Hospital Branch," "The Pension Branch," and "The Residuary Branch."

Application of income.

7. The clear amount of the annual income of the Charity shall be applied by the trustees, firstly, to the purposes of the "Hospital Branch," secondly, to the purposes of the "Pension Branch," and the remainder of the said income shall be applied to the purposes of the "Residuary Branch" in manner hereinafter mentioned.

The Hospital Branch.

8. The hospital branch shall embrace the present hospital buildings with the chapel, outbuildings, garden, and appurtenances situate at Greenwich, and now used and occupied for the purposes of the hospital, and also the hospital to be established by the trustees, with the sanction of the Commissioners, at Shottesham, in the county of Norfolk, in manner hereinafter mentioned, together with the outbuildings, gardens, and appurtenances to be used and occupied therewith.

Erection of hospital at Shottesham.

9. The trustees shall, as soon as conveniently may be after the establishment of this scheme and with the sanction of the Commissioners, cause to be erected on a convenient site in the parish of Shottesham in the county of Norfolk, which shall have been conveyed to them in fee simple for the purposes of the Charity, a hospital building, comprising eight suitable and convenient residences, together with the necessary outbuildings and offices, for the use and occupation of the poor men to be elected, nominated, and appointed from the parish of Shottesham, in manner hereinafter mentioned. The trustees may also provide a suitable room or hall in the said buildings, which shall be available primarily for the conduct of the business of the trust, and, subject thereto, for the purposes of a parish reading room, or for other public and parochial purposes to be approved by the nominators, appointed as hereinafter mentioned, for the parish of Shottesham.

10. The costs of the said hospital and its site shall be provided, with the sanction of the Commissioners, either out of the income or the capital funds of the Charity, or by a loan to be raised by the trustees upon the security of a sufficient part of the trust estates.

Provision of cost of hospital.

11. The hospital buildings at Greenwich and Shottesham, including the chapel at Greenwich and the warden's residence there, and the other buildings connected with both the hospitals shall be maintained and kept in repair by the trustees, who shall also make such provision for furnishing the same buildings as they have hitherto been accustomed to make in respect of the hospital at Greenwich.

Maintenance and repair of hospital buildings.

12. From and after the erection and establishment of the hospital at Shottesham the hospital at Greenwich shall be reserved and appropriated for the residence of the poor men to be elected, nominated, and appointed from time to time from the parish of Greenwich, in manner hereinafter provided.

Trinity Hospital buildings to be reserved for Greenwich.

13. The full number of poor men shall be 28, of whom 20 shall be inmates of the hospital at Greenwich and eight shall be inmates of the hospital at Shottesham. The inmates of the respective hospitals shall be poor men of good character who, as to the hospital at Greenwich shall be widowers or unmarried, and shall have resided in the parish of Greenwich for not less than four years next preceding the date of their appointment, and as to the hospital at Shottesham, shall have similarly resided in that parish for not less than four years next preceding the date of their appointment, who shall not during that period have received poor law relief (other than casual or occasional relief in case of sudden sickness, calamity, or accident), and who, by reason of age, ill health, accident, or infirmity, shall be unable to maintain themselves by their own exertions. Provided that for the period of ten years from the date of the establishment of this scheme no person shall be disqualified from becoming an inmate of the hospital at Shottesham on the ground of the receipt of poor law relief, but this exemption shall not extend to authorise the continuance of the receipt of relief by an inmate of that hospital.

Number and qualifications of poor men.

14. The poor men shall be elected, nominated, and appointed in manner hereinafter mentioned. There shall be a body of "nominators" for each of the parishes of Greenwich and Shottesham. The nominators for the parish of Greenwich shall be the vicar, churchwardens, overseers of the poor, and the high constable of the ancient parish of Greenwich for the time being, two of the guardians of the poor elected for the parish of Greenwich, to be elected by the Board of Guardians of the Greenwich Union, four persons possessing the qualifications for the office of a vestryman of the parish of Greenwich, to be elected by the Vestry of that parish, one of whom shall be resident in each of the wards into which the parish is divided, and two other persons, possessing the like qualifications, to be elected by the incumbents or vicars for the time being of the several ecclesiastical or new parishes of Christ Church, Holy Trinity, St. John the Evangelist, St. Paul, and St. Peter, within the ancient parish of Greenwich, and of any other ecclesiastical or new parishes which may hereafter be formed within or out of the same parish. The nominators for the parish of Shottesham shall be the vicar, churchwardens, and overseers of the poor of the parish for the time being, and three other persons, being resident ratepayers of the parish to be elected by the vestry of the parish. Every nominator so elected as aforesaid shall be appointed to office for the term, in the case of nominators elected by a vestry, of five years, in the case of nominators elected by the said Board of Guardians, of four years, and in the case of nominators elected by the said incumbents or vicars, of three years, but shall in every case be re-eligible. The first election of the nominators so to be elected as aforesaid shall take place as soon as conveniently may be after the establishment of this scheme, and their election shall be notified to the trustees, in the case of Greenwich, by the vicar of Greenwich or by his direction, and in the case of Shottesham, by the vicar of Shottesham. Upon the death, or resignation in writing, or expiration of the term of office of any elected nominator, or if any nominator elected by the said Board of Guardians shall cease to be a guardian, or if any nomi-settled in Shottesham, whereas the terms of the qualification would only seem to require that they should have been inhabitants of the parish for four years immediately previous. If a legal settlement is necessary, might not the residence be extended to the limits of the Union? Might not, also, a person who is irremovable, nator elected by either of the said vestries or by the said incumbents or vicars, shall cease to be respectively qualified as aforesaid, an election of a nominator to fill the vacancy so caused shall be similarly made and notified.

Trustees to elect nominators in default of election by electing bodies.

15. The right of electing nominators shall lapse to and be exercisable by the trustees, if and so far as the election by the electing bodies shall not have been fully made and notified to the trustees as aforesaid, as to the first election, within the period of three calendar months next after the establishment of this scheme, and, as to any subsequent election, within the like period next after the occurrence of a vacancy.

Nomination and appointment of poor men.

16. A written notification of the occurrence of every vacancy in either of the hospitals shall be forthwith given by or under the direction of the trustees, in the case of Greenwich to the vicar of that parish, and in the case of Shottesham to the vicar of that parish, who shall thereupon convene a meeting of the nominators of the parish, stating in the notices convening the meeting the particulars of the existing vacancy or vacancies, and the nominators, or a quorum of them, consisting in the case of Greenwich of not less than five, and in the case of Shottesham, of not less than three, present at such meeting, shall by a resolution adopted by a majority at least of the number present at the meeting, thereupon proceed to elect and nominate two duly qualified persons for each of such vacancies, and shall forthwith submit the names of the persons so elected and nominated, together with all necessary particulars, to the trustees, who shall proceed to select and appoint from the names so submitted to them, a person to supply the vacancy. If the votes of the nominators given upon an election be equally divided, the vicar of the parish who shall, when present, be chairman of the meetings of the nominators, or in his absence the chairman to be elected by the nominators present at the meeting to preside thereat, shall have a double or casting vote.

Trustees to appoint poor men in default of nomination by nominators.

17. If and so often as the nominators entitled to nominate to a vacancy in a hospital, shall neglect or omit to elect and nominate to the trustees a duly qualified candidate for appointment to the hospital in which the vacancy shall have occurred, within the period of three calendar months next after the transmission of the notices of the vacancy hereinbefore prescribed, the trustees shall appoint some duly qualified person to fill the vacancy without any further notice to or communication with the nominators.

Expenses of election and meetings of nominators.

18. The trustees may defray out of the income of the charity applicable for the purposes of the Hospital and Pension Pension Branches thereof any reasonable costs and expenses incident to the election and meetings of the nominators. The nomination of poor men shall be made by the nominators from time to time, in the exercise of their discretion, at meetings of their body and not separately by any individual nominator or nominators.

Stipends of poor men.

19. There shall be paid to each of the poor men, out of the income of the said charity by such periodical payments as the trustees shall think fit, such an allowance in money, being at the rate of not less than 10s. or more than 15s. per week, as shall be fixed and determined from time to time by the trustees. The said sum shall include all the payments and allowances in money or kind (except as hereinafter mentioned) heretofore payable by the trustees to the poor men. The trustees shall be at liberty to make arrangements for the supply and service of such articles as they shall think fit for the use of the poor men, and for the payment of the cost thereof out of their respective weekly allowances. The poor men shall also be provided, at the cost of the charity, with a gown and cloak, and with a reasonable provision for washing fuel, and supply of light, in addition to their respective pecuniary allowances.

Absence from hospital.

20. No poor man shall be absent from the hospital of which he is an inmate for a period exceeding 48 hours, without the permission in writing of the warden, in the case of the hospital at Greenwich, or of one of the nominators in the case of the hospital at Shottesham, but in special cases such permission may for any sufficient reason be given retrospectively after the absence has occurred.

Rooms.

21. A separate room or set of rooms in the hospital of which he is an inmate shall be assigned by the trustees to each poor man for his exclusive occupation.

No poor man shall be permitted to let or part with the possession of the room or rooms allotted to him, or to suffer any stranger to occupy the same or any part thereof, except with the special permission of the trustees.

Rooms in hospitals not to be let.

22. The trustees shall be at liberty to appoint medical officers to attend the poor men in sickness, and to supply them with necessary medicines and medical appliances, at such yearly salary, to include the cost of all such medicines and appliances, as shall be fixed from time to time by the trustees, provided that the annual sum to be paid under this clause shall not exceed, in the case of the hospital at Greenwich, 600l., and in that of the hospital at Shottesham 200l.

Medical officer and nurses.

The trustees shall also be at liberty to provide and pay out of the income of the charity duly qualified nurses, for the special care and attendance of any sick, infirm, or aged inmate requiring such care or attendance.

The trustees shall also be at liberty to expend a sum not exceeding 50l. in any case, in defraying the cost of burial of the inmates of each of the hospitals.

23. The trustees shall provide and keep a book in which shall be entered the names, ages, and descriptions of all persons appointed to be poor men of each of the hospitals, together with the dates of their respective appointments.

Register.

24. If any of the poor men shall be guilty of insobriety, insubordination, breach of rules, or immoral or unbecoming conduct, or shall receive parochial relief, or by reason of the acquisition of property shall cease to be a proper object of the charity, or shall become disqualified from retaining his appointment, or if in any case it should appear that he has been appointed without having the required qualifications, the trustees, upon proof thereof to their satisfaction, may remove such poor man, and take possession of the tenement or room occupied by him, and may direct the appointment of another person in the place of the poor man so removed, or, in case of such misconduct as aforesaid, the trustees may, if they so think fit, suspend the payment of the allowance, either wholly or in part, during such time as they shall think fit and expedient.

Removal of poor men.

25. The trustees shall be at liberty from time to time to make rules and regulations for the management of the "hospital branch" of the charity, and for the government of the hospitals at Greenwich and Shottesham, and of the poor men and officers thereof respectively, provided that the said regulations shall not be inconsistent with the provisions of this scheme.

Rules and regulations.

As to the Hospital at Greenwich.

26. The hospital of the charity at Greenwich shall continue to be called "Trinity Hospital, Greenwich."

Title of hospital at Greenwich. Chapel.

27. The chapel of the hospital shall be appropriated to the celebration of divine service, according to the rites and ordinances of the Church of England, for the benefit of the poor men, officers, servants, and other persons employed in or about the hospital.

28. There shall be a warden of the hospital, who shall possess the qualifications prescribed by the existing statutes of the hospital. He shall be appointed by the trustees, and shall also be removable by them for misconduct, neglect of duty, or other good cause, the sufficiency of which shall be judged of and determined exclusively by the trustees.

Warden.

29. An official residence shall be provided by the trustees for the occupation of the warden, rent free. The warden shall reside in his official residence, except during such intervals as may be allowed by the trustees; and he shall not underlet or part with the possession of his residence or any part thereof.

Residence of warden.

30. The warden shall have the immediate superintendence and control over the hospital and the poor men and officers, subject to the authority and direction of the trustees. The warden shall also, twice at least in each year make a report to the trustees upon the state and condition of the hospital, mentioning in such report any special circumstances which shall in his judgment require the consideration of the trustees. The trustees, with the sanction of the Commissioners, may grant a suitable retiring pension to the warden, in the event of his retirement from his office on the ground of age or disability, or after a long period of service.

Duties of warden.

31. The trustees shall pay to the warden out of the income of the Charity such a yearly stipend, not warden.

In reply to your inquiry as to whether legal settlement in Shottesham is a necessary qualification for

The laws of settlement have an entirely different object, and although the habit has, in many cases, grown up to confine such benefactions to persons legally settled, that habit is in fact an abuse, having its origin, I believe, in many cases from a desire less to relieve the most deserving objects than to relieve the poor's rate, in the parish.

exceeding 200*l.*, as they shall from time to time determine.

Chaplain. 32. There shall be a chaplain of the hospital, who shall be appointed and shall be removable by the trustees, and shall be a clergyman in priest's orders of the Church of England.

Combination of offices of warden and chaplain. 33. The trustees shall be at liberty, if they think fit, at any time after the next avoidance of the office of warden, to combine the offices of warden and chaplain in one person, but so long as the offices shall be held by different persons, the trustees shall pay to the chaplain an annual stipend of an amount not exceeding 100*l.*

Duties of chaplain. 34. The chaplain shall have the spiritual care and superintendence of the poor men and officers of the hospital, and shall visit and administer spiritual consolation to them. He shall, either in person or by a sufficient deputy in holy orders, read prayers in the hospital chapel in the morning of every day, other than Sunday, throughout the year, and shall perform also such services in the chapel on Sundays and festivals, as shall from time to time be prescribed by the trustees, having regard to the convenience of the poor men.

Payment to churchwardens. 35. The trustees shall be at liberty to pay to the churchwardens for the time being of the parish of St. Alphage, Greenwich, an annual sum not exceeding 10*l.* in respect of the attendance of the inmates of the hospital at the services of the church of that parish.

Sub-warden. 36. The warden may appoint one of the poor men to be sub-warden, subject to the approval of the trustees. It shall be the duty of the sub-warden to assist the warden in maintaining order and discipline amongst the poor men, and in performing such other duties as shall be reasonably required of him. There shall be paid to the sub-warden out of the income of the Charity a weekly allowance of 5*s.*, in addition to his allowance as one of the poor men.

Officers and servants. 37. The trustees shall be at liberty to appoint such attendants, servants, and officers as shall from time to time be reasonably required for the purposes of the hospital, at such salaries as shall be determined by the trustees, but every such person may be dismissed by the trustees at their pleasure.

Limit of expenditure on hospital. 38. The aggregate amount of the annual expenditure in and upon the hospital and its fabric and fittings, and the maintenance of its inmates, and in relation thereto shall not exceed the sum of 1,800*l.* And the trustees shall, as soon as practicable, take the necessary steps to adapt the conduct and management of the hospital to the foregoing provisions of this scheme. Provided that so long as the present warden or any poor man appointed without notice that his appointment was made subject to this scheme, shall continue to be inmates of the hospital, the aforesaid expenditure may be increased by any annual sum (not exceeding in the case of the warden 100*l.*, nor in the case of a poor man 20*l.*), which may be necessary to maintain their present payments and allowances.

As to the Hospital at Shottesham.

Title of hospital at Shottesham. 39. The hospital shall be called and known as "Trinity Hospital, Shottesham."

Appointment of steward of hospital. 40. The nominators shall be at liberty, subject to the approval of the trustees, to appoint one of the poor men to be steward of the hospital. It shall be the duty of the steward to maintain order and discipline amongst the poor men, and to perform such other duties as shall reasonably be required of him. There shall be paid to the steward out of the income of the Charity a weekly allowance of 4*s.*, in addition to his allowance as one of the poor men.

Admission to hospital of wives of poor men. 41. The trustees may permit the wife of any poor man to reside with him in the hospital under proper regulations, but no woman so resident in the hospital shall acquire any right to be or to remain an inmate thereof independently of her husband.

Spiritual wants of inmates. 42. The trustees shall make special provision for the spiritual wants of the poor men, and shall pay an annual sum not exceeding 20*l.* to the vicar of Shottesham, or his licensed curate, for that purpose.

43. In default of any duly qualified candidates for appointment as poor men from the parish of Shottesham, the vacancies in the hospital there shall be filled by the appointment by the trustees, alternately, of persons, being otherwise duly qualified, who shall have been bona fide resident in the town of Bungay in Suffolk, or in the parish of Castle Rising in Norfolk for not less than four years immediately preceding their appointment. The persons so appointed shall be elected and nominated to the trustees for appointment by the rector or vicar, churchwardens, and overseers of the poor of the several parishes in the town, or of the parish, as the case may be, by an inhabitant of which the vacancy is to be filled, in accordance, mutatis mutandis, with the rules and regulations hereinbefore prescribed for the election and nomination of inmates of the hospital at Shottesham.

44. The aggregate amount of the annual expenditure in and upon the hospital, and its fabric and fittings, and in relation thereto, shall not exceed the annual sum of 600*l.*

Payments to Castle Rising and Clun Hospitals.

45. The trustees shall appropriate and pay out of the income of the charity which shall remain, after providing for and satisfying the objects aforesaid, an annual sum of 150*l.* to the assistants for the time being of Trinity Hospital, in Castle Rising, and an annual sum of 100*l.* to the warden and poor men of Trinity Hospital in Clun, both of the foundation of Henry Howard, Earl of Northampton, in augmentation of the general funds of the said hospitals, to be applied by the said assistants, and warden and poor men respectively, in accordance with the provisions of schemes to be established by the Board of Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, or by a competent Court, for the regulation of the said hospitals respectively; the first of the payments prescribed by this clause shall be made at the expiration of six months from the date of the establishment of the said schemes respectively.

Pension Branch.

46. Subject as aforesaid, a further portion of the income of the said charity shall be applied by the trustees in paying the annual pensions or sums prescribed by this scheme, for the benefit of the pensioners to be appointed as hereinafter provided.

47. The full number of pensioners shall be thirty, of whom twenty shall be selected from time to time from the parish of Greenwich, six from the parish of Shottesham, two from the parish of Castle Rising, and two from the town of Bungay. The pensioners shall be persons of either sex, and either married or single, possessing in all other particulars the same qualifications as are hereinbefore prescribed in respect of the poor men to be appointed from each of the said parishes respectively.

48. Six of the pensioners to be selected from the parish of Greenwich shall each be entitled to receive a yearly pension of 36*l.*, each of the other pensioners shall be entitled to receive a yearly pension of 26*l.*

A pensioner from the parish of Greenwich receiving a pension of 26*l.* shall be eligible, being otherwise duly qualified, to any vacant pension of higher amount.

49. The pensions shall be paid in such quarterly or other periodical payments, and subject to such reasonable regulations for ascertaining the identity and good conduct of the pensioners, and their continued possession of the required qualifications, as the trustees shall from time to time direct and prescribe.

50. The pensioners of each parish shall be elected and nominated by the respective persons, and shall be appointed by the trustees in the manner, hereinbefore prescribed in respect of the election, nomination, and appointment of poor men from each of the same parishes.

Pensioners eligible for admission to hospital or almshouse. 51. Any male pensioner qualified for admission as a poor man to the hospital of the parish in respect of which he has been so appointed a pensioner, shall be eligible for election, nomination and appointment to that hospital, in manner hereinbefore prescribed, and if he shall become a poor man in that hospital his pension shall be thereupon determined.

Removal of pensioners. 52. If any pensioner shall be guilty of insobriety, or immoral or unbecoming conduct, or shall receive parochial relief, or by reason of the acquisition of property shall cease to be a proper object of the charity, or shall become disqualified from retaining his or her appointment, or if in any case it should appear that he or she has been appointed without having the required qualifications, the trustees, upon proof thereof to their satisfaction, may displace such pensioner, and may proceed to appoint another person in her or his place, or in the case of such misconduct as aforesaid, the trustees may, if they so think fit, suspend the payment of the pension either wholly or in part during such time as they shall think fit and expedient.

General regulations. 53. The trustees may from time to time make such general rules and regulations as they may consider expedient for the government of the pensioners, provided that the same shall not be at variance with the provisions of this scheme.

Power to trustees to expend stipend or pension for the benefit of the recipient. 54. The trustees, in lieu of paying the whole amount of the said stipend and allowances to any poor man or pensioner in money may from time to time expend the whole or any portion thereof for his or her benefit, as they shall think fit.

Power to delegate authority to nominators. 55. The trustees may delegate to the nominators for each of the said parishes of Greenwich and Shottesham suitable powers, not being inconsistent with the provisions of this scheme, for the regulation of the hospitals, poor men, and pensioners of each parish respectively, and for the care and custody of the buildings and property of the charity there.

Residuary Branch.

56. Subject to the payments and expenditure hereinbefore prescribed, the residue of the annual income of the charity shall be appropriated and applied by the trustees as hereinafter provided.

Payments to Jubilee Almshouses. 57. The trustees shall be at liberty to pay an annual sum not exceeding 100*l.* to the trustees of the almshouses known as the "Jubilee Almshouses," at Greenwich, in augmentation of the funds of that charity, to be applied by them in accordance with the provisions of a scheme to be established by the Board of Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, or by a competent court, for the regulation of the same Charity. The first of the payments prescribed by this clause shall be made at the expiration of six months from the date of the establishment of the said scheme.

Grant towards hospitals. 58. The trustees shall be at liberty to apply an annual sum not exceeding 200*l.* as a contribution to the funds of any medical or curative hospitals, dispensaries, or other institutions established in Greenwich or its vicinity for the reception of patients suffering from acute disease or accident, and for the relief of physical maladies or disorders, upon such terms as shall secure the benefits of such institution to poor inhabitants of Greenwich. The trustees shall also be at liberty to contribute a further sum of 20*l.* in aid of the funds of any similar institution established in Shottesham or its vicinity, upon the like terms for the benefit of poor inhabitants of Shottesham.

Convalescent hospitals. 59. The residue of the said income shall be applied by the trustees from time to time in promoting and completing the restoration to health of deserving poor persons who have suffered from disease, accident, or infirmity, either by appropriating, or by contributing out of, the same residuary income to the establishment and maintenance of a convalescent hospital or home for the reception and treatment of convalescent patients, in accordance with the provisions of a future scheme to be

Sir Richard Whittington, Knight, citizen, mercer, and alderman of London, and oftentimes mayor of the same city, by his will of the 5th September 1421, proved in the Court of Hustings at Guildhall on Monday next after the Feast of All Saints, and first of Henry 6th, 1423, bequeathed to his executors, John Coventre, John Carpenter, and three others, a tenement in which he dwelt in the parish of St. Andrew, near Castle Bay-established by the Charity Commissioners for the purpose, or by making annual grants in aid of the funds of any well-conducted hospitals or institutions already established for that purpose.

60. The trustees, before appropriating any funds of the Charity to any such institutions, shall stipulate with the managers thereof that they shall have, in respect of such appropriation, any such rights of nominating or recommending recipients of the benefits of the same institutions as would be due, or would be accorded to any private subscribers or donors thereto of like pecuniary amounts.

61. The benefits derivable from the application of the income of the Charity in either of the alternative modes lastly hereinbefore directed, shall be awarded by the trustees primarily to inhabitants of the parishes of Greenwich and Shottesham, and in the next place to inhabitants of the parish of Castle Rising and the town of Bungay.

62. Any residuary income not actually required to be expended for the several objects and purposes aforesaid, shall be invested from time to time by the trustees, in their names, or in the names of four of their body, in the purchase of 3*l.* per cent. consolidated annuities, the dividends whereof shall be applicable as part of the general income of the said Charity.

General Provisions.

63. The amounts and conditions of the several payments and allowances to or for the benefit of the recipients of the Charity, which are prescribed by this scheme, may be varied from time to time by the trustees, with the sanction of the Charity Commissioners, and the nominators and trustees respectively shall be bound, in awarding the benefits of the Charity, to satisfy themselves in each case that the recipients are, in respect of poverty and character, deserving of help.

64. A copy of this scheme shall be kept with the books of account and other documents belonging to the Charity; and every parishioner of the beneficiary parishes, and every other person interested in the Charity, shall be at liberty to take copies of the scheme, or any part thereof, upon making application for that purpose to the trustees at such reasonable times, and subject to such reasonable conditions as may be fixed and prescribed by them.

65. Any question affecting the regularity or the validity of any proceedings under this scheme shall be determined conclusively by the Charity Commissioners, upon such application made to them for the purpose, as they think sufficient.

66. If any doubt or question shall arise amongst the trustees, or any of them, as to the construction or proper application of any of the provisions of this scheme, or the management of the Charity, they may apply to the said Charity Commissioners for England and Wales for their opinion and advice thereon, which when given shall be binding on the trustees and on all persons claiming under the trust who shall be affected by the question so decided.

Sealed by order of the Board this 29th day of July, 1879.

(L.S.)

HENRY M. VANE,
Secretary.

In pursuance of the provisions of this scheme, the Company have acquired, with the sanction of the Board, a suitable site in the parish of Shottesham, in Norfolk, for the establishment of a Branch Hospital for eight poor men of that parish; and the new buildings will shortly be commenced.

The provisions of the scheme relative to the grant of pensions are in full operation.

The Company have also made grants during the past year (1882) amounting in the aggregate to 1,620*l.*, out of the residuary income to various convalescent hospitals and institutions in pursuance of the provisions of the 59th clause of the scheme.

nard, and his lands and tenements in the parish of St. Michael Bassinghall, and St. Botolph-without-Bishopsgate, and elsewhere in London, with a direction to sell the same and distribute the money for his soul and the souls of his father, mother, Alice his wife, and all of those to whom he was under any obligation, and of all faithful souls deceased, and he bequeathed the residue of his goods to his executors to be disposed of in charitable works for his soul, as they would do for their own souls in like case.

The proceedings taken on the Foundation of Whittington College appear by the following:—

10 Henry 6th, May 1432.—EXTRACT of a Charter granted by Henry 6th, respecting the will of Sir Richard Whittington.

The charter, dated May, 10th Henry 6th, recites by Insuper Letters Patent, 18th November, 3 Henry 6th, of license of founding a certain college in the Church of St. Michael Rial, London, and one almshouse near the same, by the executors of the testament of Richard Whittington, late citizen and mercer of London, which license is to the effect following:—Henry, &c. Know ye, that we of our special grace, &c., have given license to John Coventre, John Carpenter, and William Grove, executors of the testament of Richard Whittington, that they might found a certain college to consist of five chaplains, one whereof to be master in the parish church of St. Michael Paternoster, in the Riol, London, and one almshouse near the same to consist of 13 poor persons, one whereof to be tutor, and that they might give and assign to the said master and chaplains one messuage, with the appurtenances, to dwell in, situate near the said church; and to the said tutor and poor persons the said almshouse to dwell in, which are held of us in Burgage, to have and to hold to the said master and chaplains, and their successors, celebrating Divine service there, for the souls of the said Richard, &c., according to the ordinance to be made therein; and the said almshouse to the said tutor and poor persons, and their successors, according to like ordination of the said executors to be made, &c., saving to us the services due and accustomed.

The charter next inspects letters of Henry, Archbishop of Canterbury, of like license to found, &c. to the said executors, dated at Lambeth, 1424. It then inspects the counterpart of an indenture by the Prior and Chapter of Canterbury, at the instance of the same executors, made to the Wardens and Commonalty of the Mystery of Mercers, London, and their successors, of the nomination and disposition of the said Church of St. Michael, when vacant, for ever, dated 8th December, 3 Henry 6th. It then inspects other Letters Patent of confirmation of the said indenture by King Henry 6th, dated 12th February, 3rd of his reign. It then inspects the erection, foundation, and ordinances of the said college, made by the aforesaid executors in virtue and authority of the letters of license and writing aforesaid, made in these words:—To all the faithful in Christ, &c., John Coventre, John Carpenter, and William Grove, executors of the will of Richard Whittington, late citizen and mercer of the city of London, and oft-times mayor of the said city, send greeting, &c. This deed of foundation then proceeds to declare the several articles to be ordained. 1st. That there shall be in the Church of St. Michael a perpetual college of five chaplains, secular men, and not elsewhere benefited nor having any patrimony of their own whereupon they can subsist, one whereof to be called master of the said college, and of two clerks besides the parish clerk of the said church; as also of four choristers to reside in a collegiate manner, which master and chaplains we will to be perpetual (that is to say) the master in manner and form within written elected, and the chaplains, unless for certain causes specified within, are not to be removable, but the clerks, choristers, to be removable at the pleasure of the executors whilst they live, and afterwards at the pleasure of the master and chaplains; it then gives the names of the first master and chaplains; it then directs the mode of election of the master, &c. and, for non-appointment within a certain time, to devolve to the wardens of the Mystery of Mercers, who are to elect within a month.

It then proceeds to the declaration of divers other ordinances, as to forfeiture of money in case of neglect of duty, &c. &c., there are then articles respecting the audit of accounts in November, and taking an inventory of the College, stock and treasure, and that the College shall have a common chest and common seal, &c. Item, we ordain that the wardens of the Mystery of Mercers and their successors, shall for ever have the care and custody of the small house which we have lately built at the east end of the chancel of the said church, to keep all the evidences and writings touching the lands, tenements and rents to them given, or to be given for the support of the College and almshouse aforesaid. We will, also, and appoint that the survey and conservation of the College aforesaid, and the state of the same shall belong to us during our life, and afterwards to the Mayor of London, and the wardens of the Mystery of Mercers for the time being shall appertain and devolve, so that the same Mayor and his successors, and the said wardens and their successors shall be deemed and called conservators or advocates of the College aforesaid for ever, and all the plate and books of the said College are always to remain to the use of the same.

And, these ordinations so by us made, we will, always to be observed, saving to us the power of altering and changing the same, and after our decease power to the Mayor of London and the Prior of the Carthusians of explaining and declaring the doubtful passages thereof dated 18th December, 3 Henry 6th.

It then inspects certain other ordinances of the College made by the said executors, which first declares the founding of the College, but, inasmuch as it is not sufficiently endowed, it grants to the master and chaplains, as well in money as in lands and tenements of Richard Whittington, being in their possession 63l. per annum for the support of the charges incumbent on the said College, until by the lands, rents or tenements then belonging thereto, or by any gift of any honest citizen, or by the King's license or otherwise, the said College shall have so much per annum.

There are then some further ordinances and regulations, chiefly regarding the internal rules, &c. of the College; this is dated 13th February, 3 Henry 6th. The charter then inspects the erection, foundation and ordinances of the almshouses by the said executors of Whittington, this is dated 21st December, 3 Henry 6th. The charter then inspects other ordinations of the said almshouse granting per annum, out of Whittington's effects, the annual sum of 40l. as well in money as in lands and tenements, this is dated 10th February, 3 Henry 6th. It then inspects a grant from the said executors to the master and chaplains of the College aforesaid, of a house and land late purchased of Henry Jolyate, this is dated 19th December, 3 Henry 6th. The charter then inspects another deed of the said executors touching the almshouse, dated the 22nd December, 3 Henry 6th. It then inspects the will of George Gerveys, late citizen and grocer of London, of a competent endowment as well to the College as almshouse, wherein the first devises to the master and chaplains of the College of St. Michael Riall, a tenement with a garden in the same parish, and then a messuage to the tutor, five poor men of the almshouse which he had by feoffment of John Carpenter. He then leaves to the said master and chaplains an annual rent of 63l. which he purchased of John Carpenter, arising from lands and tenements in the parishes of St. Michael Riall, St. Lawrence Old Jewry, St. Mary Magdalen, Milk Street, All Saints Barking, St. Dunstan East, St. Leonard Eastcheap, St. Margaret Bridge Street, St. Stephen Coleman Street, St. John Walbrook, St. Michael Basingshaw, St. Gregory near St. Paul's Chain, St. Botolph Bishopsgate, St. Bartholomew the Little, St. Benet Fink, St. Michael Cornhill, St. Martin Outwich, St. Mary Bow, and St. Lawrence Pountney. He then leaves an annual rent of 40l. lately purchased of John Carpenter, to the tutor and poor persons of the almshouse, this will is dated 7th May, 10 Henry 6th.

It then inspects the will of William Sevenoke, whereby he leaves his lands and tenements in St. Martin Outwich and St. Mary Bow, to the said wardens, and of a chaplain to celebrate Divine Service according to the ordination of the said wardens and their successors in aid of the poor men of the said mystery, and of a chaplain to celebrate Divine Service according to the ordination of the said Wardens and their successors, paying thereout 2l. quit rent for the support of the College and almshouse. He also leaves all his remaining lands and tenements to John Carpenter, junior, for his life, and afterwards to the said wardens, under certain restrictions, viz.: 1st. The payment of the said 2l. yearly; next, as to their faithful execution of the trusts of the College and almshouse, and then that all manner of issues and rents of the lands and tenements, &c. shall be deposited in a chest, called "Whittington's chest," to the care and administration of the wardens to be used towards the aiding and assisting the poor and indigent men and women of the same commonalty and mystery, and especially in loans (apprestes) for a year or within, at the discretion of the said wardens, under surety, and not otherwise. This legacy he makes conditional, provided the said wardens repair the houses, and make the appointments requisite and keep the anniversary, &c., otherwise he declares his bequest of no validity. This is dated "10th Henry 6th." The whole is confirmed by the King, by petition in Parliament, in the 10th year of his reign.

It thus appears that in obedience to the will of Richard Whittington, the executors purchased lands and tenements in the city of London, in their own names, for the execution of the trusts, that John Carpenter, who was the last survivor of the executors, conveyed the estates to William Sevenoake, subject to two rentcharges of 63*l.* and 40*l.* per annum, which he conveyed, together with the then almshouse, to George Gervyse; that George Gervyse devised the almshouse and the rent of 40*l.* to the tutor and poor persons of the almshouse, and the rentcharge of 63*l.* to the College and chaplains of St. Michael Royal. The Mercers' Company are, by the ordinances, made the conservators of the college and almshouse, but the estates they derive under the will of William Sevenoake. It would seem that William Sevenoake being possessed of the estates under the conveyance of John Carpenter, subject to the rentcharges, devised them by his will to John Carpenter, junior, citizen and town clerk of the city of London (whether the same Carpenter who was the executor, or his son or heir, or some other person I cannot ascertain) for his life, and after his decease to the Warden and Commonalty of the Mystery of Mercers aforesaid, to hold to them and their successors in fee, under "the modes, forms, and conditions underwritten."

"... Imprimis, to wit, that the same Wardens and Commonalty, and their successors for ever, shall pay well and faithfully the said two annual quit rents of the lands and tenements aforesaid to the sustentation of the said college and almshouse, as is afterwards bequeathed, and shall be present at the anniversary of Richard Whittington, every year, the last or last day but one of July, within the aforesaid college to be celebrated, and rightfully and indifferently, as after and when time and affairs shall require, do and execute all manner the nominations and presentations of the Master and Fellows of the same College, and also the provisions and substitutions of the tutor and poor persons of the said almshouse when the places thereof shall be vacant, according to the modes and forms in the said statutes and ordinances of the same college and almshouse by the aforesaid made and confirmed, as is aforesaid. And further diligently ordain that all the aforesaid lands and tenements, with their appurtenances, be duly sustained, and as often and when it shall be needful or necessary, repaired; and that all manner the issues and profits of the same lands and tenements beyond the rents aforesaid, and the other reasonable charges of the same, in a certain chest, called 'Whittington's chest,' for this purpose by the said executors put and ordained in a certain house or treasury near the vestibule of the said College situate, appertaining to the care and administration of the wardens and Commonalty of the mystery of the Mercers aforesaid, to sustain and aid the poor and indigent men and women of the same city and mystery, and especially in loans for one year, or within, at the discretion of the said Wardens under sufficient pledge of silver or gold, and not otherwise to be done; so that always a condition sealed by the receivers of the loan be made upon the deposit of every pledge so pawned, that if they, at the end of the said year, or at any term within the year to them limited, the "said loan shall not have paid or redeemed the pledge, that the same pledge, without impeachment of the debtor, shall be sold, and the sum which beyond the clear debt shall arise to the debtors shall fully be restored."

Whittington College, which is now situated in the North Road, near Highgate, and in the parish of St. Mary, Islington, consists of 30 houses, in a centre and two wings, and two detached houses. The tutor, who is the chaplain, and is in holy orders, occupies the front house in one of the wings, and the other house in the front of the wing is occupied by the matron. The 28 remaining tenements by 28 women. Each house has two rooms and a kitchen. The two detached houses are occupied by the gardener and nurse. The inmates were formerly both men and women, but the almshouses have been women only for many years past, a fund for out-pensioners having been created, to which both sexes are eligible.

The fee-simple of the premises which had been demised to the Company by the lease of 1823 (mentioned in the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry, p. 456) for 999 years, were in December 1838, conveyed to the Company by Frederick Cowper, William Nash, and the Highgate Archway Company in consideration of 6,060*l.* (part of a sum of 6,600*l.*, the purchase money in the Court of Exchequer for premises belonging to this estate in King's Arms Yard, and forming now part of the site of Moorgate Street), and the conveyance and the same consideration also included a parcel of ground on the south side of Thomas Street, and five messuages erected thereon, and two other plots of ground on the east side of the Highgate Archway Road. This purchase was made, and the conveyance approved under the authority of the Court of Chancery. The houses are subject to building leases, of which the Charity is at present only entitled to ground rents. The meadow behind the College is occupied by the tutor free of rent. A plot of ground opposite the college is vacant, and has been offered for building. The residue of the 6,600*l.* remained invested in consols in court until the year 1842, when it was laid out in purchasing two slips of ground in Moorgate Street.

The condition of the estates, of which the Mercers' Company are possessed under the endowments, and which is generally described as the "Whittington estate" has, since the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 6, p. 284, and vol. 32, Pt. 2, p. 453), been much affected by the extension, alterations, and improvements that have taken place in the city of London, the new buildings in Gresham Street, and Cannon Street in particular, having crossed the property of the Charity estate. Owing to this cause, and also to other local improvements, the tabular account of the estate hereafter given does not, therefore, in all points correspond with the tables given in the reports of the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 32, part 2, p. 455).

The building of the new almshouse near the Highgate Archway had been made before the last inquiry, and the building fund provided, as stated by the Commissioners at that time, exhibited a balance of 1,421*l.* 19*s.* 4*d.* as due to the Company. The Company did not diminish or so frame their subsequent donations and pension list, which were provided for out of the income of the estate, so as to leave any balance applicable to the reduction of the above balance, and the same continued in the books of the Company as a charge against the Charity until the year 1847, and in that year the Company closed the account by transferring the sum from the building fund to the estate as a payment in that year.

The property of Whittington's estate is now as follows:—

* WHITTINGTON'S CHARITY.

Under an authority of an order of the Board dated 11th November 1881, the Company accepted the surrender of the lease of the property numbered 13 and 14, Milk Street, Gresham Street, and Mumford Court, and referred to on page 41 of this report, and granted a new lease of the property in question to Mr. Parker for the term of 30 years from Christmas 1880 at the same rent, the lessee having expended a sum of 2,000*l.* in rebuilding the premises in Milk Street.

The Company have with the sanction of the Commissioners made an agreement dated 1st February 1881, with Messrs. Dove Brothers for the grant of leases

A report of a committee of the Company made under an order of the Court of Assistants on the 1st December 1803, found that the sum of 63*l.* per annum for the uses of the college, which was abolished in the reign of Edward 6th, and the stipend seized by the Crown, was in the year 1549 sold by the Crown to the Company, with other stipends of the same nature, at 20 years purchase, and therefore so much of the rents of the said estates must belong to the Company. That the committee did not find that from the commencement of the receipt of the rents in 1442 to the year 1564 any augmentation of payments took place, or any other payment made therefrom, except the 63*l.* and 40*l.*, as recited in the will above mentioned, but that in 1564 the sum of 3*l.* 18*s.* was added to 39*l.* 17*s.* 4*d.* originally paid, as directed by the will, being the nearest sum which the 40*l.* so directed could be divided as weekly payments to the tutor and 12 almsfolks. By reference to the reports of the committee, as before mentioned, it will also appear that from 1564 to 1672 the same was augmented to 130*l.*, at which sum it remained until 1786; and from 1786 to 1798 it was further augmented to 437*l.* 17*s.*, which was the sum then annually paid; and the committee did not find that from 1442 to the present time the surplus arising from the said estates was otherwise applied than to the uses of the Company, which application appeared sanctioned by Parliament in 1747, when it was enacted that the same, together with other properties in possession of the Company, should be applied to the payment of their debts.

The permanent charges on the estate, and expenses of management are:—

The Court of Assistants, by a resolution of the 15th November 1804, resolved that the surplus from the estates of Sir Richard Whittington, after the payment of the Charity property situate in King's Arms Yard, Tokenhouse Yard, and Lothbury Churchyard, which are described on page 42 of this report, containing a superficial area of 14,000 square feet for the term of 80 years from 25th March 1881, at annual rent of 2,500*l.* for first two years, and of 7,000*l.* per annum or thereabouts for the remainder of the term, the lessees of the 63*l.* per annum, was applicable to charitable uses only, but they do not appear to have considered themselves bound to establish a loan fund, which seems to have been the only specific purpose mentioned in the will of William Sevenoke.

I entirely concur with the Company in this conclusion, so far as it may have proceeded from a view of the inexpediency and mischief of such an appropriation. The disbursements of the various charitable objects, to which the fund is now dedicated, are:—

There have been lately large expenses at the almshouses for draining. It was found necessary to open a drain from the college to the main sewer. The contract for this work was 1,043*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.* The surveyor's commission and other charges raised this expense to about 1,100*l.* The last payment on this contract account was made in June 1860.

With reference to the application of the surplus income of the estates, after the payment of the charges thereon, and the expenses of management, and the support of the college, I have already referred to the direction in the will of William Sevenoke, under whom the Company derive their title, which points out how the money beyond the rentcharges and the other reasonable charges are to be applied, and I have also stated the report of the Company's committee of 1803, and the resolution of the Company in 1804 thereon. The Company have created a fund called the "Whittington Fund," and have also carried over a considerable portion of the surplus to a fund not distinctly named, but which is distributed as "donations and charitable gifts."

II.—The "Whittington Fund" is the form of distribution of 900*l.* a year to 30 poor persons of both sexes who are elected for life, and receive each 30*l.* a year. This fund and distribution have been the same for many years.

III.—The charitable bequests and donations were,—

	£	s.	d.
In the year 1858	2,019	10	7
" 1859	2,014	2	1
" 1860	1,976	16	6
They were made, in 1858, to	52	persons.
in 1859, to	57	"
and in 1860, to	54	"

The amount of each gift has varied from 10*l.* to 70*l.* The entire distribution under the head of "Charitable covenanting to expend 50,000*l.* in buildings on the property.

By an order of the Board dated 10th November 1882, the sale to Messrs. Dove of a strip of land adjoining the last-mentioned property was authorised to be effected at the price of 100*l.*

Donations and Bequests" may therefore be represented as 2,000*l.* a year.

The four heads of expenditure from the college estate are, therefore—

	£	s.	d.
Deduction from the gross income for permanent charges and management, say	-	800	0 0
I.—"Whittington College," say	-	1,800	0 0
II.—"Whittington Fund"	-	900	0 0
III.—Charitable donations and gifts	2,000	0 0
	£5,500	0 0

The excess of the receipts over the expenditure amounts to about 1,100*l.* a year. I have mentioned the recent extraordinary charge for drainage in the two or three past years. The balance of cash in hand at the end of the year 1860 (31st December 1860), supposing all the rents to have been received, would have been 4,662*l.* 4*s.* 4*d.* This does not correspond with the books of the Company as it has been the habit of the accountant to treat stock as cash and enter it as the sum of cash which the investment cost, and in this view the 508*l.* 14*s.* 7*d.* stock in the Court of Chancery is represented as 200*l.* cash, making the balance appear to be 4,862*l.* 4*s.* 4*d.* The rents had, however, not then been all received, and the actual cash in hand was 1,325*l.* 13*s.* 1*d.*

The out-pensioners who are paid out of the "Whittington Fund" are persons of both sexes, not under 55 years of age, nor possessing incomes of 20*l.* from real or 30*l.* from any property. I annex a printed statement of the qualifications. They are not connected with the Company.

The charitable gifts and donations are made to persons connected with the Company, as being freemen, or widows, or children of freemen. There are no specific qualifications, each case being decided on its own circumstances. The sum granted is generally continued for the life of the person to whom it is given. The selection is in all cases by the court of assistants, the members of which commonly exercise powers of selection in rotation.

PART III.

MONEY LEGACY CHARITIES.

It appears by the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 3, p. 235) that the Company brought before Parliament in 1746 and 1747 the state of its property and liabilities, representing that owing to great expenditure in the erection of the Royal Exchange, on Sir Thomas Gresham's estate after the fire of London (added as they stated to the difficulties occasioned by loans to King Charles the 1st), and also by means of improvident bargains in granting reversionary annuities for the purpose of raising money, the Company had become insolvent in effect, and had been obliged to suspend the payment of the interest on the charitable donations, the capital of which they had applied to the several purposes referred to. Two Acts of Parliament were passed affecting the Company in the 21st year of the reign of King George the 2nd, one of which was entitled An Act for the further Relief of the Orphans and other creditors of the city of London, and other purposes therein mentioned (21 Geo. 2, c.) and the other "for the relief of the annuitants of the Wardens and Commonalty of the mystery of Mercers of the City of London," (21 Geo. 2 c.). By the former Act the sum of 3,000*l.* a year was granted for a term of 55 years to the Mercers' Company from the duties therein mentioned, towards the payment of their annuitants and other debts. By a subsequent Act of the 4th of Geo. 3rd "for the relief of the bond and other creditors of the Wardens and Commonalty of the Mystery of Mercers of the City of London," the surplus of this 3,000*l.* a year and the rents and profits of the estate in settlement under deeds therein referred to, which were due upon the 10th October 1763, are directed to be applied to pay the arrears on account of any of the annual donations out of the said charities or money legacies up to that time. The Act contains the following further clauses.

"And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid: That the several surpluses which from and after the said 10th of October 1763 shall arise from the said yearly sum of 3,000*l.*, together with the rents and profits of the estates in settlement to grow due from that time, after due and punctual payment of the several annuities and other sums charged upon "their said estates, shall be from time to time applied by the said Wardens and Commonalty, in and for the payment, maintenance, and support of the annual donations out of the said charities or money legacies, in all times to come."

The amount thus charged upon the other estates is defined by a recital in the Act, which states that in consideration of the money legacies therein referred to, the Company had theretofore "annually paid the sum of 548*l.* 1*s.*" in respect of the charities specified in a table or schedule there referred to, the several particulars of which I have extracted and arranged alphabetically in the following part of this report, and which by the effect of the statutes became thereupon a charge upon the estates of the Company comprised in the deed of settlement therein mentioned.

SIR JAMES ALLEN'S GIFT.

Sir John Allen having paid to Mercer's Company 300*l.* the Company by deed of the 30th June 1521 charged themselves with the uses of the interest of the said sum (chiefly for the maintenance of a priest to say mass for certain souls and for keeping an obit) of which there should go to the 13 almsmen of Whittington College 4*s.* 4*d.* a year, to the keeper of the Mercers' Chapel 1*s.* 4*d.* a year, and three loads of coal between Hallowside and Christmas amongst poor householders in the parishes of St. Mary Magdalen Milk Street, St. Nicholas Acons, and St. Benet Fink. The parish of St. Nicholas Acon was paid 8*l.* 8*s.* 9*d.* for 18½ years arrears, and the parish of St. Benet Fink 10*l.* 13*s.* 9*d.* for 23½ years arrears.

The payments are made by the Company as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
Whittington estate, part of a sum of 25 l. 5 s. 4 d. for annuities	-	0	4 8
St. Mary Magdalen (paid to the churchwardens of the joint parish of St. Laurence Jewry	-	0	9 0
Ditto St. Nicholas Acons	-	0	9 0
Ditto St. Benet Fink	-	0	9 0
The under beadle, who is the clerk of the chapel	-	0	1 4
	£1	13	0

APPOWELL'S GIFT.

David Appowell, by his will, 3rd September, 1508, gave to the company 100*l.* to be lent to two young men who were to provide four sufficient cart-loads of great coals to the poor of St. Laurence Jewry, and to the clerk and beadle 3*s.* 4*d.*, to be paid by the said young men. The 5*l.* a year, the original gift, with a portion of the interest of 300*l.* 11*s.* 10*d.* (mentioned in Sir Lionel Duckett's gift) is paid annually to the churchwardens of St. Laurence Jewry. The 3*s.* 4*d.* is part of the annual annuities paid to the Company's clerk.

JOHN BANCKS, OR BANKS' CHARITY.

John Bancks, by his will of the 20th May, 1630, gave to the Mercers' Company 100*l.* to pay to the use of the poor of St. Michael Bassishaw, 53*s.* 4*d.*, 40*s.* for ancient poor householders, and 13*s.* 4*d.* for repairing the common pump.

The Company pay annually 2*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* to the churchwardens of St. Michael Bassishaw, in respect of this gift, together with the interest on the invested arrears which constitute part of the 122*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.* 3*l.* per centum Reduced Annuities mentioned under Baskerfield's Gift.

BARKLEY'S GIFT.

Edward Barkley, by his will, 2nd December, 1601, gave to Company 1,000 marks to be lent to 10 young men without any allowance for the same more than 21*s.* 4*d.* yearly for the use of the poor men of Whittington College. The interest annually credited to this account is 10*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, of which 10*l.* 8*s.* forms part of the 25*l.* 5*s.* 4*d.* carried to the account of the college, as mentioned under Elkins' gift. The 5*s.* 4*d.* is paid to the clerk as part of the yearly annuities from charities at the end of each year.

B. BARNES' GIFT.

Bartholomew Barnes, by his will 1st March 1602, gave to the Company 300*l.* to be lent to three or six young men of the said Company, with interest at 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* per cent. to be paid to Christ's Hospital, towards the relief of the poor there on Good Friday. The fund (like Hilson's) is not applied for as loans, it being one of those on which interest is demanded. It in fact does not exist, except as a charge on the Company. The 10*l.* a year is annually accounted for to Christ's Hospital.

BARNES' GIFT.

Richard Barnes, by his will of the 7th February 1598, gave to the Company 100*l.* to be lent to two young men at 6*l.* per cent. to be paid.

	£	s.	d.
To the poor of Whittington College	-	2	12 0
Renter Warden	-	0	5 0
Clerk	-	0	3 4
To St. Giles' Cripplegate parish	-	2	19 8
And Edward Barnes (son and executor) in 1607 added 33 l. 6 s. 8 d. to the gift, making altogether 133 l. 6 s. 8 d.

The interest of the fund is like the other "money legacy charities," a charge on the estates. By the reduction of 1768 58*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.* for 19½ years arrears were added to the Cripplegate Charity, and the same is now represented by 72*l.* 14*s.* 8*d.* 3*l.* per cent. Reduced annuities, into which the 64*l.* 12*s.* 9*d.* old South Sea annuities have been converted. The dividend, amounting to 2*l.* 3*s.* 8*d.*, making with the rentcharge a total sum of 5*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*

The 2*l.* 12*s.* annually is paid to the Whittington estate. The Warden and the clerk also receive their respective stipends.

MARTHA BARRETT'S CHARITY.

Martha Barrett, by her will 25th September, 1584, gave the Company 100*l.* to be lent to two young men at 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* per cent.

per cent.

	£	s.	d.
To the poor of St. Sepulchre	-	1	13 4
To the poor of St. Michael Paternoster and St. Martin Vintry	-	1	13 4

And she gave 100*l.* to the Company to pay one of the poorest scholars of Magdalen College, Oxford, 5*l.* a year. The application of the 16*s.* 8*d.* a year to each of the Charities of St. Michael Royal and St. Martin Vintry, and the appropriation of a portion of stock, producing an additional annual sum in respect of the arrears, pursuant to the resolution of 1768 is stated on the report on Heydon's Charity.

The sum of 1*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* a year is paid to the churchwardens of St. Sepulchre. On this account I do not find that any arrears were allowed by the resolution of 1768 before referred to.

The annual sum of 5*l.* a year for the Student in Divinity at Magdalen College, Oxford, is a charge on the Company's estates, under the deed of 1699 and the stat. 4 Geo. 3. There is at present an accumulated capital of 500*l.* 3*l.* per cent. Consols, producing 15*l.* a year and a balance at the end of 1860 (in consequence of the election of a student having been cancelled) of 63*l.* 16*s.* 5*d.* cash. The studentship is at present vacant.

BASKERFIELD'S GIFT.

Humphrey Baskerfield, by his will 1st September 1563 gave to the Company 200*l.* to be lent to four young men of the Company, each of them to deliver two cartloads of charcoal to the Wardens to be distributed as follows:

To St. Michael Bassishaw	-	2	loads
" St. Laurence Jewry	-	2	loads
" St. Mary Magdalen, Milk Street	-	1	load
" St. Peter's, West Cheap	-	1	load
" Poor beadsmen of Whittington College	-	2	loads

The charges assigned to the several objects of this gift, in the schedule making up the 548*l.* 1*s.* a year for the money legacies were as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
Whittington's almspeople	-	2	10 0
St. Laurence, Jewry	-	2	10 0
St. Mary Magdalen, Milk Street	-	1	5 0
St. Michael Bassishaw	-	2	10 0
St. Peter, Westcheap	-	1	5 0
House Warden	-	0	3 4
Renter Warden	-	0	6 8
The clerk	-	0	3 4

The 2*l.* 10*s.* a year appropriated to Whittington's almsmen forms part of the 25*l.* 5*s.* 4*d.* before mentioned carried to the account of the College.

The united parishes of St. Laurence Jewry, and St. Mary Magdalen Milk Street, receive annually 3*l.* 15*s.* It is received with the arrears of interest, as stated in Lionel Duckett's gift.

The parish of St. Michael Bassishaw receives an annuity of 2*l.* 10*l.* and also the interest on the arrears of this gift and that of John Banks, and which is invested together in 122*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.* 3*l.* per centum Reduced annuities producing 3*l.* 13*l.* 8*d.* annually. It is received by the churchwardens.

The parish of St. Peter Cheap receives annually 1*l.* 5*s.* and the interest on the accumulation of arrears, as stated in Sir Lionel Duckett's gift.

The officers of the Company receive the sums allotted to them on the annual payments of annuities.

BERKENHEAD'S GIFT.

Peter Berkenhead gave to the Company 150*l.* for the following payments:—

	£	s.	d.
Two sermons on 30th January and 29th May	-	4	0 0
To the clerk	-	0	3 4
For wine and firing	-	0	10 0
Beadle and chapel keeper	-	0	6 8

The sermons are preached in the chapel of Mercers' Hall on the days mentioned, and the 4*l.* is paid to the minister appointed to preach them. The sum, in fact, paid is 4*l.* 10*s.*, the Company reserving nothing for the wine or firing. The remaining payments are made to the officers at the end of the year, with other gifts of a like kind.

BIRKBECK'S, CROPLEY'S, and DESBOUVERIE or DE BOUVERIE'S CHARITIES.

George Birkbeck, by his will of the 26th October, 1600, gave 50*l.* to be delivered to a young man at interest at 5*l.* per centum for coals to the poor.

Edward Cropley, by his will of the 6th March, 1647, gave 200*l.* to be lent to four young men, 50*l.* a piece, paying 20*s.* a year each, to be distributed to the poor.

Sir Edward de Bouverie gave 100*l.* to the Company, for which they were to pay 4*l.* per centum to be distributed to the poor.

These sums amount to 10*l.* 10*s.* a year.

The Company grant certain annual pensions and other gifts to members of the Company, which enter under the head of "Donations and Charitable Gifts." These comprise altogether sums to the amount of 1,000*l.* to 1,200*l.* a year. In the year 1860 there were seven pensions, of which four were of 100*l.* a year and two 80*l.*, and one of 60*l.* The pensioners were members of the Company and widows of members. There are also casual gifts, varying from 10*l.* to 50*l.*, all being made to members of the Mercers' Company or their widows. The fund thus distributed is composed of the 10*l.* 10*s.* derived from the above three money legacies, from a large payment out of the Whittington estate, and as to the residue from the proper funds of the Company. In the year 1859 the Company contributed from their own funds 662*l.* to this head of gift, and in 1858, 667*l.* The total distribution in 1859 was 1,122*l.* 10*s.*, and in 1858 1,009*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*

A. BLUNDELL'S GIFT.

Alice Blundell gave to the Company 100*l.* to be lent to two young men of the Company who were to pay every Sunday 1*s.* 1*d.* in bread among 13 poor folks of St. Laurence, Jewry. The sum of 2*l.* 16*s.* 4*d.* yearly paid to the churchwardens of St. Laurence, Jewry, together with the interest of so much of the 300*l.* 11*s.* 10*d.* 3*l.* per centum Reduced Annuities (mentioned under Sir Lionel Duckett's gift) as is attributable to this Charity.

BROWN'S GIFT.

William Brown having paid to the Company 200*l.* the Company by indenture of 28th December 20 Hen. 8th, charged themselves with the following payments:

	£	s.	d.
To four poor freemen of the Company in equal portions - - -	5	4	0
To the Master and Wardens - - -	0	10	0
To the Clerk - - -	0	3	4

The sum of 1*l.* 6*s.* is given to each of the four poor freemen of the Company, usually at the October distribution. They are all poor persons who receive a share of other benefactions. The Master and Wardens and Clerk receive their several portions of the remaining 13*s.* 4*d.*

FRANCES CLARKE'S GIFT.

Frances Clarke gave to the Mercers' Company, as it appears by will (but of which the date is not known), 200*l.* to pay 10*l.* yearly towards discharging and succouring poor people at the Poultry Compter. A sum of 182*l.* 10*s.* cash for 18½ years arrears was appropriated to the Charity under the resolution of 1768. It is now a portion of the 279*l.* 0*s.* 6*d.* 3*l.* per cent. reduced annuities mentioned in the report on Sir Roger Martin's Gift. The rentcharge of 10*l.*, and the interest on the 279*l.* 0*s.* 6*d.* Reduced annuities are paid to Mr. Temple on account of the City Prisons.

DAMSELL'S GIFT.

Sir William Damsell, by his will 1st June 1582, bequeathed to the Company 240*l.* to distribute 5*l.* to the poor and other godly uses, and residue of the interest to the Company. At the July distribution the sum of 2*l.* 10*s.* cash is given to the widows of liverymen of the Mercers' Company. This, and a portion of the Charity of Ann Duckett, constitute the only benefaction which the Company regarded as positively restricted to widows.

DAUNTSEY'S COAL CHARITY.

Alderman William Dauntsey, by his will 10th March 1542, gave to the Company 200*l.* to be lent to four young men, 50*l.* a piece, each of them giving every year one load of coals, whereof two loads for the poor of St. Laurence, Jewry, and two for the poor of St. Antholin.

The sum of 2*l.* 10*s.* was charged on the estates of the Company for each of the above parishes. The portion of St. Laurence parish, with the interest on the 300*l.* 11*s.* 10*d.* mentioned in Lionel Duckett's Gift, which comprised the arrears on the Charity, is paid to the churchwardens.

The sum of 2*l.* 10*s.*, and the interest on 58*l.* 12*s.* 3*l.* per cent. Reduced annuities producing 1*l.* 15*s.* 2*d.* respectively, the arrears are paid annually to the churchwardens of St. Antholin.

ANN DUCKETT'S GIFTS.

Ann Duckett, by her will (date unknown), gave to the Company 100*l.* to be lent gratis to freemen, and the further sum of 400*l.* to be lent to four young freemen at 2*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* per cent. and the interest given

	£	s.	d.
To six poor widows of St. Giles, Cripplegate, 20 s. each	6	0	0
To four of the poorest widows of freemen, 20 s. each	4	0	0
To the Company for a collation	0	10	0
Beadle	0	3	4

The application of the 100*l.* to be lent free is stated in the Report on the Money Legacies for Loans.

The 400*l.* and the interest thereon is charged with the money legacies on the Company's estate. There were 18 years arrears added.

The stock now standing to the credit of this gift in respect of arrears is 240*l.* 18*s.* 5*d.*, 3*l.* per cent. Reduced annuities producing 7*l.* 4*s.* 8*d.* annual dividend.

The Cripplegate widows are taken three from the parish of St. Giles, and three from St. Luke's. They are selected by the officers of the several parishes, and are brought to the Mercers' Hall at Easter by the beadles of each parish. They receive 1*l.* 13*s.* 7*d.*, and the two last 1*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.* each, making 10*l.* 1*s.* 4*d.*

The four widows of the Mercers' Company are selected by one Master and Wardens, and are on the Company's Donation List, and generally the poorest on that list are taken. They each receive 1*l.* 15*s.* 10*d.*, making 7*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*

The Wardens 10*s.* is always given to the porter, and the 3*s.* 4*d.* is paid to the beadle.

The 10*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* original charge, and 7*l.* 4*s.* 8*d.* interest are thus disposed of.

DUCKETT'S GIFT.

Sir Lionel Duckett, by his will 21st March 1585, gave to the Company 200*l.* to be delivered to four young men at 4*l.* per cent., and the profits given yearly to the poorest and oldest persons in the parishes of St. Lawrence Jewry, St. Mary Magdalen, and St. Peter in Cheap, and the renter Warden retaining four nobles (1*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*).

The parishes of St. Laurence Jewry, and St. Mary Magdalen, are united parishes since the fire of London. These parishes receive in respect of this Charity an annual sum of 4*l.* 9*s.* together with the interest on a portion of 300*l.* 11*s.* 10*d.*, 3*l.* per cent. Reduced annuities, the investment of a sum of 233*l.* 8*s.* 9*d.* in respect of the arrears of the above Charity, and the gifts of Alice Blundell, David Appowell, Humphrey Baskerville, William Dauntsey, John Marsh, and John Allen. The original gift is received by the churchwardens and their collector. In pursuance of a resolution of the Court of the Company of the 31st July 1767, "that the yearly interest and produce arising from the said sum of 233*l.* 8*s.* 9*d.* to be laid out in the Old South Sea annuities be applied proportionably to the augmentation of the donations given by the wills of the donors above mentioned," the 9*l.* 0*s.* 4*d.* the dividends on the stock are certified to have been laid out in coals, under the direction of the churchwardens, and the bill for the coals is produced.

The sum of 2*l.* 4*s.* 4*d.* the original gift of the above donor, and interest on the 80*l.* 11*s.* 2*d.*, 3*l.* per cent. Reduced annuities, the arrears of this gift and of Baskerville's, producing 2*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.* are paid annually to the vestry clerk of St. Peter's Cheap, for the churchwardens.

ELKEYN'S GIFT.

William Elkeyn, or Elkin, an Alderman of London, by his will 22nd August, 1592, gave to the Company 100*l.*, to be delivered to two young men, they paying to the poor almsmen of Whittington College 6*d.* weekly. The sum of 5*l.* 4*s.* yearly forms part of 25*l.* 5*s.* 4*d.* carried to the credit of Whittington College in respect of the gifts of Haydon, Barnes, Goldsworth, Barclay, Baskerville Allen and the above.

FERRERS' GIFT.

William Ferrers, by his will (date not known) gave to the Company 200*l.* to be lent to three young men at 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* per cent. interest, of which,

	£	s.	d.
To the treasurer of Christ's Hospital	6	0	0
„ the two Under Wardens	0	10	0
„ Clerk	0	3	4

The Company pay 6*l.* annually to Christ's Hospital, and the officers of the Company receive their allowances.

FLOYER'S GIFT.

Francis Floyer appears to have given by some instrument or form now unknown, an annual sum of 7*l.* 16*s.* per annum for the poor of Brent Pelham in Hertfordshire, which was computed in the charge on the Company's estates at 30 years purchase, or 234*l.* Arrears for 18 years and a quarter were allowed by the resolution of 1768, amounting to 142*l.* 7*s.*, now represented by 177*l.* 19*s.* 2*d.* 3*l.* per cent. Reduced annuities. The dividends and the original gift, amounting together to 13*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.* are annually paid to the churchwardens of the parish.

GIBSON'S GIFT.

Robert Gibson, by his will of the 1st May, 1637, gave to the Company 50*l.* to be lent at 5*l.* per cent., and the interest bestowed in coal to the poor of Kirkheaton and Huddersfield, Yorkshire. Arrears for 19½ years were added by the resolution of 1768, and are now invested in 60*l.* 3*s.* 3*d.* 3*l.* per cent. Reduced annuities. The charge of 2*l.* 10*s.* a year and the dividends 1*l.* 16*s.* 2*d.*, making together 4*l.* 6*s.* 2*d.* are equally divided and paid annually upon the joint receipt of the vicar of Huddersfield and the rector of Kirkheaton and one churchwarden of each parish. The payment for the year ending October 1860 had not been made at the time of my investigation (30th January 1861).

GOLDSMITH'S GIFT.

Samuel Goldsmith, by his will 4th July 1647, gave to the Company 100*l.* to pay yearly amongst the almsfolk of Whittington College 20*s.*

The one pound a year is paid to the account of the Whittington estate.

HEYDON'S CHARITY.

John Heydon, by his will 6th March 1579, gave to the Company 300*l.* to be lent to six young men of the Company at 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* per cent., and the interest applied as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
To 13 poor almsmen of St. Michael, Paternoster Royal, coals, 1 l. 10 s. ;
money, 1 l. 16 s. 8 d.	3	6	8
To three poor people of the same parish weekly, 9 d. in money and 3 d. bread	2	12	0
To the Wardens of Company	0	12	0
To clerk and beadle	0	2	8
To poor of Woodbury, Devon	3	6	8

Testator also gave to the Company 300*l.* to be lent to six other young men at 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* per cent. to be applied as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
To the poor of St. Michael, Paternoster	3	0	0
„ St. Martin Vintry	3	0	0

Testator also gave to the Company 400*l.* to be lent to eight young men at 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* per cent., and the interest applied to maintain yearly a divinity lecture at St. Michael, Paternoster.

He also gave 100*l.* to each of eleven companies to be lent to young men at 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* per cent., and the interest paid to the Mercers' Company and applied as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
To St. Thomas's Hospital	6	13	4
„ Bartholomew's Hospital	6	13	4
„ Bridewell Hospital	6	13	4
Poor prisoners in Newgate	5	0	0
„ Ludgate	3	0	0
„ two Compters	8	0	0
Wardens of Company	0	10	0
Beadle	0	3	4

The Company pay as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
Churchwardens of St. Michael, Paternoster Royal	11	1	6

Which comprises the following items:—

	£	s.	d.
To the poor under the second donation above	3	0	0
For three poor people in money and bread under the first gift	2	12	0
For Martha Barrett's charity to the same parish	0	16	8
For interest on 15 l. 16 s. 5 d. 3 l. per cent. Reduced annuities, the appropriated arrears under the resolution of 1768 to Heydon's and Barrett's charities	4	12	10

To the churchwardens of St. Martin Vintry, for the poor under the second donation above	3	0	0
For Martha Barrett's charity to the same parish	0	16	8
For interest on 87 l. 9 s. 2 d. 3 l. per cent. Reduced annuities, appropriated arrears as above	2	12	6

	£	s.	d.

	£	s.	d.
To the churchwardens of Woodbury for the poor under the first gift	3	6	8
Interest on 76 l. 17 s. Reduced annuities applied for arrears as aforesaid	2	5	8
	5	12	4

To the divinity lecturer in St. Michael, Paternoster Royal, under the third gift. The present lecturer is the Reverend Thomas Hill, who is not permitted by the rector to deliver the lecture in the church, and who therefore delivers it at the Whittington Chapel, Upper Holloway

With reference to the question of the propriety of thus substituting a lecture in a distant place to one directed to be given in the parish church, it may be observed that the almshouses formerly were adjacent to the church, and the almspeople had access to the church by a separate door, and the assumption on which the Company acts is that the lectures were at least in part intended for the benefit of the Whittington poor.

The resolution of 1768 directed that the arrears of this annual payment for one year due Lady-day 1746 should be paid to the representatives of the late Robert Drew, but it made no provision for any subsequent arrears, and the probability is that during the intervening period no lecturer had been appointed.

The payment directed under the first gift to 13 poor almspeople of St. Michael, Paternoster Royal, forms part of the Christmas gifts to the Whittington almspeople, and is divided amongst them with other characters at that time, amounting altogether to 25*l.* 5*s.* 4*d.*

The payments for the benefits of the wardens, clerk, and beadle are made to these officers respectively together

The Mercers' Company receive under the fourth bequest the sum of 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* from each of the other eleven greater companies, making together 36*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, which the Company administer as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
To St. Thomas's Hospital	6	13	4
To St. Bartholomew's Hospital	6	13	4
To St. Bridewell Hospital	6	13	4
To the city prisons (by Mr. Temple)	16	0	0

The wardens and beadle are also credited with the yearly 13*s.* 4*d.*

HILSON'S GIFT.

Robert Hilson by his will dated the 15th March, 1582, gave to the Company 400 marks (266*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*) to be lent to four young men of the Company at 5*l.* per cent., and out of the interest to pay—

	£	s.	d.
To Christ's Hospital	10	14	8
To the churchwardens of St. Michael Crooked Lane, for bread	2	12	0
	£13	6	8

Publication is given to the following notice by its being suspended in the General Court Room at the Hall of the Mercers' Company.

"Notice is hereby given that a sum of money being legacies bequeathed by Robert Hilson and others is vested in the Mercers' Company, in trust from time to time to be lent out to young men free of the said Company in sums not less than 50*l.*, and not exceeding 100*l.*, from three to seven years with interest at various rates from 1*l.* 12*s.* to 5*l.* per cent. upon bond with two good sureties for every sum to be approved by the Court of Assistants of the said Company. Application by parties duly qualified to be made at the Clerk's Office, Mercers' Hall."

This being one of the loan funds on which interest is required, is, as elsewhere stated, not applied for as loans (see my Report on money legacies for loans).

The Company pay to Christ's Hospital 10*l.* 14*s.* 8*d.*, and to the churchwardens of St. Michael, Crooked Lane, 2*l.* 12*s.* annually.

The sum of 60*l.* 2*s.* 7*d.* 3*l.* per cent. Reduced annuities purchased with a sum of 48*l.* cash in pursuance of a resolution of a sub-committee in 1768 is appropriated to this portion of the Charity in respect of the arrears during its suspension, and the interest of that sum amounting to 1*l.* 16*s.* is annually paid to the churchwardens of St. Michael in addition to the 2*l.* 12*s.* The 60*l.* 2*s.* 7*d.* stock is part of a sum of 27,028*l.* 16*s.* 4*d.* like stock standing in the corporate name of the Company.

There does not appear to be any appropriation of the stock to Christ's Hospital, and the probability therefore is that there were not any arrears due to that body.

LANGHAM'S GIFT.

Thomas Langham gave the Company 400*l.* for the payment of 11*l.* per annum to the churchwardens of Clapham, Surrey, for 4*s.* a week in bread to the poor, and 12*s.* per annum to the churchwardens. Arrears for 18½ years were added to this donation, under the resolution of 1768, which are now represented by 254*l.* 8*s.* 3*d.* 3*l.* per cent. Reduced annuities, producing 7*l.* 12*s.* 8*d.* dividends, making together 18*l.* 12*s.* 8*d.* This sum is paid yearly to the rector's churchwarden of the parish of Clapham.

SIR THOMAS LEIGH'S GIFT.

In the schedule of the charges forming the 548*l.* 1*s.* 0*d.* is comprised a sum of 4*l.* a year to be paid towards the repairs of the Mercers' Chapel from this gift. The Company keep an account which is called "incidentals," and to that account they charge all the repairs of their hall, chapel, clerk's house and beadles houses and offices; and the 4*l.* a year is brought to that account in aid of such expenditure.

MARSH'S GIFT.

John Marsh by his will of the 7th July, 1557, gave the Company 200*l.* to be lent to five poor young men at 5*l.* per cent., and out of the interest to pay—

	£	s.	d.
To the curate and churchwardens of Uxbridge for 2 s. of bread on Sunday to 24 poor people, and 2 s. 8 d. to the churchwardens	-	-	5 6 8
To poor prisoners	-	-	3 5 0
To poor householders of St. Laurence Jewry in coals	-	-	0 15 0
To the wardens	-	-	0 10 0
To the person distributing the monies	-	-	0 3 4

On the Uxbridge gift 18½ years of interest were capitalized by the Company, and is now represented by 123*l.* 7*s.* 3*l.* per cent. Reduced annuities, producing 3*l.* 13*s.* 10*d.* interest, making with the original gift 9*l.* 0*s.* 6*d.* which is annually paid to the churchwarden of Uxbridge.

The prisoners gifts received the following additions in respect of arrears:—

Ludgate, 5 s.					1	5 0
Wood Street, 5 s.
Poultry, 5 s.
Newgate, 10 s.

The gifts to the Marshalsea prisoners are paid to Mr. Colwell, the chief turnkey, and the remainder to Mr. Temple for the other prisoners.

The 15*s.* a year is paid to the churchwardens of St. Laurence Jewry as their collector.

The master and warden take annually 10*s.*, and the clerk is paid 3*s.* 4*d.*, which is included in the annual annuities.

MARTIN'S GIFT.

Giles Martin, by his will of the 1st August, 1630, and a codicil of the 22nd May, 1631, gave to the Company 450*l.* on condition to pay 10*l.* a year to the poor of the parish of Yarcombe, Devon, and he also gave to the Company 125*l.* to purchase land of 5*l.* a year to be paid to the parson and churchwardens of Mamhead, in the county of Devon, for binding out poor apprentices, setting the poor to work, or relief of the poor of the parish as the parson and churchwardens should think fit.

On the Yarcombe gift there were 19 years arrears or 190*l.*, and on the Mamhead gift 18½ years or 92*l.* 10*s.* These sums are invested in 237*l.* 10*s.* 8*d.* 3*l.* per cent. Reduced annuities for Yarcombe, and 115*l.* 12*s.* 9*d.* like stock for Mamhead. The payments, including the respective dividends, are annually made, viz. 17*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.* to the rector of Yarcombe and 8*l.* 9*s.* 4*d.* to the rector of Mamhead.

SIR R. MARTIN'S GIFT.

Sir Roger Martin, by his will dated 8th September, 1573, gave to the Company 200*l.*, to be lent to poor young men at 4*l.* per cent. and the interest given to poor prisoners. The capital is not lent and exists only as a charge. The 8*l.* a year is paid to Mr. T. Temple, in respect of the prisons of Ludgate and Newgate and the Wood Street and Poultry Compters. There is also paid to the same account interest on 144*l.* cash, which pursuant to a recommendation of the sub-committee of the 4th May, 1768, was invested in Old South Sea annuities, and was subsequently converted into and is now represented by a portion of 27,028*l.* 16*s.* 4*d.* Reduced annuities. The exact sum of stock applicable to this Charity has not been separated, but with the arrears on Marsh's and F. Clarke's Charities is appropriated as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
Ludgate	-	50	17	3 3 l. per cent Reduced annuities.
Newgate	-	56	14	5 " "
Wood Street
Compter	-	50	17	3 " "
Poultry	-	279	0	6 " "
	437	9	5	like stock.

The dividends on this stock, amounting to 13*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.* annually, are also paid to Mr. Temple on account of the said City prisons.

As to the estates upon which this annual charge of 8*l.* is secured (see Hilson's Charity).

LADY MICO'S ALMSHOUSES.

Dame Jane Mico, by her will dated the 1st July, 1670, gave the Company 1,500*l.* to build almshouses for 10 poor widows of the age of 50 years or upwards, and with the rest land should be bought for a yearly revenue to be equally divided among them yearly. The fund and interest received in respect of this charity had in 1692 amounted to 2,980*l.* 5*s.* 9*d.* Of this 780*l.* 5*s.* 9*d.* was laid out in building almshouses at Stepney, upon land legally vested in the Company. The Company are possessed of a large estate at Stepney, either as belonging to the estate of Dean Colet or in their own right, or partly in the right of one and partly in that of the other. The almshouses, consisting of 10 houses of one storey, were built on a plot of ground at the back of the parish church, affording considerable space in the front and rear of the houses. These houses the Company have recently rebuilt entirely at their own expense (each house having two rooms and a kitchen) at a cost of 2,945*l.* 10*s.* 11*d.*

The endowment fund consists of 2,200*l.*, the residue of the original bequest, which by order of the Court of the Company of the 20th April and 1st September 1692 "was to lie on the Company's hands at interest at 4*l.* per cent," producing 88*l.* a year. This 88*l.* a year forms part of the 548*l.* 1*s.* "Money Legacy Charities."

The arrears of interest which accumulated on this gift was invested in 1,879*l.* 2*s.* 8*d.* South Sea annuities, and is now represented by 2,114*l.* 8*s.* 6*d.* 3*l.* per cent. Reduced annuities.

	£	s.	d.
The interest charged on the Company, including rent and repairs, but excluding the clerk's allowance	-	86	0 0
The dividends on the stock	-	63	8 6
	149	8	6

The expenditure in respect of the almshouses and their inmates is about 400*l.* per annum. The particulars of this outlay in 1859 was as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
Cash paid 10 poor widows, 30 l. each	300	0	0
" " apothecary, 1 year	31	10	0
" " nurses attending inmates	33	6	0
" " water rate	7	10	0
" " gardener	5	0	0
" " insurance	3	7	6
" " poor rates, sewer, and general rates	24	6	8
	£405	0	2

The sum of 2*l.* a year is paid annually to the clerk of the Company on account of his allowance out of the 88*l.* charged as above stated. The 1*l.* 5*s.*, formerly taken as rent and carried to Dean Colet's estate, has not been appropriated for half a century. I presume the Company has treated the site of the almshouses as belonging to the Charity.

In the year 1859 nothing was received in respect of Mrs. Fermor's estate, and the Company vested 255*l.* 18*s.* 7*d.* from their own funds. There is always an excess of expense thus provided for.

The almshouses are occupied by ten poor widows, none of whom are widows of liverymen as freemen of the Company, but all are widows of freemen of London, and, according to a rule laid down by the Company, must be about 55 years of age, and not possessing an income of 20*l.* in real property, or of 30*l.* from all sources. They are chosen by the General Court of the Company.*

PERRY'S GIFT.

Hugh Perry, by his will of the 20th April 1630, gave the Company 200*l.*, to be lent to two young men, paying 3*l.* apiece yearly for six morning lectures at St. Antholin's 20*s.* apiece yearly for ever, and also a further sum of 270*l.* to purchase lands and hereditaments of 13*l.* a year for a weekly lecture at St. Bartholomew's, Royal Exchange, viz., 12*l.* to the lecturer, and 1*l.* to the clerk and sexton.

The sum of 6*l.* a year is paid by the Company to Robert Miller, "receiver of St. Antholin's rents for the feoffees." On referring to my report on that parish it will appear that a scheme for the lecturer's fund was settled in the Court of Chancery in 1841, including this payment. The 12*l.* a year for the lecture on every Saturday immediately preceding the Sunday on which the monthly communion is celebrated at Bartholomew, Royal Exchange, is paid to the Rev. Charles Marshall. The 1*l.* a year is paid to the sexton.

THOMAS RICH'S GIFT.

A portion of the benefaction of this donor was 100*l.*, to be lent to young freemen of the Company, and the interest thereon at 3*s.* 4*d.* a year to be paid.

The beadle	0	10	0
	£1	13	4

The annual sums are paid accordingly.

SIR T. RIVETT'S GIFT.

Sir Thomas Rivett, by his will, 1st October 1582, gave to the Company 200*l.*, to be lent to four young men, who should distribute every Sunday, in St. Margaret, Lothbury, London, and Chippenham, Cambridgeshire, 13 penny loaves to 13 poor. The sum of 2*l.* 12*s.* a year is paid to the churchwardens of St. Margaret, Lothbury, and another sum of 2*l.* 12*s.* a year is paid to the churchwardens of Chippenham, together with the produce of an investment of 47*l.* 9*s.* cash, for 18½ years arrears, invested in 59*l.* 6*s.* 5*d.* Reduced annuities, producing a further sum of 1*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.* per annum, making together 4*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.*

* LADY MICO'S CHARITY.

A scheme was established under the authority of an order of the Board dated 10th July 1874, by which it was directed that in consideration of the investment by the Mercers' Company out of the then corporate funds of the sum of 1,120*l.* in the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in trust for Dean Colet's

A 14546.

STATHAM, OR SLATHAM'S GIFT.

Michael Slatham, or Stattham, by his will of the 2nd October 1538, bequeathed to the Company 500 marks (33*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*), to be disposed of at the appointment and oversight of the Master and Wardens amongst young men at interest at 5*l.* per cent., and the interest to or for the relief and sustentation of poor people in such hospital or place in England where the King would give license.

The sum of 16*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* in respect of interest is annually paid to St. Bartholomew's Hospital.

SYMOND'S CHARITIES.

Peter Symonds, by his will of the 24th April 1586, directed, under an indenture by which the Mercers' Company had covenanted to pay an annuity of 10*l.* a year for ever, after the death of himself and his wife, that the following payments should be made:—

	£	s.	d.
To Allhallows, Lombard Street	3	2	8
To poor people in the Mercers' Chapel, every Friday, 12 penny loaves, and, if not distributed, the benefit of one half to Christ's Hospital, and the other to the city of Winchester	2	12	0
To the city of Winchester	4	2	0
To two clerks at the Hall	0	3	4

The payment made to the churchwardens of Allhallows annually is, besides the original gift of 3*l.* 2*s.* 8*d.*, the sum of 1*l.* 14*s.* 4*d.* for interest on the sum of 57*l.* 4*s.* 9*d.*, 3*l.* per cent. Reduced annuities, which represent now the 45*l.* 15*s.* 8*d.* cash, for the arrears under the resolution of 1768 before referred to. This makes together the annual payment of 4*l.* 17*s.* for the benefit of the parish of Allhallows, Lombard Street.

Bread Distribution.

The Commissioners of Inquiry say (p. 297) that the "distribution of bread in Mercers' Chapel has not taken place for many years. The accumulation of the money destined to that purpose from the year 1763 to 1818 has been laid out in the purchase of 250*l.* consols, producing a dividend of 7*l.* 10*s.* The immediate cause of the suspension of this distribution seems to have been the discontinuance of any service in the chapel on Fridays, and a further reason appears to exist in the inconvenience which would arise from the assembling of paupers therein. It is stated that the Company do not well know how to dispose of the money, as they cannot strictly adhere to the directions of the will. It appears to us that no great difficulty could exist in adopting some plan of distribution which might effect the intention of the donor as nearly as the alteration of circumstances will admit. With respect to the accumulated arrears, we would observe that, as by the terms of the will the benefit of the Charity, if not distributed by the Company, is to be divided between Christ's Hospital and the city of Winchester, those two bodies appear to be entitled to the accumulations already invested, and to all that may accrue, until the Company have devised some means of recommencing the distribution."

It appears that the accumulation of stock on this account in 1824 had amounted to 300*l.*, and this, in conformity with the recommendations of the Commissioners of Inquiry, the Company transferred in equal moieties to Christ's Hospital in London and Christ's Hospital in Winchester, together with 8*l.* 17*s.* 3½*d.* to each institution for uninvested arrears. Since that period the 2*l.* 12*s.* per annum has been equally divided between the same two establishments, 1*l.* 6*s.* being paid to each annually. The receipts are given by the Treasurer of Christ's Hospital, London, and by the Steward or Secretary of the Hospital in Winchester.

City of Winchester.

The Commissioners of Inquiry say (p. 298) that "the annuity of 4*l.* 2*s.* to the City of Winchester had not been paid for many years. In the year 1813, a claim estate, the almshouses and their site and appurtenances used and occupied by the inmates of Lady Mico's almshouses should be settled in perpetuity in trust for the purposes of that Charity.

This arrangement was carried out by the Company, and the consideration money of 1,120*l.* was invested in the purchase of 1,207*l.* 11*s.* consols in the name of the Official Trustees in trust for Dean Colet's estate.

G

" was presented purporting to be on the behalf of the conservators and governors of Christ's Hospital in Winchester, founded by Peter Symonds, for 1644. for 40 years rentcharge at 4*l.* 2*s.* per annum, from the year 1774, and the Court of Assistants made an order that their clerk should pay these arrears on receiving a proper discharge, which order was communicated by letter to the person who presented the claim, but nothing further has been heard of it. The Company declare themselves ready to pay the arrears to the present time, whenever a proper authority to receive them is produced."

It appears that in the year 1824 the arrears of the payment to the Mayor and Corporation of Winchester amounted to 342*l.* 10*s.* 1*d.* 3*l.* per cent. consols, an uninvested sum of 84*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* up to the 11th October 1824, and half year's dividend on the stock, 5*l.* 2*s.* 9*d.* The stock was transferred in that year to the Mayor of Winchester for the time being, and the two sums of cash, and the annual charge of 4*l.* 2*s.* paid to him. The like sum of 4*l.* 2*s.* has been ever since paid.

The clerk of the hall receives the 3*s.* 4*d.*

WALTHALL'S GIFT.

Alderman William Walthall bequeathed by his will of the 16th July 1608, to the Company the sum of 500*l.* to be put out to ten young men of the Company, 50*l.* to a man, each paying 40*s.* a year, of which interest,—

To the poor children of Christ's Hospital, 10*l.*

To three of the poorest scholars of Cambridge, 9*l.*

To the wardens, 1*l.*

The 10*l.* per annum is regularly paid to Christ's Hospital, as well as the 1*l.* to the wardens.

With regard to the payment to the poor scholars, the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 6 page 229) remark, that they " have not been applied for for many years," and add that, " the accumulations thereof had been invested in the purchase of 900*l.* 3*l.* per cent. consols." The Commissioners further say " the non-application of this benefaction appears to have arisen in a great measure from a difficulty felt by the Company in ascertaining who were entitled to receive it under the description of persons 'commencing 'master of arts.' It appears to us that the intentions of the donor would be sufficiently complied with by paying the money to poor scholars on taking their master's degree towards defraying the expense thereof."

After this report, and as it appears in or about October 1824, the stock was increased by a further investment of cash, making together the sum of 1,100*l.* 3*l.* per cent consols, the cost of which was 830*l.* 9*s.* 8*d.* cash. In 1826, the Company began to grant allowances to poor members of the University of Cambridge, in aid of the expenses of taking their master of arts degrees.

The Company now receive more applications than can be supplied yearly. They are generally from poor curates or other clergy. There are at present seven applications, of which the master and wardens select the poorest. The payment is made on the production of the University Calendar, or the College Certificate, showing that the degree has been taken. The dividends and charge make 42*l.* a year, or three allowances of 14*l.* each.

WESTALL'S GIFT.

Daniel Westall, by his will 26th October 1717, gave to the Company 100*l.* to pay 40*s.* per annum for two sermons at the Mercers' Chapel on Christmas and the following Sunday; and he gave 3*l.* per annum to 12 poor members of the Company, viz., 5*s.* apiece on Shrove Tuesday, and he bequeathed the residue of his estate to the poor children of Christ's Hospital, with power for the Mercers' Company to nominate four boys to the hospital.

And by a deed of the 28th March 1721 between Christ's Hospital of the one part, and the Mercers' Company of the other part, the governors of the hospital covenanted to pay 3*l.* a year to 12 poor members of the Company, and to admit into the hospital yearly four boys, children of the members of the Mercers' Company nominated by the said Company.

The 2*l.* a year which forms part of the 548*l.* 1*s.* charged on the Company's estates are paid to the preacher of two sermons in the Company's chapel.

The Governors of Christ's Hospital pay to the Mercers' Company under the above indenture 3*l.* a year, which is given in sums of 5*s.* apiece at Easter to 12 persons either members of the Company, widows, or daughters of members. The same persons also receive other benefactions both from the charities and the bounty of the Company.

The number of presentations to Christ's Hospital is rarely full, as there are not sons of members of the Mercers' Company requiring them. There are now seven boys in the school on this foundation, the Company claiming under this endowment the right to nominate four boys yearly to remain eight years, being 32 on the books at the same time.

The following Table exhibits the amount of the foregoing " money legacy charities," arranged in three columns; the first column showing the interest payable in respect of the original endowment, and forming the amount of the present charge on the estates of the Company; the second column showing the amount of additional capital stock held by the Company on account of the several charities arising from accumulations; and the third column the additional income of each charity as the produce of such accumulations:—

This charge has been subsequently provided for in part by a sum of 4,095*l.* 13*s.* 10*d.* consols appropriated by the Company in 1838 to meet the lectureships, but the dividends of which amount only to 122*l.* 17*s.* 4*d.* The residue of the stipend, which the Company have fixed at 100*l.* a year each, is made out of the Company's own property. Their liability as trustees is in this matter somewhat undefined. (See my report on Lady Campden's Charities.)

The above charges comprise the entire interest account, making up the annual sum of 548*l.* 1*s.*, and representing a capital fund of 14,769*l.*, being the amount stated in the schedule as the total capital of the various donations from which that interest is derived.

The schedule contains also the following additional capital sums not described as bearing interest.

200*l.*, the gift of John Banks, to be lent to young men at 2*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* per cent., for the better performance of the uses for which he gave the lands at Holloway.

1,000*l.*, the gift of Thomas Papillon, to afford such charitable relief as the Company shall find convenient to any person or persons lineally descended from him as shall be in want.

The estates and funds on which the " Money Legacy Charities" are secured are described in the deeds of settlement referred to in the statute 4 Geo. 3rd, above mentioned. The principal deeds are dated the 3rd and 4th of October 1699, and made between the Company of the one part, and Sir William Hedges and 20 other persons, trustees, of the other part. The schedule to this deed sets forth the estates thereby charged in detail, specifying every tenement and the lease under which it was held and the rent which it yielded, occupying several skins of parchment. I have thought it necessary that a record of the property charged with this annual sum should appear in this report; but instead of taking the descriptions as they are contained in the schedule, which would not in many cases (perhaps scarcely in any) afford the means of identifying the property at this day, the clerk of the Company has at my request furnished me with the present description and rental of the property to which the charge extends, and which are as follows:—

It appears, therefore, that the interest of the money legacies, which under the deeds of 1699 and the statutes of the 22 Geo. II. and 4 Geo. III. is made a charge on the estates of the Company, and also on the trust estates (subject to prior charges and trusts), is secured upon property that now produces a gross annual income of about 40,000*l*., from which, however, there must be taken the trusts and charges to which the several estates are subject prior to the charge created in favour of the interest of the money legacies.

PART IV.

MONEY LEGACIES FOR LOANS.

The money legacies for loans now applied in that form consist of funds derived from ten distinct endowments, of which abstracts are next hereinafter set forth under the respective names of their founders, viz. :—

	£	s.	d.

	£1,750	0	0

And to the sum thus produced there are added portions of two other gifts, one made by Richard Fishborne, and the other by Ann Duckett. The particulars of these gifts are set forth amongst the "Money Legacy Charities" of which the Mercers' Company are the administrators or depositaries. The portions administered as part of the money legacies for loans, and included in the suit hereafter stated, are—

DORMER'S CHARITY.

Sir Michael Dormer, by his will of the 7th September 1545, gave to the Mercers' Company the sum of 200*l*. to be lent to four young men of the Company. This Charity was not the subject of any Report by the Commissioners of Inquiry, and probably was not known to them. The will is more fully set forth in the decree of the Court of Chancery, made on the hearing of the cause of the Attorney General v. Mercers' Company, on the 17th of January 1833, for further directions wherein the finding of the Master is recited. The above capital sum of 200*l*. forms a part of the "Money Legacies for Loans" dealt with in that account, which related not only to that but to several other sums of money, amounting in the whole to 2,850*l*. as hereinbefore stated.

CULVERWELL'S CHARITY.

Richard Culverwell, by his will of the 1st December 1584, gave 50*l*. to the Mercers' Company to be lent freely for five years to one of the godliest poor merchants of Flanders, being a mercer and dwelling in London. The will, which does not appear in the Reports of the Commissioners of Inquiry, is recited in the decree referred to in the last case, and the fund is part of that dealt with in the same cause.

SHARLES' CHARITY.

Margaret Charles, by her will of the 2nd September 1600, gave to the Mercers' Company 100*l*. to be lent to five poor trademen, being free of the Company. The Charity was not reported upon by the Commissioners of Inquiry. The will is set forth in, and the fund was dealt with by, the proceedings in the suit mentioned in Dormer's case.

ROBINSON'S CHARITY.

Mary Robinson, by her will, in the year 1618, gave to the Company 200*l*. to be lent to the young men of the Company by 50*l*. apiece for three years freely. The will is set forth fully in the proceedings in the cause Attorney General v. Mercers' Company, in which the fund was dealt with as stated in Dormer's case.

QUARLES' CHARITY.

William Quarles, by his will of the 24th August 1592, gave 100*l*. to the Mercers' Company to be lent to two young men of the Company for four years, paying nothing for it. On this I refer to the Report on the Charity of Sir Michael Dormer, before stated. The disposition and administration of the gift are the same as that of the fund there mentioned.

HOLLIDAY'S CHARITY.

William Holliday, by his will of the 16th December 1683, gave to the Mercers' Company the sum of 200*l*. to be lent to two young men free of the said Company. This has been hitherto an unreported case so far as the records of this office are concerned. It has been dealt with, and the fund invested and administered as in Dormer's case.

POOLE'S CHARITY.

John Poole, by his will, dated in or previous to the year 1660, gave to the Mercers' Company 100*l*., to be lent to two young men of the said Company. This was not before reported. The will is fully set forth, and the fund is dealt with as shown in the report on Dormer's case, and the proceedings on the suit hereafter stated.

JOHN DUCKETT'S CHARITY.

John Duckett, by his will, in or previous to the year 1666, gave to the Mercers' Company 200*l*., to be lent out to three young men free of the Company for five years gratis. The fund forms part of the 2,850*l*., the subject of the suit relating to "Money Legacies for Loans," hereafter stated. The circumstances are the same as in Dormer's case, as to investment and administration. The will is set forth more fully in the proceedings in the cause.

SLEIGH'S CHARITY.

Edmund Sleigh, by his will, in or about the year 1680, gave to the said Company 100*l*., to be lent to a young man free of the said Company gratis for five years. This is governed by the same suit which dealt with Sir Michael Dormer's and the other following Charities which precedes this in my Report. The same observations apply as to the recital of the will in the order hereafter stated.

SIR SAMUEL MICO'S CHARITY.

Sir Samuel Mico, by his will of the 25th September 1665, gave to the Mercers' Company 500*l*., to be lent to five young men for three years gratis. The fund forms part of the 2,850*l*. administered as stated hereafter, according to the scheme settled in this suit. The will is stated in the recital of the Master's Report hereafter set forth.

The Commissioners of Inquiry in their Report (vol. 6, p. 284) say, "It will be seen that many of the charities consist of sums of money given to the Company, in trust to lend them, in different proportions, to young men of the Company, on good security, for limited periods and at certain specified rates of interest, and to apply the interest so paid to various charitable uses. It appears that of late years these loans have been very rarely made, from the want of applications for such assistance. The Company are, however, ready to advance the loans on proper applications being made for them, and in the meantime they pay the “ interest directed to be reserved to the purposes specified by the respective donors.”

The same observation would still be correct, so far as relates to loans of charitable funds bearing interest; but certain loans have subsequently been directed to be made without interest, and are applied for and made to members of the Company accordingly, upon the personal security of themselves and two approved householders.

The Company in this respect, act under the directions of the Court of Chancery, made upon a friendly information filed in 1832, by the Attorney General, at the relation of George Palmer, against the Wardens and Commonalty. The proceedings and order in this suit are set forth in the following decree on further directions.

Money Legacies for Loans.

ORDER OF THE MASTER OF THE ROLLS.

At Westminster, Master of the Rolls, Thursday, the 17th day of January, in the third year of the reign of His Majesty King William the Fourth, 1833. Between His Majesty's Attorney General, at the relation of George Palmer the younger, Informant.

The Wardens and Commonalty of the Mystery of Mercers of the City of London, Defendants.

This cause coming on the 13th day of December 1831, to be heard and debated before his Honor the Master of the Rolls, in the presence of counsel learned on both sides; and the pleadings being then opened, and the substance of the information being that accounts might be taken of the several sums of 200*l.*, 50*l.*, 100*l.*, 200*l.*, 100*l.*, 200*l.*, 1,000*l.*, 100*l.*, 200*l.*, 100*l.*, 500*l.*, and 100*l.*, and of the interest and accumulations thereof received by the said Defendants, or by their order, or for their use, and of their application thereof, and that the several charitable gifts might be respectively established and carried into effect under the directions of the Court, and that if necessary a scheme or schemes might be submitted to one of the Masters of the Court for the due application of the said several and respective sums, and that for that purpose all usual and necessary directions might be given for the benefit of those entitled to the said charitable gifts, or that such direction might be given touching the premises as to the Court should seem meet or the nature of this case might require. Whereupon and upon debate of the matter and hearing what was alleged by the Counsel on both sides, his Honor did order and decree that the defendants should pay into the Bank, with the privity of the Accountant General of this Court, to the credit of this cause, the sum of 2,850*l.*, being the amount of the several sums of 200*l.*, 50*l.*, 100*l.*, 200*l.*, 100*l.*, 200*l.*, 1,000*l.*, 100*l.*, 200*l.*, 100*l.*, 500*l.*, and 100*l.*, received by them on account of the several charities in question. And it was ordered that the same when paid in should be laid out in the purchase of Bank 3*l.* per cent. annuities, in the name and with the privity of the said Accountant General, in trust in this cause. And the said Accountant General was to declare the trust thereof accordingly, subject to the further order of this Court, and for the purposes aforesaid the usual directions were given. And it was ordered that it should be referred to the Master of this Court, in rotation, to approve of and settle a scheme for the due application of the charity funds in question in this cause according to the wills of the several testators, or as near thereto as circumstances would admit. And it was ordered that His Majesty's Attorney General should have a notice to attend the said Master on the said scheme. And it was ordered that the parties should produce before the said Master on oath, all deeds, papers, and writings in their custody or power relating thereto, and be examined upon interrogatories, as the said Master should direct. And it was ordered that the said Master should tax the relators his costs of this suit up to that time. And it was ordered that the same when taxed be paid by the defendants. And his Honor did reserve the considerations of all further directions and of the subsequent costs of this suit until after the said Master should have made his report. And any of the parties were to be at liberty to apply to this Court as they might be advised.

That in pursuance of the said decree, Sir Giffin Wilson, the Master, to whom the said cause was referred, made his report bearing date the 23rd day of July 1832, which stands absolutely confirmed by an order dated the 26th day of November 1832, and thereby certified that he had been attended by the clerk in Court and the solicitor of the relator, and by the clerk in Court and solicitor for the defendants, and by the clerk in Court and solicitor for His Majesty's Attorney General, and in their presence he had considered the matters referred to him by the said decree.

And he found in the pleadings in this cause it was alleged and in the answer of the defendants admitted, that Sir Michael Dormer, knight, alderman, and mercer of London, by his will in writing bearing date the seventh day of September 1545, gave and bequeathed unto the Wardens and Commonalty of the Mystery of Mercers of the City of London, in the words and figures following, that is to say, I give and bequeath to the Company of Mercers and to the wardens and rulers of the said Company 200*l.* to be paid into four young men's hands of the same Company that be toward and intend to thrive, not being in the said livery, to have every of them four 50*l.* apiece in occupying upon good surety to the Wardens and Company for the repayment thereof again when it should please them to require it, to be put unto any other men's hands of the same Company upon a lawful warning, and also once a year about the time that it might please God to send for me that the four young men shall meet together at the Mercers' Church and there desire one of the chaplains to say Mass for all Christian souls, and every one of them to give the priest or offer at the same Mass one penny, and to give to the clerk of the Company at the same Mass yearly twenty pence and to the keeper of the chapel four pence; that is to be done yearly as it please God that this money shall be occupied as aforesaid, I pray God that this may be put to good use to the pleasure of God and the maintenance of young men to God's pleasure; and if the Wardens and Assistants shall think that the four young men shall be overcharged, then that they shall diminish as much of the charges as they shall think good according to their discretions. And he found that the said Sir Michael Dormer afterwards died, and that upon his death his will was duly proved, and that the said legacy of 200*l.* so bequeathed as aforesaid was paid to the Mercers' Company in trust for such purposes aforesaid; but such last-mentioned will had not been produced before him.

Dormer's Charity.

And he found by the pleadings in this cause it was likewise alleged, and that by the answer of the said Defendants admitted, that Richard Culverwell, of London, merchant, by his will in writing dated the first day of December 1584, gave and bequeathed to the said Company of Mercers in the words and figures following; that is to say, I give and bequeath to the Company of Mercers in London 50*l.*, with condition that the said 50*l.* may be lent freely for the term of five years to one of the godliest poor merchants of the Low Country of Flanders, being a mercer and dwelling in London, at the discretion of the Wardens of the Mercers for the time being: and after one have had it five years, then another person to have it other five years, and so from time to time one after another to have it, but putting in sufficient sureties to the said wardens for the repayment thereof at the end of five years, and not one person to have it longer than five years. And he found that the said Richard Culverwell afterwards died, and that his will was duly proved in the month of February 1585, and that the said legacy of 50*l.* was paid to the said Mercers' Company in trust for the purposes mentioned in the will of the said Richard Culverwell, but such last-mentioned will had not been produced before him.

Culverwell's Charity.

And he found by the pleadings in this cause it was further alleged, and by the answer of the defendants admitted, that Margaret Charles, of London, widow of Charles, mercer, by her will in writing dated the 2nd day of September 1600, gave and bequeathed unto the said Mercers' Company, in the words and figures following, that is to say, I willed and bequeathed unto the Master and Company of Mercers of London 100*l.* to be paid within one year after my decease, upon the special trust and to the intent that the same may be from time to time for ever lent by them unto five such several poor tradesmen for two years together, and not above, as shall be thought most meet by the said Master and Wardens of the Company of Mercers, being free of the said Mystery of Mercers, and my will is that if any, which had been my servants, desire any part thereof, that then, they finding and putting in sufficient surety to the Corporation of the said Mystery of Mercers for the repayment of the same at the end of two years as aforesaid, shall be preferred to have the same before any others. And he found that the said Margaret Charles afterwards died, and that upon her death her will was proved, and the said legacy of 100*l.* so bequeathed as aforesaid was duly paid to the said Mercers' Company in trust for the purposes in her said will mentioned, but such last-mentioned will had not been produced before him.

Charles' Charity

And he found by the pleadings in this cause it was alleged, and by the answer of the defendants it was admitted, that Mary Robinson, by her will dated in the year 1618, gave and bequeathed to the said Company of Mercers in the words and figures following, that is to say, I give and bequeath to the Worshipful Company of Mercers 200*l.* in money to be lent to the young men of the said Company of Mercers by 50*l.* apiece for three years freely, putting in good sureties for the same, and so from time to time for ever. And he found that the said Mary Robinson died in the year 1618, and that upon her death her will was proved on the 26th day of September 1618, and that the said legacy of 200*l.* so bequeathed as aforesaid was paid to the said Mercers' Company in trust for the purposes in the said will of the said Mary Robinson mentioned; but such last-mentioned will hath not been produced before him.

And he found that by the pleadings in this cause it was further alleged and admitted by the answer of the defendants, that William Quarles, late of the city of London, mercer, by his will in writing dated the 24th day of August 1592, gave and bequeathed to the said Company of Mercers, in the words and figures following, that is to say, to the Company of Mercers, to the two young men putting in two sufficient sureties for four years, paying nothing for it, the sum of 100*l.* And he found that the said William Quarles afterwards died, and that upon his death his will was properly proved on the 11th day of January 1608, and that the said legacy of 100*l.* so bequeathed as aforesaid was to be paid to the said Mercers' Company in trust for the purposes in the said will mentioned, but such last-mentioned will had not been produced before him.

And he found by the pleadings in this cause it was further alleged and admitted by the answer of the defendants that William Holliday, late one of the aldermen of the city of London, by his will, dated the 16th day of December 1623, gave and bequeathed unto the said Company of Mercers, in the words and figures following, that is to say, I give and bequeath to the Company of Mercers, London, the sum of 200*l.*, to be lent unto two young men, free of the said Company, for five years, putting in three good and sufficient securities for the same, which five years being expired the said money to be repaid, and the same to be lent to two others, free of the said Company aforesaid; and if any of the three sureties shall happen to die or decay, then others, that be sufficient and able, shall be put in the place of them so dying or decaying; or, in default thereof, the money to be repaid within one month after warning given for each of which 100*l.* there shall be given by him that shall receive the same to the Renter Warden of the said Company for the time being for his pains taken therein the sum of 6*s.* 8*d.*, and to the clerk of the said Company of Mercers the sum of 3*s.* 4*d.*; and in the disposing thereof my request is that my countrymen of Gloucestershire shall be preferred before others. And he found that the said William Holliday afterwards died, and that upon his death the said will was duly proved, and that the said legacy of 200*l.* was paid to the said Mercers' Company in trust for the purposes mentioned in the said will of the said William Holliday, but such last-mentioned will had not been produced before him.

And he found by the pleadings in this cause it was further alleged and admitted by the answer of the defendants that Richard Fishbourne, citizen and mercer of London, by his will in writing, dated the 30th day of March 1625, gave and bequeathed unto the said Mercers' Company amongst other bequests to them, one bequest in the words and figures following, that is to say: I give and bequeath to the said Wardens and Commonalty of the Mystery of Mercers, London, the sum of 1,000*l.* to be lent out to five young men free of the Company by 200*l.* in each parcel for five years gratis, upon bond with three good sureties for every parcel to be allowed by a Court of Assistants, and so from five years to five years for ever. And my desire is that unto this money there may be preferred in the first place, shopkeepers of the trade of the mercery, next silkmen, then merchants, and other trades free of the said Company, and such as be not of the livery of the same. And if any that shall have the occupying of any of this money be afterwards called into the livery, then such to pay in their moneys within three months after they shall be of the livery, and the same to be lent out to others as aforesaid. And he found that the said Richard Fishbourne died in the year 1625, and that his will was proved on the 14th day of May 1625, and that the said legacy of 1,000*l.* was paid to the said Mercers' Company in trust for the purposes in his said will mentioned, but which last-mentioned will had not been produced before him.

And he found that by the pleadings in this cause it was further alleged and admitted by the answer of the Defendants that John Poole, by his will dated in or previous to the year 1660, by his will gave and bequeathed to the Company of Mercers, in the words and figures following, that is to say: I give to the Company of Mercers the sum of 100*l.* to be lent out, on good security, to two young men of the said Company, vizt., 50*l.* a piece for four years, gratis, and then to be called in and lent to other young men of the said Company, and so from time to time to others. And he found that the said John Poole was dead, and that his said will was proved, and the said legacy of 100*l.* was paid to the said Mercers' Company in trust for the purposes in his said will mentioned, but which will had not been produced before him.

And he found by the pleadings in this cause it was further alleged and by the answer of the Defendants admitted that John Duckett by his will in writing in or previous to the year 1666 gave to the said Mercers' Company in the words and figures following that is to say: I give to the Wardens and Commonalty of the Mystery of Mercers of the City of London 200*l.*, to be lent out to three young men, free of the said Company, for five years gratis, that is to say 100*l.* to one young man, and 50*l.* apiece to two other young men, each of them putting in two sufficient sureties to be allowed by a Court of Assistants of the Mystery of Mercers for the repayment thereof at five years end; and so from five years to five years, the same 200*l.* to other young men in manner and form aforesaid, for ever. And that the said John Duckett afterwards died, and that his will was proved, and that the said legacy of 200*l.* was paid to the said Mercers' Company in trust for the purposes in the said will mentioned, but which will had not been produced before him.

And he found by the pleadings in this cause alleged and by the answer of the Defendants admitted, that Edmund Sleigh, Alderman, by his will dated sometime in or about the year 1660, gave to the said Company of Mercers, in the words and figures following, that is to say: I give to the Company of Mercers of London, whereof I am a brother, 100*l.* of lawful money of England, to be lent to a young man, free of the said Company, gratis, for five years upon good security by bond of the penalty of 200*l.* sterling, with three sureties such as the Master, Wardens, and Assistants of the said Company, and their successors, shall like and approve, conditioned to be paid at the end of five years then next following, and so from thenceforth constantly and successively upon good security with sureties to be approved of as afore is specified, and to be repaid at five years end as afore is expressed, and so to be continued successively for ever for the preferment and encouragement of young men free of the said Company; but my desire is that a silkman be preferred in the first place, provided if the party be brought into the livery, he to pay in the monies within thirty days after. And he found that the said Edmund Sleigh died, and that his said will was proved, and that the said legacy of 100*l.* was paid to the said Mercers' Company in trust for the purposes in his said will, but which will had not been produced before him.

And by the pleadings in this cause he further found it was alleged, and by the answer of the Defendants admitted that Sir Samuel Mico, knight, by his will dated the 25th day of September 1665, gave and bequeathed to the said Company of Mercers, in the words and figures following, that is to say: To the Company of Mercers, in London, whereof I am a member, I give 500*l.* to be lent to five young men of that Company, 100*l.* each for three years, gratis, on good security, to the liking of the Assistants of that Company, and so to the other five young men every three years successively, gratis, on the like security. And he found that the said Sir Samuel Mico died in the year 1665, and that his said will was proved, and that the said legacy of 500*l.* was paid to the said Mercers' Company in trust for the purposes in his said will, but which will had not been produced before him.

And he found by the pleading in this cause it was further alleged, and admitted by the answer of the defendants, that Ann Duckett, by her will bearing date in or about the year 1660, gave and bequeathed unto the said Mercers' Company, in the words and figures following, that is to say: I give and bequeath unto the Wardens and Commonalty of the Mystery of Mercers of the city of London (meaning the Corporation or body corporate of the same Mystery by whatever name or addition the same is made or known), the sum of 100*l.* to be lent out to one young man free of the said Company, for five years gratis, he entering into bond with three sufficient sureties to be allowed of by a Court of Assistants of the said Mystery for the repayment thereof at the said five years. And my will and meaning is that the said 100*l.* shall be lent out to one other young man free of the said Company in manner and form and upon security as is aforementioned from five years to five years gratis for ever. And he found that the said Ann Duckett died, and that her will was proved, and that the said legacy of 100*l.* was paid to the said Mercers' Company in trust for the purposes in her said will mentioned, but which said will had not been produced before him.

Scheme.

And a scheme had been laid before him on the part of the defendants the Wardens and Commonalty of the Mystery of Mercers of the city of London, whereby it was proposed that they, the said defendants, should from time to time lend out the sum of 2,850*l.*, the amount of the monies received by them on account of the said several charities at present remaining in their hands, notwithstanding the direction contained in the said decree, to pay the same into the Bank with the privy of the Accountant General, to the credit of this cause, to young men free of the said Company of Mercers, whether on the livery or not, in sums not less than 100*l.* each, and not exceeding the sum of 500*l.* each, for five years, without interest, upon bond with two good sureties for every sum to be approved by the Court of Assistants of the said Company, and that the said Company from time to time, while any part of the said funds shall be in their hands, shall cause due notice to be given to the members of the said Company thereof, and that when and so often as the said sum of 2,850*l.*, or any part thereof, shall not be lent out as aforesaid, the same shall, from time to time, be laid out and invested by the said defendants on Government or real securities at interest, with full power to call in and convert the same, or any part thereof, into money when and as the same may be required, to lend the same as aforesaid, without being in any manner liable to any deficiency which may be occasioned by any sale or sales, and the investment thereof, from time to time, on such securities as aforesaid, and that the dividends and interest to arise therefrom, or from such part as shall not for the time being be lent out, shall, at the discretion of the said defendants, either be annually awarded at a Court of Assistants of the said Company, to be held in the month of January in every year, to such child or children of freemen or liverymen of the said Company as shall have completed the term of his, her, or their apprenticeship within the year preceding, in such proportion, if more than one, as the said Court of Assistants should think fit, or should from time to time be applied for and towards the payment of such fees for apprenticing out some one or more child or children of freemen or liverymen of the said Company as the said Court should think proper, but that the said defendants should be at liberty, if they should think fit so to do, out of such dividends and interests as aforesaid, and before applying the same, or any part thereof, for the purposes before mentioned, to make good any loss or deficiency which might arise or be occasioned by sale of the principal sum, or any part thereof, for the purposes of loans as aforesaid. And upon consideration of the matter, he was of opinion the said proposal contained a proper scheme for the due application of the charity funds in question according to the wills of the said several testators, or as near thereto, as circumstances would admit, and he had considered the costs of the relator of this suit to the decree, and the bill of such costs he had taxed at the sum of 59*l.* 15*s.* 4*d.*

And this cause coming on this present day to be heard and debated before the Right Honorable the Master of the Rolls for further directions on the said Master's said report, and as to the matter of subsequent costs reserved by the said decree in the presence of counsel learned on both sides, and the pleadings being again opened upon debate of the matter and hearing of the said decree dated the 13th day of December 1831, and the said report dated the 23rd day of July 1832, and the said order bearing date the 26th day of November 1832 read, and what was alleged by the counsel on both sides, his Honor doth order that the scheme in the said Master's report mentioned for the application of the Charity funds in question in this cause according to the will of the several testators in the pleading in this cause mentioned be confirmed, with the following variations. That the defendants from time to time do lend out the sum of 2,850*l.*, in the said report mentioned, to young men free of the said Company of Mercers, in sums not less than 100*l.* each, and not exceed the sum of 500*l.* in all cases. And it is ordered that the costs of the securities to be taken in such loans be borne and paid by the parties receiving such loans respectively. And it is ordered that the said defendants do from time to time, while any part of the said funds shall be in their hands, cause notice to be given in the "London Gazette," and such public newspapers as they shall think fit, thereof; and that when and so often as the said sum of 2,850*l.*, or any part thereof, shall not be lent out as aforesaid, it is ordered that the same be from time to time laid out and invested by the said defendants in the purchase of 3*l.* per cent. consolidated Bank annuities. And it is ordered that the defendants do retain their own costs, and pay unto the relator his costs of this suit since the last taxation and payment thereof, and also the costs of His Majesty's Attorney-General of this suit to be taxed by the Master as between solicitor and client, out of the charity funds in question in this cause in their hands. And any of the parties are to be at liberty to apply as they may be advised.

The Company publish by notice in the General Court Room that legacies bequeathed by Sir Michael Dormer and others is vested in them to be lent to young men, without interest, upon bond, with approved sureties, as therein mentioned; and they receive applications from freemen according to the scheme. There are generally two or three ready to make application when any sums are repaid, as indeed might be expected, inasmuch as the loan is equivalent in value to a money annuity to the amount of the interest to the period granted. The sums lent to each borrower are generally 500*l.*, but in some cases smaller sums have been lent, if required. The costs of the bond the borrowers themselves pay. The entire sum is now lent out with the exception of 136*l.* 8*s.* 2*d.* The bond is for five years, at the end of which time the repayment is in all cases required. The present borrowers are:—

Pattison	-	-	-	500
Giles	-	-	-	500
Alfred Parker	-	-	-	500
Henry Parker	-	-	-	500
Rd. Hodson	-	-	-	500

The costs of the order were 213*l.* 11*s.* 10*d.*, which being paid out of the 2,850*l.*, left 2,636*l.* 8*s.* 2*d.*, and the present state of the account shows, therefore, the balance above stated. The fund being generally called for as loans under the scheme; the expense of an investment on productive security is not incurred, and no interest has therefore been received applicable to the ultimate purposes mentioned in the order.

LADY CAMPDEN'S MONEY LEGACY FOR LOANS.

VICE-CHANCELLOR'S DECREE.

VICE-CHANCELLOR.

Saturday, the 7th day of May, in the first year of the reign of His Majesty King William the Fourth, 1831.

Between His Majesty's Attorney General at the relation of John Kemble Chapman . Plaintiff and

The Master, Wardens, and Commonalty of the Art or Mystery of Mercers in London Defendants.

This cause coming on this present day to be heard and debated before this court in the presence of counsel learned on both sides, the substance of the plaintiff's bill appeared to be, that the Right Honorable Elizabeth Viscountess Campden, by her will bearing date on or about the 14th day of February 1642, gave and bequeathed to the Wardens and Commonalty of the Mystery of Mercers of London the sum of 1,000*l.*, which she directed was to be lent to eight young men free of the said Company in sums of 125*l.* to each for four years, gratis with good security, to be allowed by the court of assistants, and that the shopkeepers of the mercery were to be first preferred, and next silkmen, all being of the said Company. And if the said Company of Mercers undertook the things by her required she gave them the sum of 300*l.* That the said Elizabeth Viscountess Campden died in 1646, and that upon her death her will was duly proved in the proper Ecclesiastical Court, and that soon afterwards and in or about the year 1650 the said legacy of 1,000*l.* so bequeathed as aforesaid was duly paid to and received by the said Mercers' Company, and that the said Mercers' Company have kept a separate and distinct account thereof, and that the same has by interest, dividends, and accumulations thereof considerably increased, and now amounts to the sum of 20,000*l.* and upwards, which the said Mercers' Company have in their hands in trust for the purposes aforesaid, and that no sums of money whatsoever have at any time been lent or advanced by the said defendants according to the directions contained in the will of the said Elizabeth Viscountess Campden. That in consequence of the circumstances aforesaid a proper scheme or schemes ought to be approved of by one of the Masters of this Court for the due application of the said sum of 1,000*l.* and the accumulations thereof according to the will of the said Elizabeth Viscountess Campden, or as near thereto as circumstances will admit, and that the said defendants ought to account for the said sum of 1,000*l.* and the interest and accumulations thereof come to their hands, and that the same ought to be applied as thereinbefore mentioned. That applications have been made to the said defendants to apply the same according to the directions contained in the will of the said Elizabeth Viscountess Campden. And His Majesty's Attorney General at the relation aforesaid well hoped that they would have complied with such requests, but the defendants refuse to comply, alleging that as there have been no applications for many years past made to the said defendants for any loans as thereinbefore mentioned, and that they have applied the said sum of 1,000*l.* and the interest, dividends, and annual proceeds thereof to their own proper uses, whereas His Majesty's Attorney General charges that the said defendants did from time to time for many years past, as the dividends on the said sum of 1,000*l.* became due, invest the same in the purchase of Government securities, therefore, that the defendants may answer the matters aforesaid, and that an account might be taken of the sum of 1,000*l.* and of the interest, dividends, and accumulations thereof received by the said defendants, or by their or either of their order, or for their or either of their use, and of their application thereof, and that the aforesaid charitable gift might be established and carried into effect under the direction of this Court, and that if necessary a scheme may be submitted to one of the Masters of this Court for the due application of the said sum of 1,000*l.* and the accumulations in respect thereof, and that for such purpose all usual and necessary directions might be given for the benefit of those entitled to the said charitable gift or in such other manner as this Court shall deem meet and the circumstances of the case may require, and to be relieved is the scope of the Plaintiff's bill. Whereto the counsel for the defendants the Wardens and Commonalty of the Mystery of Mercers alleged that they by their answer say they believe that Viscountess Campden did make and publish her will of such date as in the said information mentioned; and that the same, so far as relates to the charitable legacy of 1,000*l.* as in the said information mentioned, is in the words and figures following (that is to say), "I give and bequeath to the said Wardens and Commonalty of the Mystery of Mercers in London the sum of one thousand pounds of lawful money of England to be lent out to eight young men free of that Company by one hundred and twenty-five pounds in each parcel for four years gratis, upon bond with two good securities for every parcel to be allowed by a Court of Assistants, and so from four years to four years for ever. And my desire is that with this money there may be preferred in the first place shopkeepers of the trade of the mercery, and next silkmen, all of them being of the said Company of Mercers, and such as be not on the livery of the said Company, and if any that shall have the use and benefit of any of the said money be afterwards called into the livery of the said Company, then such to pay in their monies within three months next after they shall be of the said livery, and then the same to be lent out to eight others as aforesaid. And if the said Company of Mercers do undertake to perform these things by me herein required to the intent of this my will, then I give and bequeath to the said Company of Mercers the sum of three hundred pounds of lawful money of England. And my will is that both these two last legacies aforesaid shall be paid to one of the said two Companies within one year next after my decease. Provided always, that if the said Company of Mercers do refuse to perform these my requests, touching the impropriations of the one thousand pounds formerly bequeathed for the use of eight young men of the said Company, then my will is that all my legacies above mentioned concerning the impropriations of the one thousand pounds given for the benefit of eight young men and the said three hundred pounds given to the said Company of Mercers for their care and pains, shall not be paid to the said Mercers, and that then the Company of Merchant Tailors of London aforesaid shall have and receive the benefit and disposing of the said legacy touching the impropriations, and the said one thousand pounds given for the benefit of eight young men, and the three hundred pounds given to the said Mercers for their care and pains, to be paid unto them in manner and form as is before mentioned, if the said Company of Merchant

"Tailors will perform my request touching the said two impropriations, and the said one thousand pounds shall then be given to eight young men of their own Company in manner and form as aforesaid. And if both the said two Companies shall refuse to perform these my requests before mentioned, then my will is that all those legacies aforesaid touching the impropriations and the one thousand pounds given to eight young men of one of their Companies and the three hundred pounds given unto them for their care and pains, shall be void unto both the said Companies, and shall then go to my executors or executor towards the better performance of this my will." And say they believe the said Elizabeth Viscountess Campden departed this life at the time in the said information mentioned, and that upon her death her will was duly proved in the proper Ecclesiastical Court, and that inasmuch as the earliest mention that is made in any of the accounts of the said Company of the said legacy is in the year 1651, the defendants believe that in or about the year 1650 the said legacy of one thousand pounds so bequeathed as in the said information mentioned was duly paid to and received by the said Mercers' Company. And believe that the said Mercers' Company have not kept a separate and distinct account of the said legacy, or any account except such as in the said schedule appears, but inasmuch as in the year 1666, at the great fire of London, the hall and other buildings of the said Company were destroyed, and it is believed that a great part of their books and documents were lost or destroyed, the defendants say they believe that before that time other accounts may have been kept; and say that except as appears from the extracts set forth in the said schedule they know not what has been the application of the said legacy or what has become of the same, nor do they know whether the whole or any part thereof has been lost by being lent to persons from whom the monies so lent have not been recovered back, but they deny that the said sum of 1,000*l.* has by interest, dividends, or other accumulations thereof considerably or in any way increased or now amounts to 20,000*l.* and upwards. And submit that from the nature of the trusts of the said will the said Company could not be required to make or account for interest on the said sum of 1,000*l.*, and deny that they have in their hands any such interest, dividends, or accumulations, nor can they state whether the said sum of 1,000*l.* or any sum of money now remain in their hands for the purposes in the said information mentioned, but the said Company are now and always have been ready and willing to apply out of their funds the sum of 1,000*l.* in loans according to the trust and directions of the said will, and say they believe that such sums of money as in the schedule mentioned have been lent or advanced by the said Mercers' Company according to the directions of the will of the said Elizabeth Viscountess Campden, but except as appears in the said schedule the defendants are unable to state as to their belief or otherwise whether any or what sums of money have at any or what times or time been lent out or advanced by the said Mercers' Company according to the directions of the will of the said Elizabeth Viscountess Campden, or how otherwise, and say that the said John Kemble Chapman is not free of the said Mercers' Company, and has not any interest whatever in the said charity, and submit to this Court whether they ought, under the circumstances aforesaid, to account for the said sum of 1,000*l.*, or whether any scheme or schemes ought to be approved in manner in the said information suggested for the application of the said sum of 1,000*l.* according to the will of the said Elizabeth Viscountess Campden, or as near thereto as circumstances will admit. Whereupon and upon debate of the matter and hearing the will of the said Elizabeth Viscountess Campden read, and what was alleged by the counsel on both sides, this Court doth order and decree that the defendants do account for the legacy of 1,000*l.* and interest thereon at the rate of 5*l.* per centum per annum for 20 years. And it is ordered that it be referred to the Master in rotation to compute such interest and to make a separate report thereof. And it is ordered that the Master do approve of a scheme for the application of such legacy and interest according to the will of the testator Elizabeth Viscountess Campden, or as near thereto as circumstances will admit, and he is to state the same to the Court. And it is ordered that he do tax the relator's costs of this suit to this time. And it is ordered that the defendants do pay such costs when so taxed. And this Court doth reserve the consideration of all further directions and the subsequent costs of this suit until after the said Master shall have made his general report, and either of the parties is to be at liberty to apply to this Court as there shall be occasion.

SCHEME.

IN CHANCERY.

Between His Majesty's Attorney General at the relation of John Kemble Chapman, Informant, and

The Master, Wardens, and Commonalty of the Art or Mystery of Mercers in London Defendants.

In pursuance of the decree made on the hearing of this cause, bearing date the seventh day of May, 1831, whereby it was ordered and decreed that the defendants should account for the legacy of 1,000*l.* hereinafter mentioned, and interest thereon at the rate of 5*l.* per centum per annum for 20 years, and that it should be referred to me, as the Master in rotation, to compute such interest, and that I should approve of a scheme for the application of such legacy and interest according to the will of the testatrix, Elizabeth Viscountess Campden, or as near thereto as circumstances will admit, and I was to state the same to the Court, and whereby it was ordered that I should tax the relator's costs of this suit to that time, and that the defendants should pay such costs when taxed. I have been attended by the clerks in Court and solicitors for the relator and for the defendants, and in their presence I have proceeded upon the matters referred to me by the said decree, and I have computed interest at 5*l.* per centum per annum on the said legacy of 1,000*l.* for 20 years, and I find that such interest amounts to the sum of 1,000*l.*, the said legacy and interest making together the sum of 2,000*l.* And a proposed scheme for the application of the said legacy and interest having been laid before me on behalf of the relator, and the will of the said testatrix having been produced and read before me, I find that the Right Honourable Elizabeth Viscountess Campden, the testatrix, by her will bearing date on or about the 14th day of February 1642, thereby gave and bequeathed to the Wardens and Commonalty of the Mystery of Mercers in London the sum of 1,000*l.* of lawful money of England, to be lent to eight young men free of that Company by 125*l.* in each parcel for four years gratis, upon bond, with two good securities for every parcel to be allowed by a Court of Assistants, and so from four years to four years for ever; and her desire was that with this money there might be preferred in the first place shopkeepers of the trade of the mercery, and next silkmen, all of them being of the said Company of Mercers, and such as were not on the livery of the said Company. And if any that should have the use and benefit of any of the said money should be afterwards called into the livery of the said Company, then such to pay in their monies within three months next after they should be of the said livery, and then the same to be lent out to eight others, as aforesaid. And if the said Company of Mercers did undertake to perform those things by her therein required to the intent of her said will, then she gave and bequeathed to the said Company of Mercers the sum of 300*l.* of lawful money of England. And her will was that both these two last legacies aforesaid should be paid within one year next after her decease. Provided always, that if the said Company of Mercers should refuse to perform those her requests touching certain impropriations thereinbefore mentioned, and of the 1,000*l.* formerly bequeathed for the use of eight young men of the said Company, then her will was that all the legacies above mentioned concerning the impropriations of the 1,000*l.* given for the benefit of eight young men, and the said 300*l.* given to the said Company of Mercers for their care and pains, should not be paid to the said Mercers, and that then the Company of Merchant Tailors of London aforesaid should have and receive the benefit and disposing of the said legacy touching the impropriations and the said 1,000*l.* given for the benefit of eight young men, and the 300*l.* given to the said Mercers for their care and pains to be paid unto them in manner and form as is before mentioned if the said Company of Merchant Tailors should perform her request touching the said impropriations, and the 1,000*l.* should then be given to eight young men of their own Company in manner and form as aforesaid; and if both the said two Companies should refuse to perform these her requests before mentioned, then her will was that all these legacies aforesaid touching the impropriations and the 1,000*l.* given to eight young men of one of their Companies, and the 300*l.* given unto them for their care and pains, should be void unto both the said Companies, and should then go to her executors or executor towards the better performance of her said will. And I find that the said Elizabeth Viscountess Campden died in the year 1646, and some time after her death the said legacy or sum of 1,000*l.* was paid to the Mercers' Company, and was, from time to time, lent out by the said Company in pursuance of the trusts of the will until the year 1686, from which time it does not appear that any loans have been made. And I find that the freedom of the Mercers' Company can only be obtained by service to some one free of the Company for seven years or by patrimony, and that the custom of the said Company is, and has been, for a great many years, to call on the livery every person who shall have taken up his freedom, and that such call is almost invariably made within a short interval after such admission to the freedom of the Company, and instances of freemen declining or neglecting to avail themselves of that privilege are extremely rare, by reason whereof there are seldom any persons entitled under the terms of the said will to the benefit of the said charity. And it has therefore been proposed before me on behalf of the relator as a proper scheme for the application of the said sum of 2,000*l.*, that the defendants, the Mercers' Company, should from time to time lend out the said sum of 2,000*l.* now due from them in respect of the said legacy and interest to young men free of the said Company, whether on the livery or not on the livery, but that such as shall not be on the livery shall be first preferred, in sums not less than 125*l.* and not exceeding 500*l.* each, for four years gratis, upon bond with two good securities, for every sum to be approved by the Courts of Assistants; and that the said Company, from time to time, while any part of the said fund shall be in their hands, shall cause due notice to be given to the members of the said Company thereof. I have duly considered such proposed scheme, and do approve thereof as a proper scheme for the application of the said legacy and interest as nearly according to the will of the said testatrix, Elizabeth Viscountess Campden, as circumstances will admit. And I find by my certificate bearing date the 30th day of July 1831, I certified that I had pursuant to the said decree taxed the relator's costs of this suit to that time at the sum of 63*l.* 12*s.* 5*d.*, including 19*s.* 2*d.* which I had allowed conditionally for a subpoena and service, which costs I find have been paid pursuant to the said decree.

All which, &c.

ORDER.

IN CHANCERY.

Between His Majesty's Attorney General at the relation of John Kemble Chapman - Plaintiff
and

The Master, Wardens, and Commonalty of the Art or Mystery of Mercers in London Defendants.

This Court doth order that the Master's report made in this cause bearing date the 22nd day of November 1831, be confirmed. And it is ordered that the defendants the Master, Wardens, and Commonalty of the Art or Mystery of Mercers in London do pass their accounts every three years before the Master of this Court, to whom this cause stands referred or may be transferred. And it is ordered that the said defendants do, before they make any advances by way of loans out of the said legacy and interest in the said report mentioned, according to the scheme approved of by the said Master, cause an advertisement to be published three times in each year in the "London Gazette," and in one of the London morning newspapers, for members of their Company, but giving a preference to such as are not of the livery to make application to them for the advances by way of loan according to the said scheme, and in default of any such members not of the said livery applying to the defendants to make such advances, it is ordered that the said defendants be at liberty to make such advances to members of their Company on the livery according to the said scheme. And it is ordered that the said Master do tax and settle the relator his costs, charges, and expenses of this suit. And it is ordered that the said Master do deduct from what he shall tax and settle for such costs, charges, and expenses the sum of 63*l.* 12*s.* 5*d.*, deducting 19*s.* 2*d.* allowed conditionally by the said Master for the relator's costs, and which sum, less 19*s.* 2*d.*, conditional costs for subpoena and service, appears by the said Master's said report to have been paid by the said defendants to the relator. And it is ordered that the said Master do tax the costs of His Majesty's Attorney General in this cause as between solicitor and client, and tax the defendants' costs in this suit subsequent to the said decree as between solicitor and client. And it is ordered that the said defendants do pay and retain what shall be taxed and settled for such costs, and the aforesaid costs, charges, and expenses out of the said legacy and interest; and either of the parties is to be at liberty to apply to this court as there shall be occasion.

COLLIER'S FREE SCHOOL.

DEAR SIR,

Horsham, May 9, 1861.

THE interview which I had with you was highly interesting, and I have called together a meeting of my most influential neighbours to consider of what you were good enough to suggest. It would, however, materially strengthen my hands if you would have the kindness, and could spare the time, to send me by return of post a few of your principal observations, viz., that with the funds, &c. at command a first-rate institution could and ought to be made here, developed out of the existing institution; that many more scholars might be educated, and a superior education be given to those who required it, without interfering with the rights of the poor; that opportunity might be given for more masters, and that facilities would be given by the Charity Commissioners and the Mercers' Company for the adoption of any well-considered plan for the enlargement, &c. of the institution; but that the initiative must come from us. These were the principles, I think, you laid down, and if you would kindly introduce them, and any other remark you may deem fit in the shape of a letter to me or statement in writing for my use, I shall be in a much better position to meet my friends on Saturday than with merely my own recollections.

Believe me, &c.

(Signed) J. F. HODGSON.

Char Common,

May 10, 1861.

DEAR SIR,

I THINK you have correctly recapitulated what passed at our interview at the Mercers' Hall on Wednesday. I expressed great concern (as not only in this case, but generally I have to do) at such very considerable educational means being expended in the accomplishment of such limited results. It appeared to me that by a good system of organisation the funds of this school, added to the reasonable quarterly payments of a guinea or so, which the tradesmen and wealthier classes would, I should think, be willing to pay for superior instruction for their sons, would be sufficient, with the existing National and British and Foreign School, to create together a first-rate educational establishment in which the independence and separate constitution of each school might be preserved. A certain number of free scholars might be drafted annually from the other schools to Collier's School, and some free scholars, perhaps, elected directly from that school. All the others in the Collier School might pay, either according to age or objects of study, or according to the condition in life of their parents. Masters of every kind might be provided, and the several schools might provide for all requisite instruction for the 400 or 500 boys of the age to be in school, which I presume are to be found in Horsham and the neighbourhood. I stated, and I think I may safely repeat, that the Charity Commissioners would be glad, under the powers they possess, to sanction a comprehensive scheme for the above purposes; but they could not do so without the application and assent of the Mercers' Company. From what, however, was stated to us at Mercers' Hall, there is no reason to believe that the Company would not assist in the same object.

Any application for a scheme to extend the benefits of the school should, of course, proceed from the governors or inhabitants, who must, of course, be the best judges of the feeling, and best entitled to speak as to the wants of the locality. It will be better for you, first, when your plans are matured, to put yourselves in communication with the Mercers' Company, and prevail upon them to imitate the steps for improvement by laying it before the Charity Commissioners, as the latter must be put in motion by the former.

I am, &c.
Rev. J. F. Hodgson, (Signed) THOS. HARE.
Horsham.

MY DEAR SIR, Horsham, May 14, 1861.

I HAVE to thank you for your kind, judicious, and prompt attention to my request.

I have lost no time in putting the thing in motion.

I have secured the unanimous co-operation of the existing governors and several other influential inhabitants to the following principles:—

1. Sixty, and not more than 60, free scholars to be retained.

2. Paying scholars to be admitted from one to two guineas per quarter, exclusive of extras.

3. Twenty out of the 60 "free" boys to be chosen out of Collier's School itself promiscuously for merit, who shall enjoy every advantage the school may afford.

4. All children to be dealt with as church children in school; but that no child be compelled to learn the catechism or attend church if the parents express a wish in writing to the contrary.

5. That the best possible masters be obtained.

6. The feeling is, that the privileges of 60 original scholars be provided for, and the other classes stand in great need of such education as such an institution is capable of giving, and that the benefit of any surplus in the hands of the Company might fairly, justly, and with great advantage to society, middle and poor, be applied to them content as they are to pay a reasonable sum.

It will not be prudent, nor is it possible at present, to mix up the two other schools in our plans. They are, in fact, and will doubtless continue to be, the recognised feeders of the free scholarships in Collier's School; but any attempt further to amalgamate them at present in a comprehensive scheme would fail. So you must not be surprised if in our application to the Mercers' Company we do not refer to this any further than that wherever these two schools afford such ample provision for the education of the poor, there is really no ground for extending Collier's School in a pauper direction, beyond the 60 free scholarships originally contemplated.

I have seen and perused carefully Skeat's abstract of the late report, especially that which relates to endowed schools, and I recognise the proposal there to combine schools as you suggest; but I cannot see any way to it here just now, and I think almost the same purpose would be answered without; at any rate, eventually without any definite or acknowledged combination. I trust you will acquiesce in our relinquishing this part of the plan recommended by you for the present, especially as I find our people really enthusiastic about the other; besides, although the two schools in question are the feeders of the free school, they are not and would not be suffered to be made the exclusive ones.

With renewed thanks for the interest you have taken in our affairs, and the readiness of your reply to me, which have been of the greatest service,

I remain, &c.

April 1, 1861.

DEAR SIR,

I RETURN herewith the best replies I can give to the questions you have sent me. Should any additional information or explanation be required, I shall be happy to furnish it if in my power to do so. Education is carried on most disadvantageously in an agricultural district where the children are employed early, and boys of nine and ten years old are much in request. The new poor laws and the allotment system have sent the young children in large families to work at a very early age. When I was first appointed to this mastership, boys remained under instruction till they were 14½ or older. Now, except in a few instances, education ceases before 10½.

DAUNTSEY'S SCHOOL AND ALMSHOUSES, WEST LAVINGTON, WILTS.

AS TO THE SCHOOL.

Questions.

How many scholars are at the present time in the school on the foundation?

The general course of instruction?

What is the age of admission and of leaving the school?

By whom are the boys nominated?

Is any payment whatever made by the foundation scholars for stationery or otherwise?
Are there any private scholars, and at what charges?

What is the name of the present usher, and his qualifications?

When and by whom was he appointed?

Answers.

45. Many boys are now at work who return in the depth of winter. The allotment system prevails to a great extent here. Parents have even been permitted to keep their children at home upon any occasions when they are employed in industrial occupations.

The digging season begins in February—

1860. February. Names on books, 60.

1861. February. Names on books, 56.

A plain education as far as time permits for the poor. The few tradesmen's sons who have remained longer have been further instructed. Decimals in arithmetic, English history, a little political economy, oral teaching in matters of ordinary business, &c. Geography classes have not been required in any instance.

As soon as they can read without spelling words of one syllable. The first book of national schools. They leave as soon as their parents can find a place for them as plough boys at about nine years of age or ten at utmost. Boys who are to learn a trade stay till about 13, in one or two cases (yearly) a little older.

The master admits the sons of all inhabitants of the parish, and any parishioner who may apply, though not residing in West Lavington.

They find their own books, slates, and copy books, testaments, bibles, geography books, &c.

No private scholars. The old house did not permit me to take boarders. I now feel too far advanced in years (68) to undertake private tuition. I was given to understand I had liberty so to do. I have stipulated with every usher since my appointment that they should not (as heretofore) take boys from other places on pay.

Henry Dyke, qualified to teach the class of boys composing the school as now existing (see page 9).

By me, about three years since.

AS TO THE ALMSHOUSES.

By whom are the almspeople nominated ?

What are their qualifications as to age, previous dwelling, &c.

And are the almshouses at present full ?

Whether the almsmen or women are necessarily single persons, or whether married couples are admitted ?

The date of Mr. Wilton's appointment as master of the school ?

A list of applicants is kept, and as a vacancy occurs their names, qualifications, and character are sent to Lord Churchill, the patron. He selects the man or woman as the vacancy may be; the age, and especially the testimony of his Lordship's steward as to their good character, generally direct the choice made.

Inhabitants and parishioners of West Lavington who have lived here and are well known poor aged (60 would be so deemed) or infirm, older people are preferred (other considerations being equal).

Yes, they never remain vacant long enough to allow a lapse in the presentation. Applicants are numerous, and many of them wait years before they can obtain admission.

"Poor, aged, impotent" are the founder's words. Single women are rarely admitted; there is one there now, and I recollect a like case years back. Widows are considered as best entitled of women. If an old married man is elected, his wife goes with him (but without any additional pay, and only for his life). Any feeble person, male or female, is allowed to select a relation or friend, provided they bear a good character, to live with them and take care of them.

When I advertised for an usher bearing a certificate, offering the stipend of 50*l.*, I obtained no reply, and found that a national school master, certificated, would obtain Government allowances which did not extend to a school like mine, or employment for a wife which would secure some additional income, and which I could not bestow. Henry Dyke is a man of good character and able to preserve discipline and order to a remarkable extent.

He was two years in the Diocesan Training School at Winchester, master of Lyme Regis National School for a time, then for five years at North Sway National School, then elected to mastership of Heytesbury National School. I took him on the testimonial of the vicar of Heytesbury, who would gladly have retained him, but he did not consider himself equal to the certificate examination of first class, and the Government allowance required the master of Heytesbury School to hold a certificate.

Henry Dyke has signified to me his readiness to go in for a certificate if required, but I have not pressed the point for three reasons. 1st. He is, I think, fully equal to the instruction of the class of boys attending this school, and leaving at so early an age. 2nd. He is 31, and an examination upon which so much depends (for did he fail it would necessarily lead to his resignation) may be more than he could be expected to submit to; the expense to a married man with three children is also an objection. 3rd. Should he obtain a certificate I must submit to his leaving me, as in that case he might easily obtain a more lucrative appointment.

He has assisted Dr. Wilkinson, our vicar, in Sunday and evening schools. The Doctor thinks him quite equal to the class of boys the school contains under its present constitution and circumstances. Some of our boys, as pupils of this night school, have gone in for the school prize examinations of the Wilts and Hants National Society. Dr. Wilkinson is on the committee and an examiner for this district. These pupils, therefore, have been under his observation as well as Dyke's conduct of the evening school. I give this opinion of Dr. Wilkinson with his express permission. Were our rustic boys to compete for Civil Service situations, or as University Associates, I might hesitate before I spoke of my present usher as effective, but I do consider him equal to his work as defined by the custom and circumstances I have mentioned, and I do not think I could obtain a better usher at the rate of 50*l.* without additions.

SIR, Hexham, April 11, 1861.

IN answer to the questions put to me in your letter of the 9th instant, I have to state, first, that the only duty performed by the Fishborne lecturer in the parish or town of Hexham, is the delivery of a lecture on Sunday afternoons. I may add that the present lecturer does not even reside in the parish of Hexham, but in that of St. John Lee, of which he is also the incumbent, though, according to the will of the founder, it is required that the lecturer shall not hold any other benefice or church living, and that he shall reside in the parish of Hexham.

Secondly, that as according to the present arrangement, the lectureship is of little or no benefit to the parish of Hexham, I can have no hesitation in saying that I think it would be highly desirable if, in future, other and additional duties could be assigned to the lecturer, or, if a more adequate provision for the spiritual wants of the parish could be made, for, it may not be irrelevant to mention, the population of this parish is nearly 6,000, and the value of the incumbency not more than 130*l.* per annum, without a parsonage house, while there is in the town of Hexham a house belonging to the lectureship, in which some of the former lecturers resided.

I am, &c.

(Signed) J. HUDSON,

Thomas Hare, Esquire, Incumbent of Hexham.
Inspector of Charities.

SIR, Brunton, Hexham, April 11, 1861.

IN reply to the letter which I had the honor to receive from you yesterday, I beg leave to say that the lectureship in question was bestowed on me, as on my predecessors, without any duty being expressly imposed beyond the delivering a lecture every Sunday afternoon in the parish church at Hexham, to which I was licensed 26 years ago, as appears by a copy here enclosed of the license granted to me by a former Archbishop of York, Hexham being at that date a peculiar of York. But, from my first appointment, I have administered every Sunday a full morning service in the churches of that parish from which the principal portion of the endowment accrues, in addition to those accustomedly performed by the parochial incumbent, and which, together, provide all those services to which your letter refers.

I have, &c.

Thomas Hare, Esquire, (Signed) CHARLES LEE.
Charity Commissioner,

COPY of the LICENSE of the LECTURER at HEXHAM.

Edward, by divine permission, Lord Archbishop of York, Primate of England, and Metropolitan to our well-beloved in Christ Charles Lee, clerk, master of arts, greeting. We do, by these presents, give and grant to you, in whose ability and morals we do fully confide, our license and faculty to perform the office of a lecturer according to the canons and constitutions of the Church of England in the parish church of Hexham, in the county of Northumberland, within our diocese and jurisdiction, to which lectureship or lecturer's place you have been duly elected by a general court of the Worshipful Company of Mercers, London, held at their hall on Thursday the thirteenth day of January one thousand eight hundred and twenty-five, as appears by a certificate thereof (you having first before us read and subscribed the thirty-nine articles of religion of the Church of England, agreed upon in the convocation holden at London in the year of our Lord 1562, and made such other subscriptions and declarations, and taken such oaths as are by the laws, statutes, and canons of this realm or any of them in such cases required. And we do by these presents invest you with all the rights and profits to the said lectureship or lecturer's place in any wise belonging, and do authorise you to receive the same so long as you shall continue lecturer thereof. Given under our hand and archiepiscopal seal this eighteenth day of February in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and twenty-five, and in the eighteenth year of our translation.

(Signed) G. EBOR.

The gross annual amount of the tithes of the lectureship at Hexham, drawn from Swinburne, Keepwick, Errington, Bingfield, and Calwell, is commuted at 563*l.* 7*s.* 8*d.*

IN RE MERCERS' COMPANY.—FISHBOURNE LECTURER, BERWICK-UPON-TWEED.

The Vicarage, Berwick-upon-Tweed,
April 18, 1861.

SIR,

I HAVE to thank you for your communication of the 9th instant, inquiring about the Fishbourne lectureship in this parish, which is in the gift of the Mercers' Company.

In reply, I have the honour to send herewith (1) a statement of all the facts of the case, and (2) the draft of a scheme for rendering practically useful this endowment, which is at present of but little advantage to this parish.

It will give me very sincere pleasure to be allowed to co-operate with you and the Mercers' Company in their known desire to carry out this very important improvement.

If any point in the statement or scheme requires explanation, I shall be most happy to do all in my power to make these things more easily understood.

I have, &c.

(Signed) GEO. HANS HAMILTON,
Vicar of Berwick and Rural Dean.

Thos. Hare, Esq.,
Inspector Charities.

Doddington, near Wooler,
April 17, 1861.

SIR,

I HAVE answered your three questions fully and freely, hoping that the Mercers' Company may be able, with the aid of the Charity Commissioners, to accomplish their wish of assigning duties to future lecturers of Berwick, which shall be "for the greater benefit of the established religion." But at my time of life, 70 years of age, I cannot undertake any additional duties, and I am under no apprehension of being required to do so by my considerate patrons.

I am, &c.

(Signed) WM. PROCTER.

Question I.

"What ecclesiastical duty is at present performed by the Fishbourne lecturer in the parish or town of Berwick-upon-Tweed?"

Answer.

As Fishbourne lecturer I perform Divine service and preach in the parish church of Berwick-upon-Tweed in the forenoon every Thursday on which I can claim by prescription the use of the church and the necessary accompaniments of Divine service. Immediately upon entering on the duties of the lectureship, A.D. 1824, I found that long usage had established the custom of discontinuing the lecture for four months in every year, and that the attempt to depart from that custom would meet with opposition and probably issue in a failure, which would impair my usefulness as lecturer. This difficulty I stated by letter to the Court of the Mercers' Company, who instructed their secretary, William Edward Ward, in July 1824, to inform me that "the discontinuance of the lectures during four months was left to my discretion."

Question II.

"Whether in consequence of local changes, increase of population, or any other cause, a more beneficial assignment of duties for the lecturer may in future be made?"

Answer.

Twenty years ago I originated a movement for the erection of a new church in Berwick, expecting to be charged with the duties thereof by the Mercers' Company, according to the conditions of my appointment. After obtaining considerable promises of aid from the inhabitants of Berwick and others, I wrote to the Mercers' Company on the subject, who replied that on consulting their lawyer they found they had no legal power to convert the lectureship of Berwick into an endowment for a new church. On this, seeing no prospect of raising funds both for the building and endowment of a new church, I ceased to exert myself in the cause. About five years ago, however, Captain Gordon, one of the present members of Parliament for Berwick, having nobly offered 2,000*l.* for the building a new church in the parish, the new church of St. Mary has been completed, and is now in full operation under an able pastor, endowed with 100*l.* a year by the Dean and Chapter of Durham, who are also the patrons of the old church. This endowment is sadly insufficient, and I think it would be very beneficial if, at the next avoidance of the lectureship, the tithes of Chollerton and Barrasford could be assigned in perpetuity to the incumbent of St. Mary's, Berwick, with an amicable arrangement between the Mercers' Company and the Dean and Chapter of Durham as to the patronage.

Question III.

"What is the present net annual amount of the tithes of Chollerton and Barrasford?"

Answer.

The net annual amount of the tithes of Chollerton and Barrasford has been—

	£	s.	d.
For A.D. 1854 -	261	3	7
1855 -	265	0	11
1856 -	271	6	4
1857 -	299	7	0
1858 -	329	4	5
1859 -	351	9	8
1860 -	357	14	8

CHARITY COMMISSION.

In re an Inquiry into the Charitable Endowments under the management of the Mercers' Company of the City of London, as to whether any and what Improvements may be made in the Management or Application thereof.

THE FISHBORNE LECTURESHIP, BERWICK-UPON-TWEED.

Thomas Hare, Esquire, Inspector of Charities, having, in a letter dated the 9th April 1861, addressed to the Reverend G. H. Hamilton, Berwick-upon-Tweed, stated with reference to the above lectureship as follows:—

"It appears that the lecture is endowed with the tithes of Chollerton and Barrasford, in the county of Northumberland, and that at the last appointment of a lecturer the duties assigned to him were 'to perform Divine service and preach in person in the church of Berwick-upon-Tweed in the forenoon of every Thursday, and that in the event of a new church or chapel being built in Berwick, the lecturer shall, if required by the Mercers' Company for the greater benefit of the interests of the established religion, take upon himself the duty of the new church or chapel upon such conditions as the Company shall appoint or vacate the lectureship.'

"In order to ascertain the present operation of the endowment and the possibility of any improvements, either on the occasion of a vacancy or otherwise, I shall be glad if you will favour me with an answer to the following questions:—

"1st. What ecclesiastical duty is at present performed by the Fishborne lecturer in the parish or town of Berwick-upon-Tweed?"

"2nd. Whether in consequence of local changes, increase of population, or any other cause, a more beneficial assignment of duties for the lecturer may in future be made?"

The Reverend George Hans Hamilton, vicar of Berwick, has the honour, in reply to the inquiries thus put to him, to submit to the Charity Commissioners, through their inspector of charities, the annexed statement of the whole present circumstances of the ecclesiastical arrangements of the ancient parish of Berwick-upon-Tweed, including the newly-created parish of Saint Mary, and the duties at present performed by the Fishborne lecturer; and he would very earnestly urge upon the Charity Commissioners the great importance of their exercising their powers in furtherance of the objects which were evidently contemplated by the founder of the lectureship, and were kept in view by the Mercers' Company on the occasion of their last exercising their patronage over it.

Mr. Hamilton has further the honour to submit the draft of a scheme framed so as to carry out the arrangements suggested in the annexed statement, and which is founded on a precedent furnished by an Order in Council dated the 26th October 1860, proceeding on a recommendation of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners dated the 28th day of June of the same year, effecting the union of the offices of lecturer and incumbent of the parish of Saint Nicholas or the city of Durham, and he prays that the Charity Commissioners will recommend the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England to exercise their powers in co-operation with the Charity Commissioners towards the union of the Fishborne lectureship with the incumbency of Saint Mary's, Berwick, which will convert to purposes of great practical utility the endowment of that lectureship, and largely promote the spiritual interest of the populous parishes of this town.

(Signed) GEO. HANS HAMILTON,
Vicar of Berwick.

April 18, 1861.

STATEMENT.

The district chapelry of Saint Mary, Berwick-upon-Tweed, was assigned out of the parish of Berwick-upon-Tweed by an Order in Council dated the 6th day of July 1859, proceeding on a representation by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners dated the 3rd day of June of the same year. It comprises a population of about 2,000 souls, a large proportion of whom are fishermen and persons in a humble position of life, and amongst whom the labours of the incumbent are trying and onerous.

With the consent of the vicar of Berwick-upon-Tweed the district of Saint Mary has been endowed by the Dean and Chapter of Durham with 100*l.* per annum out of the tithes of the parish of Berwick, this sum having originally been intended as an additional endowment for the said vicarage. The only other source of income for the incumbent of Saint Mary's, Berwick, consists of certain pew rents, surplice fees, and a stated portion of the Sunday offerings, the whole income derived from which several sources may be reasonably estimated at 150*l.* per annum.

A handsome and commodious church has been erected in the district at a cost of 3,239*l.* 15*s.* 2*d.*

A valuable site of three-quarters of an acre immediately adjoining the town has been presented by a lady for a parsonage house, which is now in the course of erection, the necessary means having been raised by public subscription and by grants obtained from church funds.

The estimated value of the parsonage and the site is about 1,500*l.*

The perpetual right of presentation to the incumbency of Saint Mary is vested in the vicar of Berwick for the time being.

There is a lectureship attached to the parish church of Berwick-upon-Tweed, the presentation to which is vested in the Mercers' Company of London.

The present lecturer is the Reverend William Proctor, incumbent of Doddington, who was appointed about 20 years ago, when the following duties were assigned to the office:—"To perform divine service and preach in person in the church of Berwick-upon-Tweed in the "forenoon of every Thursday, and that in the event of a new church or chapel being built in Berwick, the lecturer shall, if required by the Mercers' Company for the greater benefit of the interests of the established religion, take upon himself the duty of the new church or chapel upon such conditions as the Company shall appoint or vacate the lectureship."

In accordance with the conditions of his appointment the present lecturer continues to perform weekly service in the parish church on each Thursday morning, from the 1st of March to 31st of October, but at the time of the formation of the district of Saint Mary and of the erection of the church thereof it was not considered expedient to require the present holder of the lectureship to undertake the duties of the new parish, nor to induce the Mercers' Company to exercise the discretion they had reserved to themselves in this matter. At that time, however, the vicar of Berwick waited upon the Court of Assistants of the Mercers' Company in London, and urged upon them the great importance of taking such steps that at the next avoidance of the lectureship the endowments thereof should be made available for the augmentation of the newly-created benefice of St. Mary's. The Reverend John Irwin, M.A., was presented by the Vicar of Berwick as first incumbent of the new parish, and still holds the cure.

The present holder of the office of lecturer resides at a distance of several miles from Berwick-upon-Tweed, and having moreover a separate cure of his own he is unable further to assist in the performance of the clerical duties of the parish of Berwick than by officiating in the parish church of that parish at the periods before mentioned.

The lectureship is endowed under the will of the late Richard Fishborne, with the tithes of Chollerton and Barrasford, in the county of Northumberland, which produce a net income of about 300*l.* per annum.

The populous district chapelry of Saint Mary's, Berwick, greatly requires an addition to its present endowment, the present income being inadequate for the position of the incumbent and the requirements of so poor a parish, nor is the incumbent with his present means able to secure the assistance of a curate.

It is proposed that on the occurrence of a vacancy in the Fishbourne lectureship the office of lecturer, with its emoluments and endowments, shall thenceforth be and become permanently united to the said parish of Saint Mary, so that the incumbent of the said parish shall on the occurrence of such a vacancy in the lectureship be and become fully entitled to the said office of lecturer, with all its emoluments and endowments, and so that thereafter the exercise of the right of patronage, presentation, or nomination to the said parish and parish church of Saint Mary's shall operate as a presentation or nomination to the said office of lecturer, and so that the avoidance either by death or resignation or otherwise of either one of the said offices of lecturer of the parish of Berwick-upon-Tweed and incumbent of the said parish of Saint Mary's shall operate as an avoidance of the other.

In order, however, fully to meet the objects of the charitable founder of the lectureship, and also the known desire of the Mercers' Company to promote the interests of the established religion, it is proposed that the following conditions should be imposed on the union of the lectureship with the said parish, namely,

1st. That the incumbent of Saint Mary for the time being shall perform divine service and preach in the parish church of Berwick-upon-Tweed on some one week day in every week, such day and at such hour to be arranged by the Vicar of Berwick, subject to the sanction and approval of the Bishop of Durham.

2ndly. That the incumbent of Saint Mary shall from the date of his coming into the enjoyment of the emoluments and endowments of the said lectureship provide in perpetuity a stipendiary curate for the said parish of Saint Mary's, Berwick.

In this way the parish of Berwick will be secured a continuance of all the benefits which it now derives from the lectureship, while the ministrations of another clergyman in the parish of Saint Mary will greatly strengthen the hands of its incumbent and benefit that district in particular, while the interests of the established religion over the whole parish of Berwick-upon-Tweed will be promoted by the co-operation of the incumbent of Saint Mary's in the services of the parish church, and the constant and friendly intercourse that will thus be perpetuated amongst those having spiritual charge in the two parishes of the town.

In order also to meet the just claim of the Mercers' Company to consideration in respect of the patronage it now possesses over the lectureship, it is proposed that in future the right of presentation to the incumbency of Saint Mary (carrying with it the presentation to the lectureship), shall be vested alternately in the Mercers' Company and the Vicar of Berwick.

Such an arrangement would, it is submitted, not be unfair towards the rights of the present owners of the separate rights of presentation, and would assuredly operate largely for the promotion of those objects which ought to be considered paramount. As the present incumbent of Saint Mary's was presented by the Vicar of Berwick, the latter is willing, in pursuance of the arrangement now suggested, that the first presentation to the united benefice on a vacancy occurring therein subsequent to the avoidance of the said office of lecturer by the present holder thereof, should be vested in the Mercers' Company, and so on alternately thereafter.

It is hoped that the Mercers' Company will concur in the scheme now submitted, and the Vicar of Berwick has every confidence, that so far as it may be necessary it will receive the cordial confirmation of the Bishop of the Diocese and the Dean and Chapter of Durham, who are patrons of the mother church.

GEO. HANS HAMILTON,

Vicar of Berwick.

April 18, 1861.

We, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England, in pursuance of the Act of the third and fourth years of Her Majesty, chapter 113, have prepared and now humbly lay before your Majesty in Council, the following scheme for uniting the office of lecturer of the parish of Berwick-upon-Tweed, with its emoluments and endowments, to the district chapelry of Saint Mary, Berwick-upon-Tweed, within the said parish, and for regulating the future right of presentation to the incumbency of the said district and to the said office of lecturer.

Whereas the perpetual right of patronage, presentation, or nomination to the said district chapelry of St. Mary is duly vested in the Reverend George Hans Hamilton, M.A., vicar of the parish, and his successors in such vicarage of Berwick-upon-Tweed, and John Irwin, M.A., is now the incumbent of the said district chapelry, and the right of patronage, presentation, or nomination to the office of lecturer of the said parish of Berwick is duly vested in the Mercers' Company of London, and the Reverend William Proctor, M.A., now holds the office of lecturer aforesaid:

And whereas the emoluments and endowments of the said district chapelry consist of 100*l.* per annum out of the rectorial tithes of the parish of Berwick, together with certain pew rents, surplice fees, and a stated portion of Sunday offerings, the whole income derived from which several sources may be reasonably estimated at 150*l.* per annum, and the emoluments and endowments of the said office of lecturer consist of the tithes of Chollerton and Barrasford in the county of Northumberland, which are commuted at 350*l.*, producing a net income of about 300*l.* per annum:

And whereas the said George Hans Hamilton, vicar of Berwick-upon-Tweed, and the said Mercers' Company as such patrons as aforesaid, are desirous of uniting the said district chapelry and office of lecturer, with all emoluments and endowments to the same respectively belonging on the terms hereinafter mentioned, and have also proposed that the perpetual right of patronage, presentation, or nomination to the said united district chapelry and office of lecturer should vest in the said Mercers' Company, and the said George Hans Hamilton, vicar of Berwick-upon-Tweed, and his successors in such vicarage, so as the same should be exercised by the said Mercers' Company and their successors, and the said George Hans Hamilton, vicar of Berwick-upon-Tweed, and his successors alternately in succession:

And whereas we are of opinion that the arrangements and conditions hereinafter submitted by us would, if carried into effect, conduce to the better cure of souls within the said parish of Berwick-upon-Tweed, and the said district chapelry:

Now, therefore, with the consents of the Right Reverend Henry Montagu, Bishop of Durham, as bishop of the diocese, the said George Hans Hamilton, as vicar of Berwick-upon-Tweed, and the said John Irwin, as incumbent of the said district chapelry of St. Mary, Berwick-upon-Tweed (testified by their respectively having signed and sealed this scheme), and who with the consent of the said Mercers' Company, testified by their common seal being attached hereto, we humbly recommend and propose that without any other conveyance or assurance in the law the said office of lecturer of the parish of Berwick-upon-Tweed, with all the emoluments and endowments thereto belonging or in anywise appertaining or usually heretofore held, used, or enjoyed therewith, shall be and become permanently united to the said district chapelry of St. Mary, Berwick-upon-Tweed, so that on the first vacancy which shall happen in the said office of lecturer, the incumbent of the said district chapelry for the time being shall, without any further presentation or nomination, be and become thenceforth the holder of the said office of lecturer, with its said several emoluments and endowments, and so that in perpetuity thereafter the exercise of the right of patronage, presentation, or nomination to the said district chapelry of Saint Mary, Berwick-upon-Tweed, shall operate as a presentation or nomination to the said office of lecturer, and so that the avoidance either by death or resignation or otherwise of either one of the said offices of incumbent of the said district, parish, and lecturer of the said parish (save and except an avoidance of the said office of lecturer by the said William Proctor), shall operate as an avoidance of the other: Provided that the union of the said district chapelry and office of lecturer shall not in any way affect the rights of the said William Proctor to execute the duties and to receive the emoluments and endowments incident to the said office of lecturer by virtue of his present tenure thereof:

And we further recommend and propose that the incumbent of the said district chapelry for the time being shall, so soon as he shall become holder of the said office of lecturer, be bound thenceforth in perpetuity to perform divine service and preach in the parish church of Berwick-upon-Tweed once in every week on a week-day, and at an hour to be fixed by the vicar of Berwick-upon-Tweed with the sanction and approval of the bishop of the diocese; and further, that such incumbent shall likewise from the date of his entering into the enjoyment of the said emoluments and endowments of the said office of lecturer of the parish of Berwick-upon-Tweed, provide in perpetuity a stipendiary curate to assist in the performance of all clerical and spiritual duties within the said district chapelry of St. Mary's, Berwick:

And we further, with the several consents aforesaid (testified as aforesaid), recommend and propose that the perpetual right of patronage, presentation, and nomination to the said district chapelry of St. Mary, Berwick-upon-Tweed (in union as aforesaid with the said office of lecturer of the said parish of Berwick-upon-Tweed and its said emoluments and endowments) shall, from and after the avoidance of the said office of lecturer by the present holder thereof without any assurance in the law other than this scheme, and any duly gazetted order by your Majesty in Council ratifying the same, be assigned to and be absolutely vested in the said Mercers' Company and their successors, and the said George Hans Hamilton, vicar of Berwick-upon-Tweed and his successors in such vicarage, and shall and may be exercised by the said Mercers' Company and their successors, and the said George Hans Hamilton, vicar of Berwick-upon-Tweed aforesaid and his successors alternately in succession, the first right of choice and presentation under such order as aforesaid to belong to and be exercised by the said Mercers' Company or their successors.

And we further recommend and propose that the several recommendations hereinbefore submitted by us shall take effect and come into force upon and from the day of the date of the publication in the "London Gazette" of any order of your Majesty in Council ratifying this scheme.

And we further recommend and propose that nothing herein contained shall prevent us from recommending and proposing any other measures relating to the matters aforesaid in accordance with the provisions of the said Act or of any other Act of Parliament.

We therefore humbly pray that your Majesty will be graciously pleased to take the premises into your Royal consideration, and to make such order in respect thereto as to your Majesty in your Royal wisdom shall seem meet.

SIR,

Mercers' Hall.

I AM directed to inform you that you have the nomination of a poor man or woman, not under the age of 55 years, to a pension upon Whittington's fund of 30*l.* per annum.

The person you may nominate must fill up the enclosed petition, and transmit the same to this office on or before the _____ day of _____ next; after which time a day will be appointed for his or her attendance at Mercers' Hall, for the purpose of answering such questions as the Master and Wardens may deem it expedient to put to the petitioner.

The pension will be voted annually, and continued only during the pleasure of the court.

No servant will be admitted a pensioner during the time that he or she may be in regular service.

Should any charge be hereafter imputed that the pensioner either was or has become an unfit object of the Charity, the pension will be suspended until a satisfactory inquiry into the circumstances shall have taken place.

If money or anything in the nature of pecuniary consideration be given to obtain the pension, or if it be sold, mortgaged, or any way incumbered, it will immediately cease and become forfeited.

No person who has an income of 20*l.* per annum arising from real property, or 30*l.* per annum arising from any source whatever will be admitted as a pensioner.

The person nominated must be resident within 30 miles of London.

When appointed, the pensioner must annually deliver into the clerk's office an affidavit, of which you have herewith one of the blank forms.

The certificate at the foot of the petition you will be pleased to sign yourself.

GROCERS' COMPANY.

TO THE CHARITY COMMISSIONERS FOR ENGLAND AND WALES.

In pursuance of a Minute of the Board of the 2nd February 1863, I have inquired into the condition and circumstances of the following Charities under the management of the Grocers' Company of the City of London, and I have stated in the Report under the head of each specific endowment, the result of my investigation.

The Grocers' is the second of the 12 greater Companies. It is constituted of a master and three wardens, and a court of assistants, of a variable number, now about 33.

The liverymen are about 170 in number, and the freemen about 130 or 140. The number are said to be increasing rather than the contrary.

The title of the Company is "The Master and Wardens and Court of Assistants of the Worshipful Company of Grocers."

DISTRIBUTION TO THE POOR MEMBERS OF THE COMPANY.

The Company distribute annually, and casually, various sums of money to the freemen of the Company who are in poor circumstances.

The poor members are formed into three classes.

The first class consists of aged decayed freemen and widows of freemen. That class consists of about six or seven, who receive gifts amounting to 30*l.* a year, or thereabouts.

The second class consists of freemen and widows who are partially assisted. They are about 14 in number, receiving each about 20*l.* a year.

The third class consists of a similar class of persons, but whose circumstances do not, in the judgment of the Court, require or entitle them to an equal amount of assistance. They are about 23 in number, and receive generally 12*l.* a year.

In addition to the persons who are thus classed, there are certain liverymen and widows of liverymen to whom larger gifts are made, varying from 100*l.* a year to 30*l.* a year. At present there are 18 of this extra class of recipients.

There are also casual gifts made by the master and wardens on special emergencies arising amongst the poor members and their families.

These amount to from 50*l.* to 100*l.* a year.

The gifts of the Company to the poor members, in various ways, from 1852 to 1856 inclusive, was 7,827*l.* 19*s.*, averaging about 1,565*l.* per annum, and from 1857 to 1861 inclusive, 11,327*l.*, averaging 2,265*l.* per annum. Since 1861 the average has increased.

In addition to these gifts to the members of the Company, the Company distributes to public institutions and charities large sums as occasion arises. From 1852 to 1861 a sum of 10,151*l.* was given in such donations.

KNOWLES' GIFT.

Thomas Knowles, by will of the 12th July 1432, gave to the Company a messuage in St. Antholin's Parish for pure and perpetual alms for the relief of the poor.

A 14546.

The property thus devised consists of a warehouse, abutting on St. Antholin's Churchyard, Budge Row, let to Millington and Hutton, assignees of Wm. Leschalles, on lease for 21 years from Michaelmas 1845, at a rent of 125*l.* 17*s.*

This money is included in the distribution to poor freemen and widows of freemen of the Company, which I have already described.

KEBYLL'S GIFT.

Sir Henry Kebyll by his will of the 20th March 1514, gave to the Company two messuages in St. Mary-le-Bow, and two messuages and appurtenances in St. Margaret, Lothbury, and also a great messuage in the Parish of St. Peter-le-Poor, and a piece of ground in St. Olave's, Old Jewry, subject to certain superstitious uses, and then to pay weekly to seven poor men of the Company 3*s.* 6*d.*, to each 6*d.*

The Company charge themselves with 9*l.* 2*s.* annually, which forms part of the distribution to the poor members of the Company.

This portion of the fund and that which is included in the Gifts of Penefather, Lady Conway, Richard Phillips, Edward Turville, John Grove, John Wardall, and Lady Middleton, amount to 56*l.* 15*s.* 4*d.* a year, and are classed in the Company's books under the head of revived Charities.

I presume that the residue of the estate was a part of the purchase made by the City Companies of the estates devised for superstitious uses, and which was confirmed by Act of Parliament, 4 James 1st (see my Report on the Fishmongers' Company).

SIR WILLIAM BUTLER'S GIFT.

Sir William Butler, by his will of the 6th August 1529, gave to the Company his messuage in Thames Street, and two messuages, five cottages, and garden in the parish of St. Michael Bassishaw, and three shops in Tower Street, and a quit-rent of 12*s.* for certain superstitious uses.

And to the churchwardens of Biddenham, Bedfordshire, 40*s.* yearly for repairing the king's highway; also,

For the poor of Biddenham - - - 20*s.*

For the poor of St. Mildred, Poultry, for coal 12*s.*

The Company pay 3*l.* a year on the receipt of the churchwardens of Biddenham for the use of that parish. I have suggested that the receipt of the minister and churchwarden should be required to join in giving the receipt, or that the minister should certify who are the churchwardens.

The sum of 12*s.* a year is paid to the churchwardens of St. Mildred, Poultry.

N

SIR JOHN PECHE'S GIFT.

By an indenture of the 20th June 1533, between the Bishop of Rochester of the first part, the abbess of the Minories without Aldgate of the second part, and the Company of the third part, reciting that John Peché had paid to the Company 500*l.* for certain obits, alms, and other works of piety, the Company covenanted to keep a yearly obit in the church of Lullingstone, and distribute 30*s.* to priests and clerks, and in alms to the poor there.

To the parson of Lullingstone	2	13	4
To the three poor beadmen in the almshouses built by the said J. Peché at Lullingstone, at 8 d. a week to each	5	4	0
To the poor prisoners of Newgate, Ludgate, Marshalsea, and Kingsbench, 5 s. to each prison	1	0	0
Together with the repair of the almshouses at Lullingstone.

The Company appear to have appropriated 1*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* a year as a gift to the poor of Lullingstone in respect of the share of the 30*s.* a year in which they were to participate with the priests and clerks at the obit, and this sum, with the payments above enumerated, make up 9*l.* 4*s.* a year, which is paid annually to Sir Percy H. Dyke, of Lullingstone, and by his direction distributed to the poor of the parish in bread and money.

The 20*s.* a year to the prisons, and other gifts to prisoners, have not been regularly paid for a considerable time. On the 29th December last the sum of 10*s.* was paid to Mr. Temple, of the Guildhall. There is at present a fund of 126*l.* in hand applicable to prisoners on this and other charitable accounts.

The same observations as to the present securities on which the capital is invested occurs in this case, as in that of Lambert and Stiles' Charities (page 6).

THE FREE GRAMMAR SCHOOL AT OUNDLE, NORTHAMPTONSHIRE.

Sir William Laxton, by a codicil to his will of the 27th July 1556, being minded to erect a free grammar school at Oundle in the house, late the guild or fraternity house at Oundle, such school to be called "The Free Grammar School of Sir William Laxton, Knight and Alderman of London," and to have an almshouse for seven poor men at Oundle; and having agreed with the Company, and set out to them certain lands in London, gave to the said Company all his messuages and hereditaments in St. Swithin's, Sherborne Lane, St. Nicholas Lane, Abchurch Lane, and Eastcheap, on condition that they should make suit to the King and Queen for the Fraternity House, to be employed for the school and almshouses, and provide a schoolmaster at 18*l.* a year, and an usher at 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* a year, and pay to each of the almsmen 34*s.* 8*d.* yearly.

To the vicar and churchwardens, for the repair of the house, 24*s.*

By a decree of the Commissioners of Charitable Uses dated 3rd September 1686, reciting that the jurors found that the Company did think fit to augment the several charitable payments to 102*l.* 16*s.*, and that they were willing in future to pay 82*l.* 16*s.*, and that their estate should be charged with the arrears, it was ordered that the whole estates of the Company should stand charged accordingly, and 20 years was given to them for payment.

The sum of 82*l.* 16*s.* was apportioned as follows:—

The schoolmaster	30	0	0
The usher	10	0	0
Almsmen	36	8	0
Women to attend them	5	4	0

The state of this Charity at the time of the last inquiry is set forth in the Report of the Commissioners (vol. 6, p. 268). After that inquiry, and in the year 1841, an information was filed in the name of the Attorney-General, at the relation of several of the inhabitants of Oundle, praying that an account might be taken, under the direction of the Court, of certain property devised to the Grocers' Company, and to have a declaration, that all the rents, issues, and profits of those messuages, together with the dividends of a certain sum of stock were applicable and ought to be applied to the support of a school which was founded and established as a grammar school at Oundle, and the maintenance of a schoolmaster and usher. And it prayed also that the decree of the Charity Commissioners made upon the inquisition of 1686, being contrary to the intention of the donor, might under the 43rd Elizabeth, cap. 4, sect. 10, be altered or varied according to equity and the true intent and meaning of the testator.

The information came on to be heard before Lord Langdale, the Master of the Rolls, on the 18th of January 1845. His Lordship held that the Company must be considered bound to pay the increased sums specified in the decree of the Commissioners of Charitable Uses in 1686, as upon that understanding they had then obtained an extension of time. As to the claim of this Charity for the entire rents of the estate, his Lordship said the argument for the information stood thus:—

"It is said the Charity may not be entitled to the whole of this fund; yet it turns out that the present fixed payments are not sufficient to maintain a proper school, or to pay the salaries of the schoolmaster and usher of a grammar school; then as it was clearly the intention of the testator that a grammar school should be maintained, that purpose ought not to fail by the accident of these fixed salaries turning out in the course of time to be insufficient for the purpose."

"That the Court may, therefore, consider, in the first instance, what would be a proper sum to pay for the maintenance of such a grammar school as would effectually answer the intention which the testator had in view, and that may be a sum very considerably larger than that which he allowed, and that sum being ascertained, then by the authority of the Grammar School Act it may be applied in the maintenance of a school affording the general instruction pointed out by that Act."

"This might be very well, provided you were not encroaching upon a revenue which, according to the construction which, it appears to me, ought to be put on this codicil, belongs as private property to this Company. If the testator has fixed on certain salaries which fail to provide for the fulfilment of his intentions, no doubt it is very much to be regretted, but you cannot, at the expense of the Company to whom the testator has given a beneficial interest, take that interest from them upon the notion that the testator, if he had thought better of the matter, would have assigned a larger sum to the Charity, or upon the notion that the Legislature has interfered as against the interests of that party to provide a school where there may be a larger instruction."

The information was, therefore, dismissed with costs, and no appeal was made against the decision; but it appears that in January 1850, an attempt was made to lay the case before the then Charity Commissioners to obtain their interference for the purpose of opening the question anew. This application does not appear to have been attended with any result.

The case of this school was brought before this Commission by the Vicar of Oundle in a communication addressed to the Board on the 30th December 1856, to which I find the Board replied by a letter of the 2nd March 1857 (File 1,138), stating to the effect that the Grocer's Company could not be called upon to render any account of their general receipts or expenditure in respect of the property, or any other account than a credit on one side sufficient to meet the charges, and on the other side a debit of the payments they actually make.

The return rendered to this Commission is in conformity with the above rule. The Company debit themselves with a rentcharge arising from messuages, lands, &c. in St. Swithin's, at London Stone, Sherborne Lane, Nicholas Lane, Abchurch Lane, Candlewick Street, and Eastcheap, London (to which should be added the White Hart Inn, at Oundle), amounting in the whole to 82*l.* 16*s.* 0*d.* a year, apportioned according to the decree of the Commissioners of Charitable Uses in 1686, thus:—

The seven almsmen	41	12	0
schoolmaster	30	0	0
usher	10	0	0
repairs of the school house	1	4	0
	82	16	0

The Company, however, do not limit themselves in fact to the foregoing payments.

The Company paid to the master—

	£	s.	d.
7th December 1861	-	438	6 9
31st May 1862	-	435	15 10
Making together	-	874	2 7

which includes the master's and the second master's salaries, which are regulated by a capitation fee on a certain number of boys, and a fixed salary; including also the rates and taxes and repairs. Sums of nearly the same amount have been appropriated by the Company for the purposes of the school for several years past.

In answer to my inquiries as to the state of the school, I received the following letter from Dr. Stansbury, the head master:—

"The number of boys in the school is 132. The average age, 13. The course of instruction, all the branches of a liberal English education; the classics, mathematics, and French, for which latter, the only fee (except 1*l.* entrance fee), of 2*l.* a year is charged, and which fee is charged to prevent injury to the National and British Schools in Oundle, and the only payment for books and stationery amounting to an average of 2*l.* per annum.

"Every seat in the large school-room is filled, the six masters and 132 boys working satisfactorily to all concerned."

The Company appropriate also to the almspeople an annual sum of 278*l.* 17*s.*

There are six almsmen, five of whom receive six shillings a week, and one one seven shillings a week, in addition to Sunday dinners, washing, fuel, clothing, and medicines. The almsmen are appointed by the resident committee at Oundle, who are nominated by the Company.

The present committee is—

Watts Russell, Esq.

Jessee Russell, Esq.

Dr. Stansbury.

— Smith, Esq.

and the churchwardens of Oundle.

The committee elect an almsman to fill up the vacancy, and their choice is generally confirmed by the Company.

In addition to the above charges the Company have established from their own funds during the pleasure of the court, three exhibitions of 50*l.* to be held for four years, at either of the two English Universities, for boys of the Oundle School.

Between the years 1852 and 1861 the Company rebuilt the school and an almshouse for the six men, at an expense of upwards of 4,500*l.*

The Company have also recently contributed 500*l.* towards the restoration of Oundle church.

The property of the charity at Oundle is described in a statement laid before the Commissioners of Charities in 1850, as follows:—

Guildhall, situate on the south side of Oundle churchyard, used as the schoolroom and as the habitations of almsmen and nurse.

Messuages and premises situate on the west side of Oundle churchyard, and adjoining Church Lane, now the schoolmaster's house and dormitory for the boys, purchased by Lady Laxton in 1557.

A close of land, awarded on the enclosure of Oundle field in lieu of rights of common, appurtenances to last-mentioned premises, now in the occupation of John Bailey.

Messuage and premises in Church Lane, adjoining and now forming part of schoolmaster's house, purchased of — Gann.

Four cottages and premises in Church Lane, now in the occupation of Reuben King and others, purchased of — Wallis.

Messuage and premises in New Street, now consisting of playground for the boys.

The White Hart Inn, in the occupation of Samuel Rippiner.

Public Pig Market and dwelling house, in the occupation of Miss Underwood, of Southwell.

Copyhold premises of the manor of Oundle, adjoining Church Lane and above-mentioned cottages, used as a stable by the schoolmaster.

Upon this representation the only observation to be made, is that the Company claim the "White Hart Inn" as their own property, and not subject to the trust, and I have no evidence that it is part of the charity estates.

All the rest of the property above described is occupied by the school premises, playground, master's house and garden, and the almshouses and the almshouse yard or court.

I append a document which has been transmitted to me from some of the inhabitants of Oundle.

LURCHYN'S GIFT.

John Lurchyn by his will of the 5th July 1459, gave two tenements in St. Mary, Bothaw parish, for the relief of the poor almspeople of the Company.

These tenements are said to have been situated in Canwick or Cannon Street, and to have been destroyed in the fire of London; and it is remarkable that no subsequent mention has been made of the premises or of the site, except that in an index to the book of wills of the Company, of the date 1762, as the Commissioners of Inquiry state (vol. 6., p. 270), there is a note that the Charity of Sir William Laxton for the Free Grammar School of Oundle has had credit for the Cannon Street property of this donor.

It is not possible now to distinguish or recover this property for the purpose of applying it to the trust.

CLOKER'S GIFT.

Henry Cloker, who died in 1574 gave certain houses in St. Michael's, Crooked Lane, to the Cooper's Company, upon trust to pay to the Grocer's Company 40*s.* a year.

The Company have for a long time past received 42*s.* a year, instead of 40*s.* (under a decree of the Court of Chancery, as it is stated, but of which I have no information).

The Grocer's Company pay 40*s.* a year to the almspeople in the Ratcliffe almshouses, under the government of the Cooper's Company.

BACKHOUSE'S GIFT.

Emme Backhouse, by her will of the 27th August 1587, gave a house to the Company upon trust to pay—

To four poor scholars of Cambridge
5 l. each	20 l.
To four poor scholars of Oxford
5 l. each	20 l.

hoping that they would prefer some of her own kindred to such scholarship, being fit for the same, before strangers, and the residue of the profits to be disposed to such good uses as the Corporation should think convenient.

The premises are No. 104, Wood Street, and were let on a lease which has recently expired.

They are now occupied by Hugh Jones, at a rent of 620*l.* a year.

The Company also receive 15*l.* 14*s.* 5*d.* from the Haberdasher's Company, a fee farm rent, after deducting land and income tax, supposed to represent the house in Steyning Lane, which stood on part of the site of Haberdasher's Hall.

I do not find that any legal construction of the gift of the residue to "good uses" has ever been obtained. It is right however, to refer to the greatly increased exhibitions given by the Company, and the large amount distributed to charitable and for other purposes.

It should be observed that with regard to exhibitions alone, taking the entire present income of the Charity, together with 5 per cent. on the capital of the gifts of Mary Robinson, Bayning and Cocke, the annual produce would be 656*l.* a year, whilst (if we include the Oundle Exhibition) the annual fund appropriated to such objects amounts to 650*l.*, and if we add to this the payments from scholars of the City of London School, the fund dedicated to exhibitions is 770*l.* a year, exclusive of other specific charges for that purpose.

The exhibitions at Cambridge under this bequest are no longer limited to two, as at the last inquiry the Company debited this trust to pay eight exhibitions which they have raised to 25*l.* per annum each, four at Oxford, and four at Cambridge. They have also added eight other exhibitions, four to each University, of the like annual value, in respect of Robinson's and (I suppose) Bayning's and Cocke's Gift, although the two latter are not recognised in the books of the Company.

The Company have also voluntarily founded two exhibitions of 50*l.* a year, for the students of the City of London School, when at either of the two Universities, and they also educate at the City of London School, free of expense, six children, sons of freemen or liverymen, at a cost to the Company of about 120*l.* a year—about 10*l.* a year each for school fees, and 10*l.* a year each for the mid-day meals provided for the boys coming from a distance.

MARY ROBINSON'S GIFTS.

Mary Robinson, by her will of the 13th February 1617, gave to the Company 500*l.* to purchase land and pay 25*l.* a year to four poor scholars of Jesus College, Oxford.

The capital sum of 500*l.* was apparently not laid out in land, nor does it appear to be specifically invested, and must, I presume, be regarded as a charge on the general estates of the Company, subject to the same observations as I have made in my report on Lambert and Stiles' Gifts (page 6).

The Company pay altogether 16 exhibitions of 25*l.* each to under-graduates of the two universities. Eight of these are attributed to Backhouse's Gift, and the remainder to this endowment, or to the voluntary liberality of the Company.

BAYNING'S AND COCKE'S GIFTS.

Andrew Bayning, by will of the 4th October 1610, gave 120*l.* to the Company to purchase house or land of the yearly value of 5*l.* for a poor scholar at Cambridge, and—

Robert Cocke, by his will (date not known), gave 100*l.* to the Company to bestow same in lands and dispose of the rent towards the maintenance of a scholar of Oxford or Cambridge.

The Commissioners of Inquiry, not finding these endowments in the inquisition, and finding no trace of them in the books of the Company, conjectured "that they had never been received by the Company." It may, perhaps, be difficult to discharge the Company by this supposition, but I must refer to my reports (pp. 3 and 4) on Backhouse's and Robinson's Charities, showing that the Company have founded 16 exhibitions of 25*l.* a year each, and two of 50*l.* a year each, thus far exceeding the liability which these particular donations would impose.

BLUNDELL'S GIFT.

Peter Blundell, by will of the 9th June 1599, gave to the Company 150*l.* to purchase lands, and out of the rents, pay 40*s.* a year for the poor of Bedlam.

The Company possess 12 houses, Nos. 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, Sun Street, Bishopsgate Street, upon which, or part of which, the 40*s.* a year is supposed to be charged.

The 40*s.* a year is paid to the treasurer of Bethlehem Hospital.

LADY SLANEY'S GIFT TO WEST WICKHAM.

Dame Margaret Slaney, by her will of the 20th October 1607, gave to the Company 40*l.* to pay yearly to the poor inhabitants of West Wickham, Kent, 3*l.* for apprenticing.

The sum of 3*l.* a year is paid by the Company to the churchwardens of West Wickham.

There is no trace of the investment of 40*l.*, nor does it appear to have been included in the mortgage.

WALWYN'S FREE SCHOOL AT COLWALL.

Humphrey Walwyn, by his will of the 10th December 1612, gave 600*l.* to buy houses, the rent to be paid as follows:—

To the Grocer's Company for visiting school	£ 5
To St. Martin Orgar parish, in coals to the poor	5

And the remainder of the rents to a free school at Colwall, Herefordshire, for the poor children of that parish, and seven of the parish of Little Malvern.

The investment directed by the testator does not appear to have taken place, but in lieu thereof, the Company have been charged, by arrangement, with a rentcharge of 30*l.* per annum, for the Colwall schoolmaster, and 5*l.* a year for the parish of St. Martin Orgar.

The appointment of the schoolmaster is vested in the Company; they have recently appointed the Rev. Robert O. Carter.

The Company do not limit themselves to the amount of the rentcharge, but they pay the head master 30*l.* a year, who occupies moreover a house in the parish belonging to the Company, in which he lives rent free.

The head master is regarded only as the visitor to the school, the duty of teaching the boys devolving on the second master.

The second master at present is Mr. Miller; he is not in orders, and the Company pay him an annual stipend of 70*l.* a year, and as a testimony of their satisfaction with his conduct of the school the Company two years ago made him a present of 50*l.*

There is a school house at Colwall, which has been built and repaired by the Company, but there is no dwelling provided for the second master.

The Company make also an annual vote of about 5*l.* a year for stationery and articles for the use of the school.

The Rev. R. O. Carter informs me that the average number of boys has been 62, and that the course of instruction embraces English, mathematics, geography, history, &c., and that the present condition of the school is satisfactory.

GROVE'S GIFT.

John Grove, by his will of the 10th December 1616, gave to the Company 100*l.* to distribute yearly, 6*l.*, to the poor of the Company.

This forms part of the distribution to the poor of the Company. It is included amongst what are called revived Charities, mentioned in my report on Sir Henry Kebyll's Gift.

ROBINSON'S GIFT.

William Robinson, by will of the 14th July 1633, gave to the Company 400*l.* for the purchase of houses to pay—

£
Towards the maintenance of a schoolmaster, in Topcliffe, Yorkshire - 16 and the residue among the poor of the Company.

There is no account of the investment of this fund, but the Company pay annually a sum of 16*l.* in half-yearly payments to the chairman of the feoffees of the school at Topcliffe, the Rev. H. A. Hawkins.

In answer to an application addressed to this gentleman as to the present state of the school, I was informed that there is a very good schoolmaster, that the average number of boys attending is 50, from the age of 7 to 15, that they are taught reading, writing, arithmetic, and history, that one or two learn Latin, and that the school is going on in a satisfactory manner.

PENNEFATHER'S GIFT.

William Pennefather, by his will of the 26th January 1636, gave to the Company 233*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* for the purchasing of land of the value of 11*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, to be paid to seven poor almspeople, 1*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* each.

The capital sum is a charge upon the estates of the Company under the decree of 1686. It forms part of the distribution to the poor of the Company.

It is included amongst what are called the revived Charities, mentioned in my report on Sir H. Kebyll's Gift.

LADY CONWAY'S GIFT.

Catherine Viscountess Conway, by her will of the 29th March 1637, gave to the Company 200*l.* on trust, to pay 10*l.* to the parish of Acton, for bread to 20 of the poor on every Sunday, and 12*d.* a week for teaching six poor children, 10*l.*

And by a Codicil she gave 1,200*l.* out of her residuary estate to the Company to pay—

To the parish of Acton, for the most aged, lame, and impotent	£ 10
To the parish of St. Dunstan-in-the-East	10
To the parish of Luddington, Warwick	5
For releasing two poor persons in Ludgate Prison	5
For releasing one poor person in the Poultry Compter, and one in Wood Street Compter	5
To five poor widows of the Company	5
To Christ's Hospital	20

And she also gave to the Company 400*l.*, they paying to the parish of Acton, for apprenticing poor fatherless children, 20*l.*

The Company were charged by the Commissioners for Charitable Uses with the capital sums of—

1,200	0	0 and

the latter sum being the whole which appeared to have been received by the Company in respect of the last legacy of 400*l.*

The Commissioners appear also to have charged the Company with 8*s.* a year, in respect of a gift of 8*l.* by Mary Harrison, the executrix of Lady Conway, but no mention of this now appears in the books of the Company.

The sum of 72*l.* 9*s.* 8*d.* forms the gross annual charge on the property of the Company in respect of these legacies; of this—

20	0	0
a year is paid to the treasurer of Christ's Hospital.
to the churchwardens of Lud-dington, Warwickshire.
10	0	0
to the churchwardens of St. Dunstan's-in-the-East.
22	9	8
to the rector's warden of the parish of Acton.
is applied to the distribution amongst the poor members and widows of members of the Company.
62	9	8

The 10*l.* a year for prisoners has not been regularly demanded, and it forms part of a prison fund of 129*l.* now in hand.

LADY MIDDLETON'S GIFT.

Dame Ann Middleton, by her will of the 20th May 1645, gave the rectory and tythes of Forden, county of Montgomery, and a fee farm rent of 27*l.* out of the rectory of Austell, Cornwall, both of the value of 107*l.* a year, to the said Company to dispose of the same as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
For the release of poor prisoners in and about London	40	0	0
To Christ's Hospital	10	0	0
To the poor of Westham 3 l. for apprenticing, and 2 l. amongst 20 of the poorest people	5	0	0
To 10 poor ministers' widows 2 l. each	20	0	0
To 10 poor men and women	10	0	0
To the Company for their care	2	0	0
To the clerk of the Company	2	0	0
To the seven almsmen of the Company	3	10	0
To two persons mentioned in the will	10	0	0

And the residue of the property she left to be disposed of by the wardens and assistants for the relieving of poor and aged people at their discretion.

And by a codicil she directed her executor to settle and convey to the officiating minister of Forden a yearly pension of 30*l.* out of the tythes of said rectory of Forden, which was to cease if the Parliament should settle upon him any competent maintenance.

The Commissioners of Inquiry remark (Vol. 6, p. 275) that the gift of 40*l.* a year to the poor prisoners had been reduced to 10*l.* probably under the power given to the executor to dedicate the 30*l.* a year to the officiating minister at Forden.

The fee farm rent arising from the rectory of Austell produces, after deducting Land Tax abatement, annually	23	18	8
The Forden tythes are commuted at a rentcharge of 328 l. 0 s. 8 d.
The rentcharge in the year 1861–1862 was	372	8	9
The outgoings, disbursements, rates and taxes, and 15 l. for agent's salary	48	2	5
	324	6	4

A piece of meadow land in Nant-cribbu Meadow, numbered 900 in the tythe map, and containing 4 a. 1 r. 6 p. and occupied by John Jones as yearly tenant	4	10	0
	£352	15	0

The application of this income, after the appropriation of the 30*l.* a year to the minister at Forden, 5*l.* to the parish of Westham, and 10*l.* to the account of poor prisoners (see Sir J. Peche's Gift) is as follows:—

£ s. d.

The clergymen's widows 40 s. each, directed by the will to be given to 10 clergymen's widows has been increased to 10 l. a year each	100	0	0
The Company have also added to the number of clergymen's widows a further number of 40 others, at 10 l.	400	0	0

Together with occasional gifts of a similar sum to unsuccessful candidates in advanced years, which in 1862 amounted to 75*l.* In the 10 years from 1852 to 1861 the sum given amongst clergymen's widows amounted to 3,370*l.*

WARDALL'S GIFT.

John Wardall, by will of the 29th August 1656, gave to the Company a tenement known by the name of the White Bear, in Walbrook,—

£ s. d.

To pay to St. Botolph, Billingsgate, for lighting the north-east corner of St. Botolph's church at night	4	0	0
To the parish of East Greenwich for bread	6	10	0

And the residue to the almsmen of the Company.

The tenement devised is the Bull's Head (formerly the Black Bull), No. 23, Walbrook, which is let on lease to James Waterman for 21½ years from Midsummer 1860, at a rent of 76*l.* 8*s.*

The payments made by the Company are,—

£ s. d.

To the parish of St. Botolph	4	0	0
To the parish of East Greenwich	6	10	0

The residue forms part of the distribution to the poor of the Company.

KEATE'S GIFT.

Gilbert Keate, by his will of the 10th June 1657, gave to the Company 750*l.*

100*l.* be lent gratis to two young men.

50*l.* to remain as a stock for the Company's poor.

And out of the profits of the remaining 600*l.* to pay,—

£ s. d.

To the parish of Bishopstone, Wilts	16	0	0
To the parish of St. Hearne, Cornwall	8	0	0

The 100*l.* directed to be lent forms part of the loan charities of the Company.

I apprehend that the 50*l.* as a stock must be regarded as a gift to the Company.

The 24*l.* a year in respect of the remaining sum of 600*l.* is paid annually.

16*l.* (in 1862) to Rev. H. F. Beasley, the curate of Bishopstone.

8*l.* to the rector, churchwardens, and overseers of St. Hearne.

ROBINSON'S GIFT.

William Robinson, by will of the 9th August 1661, gave to the Company all his tenements in Grub Street upon trust, to pay as follows:—

£ s. d.

To the free school at Penrith	10	0	0
For educating poor girls at Penrith	20	0	0
For 10 men and 10 women at Penrith	20	0	0
For a sermon on Christmas day at Penrith, 20 s. , clerk and sexton, 5 s. , and for a collation, 15 s.	2	0	0
For a sermon on Ascension Day, 20 s. , clerk and sexton, 5 s. , and for a collation, 35 s.	3	0	0
To Christ's Hospital, St. Bartholomew's, St. Thomas', and Bridewell, 5 l. each	20	0	0

4*N* 3

The Company is in possession of the property in Milton Street, in the parish of St. Giles, Cripplegate, devised by this will, and out of the income they pay annually 55*l.* to the vicar and churchwardens of the parish of Penrith. The 5*l.* a year to Christ's Hospital was purchased by the Company some years ago.

The three other sums of 5*l.* each are paid to the treasurers of the three other hospitals above named.

The vicar of Penrith informs me that there is an average attendance of 50 scholars at the girls' school, who are supposed to be free, but that some few pay weekly pence for extras, and that the ages are from 6 to 13 years.

As to the 20 almspeople, they are selected by the Penrith vestry assembled before Christmas Day, and 20*s.* each is given to them by the vicar and churchwardens.

Box's SCHOOL, WITNEY, OXFORDSHIRE.

By an Act passed in the 15th Charles 2nd (1675), reciting that Henry Box had erected a large free school with a fair house standing on two acres of ground in Witney, and by his will declared his intention to settle the said premises and a rentcharge of 50*l.* out of lands in Longworth Parish, Berks, it was enacted that there should ever thereafter be a free grammar school for the instruction of children and youth, and that there should be one master and one usher, and that the Grocers' Company should be the governors thereof.

And by an indenture of the 19th July 1670, between Mary Box, the widow, and Ralph Box, the son and heir, of the one part, and the said Company of the other part, reciting that the said Mary Box had paid to the Company 286*l.* for settling the rentcharge thereinafter mentioned, the said Mary Box, for the better maintenance of the said school, and the said Ralph Box, in consideration of the said 286*l.* paid him by the Company, granted and confirmed to the said Company a yearly rent of 13*l.* issuing out of tenements in Longworth, viz.:—

- 10*l.* for the school,
- 2*l.* to the poor of Witney, and
- 1*l.* to the provost and fellows of Oriel College, Oxford, towards their charge at the visitation of the said school.

The Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 32, Part 2, p. 699) report the condition of this school, and that the Grocers' Company had expended in repairs and improvements of the school premises 761*l.* 19*s.* 9*d.* up to the year 1837, against which they were charged, apparently on account of a vacancy in the office of usher, with 518*l.* 6*s.* 6*d.*, leaving a balance of payments over receipts of the sum of 243*l.* 13*s.* 3*d.* It would seem, however, that the balance thus stated was less by nearly 30*l.* than the real excess of the Company's payments. In 1861 the Company expended a further sum of 244*l.* in repairs of the school-house.

The Rev. Henry Gregory, the present head master, receives the rentcharge of 63*l.* from the Longworth estate, and transmits annually 3*l.* to the Grocers' Company, with his report on the condition of the school.

I append the statement transmitted to me by Mr. Gregory of the condition of the school.

TURVILLE'S GIFT.

Edmund Turville by his will (date unknown), gave to the Company 100*l.* to be lent gratis to two young men.

And he gave 1,000*l.* to pay 50*l.* in manner following:—

To the churchwardens of St. Dunstan's-in-the-East, in bread and money, for 13 of the poorest of the parish	11
To the poorest of the Parish of Kyrettyard, Worcestershire	8
To Allhallows, Barking, London	4
To St. Stephen's, Walbrook, for sermons every month before the Communion	10
To the poorest members of the Company	7
To the most needy of St. Olave, Southwark	5
To the most needy of St. Leonard, Shore-ditch	5

The Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 6, p. 278) notice the fact, that the 10*l.* a year for the preparation sermon at St. Stephen's, Walbrook, was not included in the decree of the Commissioners of Charitable Uses, and had not been paid, the remaining uses are still upheld, and the sums paid as follows:—

- 7*l.* added to the distribution to the poor members of the Company.
 - 11*l.* to the churchwardens of St. Dunstan's-in-the-East.
 - 4*l.* to the churchwardens of Allhallows, Barking.
 - 5*l.* " " St. Leonard, Shore-ditch.
 - 5*l.* " " St. Olave, Southwark.
 - 8*l.* to the curate and churchwardens of Kyrettyard, Worcestershire.
- making together 40*l.* a year.

SIR THOMAS MIDDLETON'S, OR RICHARD PHILLIPS', GIFT.

Sir Thomas Middleton by his will (date unknown) gave to the Company two tenements near Baynard's Castle, charged with 7*l.* a year to the poor of the Company.

The Company possess property in Thames Street, Nos. 225 and 226, which is supposed to have been the subject of his devise, and they charge themselves with 7*l.* a year, which forms part of the distribution amongst the poor of the Company, classed as one of the revived Charities (see Sir Henry Kebyll's Charity).

CLERVEAUX'S GIFT.

Ralph Clerveaux gave to the churchwardens of St. Benet, Gracechurch Street, 2*l.*, which is paid to them by the Company as a rentcharge on No. 58½, Gracechurch Street, belonging to them.

SAUNDERS'S GIFT.

John Saunders by will (date not known) gave to the Company 210*l.*, for apprenticing a boy, in Upton Warren, Stoke Prior, or Chaddesley Corbet, Worcestershire, for 10*l.* a year, but if not performed to them, then the same to be paid to Christ's Hospital.

In December 1831 a petition was presented under Sir J. Romilly's Act, on behalf of the parish of Upton Warren, upon which an order was made, in February 1832, referring it to the Master to take an account of the arrears of the annuity of 10*l.* accrued since 1794, and directing the Company after the payment of costs to pay the balance into Court.

There was an appeal against this order, on the part of Christ's Hospital, by whom the arrears were claimed and in April 1833 such appeal was dismissed, but the costs of all parties were ordered to be paid out of the fund. The Master found the arrears to amount to 380*l.*, and the costs to 359*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*, leaving a balance of 20*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* There does not appear to be any further report.

The Company pay 10*l.* a year on the receipt of the curate and churchwardens of Upton Warren.

LAMBERT AND STILES' GIFTS.

Robert Lambert by his will (date not known) gave 100*l.* to the Company, to be distributed after 21 years amongst the poor of the 25 wards; and Nicholas Stiles by his will (date not known) gave 100*l.* to the Company upon the same trusts.

The capital sum of 200*l.* given by these donors does not exist in any specific investment, but it is secured in the real estate of the Company comprised in the inquisition and decree of the Commissioners of Charitable Uses, of the 27th August 1686, mentioned in the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 6, p. 265). The decree directed a conveyance to 12 trustees to secure the legacies to charities and the arrears. It does not, however, appear that the estate of the trustees has been kept on foot by any successive conveyance, and the Company hold their estates in their corporate character independent of any trust.

I have requested Mr. Ruck, the clerk of the Company, to furnish me with a statement of the situation, and present rental of the property charged, being the course which I adopted in the case of the Mercers' Company, whose general estates were charged by a deed and Act of Parliament with the payment of the income of Charitable funds which had been expended by the Company. The Grocers' Company, however, decline to exhibit any statement of their property not specifically charged by the respective founders of the charities. It has not been an uncommon circumstance in the case of the other City Companies, that Charitable funds given to them are not found at present set apart in any definite form of investment, whilst the Company generally admit their liability, and pay the interest or dividends from their general property. There can be no doubt that in the case of these ancient, wealthy, and liberal bodies, the funds are practically secure, and I have therefore not thought it necessary to insist of any account being furnished to me of the mortgaged estate, nor to do more than thus submit the circumstances to the Board.

The 12*l.* a year is distributed annually to five of the City wards, in rotation, 20 recipients being nominated by the aldermen of the respective five wards on forms sent to them by the Company, and those nominated apply at the hall of the Grocers' Company, and receive 12*s.* each.

HALE'S GIFT.

Richard Hale, by his will (date not known) gave 100*l.* to be lent to two young men.

This is part of the capital of the Loan Charities.

The places called Harp Alley, and Lilley Alley, in the parish of St. Dunstan's-in-the-East, are stated in the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 6. P. 278), not to be in existence, and the 200 faggots given to that parish out of the produce of this fund, not to have been included in the decree of the Commissioners of Charitable Uses in 1686. The sum of 1*l.* 4*s.* is paid annually to the churchwardens of St. Mildred, Poultry, in respect of the 200 faggots given to the poor of that parish.

TIRRELL'S GIFT.

Francis Tirrell, by his will, (date not known) gave to the Company 1000 marks (666*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*) to remain as a stock in Grocers' Hall, to the intent that the Company should provide with the increase thereof 40 chaldron of coals, whereof 26 to be given at Christmas to the poor of the parishes of St. Giles, Cripplegate, St. Sepulchre, St. Olave, Southwark, St. Mary Magdalen, Bermondsey, and St. Botolph, Aldgate, viz., to St. Mary Magdalen, Bermondsey, 6 chaldron, and to each of the other parishes 5 chaldron, and the rest of the coals for the poor of the Company:—

The Company pay 26*l.* annually, as follows,

		£
To the churchwardens of St. Mary Magdalen,
	Bermondsey	6
Do.	St. Botolph, Aldgate	5
Do.	St. Olave, Southwark	5
Do.	St. Sepulchre	5
Do.	St. Giles, Cripplegate	5

Nothing is specifically applied from this Charity to the poor of the Company. I have elsewhere stated the magnitude of the distribution to them.

LADY SLANEY'S FUND FOR THE PURCHASE OF IMPROPRIATIONS.

Dame Margaret Slaney, by her will of the 20th October 1607, gave to the Company 2,000*l.* to remain a perpetual stock for purchasing impropriated benefices, to bestow yearly some competent portion of the profits thereof in the maintenance of a learned preacher in the parish, retaining the estate of the benefice in their own hands until they had again made up the stock of 2,000*l.*, and then, under advice of counsel, to disappropriate the benefice so that the full profits should thenceforth remain to the parson and his successors, and so to continue and employ the said 2,000*l.* for ever in purchasing and disappropriating in manner aforesaid; provided that the said parsonages or benefices so appropriated should be donative and not presentative, and be for ever freed from first fruits and tenths, and archbishops' and bishops' fees. And she directed that no appropriated benefice should be purchased where the vicarage was worth 80*l.* a year, and that bonds should be taken from the ministers appointed, to resign if they accepted any other benefice, or were non-resident 40 days a year without leave as therein mentioned.

*DAME MARGARET SLANEY'S FUND FOR THE PURCHASE OF IMPROPRIATIONS.

By an order of the Board of 16th March 1865 the said Company were advised that they might properly declare their definitive approval of an agreement made under the provisions of the London (City) Tithes Act, 1864, between the parishioners of the parish of All-hallows, Staining, and the Rev. Francis John Stain-

By a covenant entered into with the executrixes of the testatrix, pursuant to a power in the will, it was agreed that Christ's Hospital should be allowed 6*s.* 8*d.* per cent. a year on the balance in the Company's hands; and by the decree of the Commissioners of Charitable Uses it was ordered that the Company should pay 50*s.* per cent. a year on the balance in their hands towards the increase of the stock.

Under a decree of the Court of Chancery of the 4th December 1761, it was declared that it was the best execution of the Charity that the Company should from time to time, as the fund would permit, purchase impropriations to which the right of patronage of the vicarage appertained, which vicarage the said Company might purchase to the amount of the gross annual sum, not exceeding 150*l.* a year, including the annual value of the said vicarage, and that such impropriation should be applied for the benefit of the vicar, as the court should after direct. And he ordered that the Company (having then in hand a stock far exceeding 2,000*l.*) should proceed to find out a purchase or purchases of such impropriation and patronage of the vicarage, but so as to retain in their hands at interest a capital sum of 2,000*l.* as a future fund; allowing interest for the same after the rate of 2*l.* 10*s.* per cent., the purchases when found out to be made with the approbation of the Master.

The following impropriations have been purchased:—

1620.	Rectory of North Hill, in the	£ county of Bedford	value 400
1663.	Rectory of Allhallows, Steyning
		value 600
1762.	Rectory of Bucknall, Shropshire
		value 300
1786.	Rectory of Wyburch, Devonshire
		value 250

The impropriate tythes belonging to all these benefices have been united to the respective churches; the presentation to the livings is vested in the Company.

In 1818 and 1819 the Company expended out of the fund the sum of 1,180*l.* in repairing the parsonage at North Hill, and in 1856 a sum of 1,500*l.* was advanced to rebuild the farm buildings in the same grant where the income is derived from the farms belonging to the rectory. Sums of money are also frequently contributed to restorations and improvements of the churches of these benefices.

The Company have not, however, charged the fund with these advances, but given it credit for the sum of 4,102*l.* 19*s.* 11*d.* up to December 1862, upon which they paid the 6*s.* 8*d.* per cent. to Christ's Hospital and 50*s.* to the fund. They claim, however, the right of deducting the advances they have thus made for rebuilding the farms and the parsonage house.*

LOAN CHARITIES.

The amount of the several Loan Charities as set forth in the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 6, p. 280), is as follows:—

In the year 1833 an information was filed by the Attorney-General v. The Grocers' Company praying amongst other things that an account might be taken as against the Company of the sums received by them upon trusts for making loans to poor freemen of the Company, and that it might be referred to the Master to settle a scheme or schemes for the due application of the same sums.

The case came on for hearing in the year 1835, before the Vice-Chancellor of England, who dismissed the information with costs with the following remarks:—

"Though it may be very true that for a long series of years these Charities have not been called into action, yet it is not at all certain but that to-morrow there may be an application to the Company on behalf of the poor members of the Company for loans out of the aggregate sum of 4,620*l.*, and the mere circumstance that there has not heretofore been any application, does not in my mind constitute any breach of trust with respect to the persons who are to be the lenders, because it is apparent there can be no loan unless some persons can borrow, and the reason the fund has not been applied is that no person has made any application to the Company to participate in any loan. Then there is no breach of trust, and there still is a subsisting charity, which may be exercised whenever parties may make application for it. My opinion is that the fund is not given to charity generally, and the fund is still subsisting as an available fund for the purpose of being doled out in the shape of loans to young members of the Company who may apply for it, and who of course are to take the loans at the discretion of the wardens and assistants of the Company."

Of the above-mentioned sums, it is stated that from the loans which could not be recovered the gifts of—

Stephen Abberley, 250*l.*, was lost in 1835.

Thomas Westram or Westran, 100*l.*, lost in 1854.

Thomas Gannell, 50*l.*, lost in 1854.

The remaining sums making together 4,220*l.* are still held by the Company applicable to investments according to the directions of the several donors.

A sum of 200*l.* has been recently lent to a freeman of the Company without interest, this is the only sum at present out on loan.

It is not the habit to give any public notice of the existence of the fund in the newspapers or in the hall of the Company, but it is believed that the freemen of the Company are generally aware of the existence of the fund and their claims upon it.

All which I submit to the Board.

THOS. HARE,
Inspector of Charities.

APPENDIX.

OUNDL, NORTHAMPTONSHIRE.

SIR WM. LAXTON'S CHARITIES.

At a meeting held in the Vestry Room on Saturday the 13th June 1863, in consequence of a letter received by the Churchwardens from the Commissioners of Charities.

PRESENT:

The Rev. J. Nussey, Vicar and Chairman.
J. W. Smith, Esq.
G. M. Edmonds, Esq.
J. C. Martin, Esq.
H. Yorke, Esq.
H. S. Smith, Esq.
Mr. Johnson.
Mr. Richard Price.
Mr. Linnell, Churchwarden.
Mr. Deacon.
Mr. Danford.

It was resolved unanimously,—

That this meeting desire to convey to the Charity Commissioners their thanks for the opportunity of communicating with them on the subject of Laxton's Charities.

That they feel from late changes instituted by the Grocer's Company that great improvements have already been made in the management and operation of the Charities.

That they consider some further improvements practicable, but in consequence of the shortness of the notice no suggestions of improvement could be sufficiently matured to be presented to the Charity Commissioners so soon as Monday next.

That, previously to offering any suggestions, they deem it would be desirable to communicate with the Grocers' Company respecting them.

That, therefore, they would feel obliged to the Charity Commissioners if they would allow them another opportunity at some early period for presenting such suggestions as they may find themselves enabled to decide upon.

That the chairman be requested to communicate these resolutions to the Charity Commissioners, and also to the Grocers' Company.

J. NUSSEY,
Chairman.

SIR,
Grammar School, Witney,
30th June 1863.

As preliminary to my answers to the questions contained in your letter of the 18th instant relative to the Witney Free Grammar School, it will be convenient to state that the school, founded about 1660, was intended to be free to 30 boys, natives of the town of Witney, the poorer applicants having priority of admission to the foundation.

In 1805 the Governors, exercising a power vested in them, limited the number of free scholars to 10, who were to be boys born in Witney, of parents not assessed to the maintenance of the poor, and ordered that a fee of 1*l.* 6*s.* per quarter should be paid by other scholars on the foundation.

The improvement of the Blue Coat School in this place, the rise of national schools, and more recently of a Wesleyan school have entirely absorbed the class contemplated in the revised statute, and the school has practically ceased to be free to any—I mean in the sense of "gratis"—by right, though I have from time to time remitted the fees in the case of a few, sons of widows in reduced circumstances.

I will now take your questions as they come.

1st. Is the school duly maintained?

This seems to me to have a three-fold bearing, and I accordingly beg to inform you,—a, that the schoolroom, master's house, and premises generally are, through the liberality of the Governors, kept in excellent repair; b, that the endowment being a rentcharge of 63*l.* per annum, is regularly paid half yearly and applied to its intended uses. If the question refer to the suitable payment of the masters, I have only to state that the salary of the head master is 30*l.* per annum, nearly the whole of which is paid for rates and taxes incident to the mastership; and that of the usher and writing master combined is 25*l.*, sums which, as I need scarcely observe, represented in 1660 a considerably larger amount than they do now; c, that the routine of school work is carried on regularly from 9 to 12 o'clock every morning, and in the afternoon from 2 to 4 or 5, according to the season of the year.

2nd. What are the numbers and average age of the boys?

During nearly 20 years the average attendance of day scholars has been 15 or 16, and since 1854, when the usher or second master began taking boarders in connexion with the grammar school, the number receiving education in the school has been about 30, never more than 33 nor less than 28 or 27. At the present time the number is 30, viz., 14 day boys and 16 boarders; of these 12 are under 12 years of age, 15 are 12 and under 14 years of age, and three are between 14 and 15 years of age. Boys are not admitted earlier than 7 years old, and very few have remained beyond 15.

3rd. What is the course of instruction?

By the statutes it is limited to teaching the Latin, Greek, and Hebrew languages, or any of them, with writing, casting accounts.

On my appointment to the mastership I took upon myself the responsibility of introducing an extended course adapted to the requirements of the town and the age, and from time to time slight additions have been made.

To give efficiency to the plan, I engaged in 1845 a young man who, after being a pupil of mine, had been kindly sent by the then Rector of Witney to the Oxford Diocesan training school for teachers to fit him for school work. I am pleased to say that the good opinion I then formed of his moral qualities, varied abilities and singular aptitude and taste for teaching has been confirmed by 18 years experience. The course pursued in the school comprises religious and moral instruction, Latin and Greek, the first book of Euclid, algebra, &c., history, English grammar, geography, general English literature, writing in its usual varieties, arithmetic, book-keeping, linear drawing and mapping, and land surveying, with practice out of doors. Much attention is paid to reading and spelling with rules, to analyzing, parsing, and transposing works as Milton and Cowper, to dictation, to information on common subjects, by carefully reading and the next day writing from memory; to the proper style of letter and note writing, both commercial and social. A French and drawing master comes twice a week to teach such boys as wish to have lessons, and drilling is regularly practised under the direction of the sergeant of the R. O. Volunteers. Such are the subjects, means, and appliances for instruction open to all the scholars in this school. You will not expect that all boys go through the whole course. Very few have learned Greek—only a few, from time to time, Euclid, or algebra, or land surveying, or French and drawing under the Oxford master; but all learn Latin and go through the rest of the above-mentioned course. I have only to add on this point that reviewing and examinations are frequent, and that discipline and diligence in studies are sought to be maintained by moral persuasion and vigilance, any other means being exceptions to the rule, few and far between.

4th. Is the present condition of the school, in your opinion, satisfactory or otherwise?

As regards education and the constant, diligent, and efficient manner in which the course of instruction is carried on, I consider the school to be in a very satisfactory state.

In respect to the number of the scholars, considering that the school was intended for 30 boys in a town of which the population is about 3,000, and that the average attendance of boys during many years has scarcely exceeded the half of the specified number, the state of the school appears to be unsatisfactory; yet, in fairness to the establishment and all connected with it, and to enable others to form a correct opinion on this point, I beg leave to state a fact which materially modifies the above admission. After careful inquiry from time to time, I have found that all the boys of this town whose parents have been able to pay the fees have in their day been scholars in this school, with very rare exceptions, and these, for the most part, being boys who have been admitted to establishments possessing great advantages, as Christ's Hospital, Marlboro College, the Benevolent Medical School at Epsom. At the present time the day boys and boarders together amount to 30, as before stated, 14 of the former, 16 of the latter. Strange as it may seem and scarcely credible, I believe, that with the exception of three or four at other schools out of the town, these 14 day boys comprise all the sons (old enough to go to boys' schools) of the inhabitants of this town who can afford to pay the fees. It seems more surprising when it is known that the fees alluded to, including all charges for books, stationery, and drilling rarely amount to more than 6*l.* per annum. Few, therefore, as the boys from the town are in comparison of what the population would lead anyone to expect, and short as they fall of the wishes of those more immediately concerned, they appear to be all which under the circumstances of the case can be looked for. And so, except as not satisfying wishes, I hardly see how the condition of the school, even in this point, can be described as unsatisfactory. There has been during all the years of my acquaintance with this town a scarcity of boys, I mean of the sons of professional men and upper tradesmen, but the small fry is, I perceive, on the increase, and there is therefore a fair probability that in time they will be gathered in the school net as they come to the proper size and age, and the number in attendance be larger than it is now or has been for time past.

Apologising for the delay that has occurred in replying to your letter, and trusting I have given you all the information you require,

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

HENRY GREGORY.

P.S.—I find I have omitted mentioning that the boys have the benefit of the overlooking of an assistant in the schoolroom and in their play, and walks and bathing, &c.

This young man, lately a pupil here, is paid for his services jointly by myself and the second master.

GROCERS' COMPANY.

Mr. Hare's Report,
15th Dec.
1863.

A scheme was framed under the Endowed Schools Act, 1869, and approved by Her Majesty in Council on 24th March, 1873, for the conversion to education of divers non-educational charities therein mentioned, and for the establishment of schools to be called the Grocers' Company's Schools.

A copy of the scheme is annexed.

By an Order of the Board of 16th July 1873, the Governing Body of the Schools were authorised to sell and release unto the Company for their own use and benefit the entire beneficial interest belonging to the Charities in certain messuages, rent-charges, and hereditaments.

By an Order of the Board of 15th August 1876 directions were given by way of Scheme in partial variation of the said Scheme framed under the Endowed Schools Acts as follows, viz.:—

As to Clause 26.—That the stipend of the Head Master should be fixed at 100*l.* per annum, and that he should also receive a further payment of 1*l.* yearly for each boy attending the said schools up to the number of 400, and of 10*s.* yearly for each such boy above that number.

As to Clause 27.—That the tuition fees to be paid by each boy attending the said schools should be fixed at not less than 3*l.*, nor more than 6*l.*

As to Clause 29.—That the following words, viz., "except with the written permission of the Governors, which in special cases may be given with the recommendation of the Head Master," should be inserted at the termination and form part of this clause.

Approved by Her Majesty in Council 24th March 1873.

ENDOWED SCHOOLS COMMISSION.

SCHEME for the Conversion to Education of divers Non-educational Charities, and for the Establishment of Schools to be called THE GROCERS' COMPANY'S SCHOOLS.

PART I.—GENERAL OBJECTS OF THE SCHEME, THE SCHOOL FUND, AND THE GOVERNING BODY.

1. The object of this Scheme is to establish and maintain Middle-class Schools in London or its vicinity. Object of Scheme.

2. The Schools shall be called the "Grocers' Company's Schools." Name of Schools.

O

Declaration as to the application of property in Schedules A., B., and C. for purposes of education.

3. The Endowed Schools Commissioners, with the consent of the Master, Wardens, and Commonalty of the Mystery of Grocers of the City of London, herein-after referred to as "the Company," in pursuance of the 30th section of the Endowed Schools Act, 1869, hereby declare that it is desirable to apply for the advancement of education, the whole of the rentcharges, hereditaments, and sums of money in that behalf specified in Schedules A., B., and C. hereunto annexed, subject as to the hereditaments specified in Schedule B. to such of the charges specified in Schedule D. as affect the same respectively.

Discharge of all existing trusts of the property, except those specified in Schedule D.

4. Upon this Scheme coming into operation, all trusts and directions contained in any Act of Parliament, Letters Patent, Statute, Deed, or Instrument, relating to the said rentcharges, hereditaments, and sums of money specified in Schedules A., B., and C. respectively, shall be repealed and abrogated as if the same were hereby enumerated for that purpose, and the said rentcharges, hereditaments, and sums of money shall be held by the Company upon trust for the Governing Body herein-after constituted for the purpose of this Scheme as herein-after provided.

Governing Body.

5. The Governing Body under this Scheme, herein-after referred to as "the Court," shall be the Master, Wardens, and Court of Assistants of the Company for the time being.

Religious opinions not to affect the qualification of future Governors.

6. Provided always, that religious opinions, or attendance or non-attendance at any particular form of religious worship, shall not in any way affect the qualification of any person for being one of the Governing Body.

Order of the Charity Commissioners to be obtained.

7. The Governing Body shall forthwith apply to the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales for an order authorising the sale and release to the Company of the entire beneficial interest free from incumbrances in the said rentcharges and hereditaments specified in Schedules A. and B. respectively, subject only as to the said hereditaments specified in Schedule B. to such of the charges specified in Schedule D. as affect the said hereditaments, and to the tenancies subsisting therein respectively.

Payment by the Company of the School Fund.

8. The Company shall within three months after the date of the order of the Charity Commissioners authorising the said sale and release, pay to the Governing Body the price for the said rentcharges and hereditaments, subject as aforesaid, which shall be accepted as sufficient by the Charity Commissioners, and also the amount of the capital sums specified in Schedule C., together with such further sum not exceeding 10,000*l.* of their own free gift as shall make up the aggregate amount of 30,000*l.* to be called "The School Fund."

Accounts of School Fund.

9. Full accounts of the receipts and expenditure of the School Fund shall be kept and audited annually, and submitted to the Charity Commissioners in the form set out in Schedule E., unless the Charity Commissioners shall prescribe some other form.

PART II.—THE SCHOOLS AND THEIR MANAGEMENT.

Schools of higher or lower scale.

10. The Schools established under this Scheme shall be in a single building or otherwise as the Court shall determine. They shall be conducted on some suitable site or sites to be chosen by the Court within three miles of the City of London, or, with the consent of the Endowed Schools Commissioner, at a further distance therefrom. They shall be adapted for Day Scholars, amounting if possible to not less than 500. And a residence for a Head Master may, if the Court shall so determine, be added.

11. The Schools shall in the first instance be opened for boys, but the Court shall have power at any time to convert them wholly or partly to the use of girls if deemed expedient.

12. The aim of the Schools shall be to give a practical education suitable for the children of that class who desire to educate their children up to the age of 14 years or thereabouts.

13. The Boys' Schools shall be under the direction of one man, called the Head Master, unless the Court thinks it better to carry them on in two distinct buildings and to appoint a Head Master for each.

Appointment and qualification of Head Master.

14. The Head Master shall be appointed by the Court. The circumstance that a candidate for the appointment is not and does not intend to be in Holy Orders shall not affect his qualification. In order to obtain the best candidates the Court shall for a sufficient time before making any appointment give public notice of the vacancy, and invite competition by advertisements in newspapers or other methods, as they may judge best calculated to secure the object.

15. The Court may dismiss a Head Master without assigning cause, after six calendar months' written notice.

Dismissal.

16. For urgent cause the Court may, by resolution passed at a meeting duly convened as a special one for that purpose, declare that a Head Master ought to be dismissed from his office, and in that case they may appoint another special meeting to be held within not less than a week of the former one, and may then by a similar resolution wholly and finally dismiss him. And the Court assembled at the first of such meetings may, if they think fit, at once suspend a Head Master from his office until the second meeting. Full notice and opportunity of defence at both meetings shall be given to the Head Master affected by such resolution.

17. Every Head Master, previously to entering into office, shall be required to sign a declaration to be entered in the Minute Book of the Court, or book to be kept for that purpose, in the following form:—

Declaration to be signed by Head Master.

"I, _____, declare that I will always, to the best of my ability, discharge the duties of Head Master of the Grocers Company's School at _____ during my tenure of the office, and that if I am removed by the Court, I will acquiesce in such removal, and will thereupon relinquish all claim to the mastership, and its future emoluments, and will deliver up to the Court, or as they direct, possession of all the property then in my possession or occupation as such Head Master as aforesaid."

18. Every Head Master shall reside in the dwelling-house (if any) assigned for his residence. He shall have the occupation and use of such house and of any other property of the School Fund, or of the Company of which he becomes possessed in respect of his official character and duties and not as tenant, and shall if removed from his office, deliver up possession of such house and other property to the Court, or as they direct. He shall not, except with the permission of the Court, permit any person to occupy such house or any part thereof.

Head Master to reside in the house assigned to him in his official character.

19. Every Head Master shall give his personal attention to the duties of his School, and during his tenure of office he shall not accept or hold any benefice having the cure of souls, or any office or appointment, which in the opinion of the Court may interfere with the proper performance of his duties as Head Master.

Head Master not to have other employment.

20. No Head Master or Assistant Master shall in respect of the School work, receive, or demand from any boy in any School administered under this Scheme, or from any person whomsoever on behalf of any such boy, any gratuity, fee, or payment, except such payments as are prescribed or authorised by this Scheme, or by the Court.

Head Master not to receive other than authorised fees.

21. Within the limits fixed by this Scheme, the Court shall prescribe the general subjects of instruction, the relative prominence and value to be assigned to each group of subjects, the division of the year into school time and vacation, the payments by the scholars, and the holidays to be given. They shall take general supervision of the sanitary condition of the School buildings and arrangements. They shall determine what number of Assistant Masters ought to be employed. They shall every year assign the amount which they think proper to be paid out of the income of the School Fund, for the purpose of maintaining Assistant Masters and a proper plant and apparatus for carrying on the instruction given in the School.

Jurisdiction of Court over scholastic arrangements.

22. Before making any regulations as to any School under the last preceding clause, the Court shall consult the Head Master thereof, if there be one, in such a manner as to give him full opportunity for the expression of his views.

Court to consult the Head Master.

23. Subject to the rules prescribed by or under the authority of this Scheme the Head Master shall have under his control the choice of books, the method of teaching, the arrangement of classes and School hours, and generally the whole internal organisation, management, and discipline of his School; provided that if he expel a boy from his School, he shall forthwith make a full report of the case to the Court.

Jurisdiction of Head Master over scholastic arrangements.

24. The Head Master shall have the sole power of appointing and dismissing all Assistant Masters in his School, and shall determine in what proportions the sum assigned by the Court for the maintenance of Assistant Masters and of plant and apparatus ought to be divided among the various persons and objects for the aggregate of whom it is assigned. And the Court shall pay the same accordingly, either through the hands of the Head Master, or directly, as they think best.

Head Master to appoint and dismiss Assistant Masters, and to distribute fund assigned to Assistant Masters or plant.

Head Master may submit proposals to the Court.

25. The Head Master may from time to time submit proposals to the Court for making or altering regulations as to any matter within his province relative to his School, and the Court shall consider such proposals and decide upon them.

Income of Head Master.

26. The Head Master shall receive a fixed stipend of 200*l.* a year. He shall also receive payment according to the number of boys in the School; that is to say, such sum calculated on such a scale, uniform or graduated, as may be agreed upon between him and the Court, being not less than 1*l.* yearly for each boy. These payments shall be made terminally, and shall not be made for any boy who has not belonged to the School for the whole term.

Payments for entrance and tuition fees.

27. All boys, except as herein-after provided, shall pay such entrance and tuition fees as the Court shall fix from time to time, provided that no such entrance fee shall exceed 1*l.*, and that no tuition fee shall be less than 3*l.* or more than 5*l.* No extra of any kind shall be allowed without the sanction of the Court.

28. All payments for entrance and tuition fees in each School shall be made in advance to the Head Master thereof, or to such other person as the Court shall from time to time determine, and shall be accounted for by the person receiving them to the Court, and shall be treated by the Court as part of the general income of the School Fund.

Age for the School.

29. No boy shall be admitted into the School unless he has attained the age of seven years and is under the age of 12. No boy shall remain in the School after the expiration of the term in which he attains the age of 15 years.

Withdrawal of idle or incapable boys.

30. The Head Master shall, with the sanction of the Court, make regulations for the withdrawal of boys from his School in cases where from idleness or incapacity to profit by the studies of the place, they have fallen materially below the standard of position and attainment proper for their age.

To whom school is open.

31. Subject to the provisions established by or under the authority of this Scheme, the Schools and all advantages of the Schools shall be open to all boys who are of good character, and of sufficient bodily health.

Mode of admission.

32. Applications for admission shall be made to the Head Master, or to some other person named by the Court, according to a printed form to be approved of by the Court, and delivered to all applicants.

Register of applications.

33. The Head Master or other person named by the Court shall keep a register of applications showing the date at which every application is made for the admission of a boy, the date of his admission, withdrawal, or rejection, the cause of rejection, and the age of a boy at the date of the application.

Entrance examination.

34. Every applicant for admission shall be examined by or under the direction of the Head Master, who shall appoint convenient times for that purpose and give reasonable notice to the parents of those boys whose turn is arriving. No boy shall be admitted except on the terms of undergoing such examination and being found fit for admission. Those who are so found fit shall, if there is room for them, be admitted in order according to the dates of their application, but it shall be competent to the Court to direct that if there is not room their priority shall be determined by Competitive Examination, and boys nominated by the Court or by any member of the Court, shall in all cases have priority of admission on passing the usual examination.

35. The examination for admission shall be graduated according to the age of the boy, but it shall never fall below the following standard, that is to say:—

Reading monosyllabic narrative and Writing text hand.

Easy sums in the first two Rules of Arithmetic.

The Court may raise the minimum standard for all or any of the Schools from time to time if they deem it advantageous.

Provisions for special exemptions from religious instruction and worship.

36. The parent or guardian of or person liable to maintain or having the actual custody of any scholar may claim, by notice in writing addressed to the Head Master of the School, the exemption of such scholar from attending prayer or religious worship, or from any lesson or series of lessons on a religious subject, and such scholar shall be exempted accordingly, and a scholar shall not by reason of any exemption from attending prayer or religious worship or from any lesson or series of lessons on a religious subject, be deprived of any advantage or emolument in his School or out of the School Fund to which he would otherwise have been entitled. If any teacher in the course of other lessons at which any such scholar is in accordance with the ordinary rules of his School present, teaches systematically and persistently any particular religious doctrine, from the teaching of which any exemption has been claimed, as in this clause before provided, the Court shall, on complaint made in writing to them by the parent, guardian, or person liable to maintain or having the actual custody of such scholar, hear the complaint, and inquire into the circumstances, and if the complaint is judged to be reasonable, make all proper provisions for remedying the matter complained of.

Religious instruction.

37. The Court and the Head Master shall, each within their own departments, as herein-before defined, and, subject to the provisions of this Scheme, make proper regulations for the religious instruction to be given in the School.

38. The subjects of secular instruction shall be the following:—

Subjects of secular instruction.

Reading and Spelling.

Writing.

Arithmetic.

The Elements of Algebra and Geometry.

Geography, Political and Physical.

Some Branch or Branches of Physical Science.

One or more of the following Languages,—Latin, French, German.

English Grammar and Composition.

English Literature.

English History.

Drawing.

Vocal Music.

The Court shall prescribe to which of the foregoing subjects the main efforts of the teachers shall be directed.

39. The boys in each School shall be instructed in the foregoing subjects according to the arrangements made by the Head Master. The Court may also provide for lessons being given by competent teachers in Navigation, Land Surveying, or Agricultural Chemistry, to every boy who is sufficiently advanced to profit by such instruction, but not so as to interfere with the arrangements made by the Head Master for the conduct of the School business.

Arrangements for instruction. Extra subjects.

40. There shall be once at least in every year an examination of the scholars by an Examiner or Examiners appointed for that purpose by the Court, and paid by them, but otherwise unconnected with the School. The Examiners shall report to the Court on the proficiency of the scholars in each School, and on the state of the School as regards instruction and discipline, as shown by the results of the examination and with special regard to the elementary subjects. The Court shall communicate the reports to the Head Master.

Annual examination.

41. The Head Master shall make an Annual Report to the Court on the general condition of his School, the details of his entrance examinations, and any special occurrences which have happened in his School during the past year. He also may mention the names of any boys who in his judgment are worthy of praise or substantial reward, having regard both to proficiency and conduct.

Head Master's Annual Report.

42. By way of exhibitions tenable at the School, the Court shall grant exemptions from the payment of tuition fees for such periods and on such conditions as the Court shall think fit. Such exemptions shall be given as the reward of merit only, and shall be assigned—in the case of candidates for admission, on the result of the examination provided for in clause 34—in the case of boys already attending a School, on the Reports of the Examiners and Head Master, and no exemption shall be granted to any boy if the Head Master reports that he is rendered undeserving of it by ill-conduct. The Court may, under the above conditions, exempt boys from the payment of the whole, or of one-half of the tuition fee, but such exemption shall in every case be liable to forfeiture in the event of misconduct or failure to maintain a reasonable standard of proficiency. The boys so exempted shall, if children of freemen of the Company, be called and ranked as Grocers Scholars, and in all other cases as Foundation Scholars, and the degrees of exemption shall be further distinguished if the Court think fit. Not more than 10 per cent. of the boys shall be wholly exempt, and no further exemptions shall be allowed, when such exemptions, total and partial, reach the proportion of one in every five boys in the School. In providing such exemptions, the Court shall arrange that one-third shall be competed for, in the first instance, by children of freemen of the Company, and none of this class shall be thrown open to all comers until the Head Master has reported that there are not enough of such children who, on examination, prove worthy to take them. Subject to this preference, the emoluments of the Endowment shall be freely and openly competed for.

43. The Court may also, in cases of distinguished merit, grant further exhibitions tenable at the School in the shape of money payment, or in such other shape as they think fit.

Exhibitions to Schools of higher scale.

44. The Court may also give at their discretion, for competition by all scholars, one or more Exhibitions of 25l. a year, each tenable for three years, either in a School of higher scale, or by way of starting or outset in life, under such regulations as the Court shall in each case direct.

Exhibitions not to be perverted from their proper purpose.

45. The Exhibitions established under this scheme shall be tenable only for the purposes of education, or gaining a start in some profession or calling. If the holder is guilty of misconduct or idleness, or wilfully ceases to pursue his education, it shall be competent to the Court to determine the Exhibition.

Pensions.

46. The Court may, if they think fit, agree with any Head Master that in consideration of an annual contribution by him of a fixed sum of money, the Court shall annually add to it another fixed sum, and that the whole shall be invested and accumulate for his benefit, and shall be given to him in the way of Pension or Superannuation Fund, on retirement after 20 years' service, or in the event of permanent disability by illness; and that in the event of dismissal or resignation before the expiration of 20 years, the fund produced by his own contribution shall be returned.

Girls' schools.

47. If and when the Court decide upon the establishment of a School for Girls, they may conduct it upon the general principles, mutatis mutandis, hereinbefore laid down for the Boys' Schools; or they may apply for a fresh Scheme to the Charity Commissioners.

Residue.

48. If there is any residue of income, the Court may employ it in increasing the stipend of any Head Master, or the Fund applicable to the payment of Assistant Masters and School plant or apparatus, in improving the accommodation of the School buildings, in aiding the games of the Scholars, or generally in promoting the spirit and efficiency of the Schools. Whatever they do not think fit to spend in these ways, they shall, on passing the yearly accounts, state as Unapplied Surplus, and shall deposit it in a Bank, and if the sums so deposited rise to 300l., they shall invest the same in Government Stock, in the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds, to the general credit of the Trust.

Unapplied surplus.

GENERAL.

Saving of lawful claims against Trust funds.

49. Nothing contained in this Scheme shall prejudice any lawful claim against the Trust funds; and the Trustees who have acted up to the date of this Scheme shall have the same right to indemnity out of the Trust funds against the consequences of all acts done by them in the execution of their Trusts, as they would have had supposing this Scheme had not been passed.

Further endowments.

50. The Court may receive any additional donations or endowments for the general purposes of the Schools. They may also receive donations or endowments for any special objects directed by the donors, provided that such objects are certified by the Charity Commissioners to be for the general benefit of the Schools, and not calculated to give privileges to any boy on any other ground than that of merit, and not otherwise inconsistent with, or calculated to impede, the due working of the provisions of this Scheme.

Charity Commissioners to decide doubtful questions.

51. If any doubt or question arises among the Court as to the proper construction or application of any of the provisions of this Scheme, the Court may apply to the Charity Commissioners for their opinion and advice thereon, which opinion and advice when given shall be binding on the Court.

Commissioners to make new Schemes.

52. The Charity Commissioners may from time to time, in the exercise of their ordinary jurisdiction, frame Schemes for the alteration of any provisions of this Scheme or otherwise for the government or regulation of the Trust, provided that such Schemes be not inconsistent with the first part of this Scheme, or with anything contained in the Endowed Schools Act, 1869.

Scheme to be printed.

53. This Scheme shall be printed and a copy given to every person who shall become a Governor of the Trust, and to every Master, or Assistant Master, and Teacher appointed to the School, and sold at a reasonable price to any person who may wish to buy one.

54. The date of this Scheme shall be the day on which Her Majesty by Order in Council declares Her approbation of it.

The style or title of the Draper's Company is "The Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters of the Guild or Fraternity of the Blessed Mary the Virgin of the Mystery of Drapers."

The government of the Company is vested in the—

Master,

Four wardens, and

Court of assistants, consisting of a minimum of 12, but now consisting of 21 besides the master and wardens.

The livery, consisting of upwards of 300 (about 320), who are necessarily free (and by a recent regulation free four years before eligible for the livery).

Many freemen and freewomen are not on the livery; the number of these are unknown.

The freedom is acquired—

I. By patrimony; the son or daughter of a freeman having been born after the parent had taken up his freedom is free.

II. By servitude; seven years to a freeman or freewomen of any calling.

III. By redemption on payment of 100 guineas at the option of the court; and

IV. By the free grant of the court.

SIR THOMAS ADAMS' CHARITY.

Sir Thomas Adams, by an indenture of the 20th June 1666, granted to the Drapers' Company an annuity of 40*l.*, charged on the manor of Chaworth in Essex, in trust to pay the same to the Professor of Arabic in the University of Cambridge.

This is received without deduction from Lord Maynard, and paid to the Professor of Arabic at Cambridge. The Rev. Henry G. Williams is the present professor.

SIR THOMAS ADAMS' CHARITY.

Sir Thomas Adams bequeathed to the Company 200*l.* to be lent out at 4*0s.* per cent., to be paid to the poor of the Company.

The 200*l.* is part of the 3,811*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* administered under the decree in Clonne's Charity, and the 4*l.* per annum is applied to the pensions to the poor on the roll (see Kendrick's Charity).

LADY ASKEW'S OR ASCUE ALMSHOUSES.

Lady Askew or Ascue, according to the Company's books, by her will (I presume in consideration of some devise or bequest which does not appear), laid upon the Company the obligation to provide and assign seven poor widows of good name and honest conversation severally to have and hold the tenements or almshouses in Beech Lane during their lives rent free, and to distribute amongst the poorest people of the Company 20s., part of the Company's rent of the land in Beech Lane adjoining to the said almshouses, and to take for their pains the yearly sum of 10s.

The almshouses regarded as derived from this foundation are eight old tenements in a row in Beech Lane, St. Giles Cripplegate. They are about to be removed to Tottenham under the arrangements referred to in my report on Milborne's Almshouses. They are occupied by eight poor widows, chosen by the master and wardens at a court of wardens.

The will of Dame Ann Askue, of which a copy is in the possession of the Company, purports to devise to the Company seven tenements in the parish of St. Giles, Cripplegate, and also two gardens and two lodges and stable, and one capital messuage and a hog yard adjoining in Beech Lane, in the said parish, for the sustenance of the almshouses, with a gift of the residue of the issues and profits to the poor of the Company at the discretion of the master and wardens. Except the almshouses and the houses belonging to Walters' trust, the Company have no property in Beech Lane.

Nothing in the way of income is known to have been derived from any gift of Lady Askew. There is 1*l.* paid annually to the general charities on account of her donation, but nothing to this institution.

The principal fund from which the inmates of these almshouses are supported is derived from,—

BUCK'S CHARITY.

Robert Buck, by his will of the 17th November 1620, gave to the Drapers' Company a messuage and land in the parish of Langley, Kent, on trust that the renter warden should pay to the two younger wardens 20*l.* for the purchase of clothing, which, with 3*l.* in money, should be sent to the parish of Ugley in Essex, for such of the surname of Buck as should inhabit Bollington Hall. And he directed that the clothing and money should be given in the second year to the parish of Manendine in Essex, and in the third year to the parish of Stansted-Mountfichett, in Essex. And he further directed the following payments:—

	£	s.	d.
To the eight poor widows in the Beech Lane Almshouses, 2 s. 6 d. a month each	12	0	0
To the wardens	0	10	0
Clerk	0	6	8
Renter-warden	0	6	8
Beadles	0	3	4

And the residue to the wardens for the repairs of the estate, or to such other charitable uses as they should deem expedient.

The Commissioners of Inquiry referred this case to the Attorney-General. An information ex-officio was filed by Sir John Campbell, Attorney-General, on the 28th May 1838, stating the said certificate of the Commissioners, and that according to the true construction of the will the whole of the rents of the said lands and premises ought to have been applied to charitable purposes, and the said Company were not nor had ever been entitled to any part thereof for their own use and benefit, and they ought to account for all such sums as had been received by them out of such rents, and applied for their own use and benefit, and that all proper directions ought to be given for the proper application of the said rents and profits for the future: And praying that it might be declared that the whole of the lands, &c., and the rents thereof, were applicable to charitable purposes, and that the Company were not entitled to apply any part of the rents thereof to their own use, and that an account might be taken of the sums received by the Company, or by any persons on their behalf, in respect of the rents of the said lands or from such fines or premiums as aforesaid, and of their application thereof, and that in taking such accounts they might not be allowed any such sums which should not appear to have been applied by them to the purposes of the charity in accordance with the intention of the testator; and that they might be decreed to make good whatever upon such account should appear to have been received by them over and above what they had properly applied and disposed of as aforesaid. And that all proper inquiries might be directed for the purpose of ascertaining of what the lands and premises so devised as aforesaid consisted, and that all directions might be given for the proper application of the sums which should be coming from the said Company upon such accounts to be taken as aforesaid, and for securing the rents of the said lands for the future for the charitable purposes as intended by the will of the said testator as aforesaid.

The suit appears to have been terminated in pursuance of an arrangement, shown in the following correspondence, between Mr. Parkes, acting for the Attorney-General, and Mr. Lawford on behalf of the Company:—

" 21, Great George Street,
26th June 1839.

" DEAR SIR,

" Attorney-General v. Drapers' Company (Buck's Charity).

" As it appears from the defendants' answer that the surplus revenue belonging to this charity carried to the Company's general account has been more than repaid out of the Company's income in monthly stipends of 1*l.* 9*s.* paid to each of the eight poor women residing in the almshouses in Beech Lane, I am desirous of being informed whether the Company will consent to a decree to keep for the future the whole proceeds of the charity distinct from their general account, and not carry over the surplus revenue as heretofore; if so, I will prepare and send you minutes of proposed decree, as the account prayed against the Company will be waived in the event of their consenting to the terms now suggested. They must, however, pay the costs of the suit, which they can retain from the future receipts of the charity estate.

" I am, &c.

" JOSEPH PARKES."

" Drapers' Hall,
26th May 1840.

" DEAR SIR,

" Attorney-General v. Drapers' Company (Buck's Charity).

" We are favoured with your letter of the 19th instant, with a copy of that of the 26th June last, and in reply to your proposal, we beg to state that we have no objection to the defendants' entering a resolution on their books to keep for the future the whole proceeds of this charity distinct from their general account, and not carry over the surplus revenue as heretofore; and in order to dispose of the suit we will recommend our clients to pay the costs, as between party and party, out of their own funds, and the suit can then be dismissed upon the usual petition, which we will direct our clerk in court to sign; the arrangement above suggested will effect what you propose in your letter of the 26th June last; but we should object to any decree for which there seems no reason, but, in truth, if the facts had not been misunderstood by the Commissioners there could have been no suit.

" We are, &c.

" E. and J. LAWFORD."

" 21, Great George Street,
22nd August 1840.

" DEAR SIR,

" Attorney-General v. Drapers' Company.

" I SEE no objection to ending this suit by the arrangement mentioned in your letter of the 26th May, and which will save the expense of a hearing.

" You will therefore be good enough to enter the resolution on the Company's books as proposed, and obtain the sanction of the Company thereto in the usual manner. When this is done please to make an early appointment for me to inspect the resolution. I enclose you my costs in the suit, which I will at the same time settle with you. The information may then be dismissed as proposed.

" I am, &c.

" JOSEPH PARKES."

By an order of the Master of the Rolls of the 30th April 1841, it was ordered that the information might stand dismissed out of the Court without costs.

It appears that there was no resolution of the Company subsequently to the last-mentioned letter, but that previous to the letter of Mr. Lawford of the 26th May 1840 the subject had been brought by him to the notice of the Court of Assistants; their resolution thereon is recorded in the following minute of the 14th April 1840, authorising the arrangement:

" It is resolved, that the Court do authorise the clerk of the Company to pay the costs in question, and to adopt such course as may appear to him most proper for staying the proceedings in the information filed against the Company in relation to Buck's Charity, either upon the terms mentioned in the letter from Mr. Parkes or such modification of the plan proposed as shall appear to him expedient."

Since the dismissal of the information, and in pursuance of the arrangement made with the Attorney-General's solicitor, the practice has been to carry the income of the estate to one account, intituled "Robert Buck's Trusts," with 5*l.* a year from Lady Ramsey and the 6*l.* 8*s.* from Henry Butler's Charities.

The estate, as described by the Commissioners of Inquiry, consists of an old mansion-house at Caring, in the parish of Langley, near Maidstone in Kent, and 98 acres of land let to George Cutt, a yearly tenant of 140*l.*, the rent not having been raised since the last inquiry.

The gift of clothes in 1860 consisted of 67 yards Dowlas, 30 of blue serge, 18 of towelling, 1 gross buttons, 23 yards blue cloth, 3 black beaver bonnets, 3 felt hats, 9 tanned sheepskins. It is forwarded to the churchwardens of the several parishes. The payments of 1 l. to the wardens, 13 s. 4 d. to the clerk, 3 s. 4 d. to the beadle, and 3 s. 4 d. to the upper porter are also made -	2	0	0

On the 31st December 1860 the balance of payments entered in the Company's books in excess of receipts on account of the three charities was 767*l.* 0*s.* 8*d.*

It appears by the state of this account, and the proceedings and correspondence, that the administration of the fund, whatever discretion or absolute power the Company may theoretically assert, is practically satisfactory; that even more than the charity could strictly require is applied for its benefit; and the Attorney-General has thought that any legal proceedings would be idle, in which opinion I have no doubt the Commissioners will concur.

DAME MARY RAMSAY'S GIFT.

Dame Mary Ramsay, by her will of the 8th July 1601, gave to the Company 200*l.* towards the relief of the poor of the said Company. The management of the loan fund is stated in my report on Clonne's Charity. Of the interest of this sum at 5*l.* per cent., 5*l.* or one moiety is annually carried to the account of the poor in the almshouses in Beech Lane, and 5*l.* to the poor of the Company.

BUTLER'S GIFT.

Henry Butler bequeathed to the Company 100*l.* to purchase lands and pay thereout 4*l.* a year to the eight poor widows in the Beech Lane almshouses. To this was subsequently added an unpaid accumulation of 34*l.*, and making together 134*l.*, the interest of such amounting to 6*l.* 8*s.* a year is paid to the same account as Robert Buck's Trust.

WHITBREAD'S GIFT.

Samuel Whitbread, as executor of his father, transferred 833*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* Consols to the names of the master and wardens, in trust, to pay the annual dividends amongst the poor widows in the Beech Lane almshouses, as declared by an indenture of the 22nd April 1797. The fund now stands as part of a large sum of like stock in the corporate name of the Company, which varies annually as circumstances require. The dividends, amounting to 25*l.* a year, are divided half-yearly in January and July amongst the eight widows in the Beech Lane almshouses, in addition to what they receive from the Robert Buck Trust. This annual gift amounts to 1*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.* each.

ASILWOOD'S OR HAZLEWOOD'S CHARITY.

John Asilwood or Hazlewood devised to the Drapers' Company by his will of the 27th November 1532 all his messuages and tenements in the parishes of St. Bennet, Gracechurch Street, St. Clement, near Lombard Street, and St. Edmund towards the support of poor brethren and sisters of the said Company.

The book of abstracts of deeds of the Company, referred to by the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 32, part 2, page 434) under the head of "Gracechurch," refers to an indenture by which the property appears to have been vested in fee simple in John Haslewood (or Asilwood), William Milborne, William Calby, and John Rudstone. Of these it would seem that Asilwood was the survivor, but whether he held the property in his own right or as trustee of the Company, does not appear, and may be very doubtful, especially having regard to the decision in the case of the Attorney-General (relator, Thos. Spencer Hall) v. the Fishmongers' Company, mentioned in my report on the charities administered by that body (pages and).

The house in Gracechurch Street was purchased by the City of London under the London Bridge Approaches Acts, and the purchase money was received by the Company, and a portion has been reinvested in the purchase of a house in Mark Lane.

The rent of the property before the sale and the income of the purchase money since, as well as the rents of the Mark Lane property, have been carried to the account of the income of the Company, and has not been regarded as subject to any charitable trust (except as to 105*l.* a year mentioned in Colborne's case).

The Commissioners of Inquiry certified this case to the Attorney-General. It does not appear, however, that any steps have been taken in the matter. The Drapers' Company are not aware of any proceedings subsequent to the Commissioners' Inquiry, nor have my inquiries been the means of gathering any additional information relating to it.

Upon the subject of the origin of the title of the Company to property acquired under devises prior to the Reformation, I would also refer to my concluding observation in the report on Sir John Milborne's almshouses, below.

BANCROFT'S CHARITY.

Francis Bancroft, by his will of the 18th March 1727, gave to the Drapers' Company all his real and personal estate, on trust, to lay out 4,000*l.* or 5,000*l.* in purchasing a piece of ground, and building thereon almshouses for 24 old men, with a chapel and schoolroom for 100 poor boys, and two dwelling-houses for masters, and the residue of his personal estate to be employed in the purchase of estates of inheritance to answer such charitable purposes for ever, and any surplus to be applied in improving the charity as the Company should think fit. The testator directed that the 24 old men should be members of the Company, and appointed by them and the two schoolmasters to be chosen, and the 100 boys to be placed in the school by the said Company. And he further directed that the 24 old men should have 8*l.* a year each, half a chaldron of coals, and a baize gown every third year; that the two masters should have each 30*l.* a year, and 20*l.* a year should be allowed for coals and candles, and that the boys should be clothed yearly. Also he directed two sermons to be preached yearly, the ministers to receive 20*s.* each and the readers 10*s.*, and clerks and sextons 2*s.* 6*d.* each; and he directed that the children on leaving school should have 2*l.* 10*s.* for clothes or 4*l.* for binding them apprentice. And he gave to the clerk of the Company 20*l.* a year and 30*s.* to his man.

The Commissioners of Inquiry, by their report on the parish of St. Dunstan, Stepney, in the county of Middlesex, in which this institution was established, set forth the residuary, real, and personal estate which accrued to the Company under this devise and bequest (vol. 4, p. 182), together with the fact of the purchase by the Company in pursuance of the will of about five acres of ground at Mile End, on which the almshouses, chapel, school, and master's houses then stood. They stated also in detail the real estate derived under the founder's will and the investments made by the Company out of the residuary personal estate. They also stated the augmentations in the charitable disbursements which had been made: first, in 1803, by the conversion of the day school for the 100 boys into a boarding school, the increase of the salaries of the masters, and the appointment of a chaplain.

The Commissioners made a later report on the same institution, on the occasion of the inquiry into the charities under the Drapers' Company (vol. 32, pt. 2, p. 421). The only material additions to the former report were the fact that the accumulations of stock had increased since the former report from—

40,800 l. Consolidated Annuities, and	} to {	40,900 l. 3 l. per cent. Consols, and
33,400 l. 3 l. per cent. Reduced Annuities;		33,800 l. 3 l. per cent. Reduced Annuities; that the almsmen had been increased from 24 to 30. Six additional houses having been erected, and that a question of the proportionate amount of rents of some property in Coleman Street, purchased partly with money of the charity and partly with the property of the Company, was a matter for the decision of a court of equity, and had been therefore certified to the Attorney-General. The steps taken on this point are mentioned at No. 19, in the following table:—

The present estate of the charity consists of the following particulars:—

	£	s.	d.
Brought forward	1,755	15	5
16. An undivided moiety of No. 10, Poultry (the other undivided moiety belonging to Dixon's Charity), let to Elizabeth Boyall for 21 years, from Michaelmas 1851, at 180 l.	90	0	0
17. No. 11, Poultry, on lease for 13 years, from Michaelmas 1859, to William Horner	175	0	0
18. A portion of the house No. 55, Gracechurch Street (the residue belonging to Rainey's Charity), let (the entire house) for 21 years, from Christmas 1855, to Thomas Statchet Palmer at 135 l. , for this portion, $\frac{1}{4}$ th	33	15	0
19. A portion of the rent of a house at the back of Coleman Street leading from Glean Alley, being the same proportion to the entire rent of 300 l. a year, as 9 l. bore at the time of the purchase to 70 l. , the rent at that time. The premises, which front in Basinghall Street, are let to William Trego for 21 years, from Midsummer 1848, at 300 l.	38	11	6

The question as to the charity share of this rent was the matter which the Commissioners of Inquiry thought it right, as before stated, to refer to the Attorney-General. The Company, when they became aware of that measure, came to the following resolution (May 1839).

"The clerk of the Company called the attention of the Court to the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry advertising to the rentcharge of 9*l.*, and which was certified to the Attorney-General, as the 9*l.* a year did not then bear the same proportion to the whole rent of the premises as it did when originally charged thereon. And the Court referring to their minutes of 15th March 1758, whereby it appeared that a small piece of ground in Glean Alley, Coleman Street, was then purchased by the Company out of cash of Bancroft's trust for 260*l.*, and referring also to minutes of 24th October 1759, whereby, with the view of letting the ground in question with the premises belonging to the Company, agreed with the tenant to purchase his interest for 25 guineas. And it appearing that this arrangement was carried into effect, and the lease surrendered and an agreement afterwards entered into with the tenant for a lease of the whole premises at 70*l.* a year. And it further appearing that it was resolved that 9*l.* a year should be payable out of the premises on account of Bancroft's trust. And it appearing that such 9*l.* had since been carried to such trust. And that in May 1787 the premises were again let for 61 years at 120*l.* a year. And that the Commissioners of Inquiry in 1820 called the attention of the then clerk of the Company to the above circumstances, with an intimation that the trust ought to have the benefit of the improvement in the rent since the apportionment. And it appearing that the said Commissioners stated that if 9*l.* was the fair proportion when the rent was 70*l.*, the charity would be entitled to about 15*l.* 8*s.* 6*d.* per annum, and that as the trust ought to have had the benefit of the improved rent from 1820, such a sum ought to be carried to the account of the trust as would be sufficient to cover the arrears of the difference from that time, adding, however, that in the opinion of the Commissioners the more correct mode of ascertaining what was due to the charity would be by taking the present actual value of the portion of the premises purchased as aforesaid and of the remainder thereof and divide the reserved rent in the same proportion, which being considered, and it appearing that from the state of the property the latter mode would be the least beneficial to the charity, it was resolved that the sum of 115 l. 13 s. , being 18 years' arrears of the difference between 15 l. 8 s. 6 d. a year suggested by the Commissioners and 9 l. carried to that account, be carried to the credit of Bancroft's trust, and that thenceforth there also be carried to the credit of the trust in respect of the piece of ground in question the annual sum of 15 l. 8 s. 6 d. in accordance with the recommendation of the Commissioners of Charity.

And subsequently, in July 1839, the clerk of the Company informed the Court that the solicitor of the Attorney-General stated that if the Court undertook to pay the 15 l. 8 s. 6 d. , during the present lease of the premises no further proceedings would be carried on against the Company. It was resolved that the clerk be authorised to accede to the solicitor's proposition.

Every boy who leaves the school is allowed 2l. 10s. to buy clothes, or an apprentice fee of 10l. if bound as an apprentice. (This has been increased from 4l., see Regulations, Appendix, p. 2.) The indentures are in that case prepared by the clerk of the Company, unless the master is free of London when the indentures are prepared at the Guildhall. The boys now leave the school at 14, unless the time is prolonged by special application to the committee. The apprentice fees and gratuities for apprenticeship are not always applied for. They are not obliged to be apprenticed immediately on leaving the school, and often deferring the application for the 50s., probably with the view of obtaining the apprentice fee.

At the end of the year 1860 there was a balance to the credit of the charity above the disbursements of 235l. 6s. 2d., which, with a small sum added to it, making 274l. 17s. 6d., was invested in the sum of 300l. 3l. per cent. Reduced Annuities.

The duties of the head master and the second master and the other officers of the establishment are pointed out in the printed statement of the foundation and rules of the hospital annexed to this report.

The almspeople are chosen from the freemen of the Company (or freemen in preference) by the master and wardens at a court of the master and wardens. There is no prescribed limit as to age, but aged men are generally selected. Their wives are admitted with them, but cannot remain when they become widows. A daughter of an almsman of competent years is permitted to be with him.

The boys are not restricted to any class or condition. They are presented by members of the Court of Assistants in rotation, and if thought proper and eligible appointed by the master and wardens. The class of parents of the children very greatly varies, from that of professional persons to domestic servants. It is, in fact, an entire relief of the parent of the expenses of the child from 7 to 15. The education is in reading, writing, arithmetic, Latin, and drawing. It is a good middle class education. The present master is the Rev. William Hunt. He is a clergyman of the Church of England, and has been accustomed to tuition at Birmingham and Marlborough. The second master, Mr. Cornelius Laycock, is not in orders. The usher is William Grant, who has been in a training school. The whole of the appointments are made by the Court of Assistants.

The present matron is the widow of a late under master, and has held that situation about 10 years. She appoints the female servants.

SIR EDWARD BARKHAM'S CHARITY.

Sir Edward Barkham gave, by his will of the 14th January 1632, an annuity of 6l. 13s. 4d. issuing out of a house in Cheapside. Six of the oldest and poorest freemen to have 20s. each, and the clerk and beadle each 6s. 8d. The house belongs to Lord Fredegar, and the rentcharge, amounting to 5l. 6s. 8d. (1l. 6s. 8d. being deducted by the owner for land tax), is received by the Company. The amount of the gift to the poor of the Company is carried to the account of the charities general (see Sir Richard Champion's Charity), and forms part of the fund distributed on the quarter day to the quarterly poor. The 13s. 4d. is paid to the clerk and beadle as directed.

LADY BAYLY'S CHARITY.

Lady Bayly, by some gift or bequest to the Company, purchased from them, 2d. in meat, 1d. in bread, and 1d. in money for each of five poor persons every Sunday at the Church of St. Michael, Paternoster Royal, being poor householders in that parish. The Company pay 4l. 6s. 8d. a year to the churchwardens of the parish.

BLOOMER'S CHARITY.

Giles Bloomer, by his will of the 22nd February 1676, bequeathed to the Company 100l. to be lent at 3l. per cent. to an upholsterer free of the Company, and the interest distributed among 10 persons of the Company, 6s. each. And he also gave one third of the residue of his personal property to be placed out in like manner and distributed amongst the poor of the Company by 6s. to each, and if any upholsterers, to have 12s. each; and if a third of the residue amounted to 300l., then 3l. per annum to be disposed of as follows :—

On a dinner for the wardens -	30s.
Clerk of the Company -	20s.
Beadle and porter (5s. each) -	10s.

The sum of 100l. forms part of the 3,811l. 10s. 6d. advanced under the decree of the Court in Clonne's Charity. The sum of 9l. is carried to the pensions of the poor on the roll (see Kendrick's Charity). The sum of 3l. is the charge imposed upon the Company by the deed poll mentioned in Clonne's Charity, that being the interest of the loan fund. There are also payments of—

18s. to the account of the warden,
12s. to the clerk, and
3s. to the beadle of the Company, which continue to be annually made. These, I presume, with the exception of the payment to the poor of the Company beyond the 3l., represent the extent of the residuary estate of the testator.

BLUNDELL'S CHARITY.

Peter Blundell, by his will of the 9th June 1599, gave to the Company 150l. to purchase lands to pay thereout 40s. for poor prisoners in the Compter in the Poultry, and the residue to be bestowed that the master and wardens should have the benefit for their labour and pains. The sum of 40s. a year is paid annually to Mr. Temple, the city officer, who receives the payments for the prisons; 1l. 12s. a year is carried to the account of the master, and the other 6l. 8s. to that of the wardens of the Company. There does not appear to be any reason for fixing this charge upon any especial property.

SIR WILLIAM BOREMAN'S SCHOOL, GREENWICH.

Sir William Boreman, Clerk of the Green Cloth to King Charles 2nd, by his will of the 3rd February 1684, devised to the Drapers' Company a schoolhouse and premises and certain fee-farm rents, rentcharge, and lands for the maintenance of a schoolmaster, and for the lodging, clothing, feeding, education, and maintenance of 20 poor boys, and for the maintenance of four poor widows to be placed in an almshouse. And he bequeathed to the Company 500l. for the increase of the revenue of the said school and the poor boys.

The school was subjected to a body of ordinances and statutes prescribed by the founder, by which he directed that 20 boys, born in Greenwich, the sons of seamen, watermen, and fishermen, inhabitants of East Greenwich, especially of such loyal men as have served the King in his wars, should be maintained with meat, drink, lodging, clothes, and teaching, and are to be chosen by the Company on every vacancy from two to be nominated by the minister and churchwardens, and the feoffees to appoint the master and to be the sole electors, visitors, and governors of the foundation, and the founder thereby also directed the order of religious teaching and divine services.

The property of the charity at present is as follows :—

1. The schoolhouse at the back of London Street, Greenwich, consisting of a large schoolroom, a dormitory over, and several other sleeping apartments for the master and his family, and the boys ; there is also a dining-room, kitchen, and domestic offices, a garden and playground - - - In hand.

2. Eight houses in Bexley Place, on the north side of London Street, Greenwich, which was a portion of the site of the original premises near the school called the Lyon House and White House, and which was described by the Commissioners as vacant at the time of the last inquiry, let on a building lease to Robert Juter for 66 years, from Midsummer 1821, at - - - 70 0 0

3. A house in London Street, let to A. K. Bristow for 21 years, from Michaelmas 1847, at - - - - - 54 0 0

CLAVELL'S CHARITY.

William Clavell, who had been educated in the school, by his will bequeathed to the Company a legacy of 5,000*l.*, (which they received in June 1818) for the maintenance, education, and clothing of so many additional boys as the same would provide for. The sum has been increased by accumulations from 5,700*l.* 3*l.* per cent. Reduced Annuities, the amount at the last inquiry, to 7,200*l.* like stock, which stands to the account of the Company as part of a larger sum.

The dividends amount to 216*l.* per annum, which, with the income of Sir Wm. Boreman's trust, forms an annual receipt of 844*l.* 2*s.* 5*d.*

The master of the school at this time is Mr. Peter Blake. He had been a schoolmaster in Greenwich previously to his election to this office in February 1854. He has no other profits, although the statutes permit him to teach 20 oppidans or town boys for his further benefit and advantage. The foundation and establishment boys are nominated by the minister and churchwardens of East Greenwich on every vacancy, who present two boys, described and certified to be of the qualifications mentioned in the statutes, not less than seven nor more than nine years of age, and otherwise as before stated. The presentation recites the will and the cause of the vacancy, and proceeds—

"We hereby certify that the children hereafter named appear to us to be both of them qualified and to be the most preferable objects according to the limitations above mentioned."

The boys are generally removed about the age of 14. There is no further benefit in the way of apprenticeship or any future provision. No record is preserved of the subsequent history of the children educated in the school. There is no instruction in navigation or any other special science.

At the end of the year 1860 there was a balance in hand on the account of Boreman's Trust of 171*l.* 16*s.* 1*d.*, and on account of Clavell's Trust of 90*l.* 4*s.* 1*d.*

SIR W. LANGHORNE'S CHARITY.

Sir William Langhorne, in the year 1713, gave to the Company a sum of money which, with savings, was invested in the sum of 1,000*l.* Reduced Annuities, and was appropriated to the Green Coat School, and now forms part of the 1,500*l.* Reduced Annuities mentioned in the report on that school.

* 3rd May 1882.

Her Majesty by Order in Council of this date declared Her approbation of the following scheme for the administration of the charities of Sir Wm. Boreman, Wm. Clavell, and Sir William Langhorne.

SCHEME for the ADMINISTRATION of the FOUNDATION and ENDOWMENTS above mentioned or referred to.

1. The foundation and endowments above mentioned or referred to shall henceforth be administered as one foundation in accordance with the provisions of this scheme under the name of Sir William Boreman's Nautical School at Greenwich, herein-after called the foundation.

2. The estates and property of the foundation, except as otherwise hereby provided, shall continue to be managed by the Worshipful Company of Drapers of the City of London, herein-after called the Company, according to the general law applicable to the management of property by trustees of charitable foundations. And the Company shall in each year pay over to the governing body, herein-after constituted and called the governors, or as the governors shall direct, the income of such estates and property, after deducting all proper charges for management and necessary outgoings (including the statutory payment of 8*l.* to the clerk of the Company), and a reasonable balance for current expenses of management. And in case of dispute as to such deductions or payments, either party may refer the matter to the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, whose decision shall be final.

3. Any money arising from the sale of timber or from any mines or minerals on the estates of the foundation shall be treated as capital, and shall be invested under the direction of the Charity Commissioners, except in any special cases in which such Commissioners may allow such money or any part thereof to be otherwise dealt with.

4. The accounts of the Company in respect of the foundation shall be made up and balanced to the 31st day of December in every year, or some other convenient day to be approved from time to time by the Charity Commissioners. The accounts shall be examined by a committee consisting of not less than five members of the Court of Assistants of the Company, and signed by such committee and the clerk of the Company within two calendar months after the day to which they are made up. As soon as practicable after the accounts are so signed they shall be audited in accordance with regulations to be approved by the Charity Commissioners.

5. The Company shall in each year cause a sufficient abstract of the accounts to be printed, and shall send the same within 30 days after the audit to the governors, and to the Charity Commissioners, and shall publish the same in one or more local newspapers. Such abstract shall be in the Form A. given in the Schedule hereto, unless some other form is prescribed by the Charity Commissioners, in which case the form so prescribed shall be followed.

THE SCHOOL.

6. Subject as herein provided, the governing body of the foundation herein called the governors, shall consist of nineteen persons, of whom five shall be called ex-officio governors, and fourteen shall be called nominated governors.

7. The ex-officio governors shall consist of the vicar and churchwardens of St. Alphege, Greenwich, Her Majesty's Astronomer Royal, and the Captain Superintendent of the Greenwich Hospital School, respectively for the time being, if they respectively shall be willing to accept the office; but any such Astronomer Royal may from time to time by writing under his hand delegate his office as governor to some other fit person for any specified period, if the person so delegating his office so long remain Astronomer Royal.

8. The nominated governors shall be competent persons duly qualified to discharge the duties of the office, and shall be appointed by the following electing bodies respectively in the following proportions; that is to say, two by the corporation of the Trinity House in London, two by the members of the School Board for London elected by the Greenwich division of the Metropolis, and ten, of whom two shall be resident in the parish of Greenwich, by the Company.

At the former inquiry Mr. H. Smith, the then clerk of the Company, stated that the above legacy was originally invested in Bank 4 per cent. Annuities, and afterwards transferred to South Sea Stock, in which there appears to have been several changes and some loss, and it was converted into 200*l.* South Sea Annuities, which, with 500*l.* South Sea Annuities added to the account in March 1748, were sold out in 1775, and the produce laid out on mortgage of an estate in Ireland, which mortgage was paid off in 1811, and the money invested in 1,000*l.* 3*l.* per cent. Reduced Annuities.*

Such appointments shall be made as often as there may be occasion by the body entitled to appoint, at a meeting thereof which shall be convened, held, and conducted as nearly as may be in conformity with the ordinary rules or practice of such body. Every nominated governor shall be appointed to office for the term of five years, reckoned from the date of the appointment. The first nominated governors shall be appointed as soon as conveniently may be after the date of this scheme. The chairman or other presiding officer of each meeting at which the appointment of any nominated governors or governor shall be made, shall forthwith cause the names or name of the persons or person so appointed to be notified, in the case of the first such appointment to the vicar of St. Alphege, Greenwich, and in the case of every subsequent appointment to the chairman of the governors or their clerk, if any, or other acting officer. Any appointment of a nominated governor not made as aforesaid within six calendar months from the date of this scheme, or of the notice herein-after prescribed of the occurrence of a vacancy, as the case may be, shall for that turn be made by the then existing governors.

9. Any nominated governor who shall become bankrupt or incapacitated to act, or express in writing his wish to resign, or omit for the space of one year to attend any meeting, or in the case of a governor appointed by the Company as being a resident in the parish of Greenwich, shall cease to be so resident, shall thereupon forthwith vacate the office of governor; and the governors shall cause an entry to be made in their minute book of every vacancy occasioned by any of the said causes, or by the death or the expiration of the term of office of any nominated governor; and as soon as conveniently may be after the occurrence of any vacancy a new nominated governor shall be appointed by the body entitled as aforesaid to make such appointment. Any governor may be re-appointed. Notice of the occurrence of every vacancy of the office of nominated governor shall be given as soon as conveniently may be by or under the direction of the governors to the proper electing body or the clerk, if any, or other acting officer of such body.

10. Every governor shall, at or before the first meeting which he attends upon his first or any subsequent entry into office, sign a memorandum declaring his acceptance of the office of governor, and his willingness to act in the trusts of this scheme. And until he has signed such a memorandum he shall not be entitled to act as a governor.

11. The governors shall hold meetings in some convenient place in Greenwich, or elsewhere, as often as may be found necessary or desirable, and at least twice in each year, in Greenwich, on and at convenient days and times to be appointed by themselves, and to be notified to each governor by the clerk, if any, or by some other person acting under the direction of the governors, at least seven days before every meeting.

12. A preliminary meeting for the arrangement of the conduct of the business shall be held upon the summons of the vicar of St. Alphege, Greenwich, upon some day to be fixed by him, being within one calendar month after the time at which, under the provisions herein contained, the administration of the foundation shall, subject as herein provided, pass to the governors.

13. The governors shall, at the said preliminary meeting, and afterwards at their first meeting in each year, elect one of their number to be chairman of their meetings for the current year, and they shall also make regulations for supplying his place in case of his death, resignation, or absence during his term of office. The chairman shall always be re-eligible.

14. A quorum shall be constituted when five governors are present at a meeting. All matters and questions, except as herein provided, shall be determined by the majority of the governors present at a duly constituted meeting; and

BUCK'S CHARITY.

Robert Buck, by his will of the 17th November 1620, gave to the Drapers' Company 300*l.*, to be lent to three young men at 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* per cent., and the produce paid in case of equality of votes the chairman shall have a second or casting vote. Whenever the decision on any matter or question so determined is carried by the votes of less than a majority of the number of governors for the time being, any two governors may, within 15 days from the day of the decision, require by a notice addressed to the chairman of the meeting that the decision shall be once reconsidered at a special meeting, to be held not later than one calendar month next after such decision.

Special meetings.

15. The chairman or any two governors may at any time summon a special meeting for any cause that seems to him or them sufficient. All special meetings shall be convened by or under the direction of the person or persons summoning the meeting by notice in writing delivered or sent by post to each governor, specifying the object of the meeting. And it shall be the duty of the clerk, if any, to give such notice when required by the chairman or by any two governors.

Adjournment of meetings.

16. If a sufficient number of governors to form a quorum are not present at any meeting, or if the business at any meeting is not fully completed, those present may adjourn the meeting to a subsequent day and time, of which notice shall be given in manner aforesaid to each governor.

Minutes.

17. A minute book and proper books of account shall be provided and kept by the governors, and minutes of the entry into office of every new governor, and of all proceedings of the governors, shall be entered in such minute book.

Accounts.

18. The governors shall cause full accounts to be kept of their receipts and expenditure in respect of the foundation; and such accounts shall be stated for each year, and examined and passed by the governors at the first meeting in the ensuing year, unless some other meeting shall be appointed for the purpose with the approval of the Charity Commissioners. A copy of the accounts so passed shall be signed by the chairman of the meeting.

The governors shall cause sufficient abstracts of the accounts to be published annually for general information. Such abstracts shall be in the form B given in the schedule hereto, unless some other form is prescribed by the Charity Commissioners, in which case the form so prescribed shall be followed.

Business arrangements.

19. The governors may from time to time make such arrangements as they may find most fitting for the custody of all deeds and other documents belonging to the foundation, for the deposit of money, for the drawing of cheques, and also for the appointment of a clerk, or of any necessary agents or other proper officers for their assistance in the conduct of the business of the foundation, at such reasonable salaries or scale of remuneration as shall be approved by the Charity Commissioners, but no governor acting as such clerk or officer shall be entitled to any salary or remuneration.

Transfer of administration of foundation to governors.

20. So soon as the full number of governors shall have been completed according to the provisions of this scheme, or upon the expiration of the first three calendar months after the date of this scheme, if the full number of governors shall not then have been completed, the administration of the foundation shall, subject as herein provided, pass to the governors in place of the present governing body, and such governing body shall thereupon, subject as herein provided, become ipso facto removed and discharged from their office, and shall cause all deeds, minute and account books, and other papers and documents belonging or relating to the foundation, except such as are needful to be retained by them for the management of the estates and property of the foundation by them as herein provided, and all cash balances (except a sufficient balance for current expenses of management), and personal effects belonging thereto, and not herein required to be transferred to the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds, to be transferred to the governors as they shall direct. In the meantime the foundation shall continue to be administered and managed so far as may be necessary by the present governing body as nearly as may be in conformity with the provisions of this scheme. The aforesaid time of three calendar months may be extended, if necessary, by an order of the Charity Commissioners, made upon the application of any one or more of the present governing body, or of the governors, if any.

Governors may act although body not full.

21. After the administration of the foundation has passed, subject as herein provided, to the governors as aforesaid, the governors for the time being, if a quorum is constituted, may act for all the purposes of this scheme, although the governing body as herein-before constituted is not full.

Carrying scheme into effect.

23. Any payment, or exemption from payment, or other benefit to which any boy who was on the 27th day of September 1878, being the date of the publication of this scheme, on the foundation is legally entitled thereunder shall be continued to him.

Saving of interests of scholars.

THE SCHOOL AND ITS MANAGEMENT.

24. The school of the foundation shall be for boys, and shall be maintained in or near the parish of Greenwich, and shall be a day school only.

Day school.

25. As soon as conveniently may be the governors shall provide upon some convenient site in or near the parish of Greenwich, and if it may be, near the river side, proper school buildings suitable for not less than 200 day scholars, and planned with a view to convenient extension, and may apply for the purpose a sufficient sum, and such sum shall accordingly on the application of the governors be provided or raised, if needful, by the Company out of the capital endowment or property of the foundation by sale or otherwise, but for all the purposes of this clause the governors and the Company shall act subject to the consent and approval of the Charity Commissioners. The site and buildings so provided shall be transferred to the Official Trustee of Charity Lands and his successors in trust for the foundation, and shall be managed exclusively by the governors.

School site and buildings.

26. There shall be a head master of the school. He shall be a graduate of some university in the United Kingdom, or have such other qualification or certificate or other test of his attainment as may be fixed from time to time by any regulation of the governors, approved by the Charity Commissioners. Every head master shall be appointed by the governors at some meeting to be called for that purpose, as soon as conveniently may be after the occurrence of a vacancy, or after notice of an intended vacancy. In order to obtain the best candidates, the governors shall, for a sufficient time before making any appointment, give public notice of the vacancy and invite applicants for the office by advertisements in newspapers, or by such other methods as they may judge best calculated to secure the object.

Head master. Appointment.

27. The governors may dismiss the head master without assigning cause, after six calendar months written notice, given to him in pursuance of a resolution passed at two consecutive meetings held at an interval of at least fourteen days, and convened for that purpose, such resolution being affirmed at each meeting by not less than two thirds of the governors present.

Dismissal.

The governors for what in their opinion is urgent cause may by resolution passed at a special meeting convened for that purpose, and affirmed by not less than two thirds of the whole number of governors for the time being, declare that the head master ought to be dismissed from his office, without the aforesaid notice, and in that case they may appoint another special meeting to be held not less than a week after the former one, and may then by a similar resolution, affirmed by as large a proportion of governors, absolutely and finally dismiss him. And if the governors assembled at the first of such meetings think fit at once to suspend the head master from his office until the next meeting, they may do so by resolution affirmed by as large a proportion of governors. Full notice and opportunity of defence at both meetings shall be given to the head master.

28. Every future head master, before entering office, shall sign a declaration, to be entered in the minute book of the governors, to the following effect:—

Declaration to be signed by head master.

"I, _____, declare that I will always to the best of my ability discharge the duties of head master of Sir William Boreman's Nautical School at Greenwich during my tenure of the office, and that if I am removed by the governors, I will acquiesce in such removal, and will thereupon relinquish all claim to the mastership and its future emoluments, and will deliver up to the governors, or as they direct, possession of all the property of the school then in my possession or occupation."

29. The head master shall dwell in the residence, if any, assigned for him. He shall have the occupation and use of such residence and of any other property of the school of which he becomes the occupant as such head master, in respect of his official character and duties, and not as tenant, and shall, if removed from his office, deliver up possession of such residence and other property to the governors, or

CAMPE'S CHARITY.

Lawrence Campe, by an indenture of the 17th March 1612, gave (inter alia) 5*l.* a year to the Drapers' Company as they direct. He shall not, except with the permission of the governors, permit any person not being a member of his family to occupy such residence or any part thereof.

30. The head master shall give his personal attention to the duties of the school, and during his tenure of office he shall not hold any benefice having the cure of souls, or undertake any office or employment which, in the opinion of the governors, may interfere with the proper performance of his duties as head master.

31. No head or assistant master of the school shall be a governor.

32. Neither the head master nor any assistant master shall receive or demand from any boy in the school, or from any person whomsoever on behalf of any such boy, any gratuity, fee, or payment, except such as are prescribed or authorised by this scheme.

33. Within the limits fixed by this scheme, the governors shall prescribe the general subjects of instruction, the relative prominence and value to be assigned to each group of subjects, the arrangements respecting the school terms, vacations, and holidays, and the payments of day scholars. They shall take general supervision of the sanitary condition of the buildings and arrangements. They shall determine what number of assistant masters shall be employed. They shall every year assign the amount which they think proper to be contributed out of the income of the foundation for the purpose of maintaining assistant masters and providing and maintaining a proper school plant or apparatus, and otherwise furthering the current objects and the efficiency of the school.

34. Before making any regulations under the last foregoing clause the governors shall consult the head master in such a manner as to give him full opportunity for the expression of his views. The head master may also from time to time submit proposals to the governors for making or altering regulations concerning any matter within the province of the governors. The governors shall fully consider any such expression of views or proposals, and shall decide upon them.

35. Subject to the rules prescribed by or under the authority of this scheme, the head master shall have under his control the choice of books, the method of teaching, the arrangement of classes and school hours, and generally the whole internal organisation, management, and discipline of the school, including the power of suspending boys from attendance at the school, for any adequate cause to be judged of by him, but upon suspending any boy he shall forthwith report the case to the governors, and the governors shall thereupon remit or confirm such suspension or expel the boy as they think fit.

36. The head master shall have the sole power of appointing and may at pleasure dismiss all assistant masters, and shall determine, subject to the approval of the governors, in what proportions the sum assigned by the governors for the maintenance of assistant masters, or the other current objects of the school shall be divided among the various persons and objects for which it is assigned in the aggregate. And the governors shall pay the same accordingly, either through the hands of the head master or directly as they think best.

37. The head master shall receive a fixed yearly stipend of 150*l.* He shall also be entitled to receive a further or capitation payment calculated on such a scale, uniform or graduated, as may be fixed from time to time by the governors, at the rate of not less than 1*l.* nor more than 2*l.* a year for each boy attending the school. The governors may arrange so that if in any of the first three years from the first appointment of a head master under this scheme the income of the head master under the foregoing provisions of this clause is less than 300*l.*, the difference shall in such year be made up to him out of the income of the foundation.

38. All boys, except as herein-after provided, shall pay entrance fees on admission to the school, and such tuition fees as may be fixed from time to time by the governors, provided that no such entrance fee shall be more than 1*l.* and that no such tuition fee shall be fixed at the rate of less than 3*l.* or more than 6*l.* a year for any boy. Provided nevertheless that all boys whose fathers are or, if dead, were seamen, watermen, or fishermen and inhabitants of the parish of Greenwich shall be admitted without payment of any entrance fee, and shall be charged tuition fees at the rate of one half of the tuition fees which would otherwise be payable by such boys respectively. Except as aforesaid, for the relief of their poor. The 5*l.* a year is received from the churchwardens of St. John-the-Baptist, Walbrook, and is carried to the fund of the charities general for the "poor on the roll." (See Kendrick's case.) no difference in respect of entrance or tuition fees shall be made between any scholars on account of place of birth or residence. No extra or additional payment of any kind shall be allowed without the sanction of the governors, and the written consent of the parent or person occupying the place of parent of the scholar concerned.

All payments for entrance and tuition fees shall be made in advance to the head master, or to such other person as the governors shall from time to time determine, and shall be accounted for by the person receiving them to the governors, and treated by them as part of the general income of the foundation.

39. No boy shall be admitted into the school under the age of seven years. No boy shall remain in the school after the age of 15 years, or if he attains that age during a school term then after the end of such term, except with the permission of the governors, which in special cases may be given upon the recommendation of the head master.

40. Subject to the provisions established by or under the authority of this scheme, the school and all its advantages shall be open to all boys of good character and sufficient health who are residing with their parents, guardians, or near relations within degrees to be determined by the governors. No boy not so residing shall be admitted to the school without the special permission of the governors.

41. Applications for admission to the school shall be made to the head master, or to some other person appointed by the governors, according to a form to be approved of by them, and delivered to all applicants.

42. The head master or some other person appointed by the governors shall keep a register of applications for admission, showing the date of every application and of the admission, withdrawal, or rejection of the applicant, and the cause of any rejection, and the age of each applicant.

43. Every applicant for admission shall be examined by or under the direction of the head master, who shall appoint convenient times for that purpose, and give reasonable notice to the parents or next friends of the boy to be so examined. No boy shall be admitted to the school except after undergoing such examination and being found fit for admission. Those who are so found fit shall, if there is room for them, be admitted in order according to the date of their application, but if there is not room for all, they shall be admitted in the following order of priority:—

- (1.) Sons of watermen, seamen, or fishermen, inhabitants of the parish of Greenwich, who have served in the Royal Naval or Marine forces;
- (2.) Sons of watermen, seamen, or fishermen, inhabitants of the parish of Greenwich, who have not so served;
- (3.) Sons of parents who are, or, if dead, were inhabitants of the parish of Greenwich;
- (4.) Other boys.

The examination for admission shall be graduated according to the age of the boy, and shall be regulated in other particulars from time to time by or under the direction of the governors, but it shall never for any boy fall below the following standard, that is to say:—

Reading;

Writing from dictation;

Sums in the first two simple rules of arithmetic.

44. The parent or guardian of, or person liable to maintain or having the actual custody of, any scholar attending the school as a day scholar may claim by notice in writing addressed to the head master, the exemption of such scholar from attending prayer or religious worship, or from any lesson or series of lessons on a religious subject, and such scholar shall be exempted accordingly, and a scholar shall not, by reason of any exemption from attending prayer or religious worship, or from any lesson or series of lessons on a religious subject, be deprived of any advantage or emolument in the school to which he would otherwise have been entitled. If any teacher in the course of other lessons at which any such scholar is in accordance with the ordinary rules of the school present, shall teach systematically and persistently any particular religious doctrine, from the teaching of which any exemption has been claimed, as in this clause before provided, the governors shall, on complaint made in writing to them, by the parent, guardian, or person liable to maintain or having the actual custody of such scholar, hear the complainant, and inquire into the circumstances, and if the complaint is judged to be reasonable, make all proper provisions for remedying the matter complained of.

CRAWLEY OR CAWLEY'S CHARITY.

William Cawley, as appears by an old book of the Drapers' Company, directed them to pay 2*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*

Instruction.

45. Subject to the foregoing provision, religious instruction in accordance with the doctrines of the Church of England shall be given in the school. Instruction shall also be given in the school in the following subjects:—

Reading, writing, and arithmetic;
Geography and history;
English grammar, composition, and literature;
Practical mathematics, and the application of steam and machinery to navigation;
Navigation and nautical astronomy;
Surveying on land and water;
At least one foreign European language;
Natural science;
Drawing, drill, and vocal music;

and in such other subjects as the governors shall from time to time prescribe. Subject to the above provisions, the course of instruction shall proceed according to the classification and arrangements made by the head master.

Annual examination.

46. There shall be once in every year an examination of the scholars by an examiner or examiners appointed or approved by the governors, but otherwise unconnected with the school. The day of examination shall be fixed by the governors after consulting with the head master. The examiner or examiners shall report to the governors on the proficiency of the scholars and on the condition of the school, as regards instruction and discipline, as shown by the result of the examination. The governors shall communicate the report to the head master.

Head master's annual report.

47. The head master shall make a report in writing to the governors annually at such time as they shall direct on the general condition and progress of the school, and on any special occurrences during the year. He may also mention the names of any boys who, in his judgment, are worthy of reward or distinction, having regard both to proficiency and conduct.

Prizes.

48. The governors may award prizes of books or other suitable rewards as marks of distinction to any boys mentioned as worthy of reward or distinction by the head master or by the examiner.

Scholarships for boys from public elementary schools.

49. The governors shall apply not less than the sum of 150*l.* yearly in maintaining scholarships tenable at the school of the foundation, each of which shall entitle the holder to a free education at the school and to a payment in money at the rate of 10*l.* a year. These scholarships shall be competed for in the first place by boys who are and have for at least three years been in any of the public elementary schools in the parish of Greenwich, and whose fathers are, or, if dead, were seamen, watermen, or fishermen, and inhabitants of the parish of Greenwich. In cases of equal merit preference shall be given to such as are sons of seamen who have served in the Royal Navy. In default of fit candidates so qualified as aforesaid, these scholarships shall be competed for by boys who are sons of poor inhabitants of the parish of Greenwich and are and have for at least one year been in any of the public elementary schools in the parish of Greenwich. For the purposes of this clause the Greenwich Hospital School shall be reckoned as a public elementary school.

Apprenticing and exhibitions for boys.

50. The governors shall apply the yearly sum of 250*l.* in providing apprenticeship premiums of the value of not more than 50*l.* each for apprenticing the holders in the mercantile marine service, or exhibitions for enabling the holders to qualify themselves for entry into the scientific branches of the Royal Navy, or other nautical service, or some profession or skilled employment connected therewith, and to be awarded to boys who are and have for not less than three years been in the school of the foundation.

Exhibitions for girls.

51. The governors shall, if the income of the foundation is sufficient, apply the further yearly sum of 100*l.* in maintaining exhibitions of such number and yearly value as they think fit, tenable at any place of higher education, approved by them, to be awarded to girls who on examination show proficiency in knowledge of the liturgy and catechism of the Church of England, and to be competed for in the first place by girls who are and have for at least three years been in any of the public elementary schools in the parish of Greenwich, and whose fathers are, or, if dead, were, seamen, watermen, or fishermen, and inhabitants of the parish of Greenwich. In cases of equal merit preference shall be given to such as are daughters of seamen who have served in the Royal Navy. In default of fit candidates so qualified as aforesaid, these exhibitions shall be competed for by girls who are daughters of poor inhabitants of the parish of Greenwich, and are and have for at least one year been in any of the public elementary schools in the parish of Greenwich.

Conditions as to scholarships

52. Every scholarship, apprenticeship premium, and exhibition under this scheme shall be given as the reward of annually to the mayor of Winchester for the use of the poor of that city. The payment is annually made by the Company on the receipt of the mayor.

merit, and shall be subject to such conditions of award and tenure, as, subject to the provisions of this scheme, the governors shall lay down. Every scholarship and exhibition shall, except as herein provided, be freely and openly competed for, and shall be tenable only for the purposes of education. No scholarship, apprenticeship premium, or exhibition shall be granted for which there shall be no candidate so qualified as aforesaid who on examination shall be adjudged worthy to take it. If the holder of a scholarship or exhibition shall, in the judgment of the governors, be guilty of serious misconduct or idleness, or fail to maintain a reasonable standard of proficiency, or wilfully cease to pursue his or her education, the governors may at once determine the scholarship or exhibition, and for this purpose, in the case of an exhibition, may act on the report of the proper authorities of the school or place of education at which the exhibition is held, or on such other evidence as the governors think sufficient. For the purposes of this clause the decision of the governors shall be final in every case.

exhibitions, and other benefits.

APPLICATION OF INCOME.

53. The Company shall transfer the sum of 1,500*l.* three per cent. Government stock into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds, and the governors shall place the same in their books to a separate account, entitled "Repairs and Improvements Fund." The income of such fund shall be paid to the governors, and applied by them in ordinary repairs or improvements of property used for the purposes of the school, and if not wanted for that purpose shall be accumulated for the like purpose in any future year or years.

Repairs and improvements fund.

54. The governors may, if they think fit and the income at their disposal suffice for the purpose, agree with the head master for the formation of a fund in the nature of a pension or superannuation fund, the main principles of such agreement being that the head master and the governors respectively shall contribute annually for a period of 20 years such sums as may be fixed on; that these contributions shall accumulate at compound interest; that in case the head master serves his office for 20 years he shall on his retirement be entitled to the whole of the accumulated fund; that in case he retires earlier on account of permanent disability from illness he shall also be entitled to the whole of the same fund; that in all other cases he shall, on his ceasing to be master, be entitled to the amount produced by his own contributions. If any question shall arise upon the construction or working of this provision, the same shall be referred by the governors to the Charity Commissioners, whose decision thereon shall be final and conclusive.

55. Subject to the payment of the expenses of management of property and business, and of any necessary or proper outgoings any income of the foundation, received by the governors and not applied under the foregoing provisions, and not needed as a balance to meet current expenses, may be applied either in increasing the said yearly sum for exhibitions to be competed for by girls, or in improving the accommodation or convenience of the school buildings or premises, or generally in extending or otherwise promoting the objects and efficiency of the school, and so far as not so applied shall, on passing the yearly accounts, be invested in the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in trust for the governors in augmentation of the endowment of the foundation.

Residue.

GENERAL.

56. The governors may receive any additional donations or endowments for the general purposes of the foundation. They may also receive donations or endowments for any special objects connected with the foundation, which shall not be inconsistent with or calculated to impede the due working of the provisions of this scheme. Any question arising upon this last point shall be referred to the Charity Commissioners for decision.

Further endowments.

57. Within the limits prescribed by this scheme the governors shall have full power from time to time to make regulations for the conduct of their business and for the management of the foundation, and such regulations shall be binding on all persons affected thereby.

General power of governors to make regulations.

58. Any question affecting the regularity or the validity of any proceeding under this scheme shall be determined conclusively by the Charity Commissioners upon such application made to them for the purpose, as they think sufficient.

Question of proceedings under scheme.

59. If any doubt or question arises among the Company or the governors as to the proper construction or application of any of the provisions of this scheme, the Company

Construction of scheme.

SIR RICHARD CHAMPION'S CHARITY.

Sir Richard Champion by his will of the 22nd October 1568, gave to the Company 200*l.* to be lent to four young men without interest.

And he directed his wife, Barbara Champion, to buy so much lands as would countervail the yearly alms of Mr. Mylborne.

or the governors, as the case may be, shall apply to the Charity Commissioners for their opinion and advice thereon, which opinion and advice when given shall be binding on the Company or the governors, as the case may be, and all persons claiming under the foundation who shall be affected by the question so decided.

60. From the date of this scheme all jurisdiction of the ordinary relating to or arising from the licensing of any master in the school shall be abolished.

61. From the date of this scheme all rights and powers reserved to, belonging to, claimed by, or capable of being exercised by any person or body other than Her Majesty as visitor of the foundation shall be transferred to Her Majesty, and all such rights and powers and also any like rights or powers vested in Her on the 2nd day of August 1869, shall be exercised only through and by the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales.

62. The Charity Commissioners may from time to time, in the exercise of their ordinary jurisdiction, frame schemes for the alteration of any portions of this scheme, provided that such schemes be not inconsistent with anything contained in the Endowed Schools Act, 1869, and amending Acts.

63. From and after the date of this scheme the foundation shall for every purpose be administered and governed wholly and exclusively in accordance with the provisions of this scheme, notwithstanding any former or other scheme, Act of Parliament, charter or letters patent, statute, or instrument relating to the subject matter of this scheme.

64. The governors shall cause this scheme to be printed, and a copy to be given to every governor, master, and assistant master, upon their respective appointments, and copies may be sold at a reasonable price to all persons applying for the same.

65. The date of this scheme shall be the day on which Her Majesty by Order in Council declares Her approbation of it.

Dame Barbara Champion, by a codicil to her will of the 23rd September 1576, gave 100*l.* to the Drapers' Company, to be lent out to young men without interest, and gave to the Company lands and tenements in St. Margaret Pattens and St. Dunstan's in the East, which she had purchased in part performance of the will of her husband.

In a report of the Committee of the Company of the 8th December 1791 under the head of "monthly pensions," it is stated that "these pensions were established by the wills of Thomas Russell and Sir Richard Champion, each giving 2*s.* 6*d.* per month to 13 poor persons of the Company, the former are directed to be to members of the Company, the latter to poor men or women."

In a book of extracts of wills in the possession of the Company there is the following entry: "The Company according to the will and appointment of Lady Champion and in performance of the last will of Sir Richard Champion, knight and alderman, deceased, are with the rents of certain lands given to the Company to pay monthly, viz., 12 times in the year, to 13 poor brethren or sisters of the Company the sum of 32*s.* 6*d.*, viz., to each of them, 2*s.* 6*d.*, being the like pension as is paid Sir John Milbourne's pensioners by his appointment."

In the same book of extracts is the following statement of the will of Lady Champion:—

"Whereas I, the said Dame Barbara Champion, did of late purchase of one Dabridge Cort, gentleman, certain lands and tenements in the parishes of St. Margaret Patton and St. Dunstan in the East of London as by the writings thereof made may appear. The which purchase so by me made was in part of performance of the testament and will of Sir Richard Champion, knight, late citizen and alderman of London, deceased, my late husband. Now my mind and will is that all the said lands and tenements so by me purchased of the said D. Cort, with all and singular their appurtenances, profits, and commodities, shall be and remain wholly unto the master wardens and fellowship of the Worshipful Company of Drapers of London, and to their successors, master and wardens of the same Company or fellowship of Drapers of London. To have and to hold all the same lands and tenements with all their issues, rents, profits, and commodities so by me purchased of the said D. Cort unto the master, wardens, and company or fellowship of the drapers of London, and to their successors for ever, in part performance of the said testament and last will of the said Sir Richard Champion, my late husband, deceased, and the residue that shall be unperformed of the testament of my said late husband, as well touching the drapers as touching the poor prisoners, or otherwise, I will that my executors with all convenient speed shall see the same performed and finished as my trust is in them."

It appears by the old account books in the possession of the Company that after the death of Sir Richard Champion the widow, during her lifetime, paid to the Company 19*l.* 14*s.* a year under her husband's will, which would be 4*s.* more than the 19*l.* 10*s.* which the husband's gift would annually amount to, and the Company paid the 19*l.* 10*s.* to the poor. After the death of Lady Champion, her executors paid the Company 11*l.* 14*s.* per annum, which, with 8*l.* a year, the then rent of the premises in St. Margaret Pattens and St. Dunstan's in the East, made up the like sum of 19*l.* 14*s.* This payment continued for a few years and then ceased, but nothing appears to account for the cessation, which may be conjecturally explained either by the estate being fully administered or by the possible payment of a capital sum sufficient to provide for the future annual deficiency of which, however, no trace appears. The same payment was continued to the poor after the excess ceased to be received from the executors.

The receipts for rent are first entered in ancient and contemporary accounts of the Company under the head of "revenues belonging to the Company of Drapers called the House Lands, wherewith the said Henry May is to be charged for one whole year, ending at the feast of St. Michael the Archangel, 1578."

(Among others.)—

"St. Margaret Pattens and St. Dunstan in the East."

"Edward Blow, pewterer, payeth by the year for certain tenements in the parishes of St. Margaret Pattens and St. Dunstan in the East given to the Company by Sir Richard Champion, viii l."

The discharge is thus stated: "Item, paid, to divers poor people of our Companie in the presence of the masters and the wardens, the charity bequeathed by Sir Richard Champion, kt., for xii. months, the last month ending the last of September 1576, at xxxii s. vi d. for one month amongst the poor, some, xix l. xiii s."

For two or three years the receipt from the executors of Lady Champion is thus entered,— "Received of Master Thomas Heardsome, one of the executors of the Lady Champion, deceased, in money towards the performance of Sir Richard Champion, his devise for the poor of this Company the sum of xi l. xiv s."

The Company have administered this charity for 70 years past under the recommendation of the committee of the 8th December 1791 hereafter mentioned, and the payment forms part of the gift to the poor on the roll. By some oversight the 19l. 10s. a year has not been brought into the account, an omission which will, however, be seen to be substantially immaterial, inasmuch as a very much larger sum has been always paid than the charities would amount to, including that sum.

A search has been made amongst the muniments of the Company, but nothing can be found showing what was the bequest of Sir Richard Champion for four prisoners. An ancient copy of the will of Lady Champion was discovered, by which it appears that she gave 30l. to be distributed amongst the poor prisoners of several city and neighbouring prisons by 10l. a year in three years; and it is not improbable that the gift of the husband was to be distributed within a short period in the same manner.

The premises in St. Margaret Pattens and St. Dunstan's in the East comprised in the purchase from Dabridge Court and other property, comprising altogether 19 messuages taken under the London Bridge Approaches Act prior to the last inquiry (volume 32, part 2, p. 434). The Company received on that occasion for the whole property so taken the sum of 19,676l. The accounts of the Company do not enable them to distinguish the amount received in respect of the Dabridge Court purchase, supposed to be the Champion property from the amount received for the other estates. If, as stated by the Commissioners of Inquiry (p. 434), the Champion Estate consisted of 11 messuages, it may be roughly estimated that the latter estates included $\frac{1}{11}$ of the whole, and therefore produced about 11,000l.

The Commissioners of Inquiry (see vol. 32, part 2, p. 434), state that they had certified the case to the Attorney-General. Upon examination of the Parliamentary returns of proceedings by the Attorney-General, I do not find that any steps have been taken in the matter; and the Drapers' Company, who must have been parties, are not aware of any such proceedings.

The two sums of 200l. and 100l. were not brought into the loan charities or made part of the scheme referred to in Clonne's Charity, as I have elsewhere observed; nor are these sums specifically in existence, or at present represented by any fund.

The Commissioners of Inquiry in their report (vol. 32, part 2, p. 447) state the method of keeping the accounts of the charities. That system was established in conformity with a report of a committee, made the 8th of December 1791, which recommended that,—

“If the proposed method should be approved by the court your committee would recommend that the amount of the charities should be kept in the Company's books in the following manner, to wit,—That all the charities should be charged to the account of Charities General, as they are paid, and that at the end of the year each trust for which a separate account is kept should be debited and the account of Charities General credited for the amount of the different founders' allowances; and that in like manner the Company's income should be debited for the amount of each specific charity for which no account is separately kept in the Company's books, and a list made of the names of the persons to whom such charity was given, together with the Company's additional allowances, in order to show that the provisions in the different founders' wills have been substantially complied with.”

The committee at the time of making that report contemplated that it would be “more for the benefit of the poor that the said charities should be consolidated, and that instead of giving the trifling sums established by the pensions therein-before mentioned, and the small sums on the different charity days above stated, all the poor of the Company upon the roll, except those provided for by almshouses and pensions, should be paid “pensions of 6l. 6s. a year;” and which occasioned an annual excess of payments on the charity account above the receipts of 80l. 3s. 10d. The pensions of 6l. 6s. per annum adopted in pursuance of that recommendation have at various times been increased and now amount to 16l. per annum, and the excess above the allowances have been augmented in proportion, and in the last year ending 31st December 1860, amounted to 486l. 14s. 10d. I have elsewhere mentioned the progressive augmentation of the stipends of the almspeople, which have increased the aggregate amount of the excess of payments over receipts on the “Charities General” to a much larger sum.

This aggregate excess in the same year was 1,235l. 2s. 4d. exclusive of large gifts of a charitable nature from the funds of the Company not brought into the account of “Charities General” to other poor of the Company.”

CHRISTOPHER CLARKE'S CHARITY.

Christopher Clarke, by his will of February 1671, gave certain messuages and land in Whitechapel, on trust, to pay—

	s.	d.

The estate is subject to a ground rent of 6s. 6d. to the lord of the manor of Stepney in respect of the copyhold land.

I am informed that the property in the Whitechapel Road is held not in fee simple, but subject to a lease, dated the 16th January, 27th Elizabeth (1585), granted by Henry Lord Wentworth to John Denton of part of the waste soil or ground of the manor of Stevonheath for a term of 500 years from the Michaelmas before the date of the lease, reserving a rent of 20 pence a year. This lease and the premises therein comprised was assigned to John Clarke by deed of the 5th April 1610 for the residue of the term. I do not observe that this is mentioned in the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry.

There is paid to the wardens and clerks of the Drapers' Company 1l. 6s. 8d.

The balance is paid to the account of the Charities General (see John Rainey's Charity) and applied for the benefit of the poor of the Company.*

* CHRISTOPHER CLARKE'S CHARITY.

27th May 1864. By an order of the Board of Charity Commissioners of this date, the Company were authorised to sell, for the sum of 3,000l., a field containing 1a. 3r. 37p. situate on the western bank of the Regent's Canal at Mile End.

13th April 1865. By an order of the said Board of this date, the Company were authorised to sell, for the sum of 3,500l., a piece of land containing 2a. 0r. 12p. situate on the east side of the Regent's Canal at Mile End.

The above sales were subsequently completed, and the purchase money invested in Consols in the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds, in accordance with the directions contained in the respective orders.

FRANCES CLARKE'S CHARITY.

Frances Clarke, widow of Roger Clarke, gave 200*l.* to the Drapers' Company, and by an indenture of the 15th February 1608 the Company covenanted with her to pay to the poor prisoners in the Compter, Wood Street, 10*l.* a year at Midsummer and Christmas for releasing them out of prison or relieving them if they lie there, as should be most agreeable to charity.

The Company desire the Governor of Whitecross Street Prison to acquaint them annually with the names of prisoners for debt who can be released at the expense of a sum not exceeding 5*l.* The governor in conformity with this application supplied the Company (in 1860) with a list of twenty-three prisoners who could be released by the Insolvent Debtors Court, or by arrangement, for sums varying from 5*l.* to 2*l.* 2*s.*, making up the sum of 109*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.* (the exact sum which the clerk of the Company had in his letter intimated that the Company could bestow). This fund was made up as follows:—

CLONNE'S CHARITY.

Owen Clonne, by his will of the 22nd August 1563, gave to the Company his lands and tenements in the parishes of St. Andrew Hubert, St. Margaret Pattens, and St. Mary at Hill, on trust, to sell the same and lend the produce to 10 young men of the Company for five years at 5*l.* per cent., and distribute the profit to the poorest householders of the Company.

The Commissioners of Inquiry, after mentioning the sale of the premises for 1,100*l.*, observe that with regard to this and several other sums of money held in trust to lend at different rates of interest and to apply to other charitable uses, the Company paid the income without making any such loans, and that upon the question of the manner in which the Company were bound to comply with the loan trusts the case had been certified to the Attorney-General.

An information ex-officio was filed by the Attorney-General in February 1839 (which was afterwards amended) against the Drapers' Company, stating the following bequests and gifts:—

and praying for the establishment of a scheme.

The information was heard before the Master of the Rolls on the 12th November 1841, and by his order it was referred to the master in rotation to approve of a proper scheme for the administration and regulation of such charities, and a scheme was accordingly approved by the report of Sir George Rose of the 14th December 1843, which was (with some slight alterations) confirmed by order of the Court of the 20th February 1844, under which order it was declared that the sum of 3,960*l.* was in the hands of the Company to be applied on loans, as mentioned in the scheme, out of which the taxed costs, amounting to 148*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.*, were to be paid, which left 3,811*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* in the hands of the Company, which was in accordance with the scheme invested in the purchase of 4,246*l.* 8*s.* 11*d.* Consols in the corporate name of the Company.

The Company in pursuance of the arrangement expressed in the scheme executed a deed poll under their common seal, dated the 22nd June 1843, reciting the proceedings in the suit, the scheme, and the resolution of the Court of Assistants of the 9th March 1843, that the master, wardens, and clerk should be authorised to make the several payments mentioned in the schedule, amounting in the whole to 153*l.* 15*s.* 4*d.*, although it might happen the principal moneys from which the same should arise might be wholly or partially lost, it was thereby declared that the Fraternity should from time to time cause the same annual sum of 153*l.* 15*s.* 4*d.* to be paid accordingly. The schedule therein referred to is as follows:—

The scheme settled and approved by the order of the 20th February 1844 was as follows:—

1. That for the purpose of carrying into effect the object of the several testators before mentioned the several sums given by them and now in existence shall be blended together and form one fund, and shall be lent out by the master and wardens of the Drapers' Company to such persons, members of the said Company, as they shall think fit, at such rate and interest and for such terms as herein-after mentioned.

2. That the loans from the said fund shall be made by the said master and wardens to any deserving and honest member of the said Company who may appear to the said Company to require such assistance, in any sums not exceeding 400*l.*, which they are hereby empowered to lend accordingly, and at the rate of 4*l.* 10*s.* per cent. per annum; but no loan of the said charity funds is to be made to any master or warden, clerk, officer, or servant of the said Drapers' Company.

3. That all persons borrowing from the said fund shall find not less than two sureties, who shall join with them to enter into a bond to the said Company for the repayment of any loan to be made as aforesaid, and interest according to the terms on which any such loan shall have been made, and the said master and wardens shall at their discretion, as and when they shall think fit, call upon the person receiving such loan to find another person as surety in the place of any surety who shall have been accepted and who may have died or become insolvent, or have left the United Kingdom, or become in such circumstances as no longer to be a sufficient security for the repayment of any loan and interest aforesaid. And the said Company shall have power from time to time, as they shall find it expedient with a view to the interest of the said charity, to call in and compel payment of any of the said loans, and for that purpose to take such steps and proceedings as they may be advised.

4. That the period of repayment of any loan from this Company to any such person as aforesaid shall be not exceeding seven years, the person borrowing being at liberty at any time, on giving one month's notice in writing to the said master and wardens, to pay off the amount thereof, together with the interest thereon calculated as aforesaid, such person being at the whole expense of preparing the bond or other security for the repayment of such loan.

5. That unless there shall be no other application for loans after the publication of the advertisement herein-after directed, it shall not be competent to the trustees of the charity to renew the amount of any or to regrant by way of loan any sum previously lent out to any poor honest member as aforesaid.

6. That the said Company having undertaken under their common seal to pay to the several charities and persons as heretofore the several sums directed in the wills of the testators before amounting to 150*l.* 15*s.* 4*d.*, whether they shall be in receipt of any money for interest or otherwise, or otherwise the said Company shall be at liberty from time to time and at all times to invest or leave uninvested all money belonging to this fund during the time it shall not be lent out on loan as is herein directed, but the said Company shall once in every year cause an advertisement to be inserted in two or more London daily newspapers of the greatest circulation according to the return of the Stamp Office, and that such advertisement shall be in the form following, mutatis mutandis, or as near thereto as the circumstances of the charity will permit.

FORM OF ADVERTISEMENT.

"Notice is hereby given that the sum of £ , part of certain charity funds given to the Drapers' Company by various to be lent in sums not exceeding 400*l.* for a period not exceeding seven years at $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. interest per annum. The persons wishing for such loans will be required to enter into bonds for the repayment thereof with two sureties. Applications to be made in writing with the names of the proposed sureties to the Clerk of the Company on or before the day of at whose office all further particulars may be obtained."

7th. That the said Company shall direct their clerk to receive such written applications, and he shall also be directed to give all applicants the requisite information of the qualifications necessary to entitle the persons to the benefit of the said charity, and shall likewise lay before the master and wardens at their meeting next after such advertisement the names of every applicant, and proceedings shall then be taken to ascertain whether such applicant is or is not duly qualified and a proper object to receive the benefit of the said charity, and shall grant or refuse such applications as to them shall seem right.

8th. That a memorandum explaining the general nature and object of this scheme shall be put up in some public and convenient part of the buildings called Drapers' Hall of the said defendants, the Drapers' Company.

The advertisements are inserted once a year in two newspapers, which have been the "Times" and the "Morning Advertiser." Some moneys have been lent since the scheme, and all such moneys have been repaid, and I am informed that in every case, excepting one, the repayment has been made, not by the principal, but by the surety.

The applications have not been frequent, and the appropriation of funds for this object does not appear to be attended with any benefit generally.

There is at present an application for the loan of a sum of 300*l.*, which is about to be granted. I have been asked whether it is incumbent on the Company to sell out a portion of the stock in order to make this loan, or whether it might be made out of any floating incomes in the hands of the Company, the charities being on such advance indebted to the Company to that extent; and I have had no hesitation in saying that it is perfectly competent to the Company to advance the funds from any sources which it might be convenient to them to apply, the Company being by the decree liable to the full extent of the prescribed capital, and for the annual payments under the deed poll.

The sum of 56*l.* a year mentioned in the schedule as applicable in respect of the interest of Clonne's Charity for the poor of the Company (with the exception of 1*l.* 12*s.* 0*d.* to the wardens and 8*s.* to the master) forms part of the fund applied quarterly to the poor on the roll, which contains 60 pensioners at 4*l.* a quarter as mentioned in Kendrick's Charity.

The 1*l.* 12*s.* and 8*s.* are paid to the officers accordingly.

COLBORNE'S CHARITIES.

Henry Colborne, by a codicil to his will of the 7th August 1655, directed his trustees to purchase a lease of the rectory of Kirkham, and lay out the profits for the first 16 years (except 100*l.* a year to his son) to purchase lands to maintain schools and poor people, to be settled upon the Drapers' Company.

In 1673 the liability of the Company in respect of the lands and endowment and the rights of the respective townships interested in the endowment were settled by the Court of Chancery. It would seem from the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 2, p. 250), that the Company instead of purchasing lands specifically for the charity charged their own estates (which are in Cheap-side, Honey Lane Market, Dowgate Hill, St. Swithin's Lane, Botolph Lane, Lower Thames Street, and Monks Lane, together with 884*l.* 10*s.* 3*l.* per cent. Consols now in the Court of Chancery in the name of the Accountant-General to the credit of the Company) with an annual sum of 106*l.* The property thus charged remains the same as specified by the Commissioners of Inquiry (ubi sup.), except that the premises in Gracechurch Street and Sherborne Lane have been taken for City improvements, and a house in Mark Lane has been purchased with part of the proceeds, and the sum of 884*l.* 4*s.* 10*d.* 3*l.* per cent. Consols above referred to, the residue of the said proceeds, remaining in the name of the Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery.

The sums paid by the Company (exclusive of 45*l.*, 16*l.* 10*s.*, and 8*l.* for the Kirkham Schools) are—

£ s. d.

To the schoolmaster at Goosnargh, Mr.

Lawrence Disley - - - 25 0 0

Mr. Disley was appointed by an order of the Company, dated the 8th November 1860, on the recommendation of the vestry of Goosnargh and Whittingham, "during the pleasure of the Court, and until a more suitable master according to the statutes of the said school shall be found fitting for that situation."

The Drapers' Company remit also annually the sum of 5*l.* to the chapel wardens of the chapel of Goosnargh. They have no account of the distribution.

The Company also remit 5*l.* 10*s.* a year to the vestry clerk or churchwardens of Kirkham, and receive a receipt from the churchwardens or one of them. The subsequent appropriation amongst the several townships, a matter in which the Company does not interfere. The Board have had under their consideration the distribution of this sum in the township of Hambleton, which was the subject of a lengthened correspondence with the incumbent (see File, 6,323.)

The Kirkham school has been the subject of a recent scheme in the Court of Chancery.

In March 1836 an information was filed by the Attorney-General at the relation of Peter Hesketh Fleetwood and others, trustees of Kirkham School, under Barker's will, against the Drapers' Company and the Rev. James Webber, the vicar of Kirkham, and Fox and Halls, the masters of the Kirkham School, stating the will of Henry Colborne and the decree of 1673, the will of James Barker, and a decree of the Chancery of the County Palatine of Lancaster, of August 1805, a private Act of Parliament of the year 1813, discharging certain estates in Westmoreland from the use of Barker's will, and settling other estates in lieu thereof, a scheme settled by the registrar of the Court of the County Palatine in August 1825, and containing various statements of dissatisfaction with the management of the said school, and praying (amongst other things) an inquiry whether the estate comprised in the indenture of the 10th December 1673, and thereby vested in the Drapers' Company for the purpose of securing the annual payment of 105*l.* to be applied for charitable uses expressed in the codicil of H. Colborne, were still vested in the Company or in what manner such annual payment was then secured, and that by the decree of the Court the power of nominating and removing the several masters of the Free School, and of making regulations for the management thereof, might for the future be vested in the trustees of James Barker's Charity either solely or jointly with the Drapers' Company, and in case the Court should be of opinion that the nomination of the masters of the school to be established as aforesaid out of the said H. Colborne's Charity ought to continue vested in the Drapers' Company only, or that no other subjects of education ought to be taught therein other than those directed by the decrees aforesaid respecting the said charity, then that a separate school might be established out of the said J. Barker's Charity, and that it might be referred to the Master to approve of a scheme for the regulation thereof, comprising such subjects of education as were adapted to the wants of the inhabitants of the said parish, and that the power of nominating and removing the masters of such separate school, and making regulations for the management thereof, might be vested in the trustees of the said J. Barker's Charity, or in such other persons as the Court should think fit.

By the decree of the Court of Chancery of the 30th of July 1840 (by Lord Langdale, M.R.), it was declared that the charitable bequests created by the will of J. Barker ought to be established, and the trusts thereof carried into execution, and that the Drapers' Company were entitled to appoint, and that they and their successors should for ever thereafter appoint, the preacher, schoolmasters, and usher of Kirkham School, and that for ever thereafter the trustees of the charitable gift of the said J. Barker, upon just and reasonable cause appearing to them, should from time to time be entitled to remove such persons respectively from being preacher, schoolmasters, or usher respectively of such school, and that upon every such removal the trustees of the said charitable gifts should give due notice in writing to the Drapers' Company of such removal; and it was ordered that the said Company should proceed to appoint a successor to the person who should have been so removed, and that the trustees of Barker's Charity and the Reverend Jas. Webber, D.D., or other the vicar for the time being of Kirkham, be visitors of the said school; and it was ordered that the relators and the Drapers' Company should respectively propose before the Master, and that the said Master should approve of a scheme for the management of Kirkham's School, having regard to the declarations aforesaid, and for the application to such school of what the Master should, under the directions for apportionment, apportion in respect of Kirkham School aforesaid for the application of the annual sum of 69*l.* 10*s.*, paid by the defendants, the Drapers' Company, to the schoolmaster, preacher, and usher of the said school, and in settling such scheme the said Master was to be at liberty to extend the instruction to be given in the said school to such matters other than the matters then taught in the school as the said masters should deem to be fit to be taught, and that the defendants, the Drapers' Company, and their successors, and the trustees of Barker's Charity should from time to time make all such ordinances and regulations for the management of the school, as they should deem proper, which should from time to time be observed by the masters and usher accordingly. And the defendants, other than the Drapers' Company, were dismissed from the suit.

The Master made his report on the 16th December 1844, approving of the scheme therein set forth, and the cause coming on, on the said report and on further directions on the 6th May 1845, an order was made which, after reciting the steps in the cause, proceeds as follows:—

"And it appearing by the will of J. Barker that provision was thereby made for exhibitions for scholars going to the University of Cambridge only, and the counsel for all parties consenting, it was ordered that the order confirming the report be discharged, and that the scheme approved of by the Master for the apportionment of the income of Barker's Charity be amended by striking out the words 'Oxford or,' and that the scheme approved of by the Master for the management of the said Kirkham School be amended by striking out of the 40th rule the words 'Oxford or,' and that the said report when so amended be confirmed, and it was declared that the several schemes approved of by the said Master for the application of the charity estates, and the management of Kirkham School aforesaid, subject to the alterations therein-before directed, were fit and proper schemes for those purposes, and it was ordered that the same, with such alterations and amendments, be established and carried into execution."

The clause of the scheme which affects this charity is the eleventh, and is set forth in the printed scheme appended to this report. By that clause the payments to the three masters are directed to be made in conformity with the scheme of 1673, and those payments are made a part of the settled and larger salaries appropriated to the several masters by the said scheme.

The 69*l.* 10*s.* is remitted by the Company half-yearly to the Rev. Jno. Burrough, the head master of the Kirkham School, to whom notice was sent of the present inquiry.*

*COLBORNE'S CHARITIES.

4th February 1879 and 31st July 1880.—Her Majesty by Orders in Council of these dates declared Her approbation of the two following Schemes affecting the above charities:—

SCHEME for the ADMINISTRATION of the above-mentioned FOUNDATIONS and ENDOWMENTS other than those the TRUSTS whereof are declared respectively by an INDENTURE dated the 13th day of MAY 1848, and two INDENTURES dated the 10th day of DECEMBER 1855.

Future administration of foundation.

1. The foundations and endowments dealt with by this scheme shall henceforth be administered as one foundation, in accordance with the provisions of this scheme, by the governing body herein-after constituted, under the name of Colborne and Threlfall's Endowed School, herein-after called the foundation.

Governing body.

2. The governing body of the foundation, herein-after called the governors, shall, when completely formed and full, consist of eleven persons, of whom eight shall be called representative governors, and three shall be called coöptative governors.

Representative governors.

3. The representative governors shall be competent persons duly qualified to discharge the duties of the office, and shall be appointed by the following electing bodies respectively in the following proportions and for the following terms of office, that is to say—

Four for the term of six years by the twenty-four vestrymen of the chapelry of Goosnargh;

Two for the term of five years by the ratepayers of the township of Goosnargh with Newsham; and

Two for the like term by the ratepayers of the township of Whittingham.

Such appointments shall be made as often as there may be occasion by the body entitled to appoint, at a meeting thereof which shall be convened, held, and conducted as nearly as may be in conformity with the ordinary rules or practice of such body or failing such rules or practice then in conformity with regulations to be made or approved by the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales. The first representative governors shall be appointed as soon as conveniently may be after the date of this scheme. The chairman or other presiding officer of each meeting at which the appointment of any representative governors or governor shall be made shall forthwith cause the names or name of the persons or person so appointed to be notified, in the case of the first such appointment to the governor whose name then stands first on the list of coöptative governors, and in the case of every subsequent appointment to the chairman of the governors or their clerk, if any, or other acting officer. Any appointment of a representative governor not made as aforesaid within six calendar months from the date of this scheme, or of the notice herein-after prescribed of the occurrence of a vacancy, as the case may be, shall for that turn be made by the then existing governors.

The proper expenses, if any, attending the appointment of every representative governor, unless otherwise provided for, shall, on the particulars thereof being submitted to and allowed by the Charity Commissioners, be paid by the governors out of the income of the foundation.

4. The first coöptative governors shall be the following persons, that is to say:—

The Reverend William Shilleto, Vicar of Goosnargh; Charles Roger Jacson, of Barton Hall, Esquire, J.P.; and William Philip Park, of Altadore, Land Surveyor; and their appointment shall take effect from the date of this scheme.

The future coöptative governors shall be competent persons duly qualified to discharge the duties of the office, and shall be appointed in every case by the general body of governors at a special meeting, by a resolution to be forthwith notified by them, with all proper information, to the Charity Commissioners, at their office in London; but no such appointment shall be valid until it has been approved by the said Commissioners, and their approval certified under their official seal. The said first and all future coöptative governors shall be appointed to office for the term of seven years, and as to all future such governors the term of appointment shall be reckoned from the date of the approval.

5. Any governor who during his term of office shall become bankrupt or incapacitated to act, or express in writing his wish to resign, or omit for the space of two consecutive years to attend any meeting, shall thereupon forthwith vacate the office of governor; and the governors shall cause an entry to be made in their minute book of every vacancy occasioned by any of the said causes or by the death or the expiration of the term of office of any governor; and as soon as conveniently may be after the occurrence of any vacancy a new representative or coöptative governor, as the case may be, shall be appointed by the body entitled as aforesaid to make such appointment. Any governor may be re-appointed. Notice of the occur-

Coöptative governors.

Vacancies.

SIR ALLAN COTTON'S CHARITY.

Sir Allan Cotton, by his will of the 25th July 1627, bequeathed to the Company 300*l.*, to be lent to three young men at 4*l.* per cent., and distributed—

To the poor of the Company	-	4
To the poor of St. Martin Orgar	-	4
To the poor of Whitchurch, Salop	-	4
The 300 l. forms part of the 3,811 l. 10 s. 6 d. mentioned in the report on Clonne's Charity. The 4*l.* a year is paid to the churchwardens of St. Martin Orgar, and 4*l.* to the churchwardens of Whitchurch. The 4*l.* to the poor of the Company forms part of the pensions to the poor on the roll mentioned in Kendrick's Charity.

ROGER COTTON'S CHARITY.

Roger Cotton, by his will of the 26th June 1602, bequeathed to the Company 100*l.*, to be lent to two young rence of every vacancy of the office of representative governor shall be given, as soon as conveniently may be, by or under the direction of the governors to the proper electing body or the clerk, if any, or other acting officer of such body.

Religious opinions of governors.

6. Religious opinions, or attendance or non-attendance at any particular form of religious worship, shall not in any way affect the qualification of any person for being a governor under this scheme.

Declaration by governors on entry into office.

7. Every governor shall, at or before the first meeting which he attends upon his first or any subsequent entry into office, sign a memorandum declaring his acceptance of the office of governor, and his willingness to act in the trusts of this scheme. And until he has signed such a memorandum he shall not be entitled to discharge the functions of a governor.

Meetings of governors.

8. The governors shall hold meetings in some convenient place in Goosnargh, or elsewhere, as often as may be found necessary or desirable, and at least twice in each year, on and at convenient days and times to be appointed by themselves, and to be notified to each governor by the clerk, if any, or by some other person acting under the direction of the governors, at least seven days previously to every meeting.

Preliminary meeting.

9. A preliminary meeting for the arrangement of the conduct of the business shall be held upon the summons of the governor whose name then stands first on the list of coöperative governors upon some day to be fixed by him, being within one calendar month after the time at which, under the provisions herein contained, the administration of the foundation shall have passed to the governors in place of the present governing body.

Chairman.

10. The governors shall, at the said preliminary meeting, and afterwards at their first meeting in each year, elect one of their number to be chairman of their meetings for the current year, and they shall also make regulations for supplying his place in case of his death, resignation, or absence during his term of office. The chairman shall always be re-eligible.

Quorum and voting.

11. A quorum shall be constituted when four governors are present at a meeting. All matters and questions shall be determined by the majority of the governors present at a duly constituted meeting; and in case of equality of votes the chairman shall have a second or casting vote.

Special meetings.

12. The chairman or any two governors may at any time summon a special meeting for any cause that seems to him or them sufficient. All special meetings shall be convened by or under the direction of the person or persons summoning the meeting by notice in writing delivered or sent by post to each governor, specifying the object of the meeting. And it shall be the duty of the clerk, if any, to give such notice when required by the chairman or by any governors having a right to summon such meeting.

Minutes.

13. A minute book and proper books of account shall be provided by the governors, and kept in some convenient and secure place of deposit to be provided or appointed by them for that purpose, and minutes of the entry into office of every new governor, and of all proceedings of the governors, shall be entered in such minute book.

Vesting property.

14. From and after the date of this scheme all lands and hereditaments, not being copyhold, belonging to the foundation, and all terms, estates, and interests therein, shall be vested in the Official Trustee of Charity Lands, and his successors in trust for the foundation; and all stock in the public funds and other securities belonging to the foundation, and not hereby required or directed to be otherwise applied or disposed of, shall be transferred to the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in trust for the foundation.

Management and letting of estates.

15. All the estates and property of the foundation not required to be retained or occupied for the purposes thereof shall be let or otherwise managed by the governors or by their officers acting under their orders, according to the general law applicable to the management of property by trustees of charitable foundations.

Timber and minerals.

16. Any money arising from the sale of timber or from any mines or minerals on the estates of the foundation shall be treated as capital, and shall be invested in the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds, under the direction of the Charity Commissioners, except in any special cases in which the governors may be authorised by such Commissioners to deal otherwise with such money or any part thereof.

17. So soon as the full number of governors shall have been completed according to the provisions of this scheme, or upon the expiration of the first three calendar months after the date of this scheme if the full number of governors shall not then have been completed, the administration of the foundation shall pass to the said governors in place of the present governing body, and such governing body shall thereupon so far as relates to the subject matter of this scheme become ipso facto removed and discharged from their office, and shall cause all deeds, minute and account books, and other papers and documents belonging or relating to the foundation, and all cash balances and personal effects belonging thereto, and not herein required to be transferred to the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds, to be delivered or transferred unto the said governors or as they shall direct. In the meantime the foundation shall continue to be administered and managed so far as may be necessary by the present governing body, as nearly as may be in conformity with the provisions of this scheme. The aforesaid time of three calendar months may be extended, if necessary, by an order of the Charity Commissioners, made upon the application of any one or more of the present governing body, or of the governors, if any.

Transfer of administration of foundation to governors.

18. After the administration of the foundation has passed to the governors as aforesaid, the governors for the time being, if a quorum is constituted, shall have power to act for all the purposes of this scheme, although the governing body as herein-before constituted is not full.

Governor may act although body not full.

19. So far as may be practicable and convenient each school of the foundation may be carried on as heretofore until the end of any school term current at the date of this scheme, or until such other time as may, with the approval of the Charity Commissioners, be fixed by the body for the time being having the administration of the school under this scheme.

Temporary school arrangements.

20. The present principal teacher of each school of the foundation shall, at or before the time allowed under the last foregoing clause, declare to the governors, in writing, whether or not he or she is willing to take and hold the office of principal teacher of the same school under this scheme, and if he or she shall declare himself or herself to be so willing he or she shall retain the office without further appointment, subject in all respects to the provisions of this scheme; but, if he or she shall fail to make such declaration within the time so limited as aforesaid, or shall declare that he or she is not so willing, the governors may forthwith remove him or her from the said office.

Provision to present masters.

21. The governors shall take all requisite measures for bringing the provisions of this scheme into active operation for the regulation of the schools as soon as practicable, and they shall have power to make all suitable and proper arrangements for that purpose.

Provisions as to schools to be brought into operation as soon as practicable.

THE SCHOOLS AND THEIR MANAGEMENT.

22. The schools of the foundation shall be a school for boys and a school for girls, and shall be maintained in or near the township of Goosnargh with Newsham, in the present school buildings or in any other suitable buildings hereafter to be provided for the purpose by the governors, and each school shall be conducted as a public elementary school under section 7 of the Elementary Education Act, 1870.

Schools of the foundation.

23. No person shall be disqualified for being a master in either school by reason only of his not being, or not intending to be, in Holy Orders.

Masters not to be required to be in Holy Orders.

24. The governors shall appoint, pay, and at their pleasure dismiss all teachers in each school, and subject to any regulations of the Education Department in force for the time being, shall have power to regulate and prescribe from time to time their respective qualifications.

Teachers.

25. All scholars in each school shall pay such tuition fees, suitable in an elementary school, as the governors shall fix from time to time.

Payments for tuition.

men, free of the Company, at 5*l.* per cent., half to the parish of St. Clement, Eastcheap, and the other half to the parson and churchwardens of the parish of Whitechurch, Salop, and to two of his nearest kinsmen, if there dwelling, for the poor of the said parishes who should not live idly.

The 100*l.* forms part of the 3,811*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* mentioned in Clonne's Charity, and the 2*l.* 10*s.* is paid to the respective churchwardens of St. Clement and Whitechurch.

Instruction.

26. Religious instruction in accordance with the principles of the Christian faith shall be given in each school under such regulations as shall be made from time to time by the governors. No alteration in any such regulations shall take effect until the expiration of not less than one year after notice of the making of the alteration shall have been given by the governors in such manner as they shall think best calculated to bring the matter within the knowledge of persons interested in the schools. Subject to the control of the governors instruction in the subjects required by the regulations of the Education Department shall also be given in each school according to the classification and arrangements made by the principal teacher.

Religious exemptions.

27. The parent or guardian of, or person liable to maintain or having the actual custody of, any day scholar in either school may claim, by notice in writing addressed to the principal teacher, the exemption of such scholar from attending prayer or religious worship, or from any lesson or series of lessons on a religious subject, and such scholar shall be exempted accordingly, and a scholar shall not by reason of any exemption from attending prayer or religious worship, or from any lesson or series of lessons on a religious subject, be deprived of any advantage or emolument in such school to which he or she would otherwise have been entitled. If any teacher in the course of other lessons at which any such scholar is in accordance with the ordinary rules of the school present, shall teach systematically and persistently any particular religious doctrine, from the teaching of which any exemption has been claimed, as in this clause before provided, the governors shall, on complaint made in writing to them by the parent, guardian, or person liable to maintain or having the actual custody of such scholar, hear the complainant and inquire into the circumstances, and if the complaint is judged to be reasonable, make all proper provisions for remedying the matter complained of.

Regulations of Education Department.

28. The governors shall not be precluded by any provision in this scheme from conforming to any regulations which the Education Department under the Elementary Education Act, 1870, or under any authority, may impose as the conditions of a grant of money, provided that such regulations shall not be inconsistent with the provisions of the Endowed Schools Acts, 1869, 1873, and 1874.

Scholarships and exhibitions.

29. A yearly sum of not less than 20*l.* shall be applied in the following ways, or one of them, that is to say:—

- (a.) Providing one or more scholarships each of the yearly value of not more than 5*l.*, to be awarded to boys or girls who have passed in one or both of the two highest standards recognised by the regulations of the Education Department, and tenable at the schools by scholars pursuing the study of higher subjects;
- (b.) Providing an exhibition or exhibitions each of the yearly value of not more than 10*l.*, tenable at some place of higher education, to be awarded under such regulations as the governors may prescribe by competition among scholars who have attended either of the schools for at least three years.

In default of candidates who on examination prove worthy to take such scholarships or exhibitions, so much of the said sum of 20*l.* as is thereby left not disposed of shall be invested in the name of the Official Trustee of Charitable Funds in trust for the foundation in augmentation of its general endowment.

Conditions as to scholarships and exhibitions.

30. Every scholarship and exhibition established under this scheme shall be given as the reward of merit, and shall, within the limits aforesaid, be freely and openly competed for, and shall be tenable only for the purposes of education. If the holder shall, in the judgment of the governors, be guilty of serious misconduct or idleness, or fail to maintain a reasonable standard of proficiency, or wilfully cease to pursue his or her education, the governors may at once determine the scholarship or exhibition, and for this purpose, in the case of an exhibition held away from the schools of this foundation, may act on the report of the proper authorities of the school or place of education at which the exhibition is held, or on such other evidence as the governors think sufficient. For the purposes of this clause the decision of the governors shall be final in every case.

GENERAL.

Further endowments.

31. The governors may receive any additional donations or endowments for the general purposes of the foundation.

They may also receive donations or endowments for any special objects connected with the foundation, which shall not be inconsistent with or calculated to impede the due working of the provisions of this scheme. Any question arising upon this last point shall be referred to the Charity Commissioners for decision.

32. Within the limits prescribed by this scheme the governors shall have full power from time to time to make regulations for the conduct of their business and for the management of the foundation, and such regulations shall be binding on all persons affected thereby.

33. Any question affecting the regularity or the validity of any proceeding under this scheme shall be determined conclusively by the Charity Commissioners upon such application made to them for the purpose as they think sufficient.

34. If any doubt or question arises among the governors as to the proper construction or application of any of the provisions of this scheme, the governors shall apply to the Charity Commissioners for their opinion and advice thereon, which opinion and advice when given shall be binding on the governors and all persons claiming under the trust who shall be affected by the question so decided.

35. From the date of this scheme all jurisdiction of the ordinary relating to or arising from the licensing of any master in either school shall be abolished.

36. The Charity Commissioners may from time to time, in the exercise of their ordinary jurisdiction, frame schemes for the alteration of any portions of this scheme, provided that such schemes be not inconsistent with anything contained in the Endowed Schools Acts, 1869, 1873, and 1874.

37. From and after the date of this scheme the foundation shall for every purpose be administered and governed wholly and exclusively in accordance with the provisions of this scheme, notwithstanding any former or other scheme, Act of Parliament, charter, or letters patent, statute, or instrument relating to the subject-matter of this scheme.

38. The governors shall cause this scheme to be printed, and a copy to be given to every governor and teacher, upon their respective appointments, and copies may be sold at a reasonable price to all persons applying for the same.

39. The date of this scheme shall be the day on which Her Majesty by Order in Council declares Her approbation of it.

SCHEME for the ADMINISTRATION of the FOUNDATIONS and ENDOWMENTS above-mentioned or referred to.

1. These foundations and endowments shall henceforth be administered as one foundation in accordance with the provisions of this scheme, by the governing body herein-after constituted, under the name of the Kirkham Grammar School, herein-after called the foundation.

2. The foundations and endowments dealt with by this scheme are:—

- (1) The above-named free grammar school;
- (2) The foundation known as Barker's Charity, applicable for the purposes of the said school and for apprenticing certain poor children of the town of Kirkham;
- (3) The yearly sum of 75*l.* derived under the gift of Henry Colborne, applicable under a scheme of the High Court of Chancery for educational and other charitable purposes for the benefit of the townships and places in the above-named parish of Kirkham other than Goosnargh-cum-Newsham and Whittingham.

3. Nothing in this scheme shall affect any endowment or trusts under the will of William Grimbaldson for the benefit of the uppermost master of the free school of Kirkham, or any obligation of the said townships and places or any of them to repair the buildings of the school of the foundation.

4. The yearly sum of 5*l.* 10*s.*, part of the said yearly sum of 75*l.*, shall be applied for the benefit of the poor people of the said townships and places in the parish of Kirkham other than as aforesaid.

5. The governing body of the foundation, herein-after called the governors, shall, when completely formed and full, consist of 13 persons, of whom nine shall be called representative governors, and four shall be called coöptative governors.

6. The representative governors shall be competent persons duly qualified to discharge the duties of the office,

Clonne's Charity. The 50*s.* a year is paid to the churchwardens of Whitchurch, and 50*s.* a year to the churchwardens of St. Michael, Crooked Lane. The 50*s.* to the poor of the Company forms part of the quarterly bequest to the poor on the roll (see Kendrick's Charity).

SIR THOS. CULLUM'S CHARITY.

Sir Thos. Cullum, by his will of the 2nd May 1662, devised to the Drapers' Company four houses in the parish and shall be appointed by the following electing bodies respectively in the following proportions, that is to say—

Four by the court of the Company named the master and wardens and brethren and sisters of the guild or fraternity of the Blessed Mary the Virgin of the Mystery of Drapers of the city of London;

Two by the justices of the peace for the county of Lancaster acting in and for the petty sessional division of Kirkham; and,

Three by the Kirkham Local Board of Health.

Such appointments shall be made as often as there may be occasion by the body entitled to appoint at a meeting thereof which shall be convened, held, and conducted as nearly as may be in conformity with the ordinary rules or practice of such body. Every representative governor shall be appointed to office for the term of five years, reckoned from the date of the appointment. The first representative governors shall be appointed as soon as conveniently may be after the date of this scheme. The chairman or other presiding officer of each meeting at which the appointment of any representative governors or governor shall be made, shall forthwith cause the names or name of the persons or person so appointed to be notified, in the case of the first such appointment to the coöptative governor whose name then stands first on the list of coöptative governors, and in the case of every subsequent appointment to the chairman of the governors or their clerk, if any, or other acting officer. Any appointment of a representative governor not made as aforesaid within six calendar months from the date of this scheme, or of the notice herein-after prescribed of the occurrence of a vacancy, as the case may be, shall for that turn be made by the then existing governors.

Coöptative governors. 7. The first coöptative governors shall be nine instead of four, that is to say:—

The Rev. Richard Moore, Vicar of Lund, near Preston;
The Rev. John Shepherd Birley, of Moss Lee, Bolton-le-Moors, clerk in holy orders;

The Rev. Henry Williams Mason, Vicar of Kirkham; Edmund Birley, of Clifton Hall, Preston, Esquire;
Charles Birley, of Bartle Hall, Preston, Esquire;
Henry Langton Birley, of Carr Hall, Kirkham, Esquire;

Edward Garlick, of Preston, Esquire;

Thomas Shaw, of Preston Street, Kirkham, Esquire;
and,

Thomas Fair, of Lytham, Esquire, and their appointment shall take effect from the date of this scheme.

The future coöptative governors shall be competent persons duly qualified to discharge the duties of the office, and shall be appointed in every case by the general body of governors at a special meeting, by a resolution to be forthwith notified by them, with all proper information to the Charity Commissioners, at their office in London; but no such appointment shall be valid until it has been approved by the said Commissioners, and their approval certified under their official seal. The said first, and all future coöptative governors, shall be appointed to office for the term of seven years, and as to all future such governors, the term of appointment shall be reckoned from the date of the approval.

Vacancies. 8. Any governor who during his term of office shall become bankrupt or incapacitated to act, or express in writing his wish to resign, or omit for the space of two consecutive years to attend any meeting, shall thereupon forthwith vacate the office of governor; and the governors shall cause an entry to be made in their minute book of every vacancy occasioned by any of the said causes, or by the death or the expiration of the term of office of any governor; and as soon as conveniently may be after the occurrence of any vacancy a new governor shall be appointed by the body entitled as aforesaid to make such appointment, but so that except at first as herein-before provided the number of coöptative governors shall never be more than four. Any governor may be re-appointed. Notice of the occurrence of every vacancy of the office of representative governor shall be given, as soon as conveniently may be, by or under the direction of the governors, to the proper electing body or the clerk, if any, or other acting officer of such body.

9. Religious opinions, or attendance or non-attendance at any particular form of religious worship, shall not in any way affect the qualification of any person for being a governor under this scheme.

Religious opinions of governors.

10. Every governor shall, at or before the first meeting which he attends upon his first or any subsequent entry into office, sign a memorandum declaring his acceptance of the office of governor, and his willingness to act in the trusts of this scheme. And until he has signed such a memorandum he shall not be entitled to discharge the functions of a governor.

Declaration by governors on entry into office.

11. The governors shall hold meetings in some convenient place in Kirkham, or elsewhere, as often as may be found necessary or desirable, and at least twice in each year, on and at convenient days and times to be appointed by themselves, and to be notified to each governor by the clerk, if any, or by some other person acting under the direction of the governors, at least seven days previously to every meeting.

Meetings of governors

12. A preliminary meeting for the arrangement of the conduct of the business shall be held upon the summons of the governor whose name then stands first on the list of coöptative governors upon some day to be fixed by him, being within one calendar month after the time at which, under the provisions herein contained, the administration of the foundation shall have passed to the governors in place of the present governing body.

Preliminary meeting.

13. The governors shall, at the said preliminary meeting and afterwards at their first meeting in each year, elect one of their number to be chairman of their meetings for the current year, and they shall also make regulations for supplying his place in case of his death, resignation, or absence during his term of office. The chairman shall always be re-eligible.

Chairman.

14. A quorum shall be constituted when five governors are present at a meeting. All matters and questions, except as herein provided, shall be determined by the majority of the governors present at a duly constituted meeting; and in case of equality of votes the chairman shall have a second or casting vote. Whenever the decision on any matter or question so determined is carried by the votes of less than a majority of the number of governors for the time being, any two governors may, within 15 days from the day of the decision, require by a notice addressed to the chairman of the meeting that the decision shall be once reconsidered at a special meeting, to be held not later than one calendar month next after such decision.

Quorum and voting.

15. The chairman or any two governors may at any time summon a special meeting for any cause that seems to him or them sufficient. All special meetings shall be convened by or under the direction of the person or persons summoning the meeting by notice in writing delivered or sent by post to each governor, specifying the object of the meeting. And it shall be the duty of the clerk, if any, to give such notice when required by the chairman or by any governors having a right to summon such meeting.

Special meetings.

16. If a sufficient number of governors to form a quorum are not present at any meeting, or if the business at any meeting is not fully completed, those present may adjourn the meeting to a subsequent day and time, of which notice shall be given in manner aforesaid to each governor.

Adjournment of meetings.

17. A minute book and proper books of account shall be provided by the governors, and kept in some convenient and secure place of deposit to be provided or appointed by them for that purpose, and minutes of the entry into office of every new governor, and of all proceedings of the governors, shall be entered in such minute book.

Minutes.

18. The governors shall cause full accounts to be kept of the receipts and expenditure in respect of the foundation; and such accounts shall be stated for each year, and examined and passed annually by the governors at the first meeting in the ensuing year, unless some other meeting shall be appointed for the purpose with the approval of the Charity Commissioners. Every such account shall be signed by the governors present at the meeting at which it shall be passed.

Accounts.

The governors shall cause sufficient abstracts of the accounts to be published annually for general information. Such abstracts shall be in the form given in the schedule hereto, unless some other form is prescribed by the Charity of Trinity Minories, leased at 41*l.* 10*s.* a year, to be disposed of as follows :—

and the residue to the Company for their own use.

Commissioners, in which case the forms so prescribed shall be followed.

19. The governors may from time to time make such arrangements as they may find most fitting for the custody of all deeds and other documents belonging to the foundation, for deposit of money, for the drawing of cheques, and also for the appointment of a clerk or of any necessary agents or other proper officers for their assistance in the conduct of the business of the foundation, at such reasonable salaries or scale of remuneration as shall be approved by the Charity Commissioners, but no governor acting as such clerk or officer shall be entitled to any salary or remuneration.

20. From and after the date of this scheme all lands and hereditaments, not being copyhold, belonging to the foundation, and all terms, estates, and interests therein, shall be vested in the Official Trustee of Charity Lands and his successors in trust for the foundation; and all stock in the public funds and other securities belonging to the foundation, and not hereby required or directed to be otherwise applied or disposed of, shall be transferred to the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in trust for the foundation.

21. All the estates and property of the foundation not required to be retained or occupied for the purposes thereof, shall be let or otherwise managed by the governors or by their officers acting under their orders, according to the general law applicable to the management of property by trustees of charitable foundations.

22. Any money arising from the sale of timber or from any mines or minerals on the estates of the foundation shall be treated as capital, and shall be invested in the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds, under the direction of the Charity Commissioners, except in any special cases in which the governors may be authorised by such Commissioners to deal otherwise with such money or any part thereof.

23. So soon as the full number of governors shall have been completed according to the provisions of this scheme, or upon the expiration of the first three calendar months after the date of this scheme, if the full number of governors shall not then have been completed, the administration of the foundation shall pass to the said governors in place of the present governing body, and such governing body shall thereupon, so far as relates to the subject matter of this scheme, become ipso facto removed and discharged from their office, and shall cause all deeds, minute and account books, and other papers and documents belonging or relating to the foundation, and all cash balances and personal effects belonging thereto, and not herein required to be transferred to the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds, to be delivered or transferred unto the said governors or as they shall direct. In the meantime the foundation shall continue to be administered and managed so far as may be necessary by the present governing body as nearly as may be in conformity with the provisions of this scheme. The aforesaid time of three calendar months may be extended, if necessary, by an order of the Charity Commissioners, made upon the application of any one or more of the present governing body, or of the governors, if any.

24. After the administration of the foundation has passed to the governors as aforesaid, the governors for the time being, if a quorum is constituted, may act for all the purposes of this scheme, although the governing body as herein-before constituted is not full.

25. So far as may be practicable and convenient, the school may be carried on as heretofore until the end of any school term current at the date of this scheme, or until such other time as may, with the approval of the Charity Commissioners, be fixed by the body for the time being having the administration of the foundation under this scheme.

26. The present head master of the school shall, at or before the time so allowed under the last foregoing clause, declare to the governors, in writing, whether or not he is willing to take and hold the office of head master of the school under this scheme, and if he shall declare himself to be so willing he shall retain the office without further appointment, subject in all respects to the provisions of this scheme; but, if he shall fail to make such declaration within the time so allowed as aforesaid, or shall declare that he is not so willing, the governors may remove him from the said office.

Mr. Robert Charlton and Mr. Benjamin Stuttard, now holding office as second master and third master respectively, shall without further appointment retain office as assistant masters of the school under this scheme. Each of them may be removed by the governors for a cause for which he might have been removed if this scheme had not been made, but neither of them shall be subject to dismissal by the head master. The salary of the said Robert Charlton as assistant master shall be not less than 120*l.* yearly. The salary of the said Benjamin Stuttard as assistant master shall be not less than 80*l.* yearly.

27. The governors shall take all requisite measures for bringing the provisions of this scheme into active operation for the regulation of the school as soon as practicable, and they shall have power to make all suitable and proper arrangements for that purpose.

28. Any payment, exemption from payment, or other benefit to which any boy, who was on the 31st day of May 1879, being the date of the publication of this scheme, on the foundation, is legally entitled thereunder, shall be continued to him.

THE SCHOOL AND ITS MANAGEMENT.

29. The school of the foundation shall be a day and boarding school for boys, and shall be maintained in or near the township of Kirkham in the present school buildings, or in any other suitable buildings hereafter to be provided for the purpose by the governors.

30. No person shall be disqualified for being a master in the school by reason only of his not being, or not intending to be, in Holy Orders.

31. There shall be a head master of the school. He shall be a graduate of some university in the United Kingdom. Every future head master shall be appointed by the governors at some meeting to be called for that purpose as soon as conveniently may be after the occurrence of a vacancy, or after notice of an intended vacancy. In order to obtain the best candidates, the governors shall, for a sufficient time before making any appointment, give public notice of the vacancy and invite applicants for the office by advertisements in newspapers, or by such other methods as they may judge best calculated to secure the object.

32. The governors may dismiss the head master without assigning cause after six calendar months' written notice, given to him in pursuance of a resolution passed at two consecutive meetings held at an interval of at least 14 days and convened for that purpose, such resolution being affirmed at each meeting by not less than two thirds of the governors present.

The governors for what in their opinion is urgent cause may, by resolution passed at a special meeting convened for that purpose and affirmed by not less than two thirds of the whole number of governors for the time being, declare that the head master ought to be dismissed from his office without the aforesaid notice, and in that case they may appoint another special meeting to be held not less than a week after the former one, and may then by a similar resolution, affirmed by as large a proportion of governors, absolutely and finally dismiss him. And if the governors assembled at the first of such meetings think fit at once to suspend the head master from his office until the next meeting, they may do so by resolution affirmed by as large a proportion of governors. Full notice and opportunity of defence at both meetings shall be given to the head master.

33. Every future head master, previously to entering into office, shall be required to sign a declaration, to be entered in the minute book of the governors, to the following effect :—

"I, _____ declare that I will always to the best of my ability discharge the duties of head master of the Kirkham Grammar School during my tenure of the office, and that if I am removed by the governors, I will acquiesce in such removal, and will thereupon relinquish all claim to the mastership and its future emoluments, and will deliver up to the governors,

"or as they direct, possession of all the property of the school then in my possession or occupation."

34. The head master shall dwell in the residence assigned for him. He shall have the occupation and use of such residence and of any other property of the school of which he becomes the occupant as such head master, in respect of his official character and duties, and not as tenant, and shall, if removed from his office, deliver up possession of such residence and other property to the governors, or as they direct. He shall not, except with the permission of the governors, permit any person not being a member of his family to occupy such residence or any part thereof.

35. The head master shall give his personal attention to the duties of the school, and during his tenure of office he shall not hold any benefice having the cure of souls, or undertake any office or employment which, in the opinion of the governors, may interfere with the proper performance of his duties as head master.

36. No head master or assistant master of the school shall be a governor.

37. No head master or assistant master shall receive or demand from any boy in the school, or from any person whomsoever on behalf of any such boy, any gratuity, fee, or payment, except such as are prescribed or authorised by this scheme.

38. Within the limits fixed by this scheme, the governors shall prescribe the general subjects of instruction, the relative prominence and value to be assigned to each group of subjects, the arrangements respecting the school terms, vacations, and holidays, the payments of day scholars, and the number and payments of boarders. They shall take general supervision of the sanitary condition of the school buildings and arrangements. They shall determine what number of assistant masters shall be employed. They shall every year assign the amount which they think proper to be contributed out of the income of the foundation for the purpose of maintaining assistant masters and providing and maintaining a proper school plant or apparatus, and otherwise furthering the current objects and the efficiency of the school.

39. Before making any regulations under the last foregoing clause, the governors shall consult the head master in such a manner as to give him full opportunity for the expression of his views. The head master may also from time to time submit proposals to the governors for making or altering regulations concerning any matter within the province of the governors. The governors shall fully consider any such expression of views or proposals, and shall decide upon them.

40. Subject to the rules prescribed by or under the authority of this scheme, the head master shall have under his control the choice of books, the method of teaching, the arrangement of classes and school hours, and generally the whole internal organisation, management, and discipline of the school, including the power of expelling boys from the school or suspending them from attendance thereat for any adequate cause to be judged of by him; but upon expelling or suspending any boy he shall forthwith report the case to the governors.

41. The head master shall have the sole power of appointing, and may at pleasure dismiss, all assistant masters, and shall determine, subject to the approval of the governors, in what proportions the sum assigned by the governors for the maintenance of assistant masters, or the other current objects of the school, shall be divided among the various persons and objects for which it is assigned in the aggregate. And the governors shall pay the same accordingly, either through the hands of the head master or directly, as they think best.

42. The head master shall receive a fixed yearly stipend of 150*l*. He shall also be entitled to receive a further or capitation payment calculated on such a scale, uniform or graduated, as may be fixed from time to time by the governors, at the rate of not less than 2*l*. nor more than 5*l*. a year for each boy attending the school. The amount of this further or capitation payment shall be ascertained and paid to the head master by the governors, together with the proper proportion of his fixed stipend, at such convenient intervals or times as the governors may think fit.

43. The governors may make such regulations and arrangements as they may think right for the reception of boarders either in the house of any master, or in a hostel or hostels conducted under the management of the governors, or, if they think fit, in both of those ways.

44. All boys, including boarders, except as herein-after provided, shall pay tuition fees to be fixed from time to time by the governors at the rate of not less than 4*l*. nor more than 8*l*. a year for any boy residing in any of the said townships and places in the parish of Kirkham other than as aforesaid, and of not less than 6*l*. nor more than 12*l*. a year for any other boy. The payments to be required from boarders, exclusive of the tuition fees, shall not exceed the annual rate of 40*l*. in a hostel, or 50*l*. in a master's house, for any boy. No extra or additional payment of any kind shall be allowed without the sanction of the governors and the written consent of the parent, or person occupying the place of parent, of the scholar concerned.

All payments for tuition fees shall be made in advance to the head master, or to such other person as the governors shall from time to time determine, and shall be accounted for by the person receiving them to the governors, and treated by them as part of the general income of the foundation.

45. No boy shall be admitted into the school under the age of eight years. No boy shall remain in the school after the age of seventeen years, or if he attains that age during a school term then after the end of such term, except with the permission of the governors, which in special cases may be given upon the recommendation of the head master.

46. Subject to the provisions established by or under the authority of this scheme, the school and all its advantages shall be open to all boys of good character and sufficient health who are residing with their parents, guardians, or near relations within degrees to be determined by the governors, or in some boarding house conducted under regulations made by the governors. No boy not so residing shall be admitted to the school without the special permission of the governors.

47. Applications for admission to the school shall be made to the head master, or to some other person appointed by the governors, according to a form to be approved of by them, and delivered to all applicants.

48. The head master or some other person appointed by the governors shall keep a register of applications for admission, showing the date of every application and of the admission, withdrawal, or rejection of the applicant, and the cause of any rejection, and the age of each applicant.

49. Every applicant for admission shall be examined by or under the direction of the head master, who shall appoint convenient times for that purpose, and give reasonable notice to the parents or next friends of the boy to be so examined. No boy shall be admitted to the school except after undergoing such examination and being found fit for admission. Those who are so found fit shall, if there is room for them, be admitted in order according to the dates of their application, but if there is not room for all, preference shall be given to such of them as are residing in any of the said townships or places in the parish of Kirkham other than as aforesaid.

The examination for admission shall be graduated according to the age of the boy, and shall be regulated in other particulars from time to time by or under the direction of the governors, but it shall never for any boy fall below the following standard, that is to say:—

Reading;
 Writing from dictation;
 Sums in the first four simple rules of arithmetic, with the multiplication table;
 Outlines of the geography of England.

50. The parent or guardian of, or person liable to maintain or having the actual custody of, any scholar attending the school as a day scholar may claim by notice in writing addressed to the head master the exemption of such scholar from attending prayer or religious worship, or from any lesson or series of lessons on a religious subject, and such scholar shall be exempted accordingly, and a scholar shall not, by reason of any exemption from attending prayer or religious worship, or from any lesson or series of lessons on a religious subject, be deprived of any advantage or emolument in the school to which he would otherwise have been entitled.

If the parent or guardian of, or person liable to maintain or having the actual custody of, any scholar who is about to attend the school, and who but for this clause could only be admitted as a boarder, desires the exemption of such scholar from attending prayer or religious worship, or from any lesson or series of lessons on a religious subject, but the persons in charge of the boarding houses of the school are not willing to allow such exemption, then it shall be the duty of the governors to make proper provisions for enabling the scholar to attend the school, and have such exemption as a day scholar, without being deprived of any advantage or emolument to which he would otherwise have been entitled.

If any teacher in the course of other lessons at which any scholar exempted under this clause is in accordance with the ordinary rules of the school present, shall teach systematically and persistently any particular religious doctrine, from the teaching of which any exemption has been claimed as in this clause before provided, the governors shall, on complaint made in writing to them by the parent, guardian, or person liable to maintain or having the actual custody of such scholar, hear the complainant, and inquire into the circumstances, and if the complaint is judged to be reasonable, make all proper provisions for remedying the matter complained of.

Instruction.

51. Subject to the foregoing provision, religious instruction in accordance with the doctrines of the Church of England shall be given in the school under such regulations as shall be made from time to time by the governors. No alteration in any such regulations shall take effect until the expiration of not less than one year after notice of the making of the alteration shall have been given by the governors in such manner as they shall think best calculated to bring the matter within the knowledge of persons interested in the school. Instruction shall also be given in the school in the following subjects:—

Reading, writing, and arithmetic;
Geography and history;
English grammar, composition, and literature;
Mathematics;
Latin;
French and German;
Natural science;
Drawing, drill, and vocal music.

Greek may be taught at an additional fee of not less than 3*l*. a year for each boy. Subject to the above provisions, the course of instruction shall proceed according to the classification and arrangements made by the head master.

Annual examination.

52. There shall be once in every year an examination of the scholars by the examiner or examiners appointed for that purpose by the governors, and paid by them, but otherwise unconnected with the school. The day of examination shall be fixed by the governors after consulting with the head master. The examiner or examiners shall report to the governors on the proficiency of the scholars and on the condition of the school, as regards instruction and discipline, as shown by the result of the examination. The governors shall communicate the report to the head master.

Head master's annual report.

53. The head master shall make a report in writing to the governors annually at such time as they shall direct on the general condition and progress of the school, and on any special occurrences during the year. He may also mention the names of any boys who, in his judgment, are worthy of reward or distinction, having regard both to proficiency and conduct.

Prizes.

54. The governors may award prizes of books or other suitable rewards as marks of distinction to any boys mentioned as worthy of reward or distinction by the head master or by the examiner.

Foundation scholarships for boys from elementary schools.

55. The governors shall apply the sum of not less than 60*l*. yearly in maintaining in the school scholarships, to be called Foundation Scholarships, each of the yearly value of not less than 6*l*. nor more than 10*l*. These scholarships shall be competed for by boys who are being and have for at least three years been educated at any of the public elementary schools in any of the said townships and places in the parish of Kirkham other than as aforesaid, and the governors shall make such arrangements relative to the elections to these scholarships as seem to them best adapted to secure the double object of attracting good scholars to the school of this foundation, and advancing education at the said public elementary schools. No scholarship under this clause shall be granted for which there shall be no candidate so qualified as aforesaid who on examination shall be adjudged worthy to take it.

The gift of the residue, "and what else should at any time arise of the property," to the Company for their own use, clearly carries the balance to the Company.

Other scholarships.

56. The governors may apply a yearly sum of not more than 100*l*. in maintaining in the school other scholarships of such number, tenure, and value as they may think fit. These scholarships shall be awarded in favour of boys already attending the school upon the report of the examiner or examiners made on the result of the annual examination, but no such scholarship shall be awarded to any boy unless the head master shall report that he is deserving of it by reason of his character and good conduct.

57. Subject to such reasonable regulations, not inconsistent with the provisions of this Scheme, as the governors may from time to time prescribe, they shall also apply 100*l*. a year in maintaining exhibitions tenable for three years at any place of higher education approved by them, and to be awarded to boys who are being and have for not less than three years been educated at the school.

Exhibitions.

58. Every scholarship and exhibition established under this scheme as aforesaid shall be given as the reward of merit, and shall, except as herein provided, be freely and openly competed for, and shall be tenable only for the purposes of education. If the holder shall, in the judgment of the governors, be guilty of serious misconduct or idleness, or fail to maintain a reasonable standard of proficiency, or wilfully cease to pursue his education, the governors may at once determine the scholarship or exhibition, and for this purpose, in the case of an exhibition held away from the school, may act on the report of the proper authorities of the school or place of education at which the exhibition is held, or on such other evidence as the governors think sufficient. For the purposes of this clause the decision of the governors shall be final in every case.

Conditions as to scholarships and exhibitions

EDUCATION OF GIRLS.

59. The yearly sum of 200*l*. shall be applied in providing for the higher education of girls either by means of a school for girls to be established at Kirkham, under a scheme to be made under the Endowed Schools Act, 1869, and Amending Acts, or by means of exhibitions tenable at any place of higher education to be awarded and held under regulations not inconsistent with anything contained in those Acts, to be made by the governors, and to be approved by the Charity Commissioners. The establishment of such school or exhibitions may be postponed for three years from the date of this scheme, or for such further period, if any, as may be allowed by the Charity Commissioners.

Education of girls.

APPLICATION OF INCOME.

60. As soon as the state of the funds of the foundation will admit, the governors shall transfer the sum of 1,000*l*. Government stock into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds, and shall place the same in their books to a separate account, entitled "Repairs and Improvement Fund." The income of such fund shall be paid to the governors, and applied by them in ordinary repairs or improvements of property used for the purposes of the school, and if not wanted for that purpose shall be accumulated for the like purpose in any future year or years. Until the Repairs and Improvement Fund is provided, the governors shall treat the sum of 30*l*. a year as applicable to the same purposes as the income of the Repairs and Improvements Fund.

Repairs and improvements fund.

61. The governors may, if they think fit, and the income at their disposal suffice for the purpose, agree with the head master for the formation of a fund in the nature of a pension or superannuation fund, the main principles of such agreement being that the head master and the governors respectively shall contribute annually for a period of 20 years such sums as may be fixed on; that these contributions shall accumulate at compound interest; that in case the head master serves his office for 20 years he shall, on his retirement, be entitled to the whole accumulated fund; that in case he retires earlier on account of permanent disability from illness he shall also be entitled to the whole of the same fund; that in all other cases he shall, on his ceasing to be master, be entitled to the amount produced by his own contributions. If any question shall arise upon the construction or working of this provision, the same shall be referred by the governors to the Charity Commissioners, whose decision thereon shall be final and conclusive.

DEACLE'S CHARITY.

John Deacle, by his will of the 24th July 1706, bequeathed to the Company, 100*l.*, to be placed out at interest, and the produce distributed yearly to the poorest of the Company at Bow Church on the 5th November.

Certain poor freemen of the Company about 80 in number) receive 2*s.* 6*d.* each, not at Bow Church, but at the Hall of the Company, in the month of November, in respect of this and Hollis's Charity. They are the same persons who receive the 10*s.* each under Royley's Charity.

Residue.

62. Subject to the payment of the expenses of management of property and business, and of any necessary or proper outgoings, any income of the foundation not applied under the foregoing provisions, and not needed as a balance to meet current expenses, may be applied in improving the accommodation or convenience of the school buildings or premises, or generally in extending or otherwise promoting the objects and efficiency of the school, and so far as not so applied shall, on passing the yearly accounts, be invested in the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in trust for the foundation in augmentation of its general endowment

GENERAL.

Further endowments.

63. The governors may receive any additional donations or endowments for the general purposes of the foundation. They may also receive donations or endowments for any special objects connected with the foundation, which shall not be inconsistent with or calculated to impede the due working of the provisions of this scheme. Any question arising upon this last point shall be referred to the Charity Commissioners for decision.

General power of governors to make regulations.

64. Within the limits prescribed by this scheme the governors shall have full power from time to time to make regulations for the conduct of their business and for the management of the foundation, and such regulations shall be binding on all persons affected thereby.

Question of proceedings under scheme.

65. Any question affecting the regularity or the validity of any proceeding under this scheme shall be determined conclusively by the Charity Commissioners upon such application made to them for the purpose as they think sufficient.

Construction of scheme.

66. If any doubt or question arises among the Governors as to the proper construction or application of any of the provisions of this scheme, the governors shall apply to the Charity Commissioners for their opinion and advice thereon, which opinion and advice when given shall be binding on the governors and all persons claiming under the trust who shall be affected by the question so decided.

Jurisdiction of ordinary abolished.

67. From the date of this scheme all jurisdiction of the ordinary relating to or arising from the licensing of any master in the school shall be abolished.

Jurisdiction of visitor.

68. From the date of this scheme all rights and powers reserved to, belonging to, claimed by, or capable of being exercised by, any person or body, other than Her Majesty as visitor of the foundation, shall be transferred to Her Majesty, and all such rights and powers, and also any like rights or powers vested in Her on the 2nd day of August 1869, shall be exercised only through and by the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales.

Charity Commissioners may make new schemes.

69. The Charity Commissioners may from time to time, in the exercise of their ordinary jurisdiction, frame schemes for the alteration of any portions of this scheme, provided that such schemes be not inconsistent with anything contained in the Endowed Schools Act, 1869, and Amending Acts.

Foundation to be governed exclusively by this scheme

70. From and after the date of this scheme the foundation shall for every purpose, except as herein provided, be administered and governed wholly and exclusively in accordance with the provisions of this scheme, notwithstanding any former or other scheme, Act of Parliament, charter or letters patent, statute, or instrument relating to the subject matter of this scheme.

Scheme to be printed and sold.

71. The governors shall cause this scheme to be printed, and a copy to be given to every governor, master, and assistant master upon their respective appointments, and copies may be sold at a reasonable price to all persons applying for the same.

Date of scheme.

72. The date of this scheme shall be the day on which Her Majesty by Order in Council declares Her approbation of it.

DIXON'S CHARITY.

Henry Dixon devised, by his will of the 9th November 1693, all his messuages and tenements to the Drapers' Company, in trust, after paying all expenses of receiving the rents, &c., to dispose of the residue towards placing apprentices to handicraft trades in the first place such poor boys as should bear his Christian and surname, 5*l.* each; and in the next place such poor boys as should bear his surname only, 4*l.* each; and for want of such, then so many boys of the parishes of Bennington and Enfield, St. Catherine Coleman, and St. Mildred Poultry, London, 4*l.* each; and for want of such, the sons of the tenants, 3*l.* each; and, lastly, for want of such, any poor boys as the Company should nominate 4*l.* a-piece.

And by a memorandum to his will of the 10th April 1695 he directed the Company to pay 40*s.* yearly to St. Catherine Coleman for coals for the poor in Northumberland Place in that parish.

The premises, which consist of copyhold tenements of the manors of Enfield and Worcester, are stated by the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 32, part 2, p. 428) to have been from time to time surrendered to trustees for the charity. The last admission having been on the 2nd June 1829, when Edward Lawford and others were admitted. I cannot find there has been any subsequent admission. Edward Lawford is still surviving.

In March 1847 the Company presented their petition to the Court of Chancery, stating that the income arising from the tenements and premises of the charity at the time the Company accepted the trusts of the will was the yearly sum of 202*l.* 6*s.* or thereabouts, but that the same, with the dividends on the said Bank Annuities, was then of the yearly value of 646*l.* 19*s.* or thereabouts, in addition to the interest upon an Exchequer Bill for 500*l.*, and praying that it might be referred to the Master to settle a scheme for the future regulation and management of the charity, and for the application of the yearly income of the charity estates and funds towards the charitable objects mentioned and pointed out in the said will, or as near thereto as might be, having regard to the said will and to the yearly increase of the said funds, and in settling such scheme the Attorney-General might be at liberty to attend before the Master.

The Court, by its order of the 12th March 1847, referred it to the Master to approve of a scheme for the future regulation and management of the charity, with liberty to the Attorney-General to attend, and the Master was attended accordingly, and made his report of the 9th May 1848, wherein he stated the will of Henry Dixon, and that the Drapers' Company proposed the following scheme for the future administration of the said charity:—

SCHEME.

That the sum of 30*l.* per annum should be paid to the clerk of the Drapers' Company for his trouble in collecting the rents and profits of the said charity, and in carrying into effect the orders which shall from time to time be made by the court of assistants or any committee of the said Company, and that all the residue and remainder of the dividends, interest, rents, issues, and profits of the said charity property, after deducting all the expenses attending the same, shall be applied in the following manner, that is to say:—

In, for, and towards placing apprentices to handicraft trades in the first place of such poor boys, whosoever born, as shall bear the Christian name and surname of the said testator "Henry Dixon," and are of the age of 14 years or more, the sum of 30*l.* for each such boy, and also for the payment of the sum of 10*l.* to every such boy so placed out apprentice as aforesaid that shall duly and truly serve his said apprenticeship, and who shall be made free of the City of London by virtue of such service, and who shall apply for the same within a month after he shall be made free of the said city; and in the next place in, for, or towards the placing apprentice to handicraft trades of such poor boy, whosoever born, as shall bear the surname of "Dixon," only, and shall be of the age of 14 years and upwards, the sum of 20*l.* for each boy, and for the payment of the sum of 10*l.* to every such boy so placed out apprentice that shall duly and truly serve his said apprenticeship, and who shall be made free of the City of London by virtue of such service, and who shall apply for the same within a month after he shall be made free of the said city; and for want of such of them, in and for placing out apprentice to handicraft trades of such and so many poor boys born and resident in the several parishes of Bennington, in the county of Hertford, and Enfield, in the county of Middlesex, and of the parishes of St. Catherine Coleman, in the City of London, and St. Mildred in the Poultry, in the said City of London, and who respectively shall be of the age of 14 years or upwards, a sum of not less than 5*l.* nor exceeding 25*l.* for each such boy, and also for the payment of a sum of 10*l.* to every such boy of the said several parishes so placed out apprentice as shall duly and truly serve his apprenticeship, and who shall be made free of the city of London by virtue of such service, and who shall apply for the same within a month after he shall be free of the said city; and in case there shall not be any boys within the description above mentioned, that the said Drapers' Company do apply the said dividends, interest, rents, issues, and profits in or for the placing out apprentices to the trades aforesaid of such of the sons of the tenants which now are or hereafter shall be tenants of the lands, hereditaments, and premises, or any part thereof which constitute a portion of the property in question in this matter, and whose parent or parents shall desire the same, and which boys are of the age of 14 years or upwards, a sum not less than 5*l.* nor exceeding the sum of 25*l.* for each such boy, and for the payment of the sum of 10*l.* to every such son of a tenant so placed out apprentice within two months after he shall have served the term of seven years as an apprentice upon his producing a certificate of his having served such apprenticeship under the hands of the churchwardens for the time being of the parish in which he shall have served his said apprenticeship; and in case there shall be no boys answering the description or descriptions aforesaid, that the said Drapers' Company may be at liberty to apply the said dividends, interest, rents, issues, and profits to and for the placing out apprentices to the trades aforesaid any poor boys as the court, commonly called the court of wardens of the Drapers' Company for the time being, shall from time to time nominate, think fit, and appoint, and which boys shall be of the age of 14 years or upwards, a sum of 25*l.* for each such boy, and for the payment of the sum of 10*l.* to every such boy so placed out apprentice that shall duly and truly serve his said apprenticeship, and who shall be made free of the City of London by virtue of such service, and who shall apply for the same within a month after he shall be made free of the said city.

That the said Drapers' Company shall in the month of February 1849, and in every subsequent year, pay the sum of 5*l.* as an annual donation to the trustee or trustees or schoolmaster for the time being in aid of the funds of the National School of the parish of Bennington, in the county of Herts, and in case the said National School shall at any time cease to exist then that the Drapers' Company may be at liberty to pay the said annual sum of 5*l.* for the support of any school or schools that may be situate in any parish in which a portion of the hereditaments and premises belonging to the said charity may be situate.

That the sum of 5*l.* shall be annually paid to the churchwardens of the parish of St. Catherine Coleman, London, in buying of coals to be given to the poor people residing in the said parish.

The Master approved the said proposed scheme, and the report was confirmed, and by the order of the Court of the 29th May 1848 it was ordered that such scheme should be carried into effect, and it was ordered that the costs of the petition and of the Attorney-General should be taxed and paid by the Drapers' Company out of the fund of the charity therein mentioned.

The disbursements for the charity purposes have been—

In 1860, placing out apprentices	£	655
After gifts	-	160
	£	815

The sums were paid to 55 apprentices in sums from 5*l.* to 25*l.* Few applications are made from persons of the name of the testator, and a few from the parishes named in his will, and the others are children recommended by members of the Company. The rule of qualification is that they shall be over 14 years of age, and they are bound for seven years. When they are outdoor apprentices there is a private arrangement that they shall be allowed something by the Master for board and lodging. The Company have no information of the subsequent career of the apprentices, unless they apply for the after gift on taking up their freedom.

In 1860 16 apprentices applied for such after gift and received it.

There is annually a gift of 5*l.* to the Bennington School, and 5*l.* paid to the parish of St. Catherine, Coleman Street, instead of the 40*s.* a year appointed by the will.

At the end of the year 1860 there was a balance to the credit of the charity of 544*l.* 1*s.* 10½*d.

PART II.

DUMMER'S CHARITY.

William Dummer and Alice his wife conveyed to trustees, by their indenture of the 5th May, 16 Elizabeth (1574), two messuages in Cornwell (Cornhill), in the parish of St. Christopher, and a messuage in the parish of St. Sepulchre, upon trust, to permit the renter of the Drapers' Company to receive the rents, and to distribute yearly 13*l.* to 13 ancient poor householders, freemen, or their widows, to the renter of the Company 5*s.*, and to the wardens 13*s.* 4*d.*

The estate of the Company is charged with 13*l.* 18*s.* 4*d.*, of which 13*l.* is carried to the account of the charities general for "poor on the roll" (see Kendrick's Charity), and of the rest the clerk receives 5*s.* and the wardens 13*s.* 4*d.*

EDMANSON'S ALMSHOUSES IN STRATFORD-LE-BOW.

John Edmanson, by his will of the 23rd November 1695, gave to the Drapers' Company all his messuages and hereditaments in the City of London, in trust, to purchase land, and build thereon 12 almshouses for 12 poor men and women, and afterwards to employ the rents for the use of such poor who were either to be inhabitants in the precincts of St. Catherine or decayed sail-makers or their widows inhabiting there or elsewhere.

The almshouses were built some time after 1705 on a piece of ground in the parish of Stratford, and are situated near the railway bridge on the Bow Road, and form, with Sir John Jolle's Almshouses, three sides of a square, the latter forming part of one side of a square, and the chapel and some of Edmanson's Almshouses another side, and the remainder of the latter almshouses the third side, which has subsequently been elongated by other buildings on that foundation.

The estate belonging to this foundation is as follows:—

The precincts of St. Catherine are now the site of St. Katherine Docks. The almspeople are chosen from the business of sailmakers, and are composed of persons of that trade or their widows, without regard to locality.

There are numerous applications on every vacancy. The selection is made by the master and wardens. At the present time there are 10 males and 11 females in the hospital. The men are allowed to have their wives in the almshouses, and the widow is permitted to remain after the death of the husband.*

SIR GEORGE GARRETT'S CHARITY.

Sir George Garrett, by his will of the 8th August 1648, gave to the Company 100*l.*, to be lent to some young man of the Company at 3*l.* per cent., and the interest distributed yearly among the poor of the Company.

The 100*l.* is part of the 3,811*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* mentioned in Clonne's Charity, and the 3*l.* a year is paid towards the pensions to the poor on the rolls (see Kendrick's Charity).

GRANGER'S CHARITY.

Jonathan Granger, by his will of the 16th May 1769, bequeathed to trustees the sum of 500*l.* towards erecting a school-house in the Tower ward, and to pay 1*l.* 1*s.* a year to the minister of the parish church for annually reading his will, and 5*s.* for the clerk, and as to the residue he directed the "whole of the remaining surplus designed to charitable uses alternately for blind persons, one year at 10*l.* each, and children of freemen by servitude 10*l.* each the next year, as the interest arising from the remaining capital after all things is completed and ended."

Proceedings took place in the Court of Chancery for the administration of the estate of the above-named testator, and by an order of the Lord Chancellor of the 20th June 1784, it was referred to the Master, among other things, to consider and approve of proposals as to the appointment and continuance of a trustee or trustees of the charity estate, and for the future management of the charity.

The Master by his report of the 20th November 1784—made in pursuance of the last-mentioned order, after stating that he found the sum of 2,018*l.* 19*s.* 4*d.*, appearing by a former report to be the clear residue of the said personal estate of the said John Granger, was paid by the plaintiff into the Bank in the name of the Accountant-General of the Court on the 10th December 1778, out of which certain costs therein referred to were paid, leaving a balance of 1,884*l.* 12*s.* 3*d.*, which the said Master found the said Accountant-General had laid out in the purchase of 3,083*l.* 4*s.* 2*d.* 3*l.* per cent. Bank Annuities in trust in the said cause, "The Charity Account"—certified that he approved of the master and wardens of the Drapers' Company as proper persons to be appointed for the perpetual trustees of the charity estate and for the future management of the charity agreeably to the proposals therein stated.

The Master of the Rolls, by his order of the 30th November 1785, confirmed the report and appointed the Company trustees of the charity. The Drapers' Company in July 1859 presented their petition in the administration suit of King v. Granger, stating that Jno. Granger, the nephew and only next of kin of the said testator, died in the year 1802 without having left any child or children or other issue or posterity surviving him; and the said Jno. Granger duly received during his lifetime the dividends in respect of 1,151*l.* 3*l.* per cent. Bank Annuities in the petition mentioned, and that a sum of 1,896*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.* cash, in respect of accumulations of dividends since his death, was then standing in his name; that no application had been made to the court on behalf of the Tower Ward school in respect of the 500*l.* bequeathed to it by the said testator, and no declaration of the trusts thereof had been made by the court; and that the Drapers' Company were advised that until such declaration should have been made or until the court should declare that the said bequest to the said school was void under the statute of mortmain that the Company were only entitled under the residuary bequest, and in the events which have happened, to one moiety of the said 1,151*l.* 3*l.* per cent. Bank Annuities, and of the accumulations of the dividends thereon, and to the whole of the sum of 124*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.* like annuities, in which a legacy of 100*l.* in the said will mentioned had been invested, and the accumulations of the dividends thereon, amounting in cash to 298*l.* 6*s.* 4*d.*, and praying that the costs of the application might be taxed and paid out of the moiety of the said 1,896*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.* cash, and that the residue of such moiety, the amount to be verified by affidavit, might be ordered to be invested in the purchase of Bank Annuities, and, together with one moiety of the said 1,151*l.* Bank Annuities, might be transferred to the charity estate account, and the dividends ordered to be paid to the said Company, and applied by them from time to time to the purposes of the charity. And that the said sum of 298*l.* 6*s.* 4*d.* cash might be invested in like annuities, and together with the said 124*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.* like annuities might be carried to the same account, and the dividends thereon ordered to be paid to the said Drapers' Company for the like purpose.

The Court by its order of the 4th August 1859 directed the costs to be taxed and paid out of one moiety of the fund in court, and that the residue of the said moiety of 1,913*l.* 1*s.* 5*d.* cash, after payment of the costs, be laid out in the purchase of Bank 3*l.* per cent. Annuities in the name of the Accountant-General in trust in the cause to the account entitled "the Charity Account." And it was ordered that 575*l.* 10*s.* Bank 3*l.* per cent. Annuities, being a moiety of 1,151*l.* like annuities standing in the name of the Accountant-General in trust in the cause, "John Granger's account in Master Grave's office," be carried over in trust in this cause, the said account entitled "the Charity Account," and that the Accountant-General should declare the trust thereof accordingly, subject to the further order of the court. And it was ordered that the interest to accrue due on the said Bank Annuities to be purchased as before directed, and on the said 575*l.* 10*s.* like annuities, as well previously to as when so carried over as aforesaid, be paid to the master and wardens of the Drapers' Company, to be applied by them for the purposes of the charity. And that the other moiety of the said 1,913*l.* 1*s.* 5*d.* cash and 575*l.* 10*s.* Bank 3 per cent. Annuities, the other moiety of the said 1,151*l.* Bank Annuities, be paid and transferred respectively to Thos. Boyles Murray and Thos. Quested Finnis, two of the trustees of the Tower Ward school.

And by a subsequent order of the 24th November 1859, made on the petition of the Drapers' Company, the Master of the Rolls ordered the taxation of costs, and that they should be paid out of the sum of 300*l.* 2*s.* 11*d.* cash in the bank on the credit of the cause, "the contingent account in Master Grave's office," and that the residue of the said cash should be laid out in the purchase of Bank Annuities in the name of the Accountant-General, to the account entitled "the Charity Account;" and it was ordered that the 124*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.* Bank Annuities in the name of the Accountant-General in trust, "the Contingent Account in Master Grave's office," be carried over to the "Charity Account," and the dividends to accrue due on such Bank

* JOHN EDMANSON'S ALMSHOUSES.

13th April 1866.—By an order of the Board of Charity Commissioners of this date, the Company were authorised to grant to Mr. John Dowsett a lease for a term of 31 years, at the annual rent of 110*l.*, of property situate on the east side of Betts Street, Ratcliffe Highway, St. George's-in-the-East, the tenant undertaking to lay out 2,500*l.* in buildings.

9th July 1872.—By an order of the said Board of this date, the Company were authorised to sell certain rights of light and air in connexion with certain property in Betts Street, St. George's-in-the-East, to Messrs. Martineau, in consideration of 100*l.*, and subject to conditions in a certain agreement dated 6th June 1872, and it was directed by the same order that the consideration money should be invested in Consols in augmentation of the like annuities held by the Company.

8th July 1881.—By a certificate of the said Board of this date, the Company were authorised to institute and prosecute, in any Division of the High Court of Justice having jurisdiction to deal with the case, such proceedings as they might be advised against Mr. John Smith Pilbron, of Ash Lodge, Bow Road, in the county of Middlesex, for recovering on behalf of the charity possession of certain properties in Cable Street and Betts Street in the parish of St. George's-in-the-East, particularised in the schedule to such certificate, and the payment of any sums due and owing to the charity in respect of rents, damages, or costs.

Annuities be paid to the Drapers' Company, to be by them applied for the purposes of the said charity.

The information on which the foregoing petitions were presented was the subject of a communication to the Board, and of their letter to the clerk of the Drapers' Company of the 17th February 1859 (File 5,685).

The charity funds now consist of 4,674*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* Bank 3*l.* per cent. Consolidated Annuities, standing in the name of the Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery to the credit of the said cause, to the account of "Granger's Trust," producing an income of 140*l.* 4*s.* 8*d.*

The income is applied in alternate years for the relief of the blind and for apprenticing of the sons of freemen who have obtained their freedom by servitude.

The share of the blind is paid in sums of 10*l.* without regard to place or other specific qualification. It is given on the certificate of the minister and churchwardens of the parish to which they belong by the master and wardens at their court, and the allowance is not withdrawn so long as they need it. The last distribution to the blind was in January 1860, when 88*l.* 15*s.* 10*d.* was paid to nine poor persons, the ninth receiving the fractional sum. The next distribution will be in January 1862, when 104*l.* 3*s.* will be applicable to the purpose.

The payment of the sum allowed for the information above referred to left the blind account indebted in a small sum to the Company.

The apprentice fund has a balance in its favour of 526*l.* 6*s.* 11*d.* The sum paid is 10*l.* each. There are not so many applications for this as for the other apprentice fees, from the exclusive qualification which is needed.

In the month of February last (1861) the Company invested 458*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.* accumulations in the purchase of 500*l.* Reduced Annuities on account of the apprenticeship branch of this trust.

HALL'S CHARITY.

Martin Hall, prior to the year 1662, gave to the Drapers' Company 300*l.*, to be lent to two young men of the Company at 40*s.* per cent. per annum.

The 300*l.* is part of the 3,811*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* governed by the directions of the court, mentioned in the report on Clonne's Charity, and the 6*l.* a year is appropriated to the pensions of the poor on the roll (see Kendrick's Charity).

HARWAR'S ALMSHOUSES IN ST. LEONARD'S, SHOREDITCH.

Samuel Harwar, by his will of the 28th January 1703, bequeathed to his executors 1,700*l.*, in trust, to lay out 100*l.* in the purchase of a piece of ground on one of the roads leading to Bow or Ware, within a mile or two of the City of London, for erecting 12 almshouses, upon which 400*l.* was to be expended, and to convey the same to the Drapers' Company, and the remainder of the 1,700*l.* to be laid out in the purchase of an estate of inheritance of 60*l.* a year or thereabouts for the maintenance of the six poor men and six poor women in the almshouses, who were to be paid monthly 6*s.* a-piece, and to have a load of coals each once a year and 1*s.* a-piece at the yearly visitation.

The Commissioners of Inquiry state (vol. 32, pt. 2, p. 420) the proceedings taken with regard to this foundation.

The parcel of ground purchased for the almshouses, court, and garden, which is in the Kingsland Road, in the parish of St. Leonard, Shoreditch, and the estate purchased for the endowment, which is in the parishes of Luddenhams, Buckland, and Murston near Faversham, in Kent, were conveyed to the Drapers' Company in 1717, and some balance of moneys for the same purpose was invested in Orphan stock, which being paid off in 1811 was converted into 500*l.* Consols. It deserves remark that I do not find any licence in mortmain enabling the corporation of the drapers to hold this estate.

The Commissioners state that after making the specific payments the Company claimed the surplus rents, not only by the legal effect of the will, but by a letter which they received from the founder of the charity, whereby he expresses his intention to be a "considerable benefit to the Company," and they certified the case to the Attorney-General. The information was filed by the Attorney-General on the 14th February 1838, stating the foundation and praying that the whole rents and profits of the said farm and premises and the dividends of the stock were applicable to the charitable purposes in the will declared in respect of the said almshouses and for the support of the said almspeople therein, and that an account might be taken of the whole rents and profits of the said estates and funds which had been received by the Company, and of the sums applied by them thereout to the purposes of the charity from the time they took possession thereof, or for such time as to the court might seem just; and that the said Company might be charged with the full amount which, upon taking such account, might appear to have been received by them over and above the amount which they should appear to have properly applied to such charitable purposes, and that it might be referred to the Master to approve of a scheme for the application of the future rents and dividends of the said farm and funds, and of any sum which might be coming from the said Company.

The cause was heard before the Master of the Rolls on the 13th and 14th June 1840, and judgment was delivered on the 18th June 1840, when the Court declared that the whole rents and profits of the farm and premises and the whole of the dividends of the stock were applicable to the charitable purposes in the will of Samuel Harwar mentioned, declared on and in respect of the almshouses in the information mentioned and for the support of the almspeople therein.

And the Court referred it to the Master to take the accounts of the charity estate and tax the costs, which were to be paid out of the charity estate, and reserved further directions.

The Master, by his report of the 8th March 1842, found that a sum of 56*l.* 18*s.* 1*d.* was then due from the defendants in respect of the charity estate. The report was confirmed on the 22nd April 1842. I find that the costs of the Attorney-General, amounting to 129*l.* 2*s.* 9*d.*, were paid by the Company on the 13th May 1842, and the law costs of the Company were 140*l.* 16*s.* 5*d.*

The property of the charity according to the finding in the Master's report is:—

John Heydon, by his will of the 6th March 1579, gave 100*l.* to the Company, to be lent out to three young men of the Company at 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* per cent., and paid over to the Mercers' Company. This forms part of the 3,811*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* mentioned in the report on Clonne's Charity. The 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* is paid to the Mercers' Company annually.

* SAMUEL HARWAR'S ALMSHOUSES.

12th August 1879.—By an order of the Board of Charity Commissioners of this date, the following scheme was established for the administration of this charity:—

The Board of Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, having considered a statement and application, in writing, submitted to them on the 7th day of December 1878, in the matter of the above-mentioned charity under the seal of the master and wardens and brethren, and sisters of the Guild or Fraternity of the Blessed Mary the Virgin, of the Mystery of Drapers of the City of London, commonly called the Drapers' Company, as the trustees and administrators of the said charity, with the consent and concurrence of the vestry of the above-mentioned parish of St. Leonard, Shoreditch, and of the body called or known as the charity trustees of the aforesaid parish of St. Leonard, Shoreditch:

And it appearing to the said Board to be desirable that a scheme should be established for the management and regulation of the said charity:

And upon notice of the intention of the said Board to make an order affecting that object, having been published according to the direction of the said Board by advertisement in the "Times" newspaper, on the 25th day of June and the 3rd day of July 1879 respectively, being in each case more than one calendar month previously to the date hereof:

Do hereby order, that the scheme set forth in the schedule hereto be approved and established as the scheme for the management and regulation of the said charity.

SCHEDULE.

SCHEME.

1. The charity and its endowments shall continue to be administered and managed by the master and wardens, and brethren and sisters of the Guild or Fraternity of the Blessed Mary the Virgin, of the Mystery of Drapers of the City of London, commonly called the Drapers' Company, and herein-after mentioned or referred to as the said Company, as the trustees thereof, subject to and in conformity with the provisions of this scheme.

2. All stocks, shares, funds, and securities belonging to or held in trust for the charity, shall be forthwith transferred, under the authority of a further order of the said Board, into the name of "The Official Trustees of Charitable Funds" in trust for the charity.

3. Full accounts shall be kept of the receipts and expenditure of the said Company in respect of the charity, in books to be provided for that purpose. The said Company shall also cause sufficient accounts of the endowments, receipts, and expenditure of the charity to be forwarded to the Charity Commissioners, and to be published, in compliance with the provisions of the Charitable Trusts Acts.

4. All the estates and property of the said charity shall continue to be managed by the said Company according to the general law applicable to the management of property by trustees of charitable foundations.

5. Any money arising from the sale of timber, or from any mines or minerals on the estates of the charity, shall be treated as capital, and shall be invested in the Government funds in the name of "The Official Trustees of Charitable Funds," except in any special cases in which the said Company may be authorised by the Charity Commissioners to deal otherwise with such money or any part thereof.

6. The said Company shall keep in repair and insured against fire all the buildings of the charity not required to be kept in repair and insured by the lessees or tenants thereof.

7. The said Company shall not for their own benefit or for the benefit of any other person either directly or indirectly hold or occupy any land of the charity.

8. The said Company shall be at liberty to pull down the existing almshouses belonging to the said charity, situate in Kingsland Road, in the aforesaid parish of St. Leonard, Shoreditch, and to sell and dispose of the materials of the same almshouses. The net proceeds which may arise from the sale of the aforesaid materials shall be treated as capital, and shall be invested in the Government funds in the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds.

9. The said Company shall be at liberty to surrender so much and such part of the site of the aforesaid almshouses as is coloured yellow on the map or plan annexed to this scheme to the vestry of the aforesaid parish of St. Leonard, Shoreditch, with the intent that the same may be used by or under the direction of the said vestry for the purpose of effecting works of public improvement by widening the streets or roads in the aforesaid parish, adjoining or near to the aforesaid site. The value of the part of the aforesaid site so to be surrendered as aforesaid shall be fixed at the sum of 450*l.* The residue or remainder of the aforesaid site shall be let by the said Company on a suitable building lease or suitable building leases. But no such lease or leases shall be granted by the Company except with the sanction and approval of the Board of Charity Commissioners for England and Wales.

10. When and so soon as the aforesaid almshouses shall have been pulled down, the vestry of the aforesaid parish of St. Leonard, Shoreditch, shall, in conformity with the terms of an agreement made and entered into on the 4th day of December 1877, by or on behalf of the said Company of the first part, the vestry of the aforesaid parish of St. Leonard, Shoreditch, of the second part, and the then charity trustees of the aforesaid parish as constituted under the provisions of "The Saint Leonard, Shoreditch, Act, 1858," of the third part, forthwith transfer into the name of the said Official Trustees of Charitable Funds a sum of Consolidated 3*l.* per cent. Annuities, sufficient to produce annually in dividends the annual sum of 90*l.*, and the aforesaid vestry shall also, as and from the date of the pulling down of the aforesaid almshouses, and until the annual ground rent of 150*l.* shall become annually payable under or by virtue of the building lease or building leases so to be granted as aforesaid, pay annually to the said Company such annual sum as, together with the aforesaid annual sum of 90*l.*, shall be sufficient to make up the full annual sum of 240*l.* Provided always, that if it shall ultimately be found impossible to obtain, under or by virtue of the building lease or building leases so to be granted as aforesaid, a ground rent or ground rents amounting annually to the sum of 150*l.*, then and in such case the aforesaid vestry shall, upon the requisition of the said Company, transfer into the name of the said Official Trustees of Charitable Funds, such further sum of Consolidated 3*l.* per cent. Annuities as will be sufficient to produce annually in dividends the balance which, after taking into account the aforesaid annual sum of 90*l.*, and the annual amount of the ground rent or ground rents so to become payable as aforesaid, shall be required to make up the aforesaid full annual sum of 240*l.*

And provided also that if at any time the ground rent or ground rents so to be obtained under or by virtue of the building lease or building leases so to be granted as aforesaid shall exceed the annual sum of 150*l.*, then and in such case the said Official Trustees of Charitable Funds shall, upon the joint requisition of the aforesaid vestry and the said Company, and with the sanction of the said Board, re-transfer to the said vestry so much and such part of the sum of Consolidated 3*l.* per cent. Annuities which shall for the time being be held by the said Official Trustees, and shall have been transferred by the said vestry to the said Official Trustees under the provisions of this clause as shall be sufficient to produce annually in dividends the amount of the excess to be derived from the joint sources of ground rent or ground rents and dividends, over and above the aforesaid annual sum of 240*l.*, and provided further that a sum of 450*l.* Consolidated 3*l.* per cent. Annuities shall always be retained and held by the said Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in trust for the said charity subject to the further order of the said Board, as representing the value of the part of the aforesaid site so to be surrendered as aforesaid.

APPLICATION OF INCOME.

11. All the proper costs, charges, and expenses of and incidental to the administration of the charity, shall be first defrayed by the said Company out of the income thereof. Subject to the payments aforesaid, all the net yearly income of the charity shall be applied by the said Company in the manner herein-after prescribed.

12. There shall be paid to each person, being, or who shall have been duly elected, an inmate of the aforesaid Company may surrender part of site of existing almshouses to vestry of parish of St. Leonard, Shoreditch, and shall let remainder on building leases.

Payments, &c. by vestry of parish of St. Leonard, Shoreditch.

Expenses of management. Application of income.

Stipends of inmates of almshouses

HOLLIS' CHARITY.

Thomas Hollis, in the year 1714, gave 100*l.* as a fund for the Company to pay 5*l.* a year to the Company's poor at Bow Church on the 5th November.

About 80 poor freemen of the Company receive at the Hall of the Company 2*s.* 6*d.* each in the month of November in respect of this and Deacle's Charity. They are the same persons who receive 10*s.* each under Royley's Charity.

HOWELL'S CHARITY.

Thomas Howell, who died at Seville in Spain, by his will, about 1540, directed his executors to send to the City of London, to be delivered to the house named Drapers' Hall, 12,000 ducats of gold, in trust to buy therewith 400 ducats of rent to be bestowed in marriage to four maidens every year for ever of his lineage if they could be found, and if not to four other maidens of good name and fame, and if the said principal should produce more than 400 ducats a year, to bestow the residue in the marriage of maidens being orphans, or increase of the marriage of the four as should seem best to the wardens of the house.

The Company received a portion of the amount of this gift in oils, shipped to their use, which produced only 8,720 ducats, and they invested the amount in lands and tenements, which produced 105*l.* a year.

The Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 32, part 2, p. 423) set forth a tabular statement of this property, adverting also to the fact that it included the Drapers' Hall, for which no rent was paid. The Commissioners of Inquiry mention a suit soon after the testator's death by certain orphan maidens in Wales claiming to be kinswomen of the almshouses at the date of the pulling down of the same as aforesaid, out of the income of said charity, by monthly or other periodical payments as the said Company shall think fit, such an annual stipend, not being less than 30*l.*, and not more than 35*l.* 12*s.*, as shall be fixed and determined from time to time by the said Company.

13. The several persons, being inmates of the aforesaid almshouses at the date of the pulling down of the same as aforesaid, and all future recipients of the benefits of the charity, shall be called "pensioners."

14. The full number of pensioners shall be fixed and determined from time to time by the said Company, having regard to the income and resources of the charity.

15. Of the pensioners one half of the full number shall always be men and the other half shall always be women.

16. The future pensioners shall be appointed, as to one half, who shall be called "Company pensioners," by the master and wardens of the said Company, and as to the other half, who shall be called "parish pensioners," by the said master and wardens, upon the nomination of the Charity Trustees of the aforesaid parish of St. Leonard, Shoreditch, for the time being as constituted under the provisions of the aforesaid St. Leonard, Shoreditch, Act, 1858.

17. The male Company pensioners shall be poor men of good character, being members of the said Company, and the female Company pensioners shall be poor women of good character, being widows of members of the said Company. The parish pensioners shall be respectively poor persons who shall have resided in the aforesaid parish of St. Leonard, Shoreditch, for not less than three years next preceding the time of their appointment,—who shall not, during that period, have received poor law relief,—and who from age, ill-health, accident, or infirmity, shall be unable to maintain themselves by their own exertions; with a preference for those persons who, being otherwise qualified as aforesaid, shall have become reduced by misfortune from better circumstances. The female parish pensioners may be either widows or spinsters.

18. There shall be paid to each future pensioner out of the income of the said charity, by monthly or other periodical payments as the said Company shall think fit, such an annual stipend, being not less than 20*l.*, and not more than 30*l.*, as shall be fixed and determined from time to time by the said Company, having regard to the needs and circumstances of the respective pensioners and to the income and resources of the charity, and the other circumstances thereof; and the said Company, in lieu of paying the whole amount of the said stipend to any future pensioner in money, may from time to time expend the whole or any portion thereof for his or her benefit as they shall think fit.

19. Applications for appointment as pensioners shall be made to the said Company or to their clerk, in writing, in such form as the said Company shall prescribe.

20. The said Company shall give a sufficient notice to the Charity Trustees of the aforesaid parish of St. Leonard, Shoreditch, for the time being, or to their clerk, when and so often as a vacancy shall occur amongst the parish pensioners.

21. All appointments of pensioners shall be made by the master and wardens of the said Company, and shall be made at an interval of not less than one month, and not more than three months, from the occurrence of the vacancy to be filled up.

22. The said Company shall provide and keep a book, in which shall be entered the names, ages, and descriptions of all persons appointed to be pensioners, together with the dates of their respective appointments, and the date and occasion of every vacancy; and they shall likewise keep a register of all applications for appointment.

23. If any pensioner shall, in the opinion of the said Company, become disqualified from retaining his or her appointment, or if in any case it should appear that any pensioner has been appointed without having the required qualifications, the said Company, upon proof thereof to their satisfaction, may remove the said pensioner, and may proceed to appoint another pensioner in his or her place; or in any such case (except that of disqualification), the said Company may, if they so think fit, suspend the payment of the stipend to the pensioner either wholly or in part, during such time as they shall think fit.

24. The amounts and conditions of the several payments and allowances to or for the benefit of the recipients of the charity, which are prescribed by this scheme, may be varied from time to time by the said Company with the sanction of the Charity Commissioners. Provided always, that no variation shall be made under the provisions of this clause until after the expiration of three calendar months' notice of any variation which may be proposed shall have been given by the said Board to the aforesaid vestry and the aforesaid Charity Trustees respectively.

25. A copy of this scheme shall be kept with the books of account and other documents belonging to the charity; and every parishioner of St. Leonard, Shoreditch, and other person interested in the charity, shall be at liberty to take copies of the scheme, or any part thereof, upon making application for that purpose to the said Company, at such reasonable times and subject to such reasonable conditions as may be fixed and prescribed by them.

26. Any question affecting the regularity or the validity of any proceedings under this scheme shall be determined conclusively by the Charity Commissioners, upon such application made to them for the purpose, as they think sufficient.

27. If any doubt or question shall arise as to the construction or application of any of the provisions of the scheme, or the management of the charity, the said Company may apply to the Charity Commissioners for their opinion and advice thereon, which when given shall be binding on the said Company, and on all persons claiming under the trust who shall be affected by the question so decided.

Sealed by order of the Board this 12th day of August 1879.

(L.S.) HENRY M. VANE,
Secretary.

12th August 1879.—Pursuant to the provisions of the 10th clause of the foregoing scheme, the sum of 3,000*l.* Consols was, under an order of this date, transferred into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in trust for the charity.

Pursuant to the provisions of the 8th clause of the same scheme, the sum of 51*l.* sterling, produced by the sale of the materials of almshouses in Kingsland Road, was invested in the purchase of Consols in the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds.

2nd December 1879.—By an order of the said Board of this date, the Company were authorised to grant a lease of 20 years, from 25th December 1879, of the site of such almshouses, at the annual rent of 230*l.*, the lessee undertaking to expend not less than 7,000*l.* in the erection of buildings.

19th April 1882.—Pursuant to an order of the said Board of this date, the sum of 2,550*l.* Consols belonging to the charity was sold, and the proceeds were remitted to the Vestry of the parish of St. Leonard, Shoreditch, in accordance with the provisions of the said 10th clause of the aforesaid scheme.

testator, and a decree, in 1559, directing that a pedigree should be drawn up by the bishop or diocesan body of Llandaff of the next of kin, lineage, and blood of the testator.

The four orphans or maidens to be entitled to the gift were under this decree to be certified by the bishop or dean and chapter. By a decree in a subsequent suit in 1594, the certificates were directed to be also signed by the justices of the peace of the county of Monmouth. The Commissioners of Inquiry set out the receipts and disbursements for several years preceding the time of their report (1830–1835), and by a note in the Analytical Digest (pp. 18, 19) they state that they had certified the case to the Attorney-General.

A suit was instituted by the Attorney-General against the Drapers' Company in the year 1838, and a decree was pronounced on the 29th April 1845. Reference to the Master was directed, and the proceedings resulted in two Acts of Parliament being obtained. The first to which the royal assent was given on the 27th July 1846, intituled "An Act to authorise the sale of part of the Charity estates vested in the Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters of the Guild or Fraternity of the Blessed Mary the Virgin, of the Mystery of Drapers of the City of London, upon the Trusts of the will of Thomas Howell, deceased."

The second to which the royal assent was given on the 30th June 1852, entitled "An Act for the regulation and management of the charity founded by Thomas Howell in or about the year 1540, and for other purposes."

Under the first Act the Company were enabled to purchase the freehold and inheritance of the hall, buildings, gardens, and premises then mentioned, and by the second Act the Company were enabled to purchase an adjoining house in Throgmorton Street, the Court of Chancery was empowered to extend the Charity to the establishment of girl's schools in Wales, and the Company were empowered to manage the schools under the directions of the Court of Chancery as therein mentioned.

I have appended copies of the two Acts referred to, and as they recite very fully all the proceedings in the Court of Chancery and the result of the accounts directed to be taken, I have, for the sake of brevity, abstained from setting forth a more full account of such proceedings than above stated.

The Court of Chancery under the authority of the latter Act approved of a scheme, by an Order of the 23rd March 1853, a copy of which is also appended to this report.

The present estate of the charity is as follows:—

A lease of this estate has been granted to Rd. Knight, for 21 years, from Michaelmas 1860, at a rent of 700l., with a covenant on his part to build a cottage or bailiff's house at a cost of not less than 300l. A sum of 11,711l. 11s. 6d. 3l. per cent. Consols was on the 31st Dec. 1860 standing in the name of the Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery to the credit of the Attorney-General's suit.

The Drapers' Company has received notice under "The Defence Act, 1860," from the solicitor to the War Department that a portion of the Allhallows farm, Kent, is required to be taken absolutely for the construction of works under the powers and provisions of the said Act, and that a certain other portion of the same farm is required to be kept free from buildings. On behalf of the charity an affidavit (or declaration) has been filed of the claim to be made for payment and compensation, which is as follows:—

For 49a. 1r. 12p. of land	2,250 0 0
„ timber barn	150 0 0
„ compulsory sale	562 10 0
„ keeping other land free from buildings	308 15 0
„ depreciation	900 0 0

The valuer (Mr. Robert Forster, of Tottenham) also states that his opinion is the tenant should be allowed 75*l.* a year as a deduction from his rent for the diminution of the land comprised in his lease, and that he should be allowed a proportion of the two sums of 308*l.* 15*s.* and 900*l.*, "having a due regard to his leasehold interest in the farm, which will terminate at Michaelmas 1881, and that such proportion should be calculated at 3 per cent. according to Mr. Inwood's letter." He also suggests that the 150*l.* should be employed in erecting a barn or some other building on some other part of the farm to be agreed upon by the tenant.

The charges on the estate are,—	£ s. d.
Land tax and rentcharges	271 12 8
Clerk of the Company, commission of 5 l. per cent. on the gross rents, say	200 0 0

The annual charges cannot probably be estimated at less than 500*l.* It must also be remembered that the 120*l.* a year, the ground rent of the Hall, will expire in the year 1871. The income will then be reduced to the sum of 3,200*l.* or 3,300*l.* a year.

The receipts and disbursements affecting the capital of the charity, sanctioned by the proceedings of the Court of Chancery and by Parliament, as above mentioned, may be thus represented:—

Additional sum ordered to be paid to Mr. D. Burton for his trouble	250 0 0
The purchase money of the Allhallows farm in Kent (No. 29 in the above table of the charity estates) made in June 1850 under the authority of the Court of Chancery	17,311 2 6
	£72,246 1 10

It appearing by the above account that the sums paid into the Court of Chancery (or allowed as payments in the Chancery account) amount in the aggregate to 60,966*l.* 17*s.* 10*d.*, and that the payments for the purchase of the school sites in Wales, for the farm in Kent, and for the buildings at Llandaff and Denbigh amount to 72,246*l.* 1*s.* 10*d.*, and which added to the money remaining still invested in Consols to the credit of the cause make about 80,000*l.*

After the building operations began in July 1858, the money received by the Company on account of rents and profits was applied in discharge of the current expenses of the buildings. The accounts are passed before the clerk of the Master of the Rolls, and I have not, therefore, thought it necessary to do more than state roughly the aggregate expenditure for the principal purposes for which that expenditure was sanctioned, and the sources from which the fund proceeded. Up to the 31st of December 1860 there was a balance of cash due to the Company, amounting to 415*l.* 15*s.* 5*d.*, which has been ordered to be repaid to them out of the sale to be made of a part of the fund in court as above stated.

The school at Llandaff is built of stone and is of handsome elevation, approached by a carriage drive with a lodge with the entrance.

At the principal entrance there is a large hall, to the right of which is a handsome room appropriated for the use of the governors; there is a passage from the hall on the left, out of which is a waiting room, matron's room, linen closet, and store-room; this passage leads to the principal staircase, schoolroom, dining room, &c. The schoolroom is 54 feet by 22, adjoining which are two class rooms, 20 feet by 15 each, with a cloak room and a day room for the children to play in, being 54 feet by 16. There is an assistant's room, 20 feet by 19, near to which is the dining room, 54 feet by 22, with another day room, 48 feet by 16. Close to the dining room is a convalescent room, 27 feet by 20, and other conveniences; an excellent kitchen, a scullery adjoining, with a passage leading to the steward's apartments. On the upper floor there are two dormitories, each 54 feet by 22. At the west end there is a servants' room, lavatory, &c., and at the east end a sick room, 27 feet by 20, with nurse's room, &c.; also on this floor a dormitory for 10 girls, with rooms for the matron and for servants.

The buildings at Denbigh in their internal arrangements are of the same character as the above, the chief difference being that the rooms are not quite so large.

The school at Denbigh was opened in May 1860, and that at Llandaff in August 1860, both of them having been formerly delivered over to the charge of the respective local governors by the clerk of the Company in December 1859. I append lists of the local governors. They were appointed by the Court of Chancery under the 11th clause of the scheme, and are in future, by the same clause, to be filled up by the Court of Chancery. The bishop of the diocese is in each case a governor ex-officio.

The establishment of the school at Llandaff is formed as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
House steward (appointed by the governors), and board and lodging	60	0	0
Matron (with board and lodging), appointed by the Court	100	0	0
Four assistants (appointed by the Company), 40 l. each (with board and lodging)	160	0	0
Thirty orphan girls, nominated by the governors, and appointed by the Court of the Drapers' Company, who are to be boarded, lodged, and clothed.
Thirty pay boarders, who are to contribute each 20 l. a year, the sum fixed by the local governors under the authority of the 20th clause of the scheme.

I have examined the list of children elected on the foundation, who, I find in the Denbigh school, are mostly those of the educated classes, as clergymen, clerks, &c. and some of tradesmen; and at Llandaff for the most part the same, but with apparently a larger number of children of tradesmen. The pay children are admitted by the governors directly, without the intervention of the Drapers' Company. The latter class of children may be other than orphans.

The school at Denbigh is almost on the same footing as at Llandaff, except that it contemplates the reception of 24 orphans instead of 30.

The school has been a very short time in operation. The Drapers' Company have, as far as possible, avoided any disbursements which might lead to an expenditure exceeding what is likely to be the permanent income. The account of the payments hitherto made in the maintenance of the establishments do not afford materials for arriving at any definite judgment of the amount of the annual cost of the two institutions.

The scheme settled by Parliament for the administration of this large charity has been far from satisfactory to many persons, and the Commissioners may probably agree with Mr. Falconer, the judge of the county courts of Glamorgan and Brecknock, that it is very much to be regretted that the funds had not been applied to purposes capable of conferring more extensive advantages on poor female children in Wales, although they may not agree in much of his pamphlet on the subject, which I append. I do not, however, find that the Drapers' Company had anything to do with the scheme beyond a passive assent.*

JAY'S CHARITY.

Henry Jay, by his will of the 16th January 1601, gave to the Drapers' Company 50*l.*, to be lent out to a brother of the Company for three years at 40*s.* yearly, for the poor of the Company.

The 50*l.* is part of the 3,811*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* mentioned in the report in Clonne's Charity.

The 2*l.* a year for the poor of the Company is applied towards the pensions of the poor on the roll. (See Kendrick's Charity.)

SIR JOHN JOLLES'S SCHOOL AND ALMSHOUSES.

Sir John Jolles, by his will of the 24th February 1617, gave to the Company certain tenements in Mark Lane to pay yearly out of the rents and profits thereof to eight poor people in the Stratford-le-Bow Almshouses 3*l.* each = 24*l.*, and, further, out of the rents and profits, to pay to the schoolmaster and usher of the school at Stratford 26*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* to educate free 35 boys, children of the inhabitants of Stratford-le-Bow and Bromley, in the fear of God and good manners, to learn grammar and the Latin tongue, and to write and cypher. The will referred to a "deed of indenture," but no such deed appears to be known to the Company. The charity is the subject of three different reports of the Commissioners of Inquiry; first, in the Second Report of the Commissioners for the Education of the People (vol. 2, p. 136) there is an account of the school situated, as therein stated, at the east end of Stratford-le-Bow church, in which writing and arithmetic was then taught to 35 boys; secondly, there is an account of the almshouses in the parish of St. Mary, Stratford-le-Bow, in the hundred of Ossulton, Tower division, and county of Middlesex (vol. 8, p. 433), which almshouses were filled by the recommendation of the parishes of St. Mary, Stratford, and Bromley St. Leonard, in the same county; and, lastly, there is the report of the charity generally, amongst the charities under the management of the Drapers' Company (vol. 32, part 2, p. 405). The Commissioners say (p. 406) that a petition was presented by the inhabitants of Stratford to the Court of Chancery in or about 1827, praying for an appropriation of the surplus income of the charity beyond the specified sums, but the Court refused to entertain the hostile claim against the Company on a petition under Sir Samuel Romilly's Act; and the Commissioners add that it would seem by the terms of the will, taking into consideration that of the rents reserved at the time of the testator's death there was left a small surplus undisposed of, the Company was entitled to the surplus for their own use.

The estate upon which the two sums of 24*l.* a year and 26*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* a year are charged by this devise are Nos. 37, 38, 39, 40, and 41, Mark Lane. The Company applied to the Charity Commissioners on the 12th June 1855, stating the report of their surveyor, advising that the premises should be pulled down and the site let for building, and also stating several offers that had been made in answer to advertisements, in which sums of money, varying from 350*l.* to 520*l.* per annum, had been mentioned, and to lay out 7,000*l.* on new buildings. The application to the Board and its sanction would not seem to be necessary, as the estate is in fact the property of the Company, subject only to a rentcharge of 50*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* a year. The Board, however, by their order of the 27th June 1855, approved of a lease for 80 years, from Michaelmas 1855, to Mr. James Pursell, at a rent of 520*l.* a year clear of all rates and taxes, the lessee laying out 7,000*l.* as therein mentioned. The agreement has been performed, and the rent is now accordingly 520*l.* The buildings are called "Mark Lane Chambers," and occupy a space of 85 feet, fronting Mark Lane, between Nos. 36 and 42, and extending as to 44 feet 5 inches (from No. 36 end); backwards, 77 feet 7 inches; and as to the remainder, about 31 feet.

The almshouses of Sir John Jolles form part of the east side of the square or quadrangle of which Edmanson's Almshouses occupy the rest. The tenements are still, as

THOMAS HOWELL'S CHARITY.*

22nd July 1865.—By an order of the Board of Charity Commissioners of this date, the Company were authorised to remove Mrs. Elizabeth Charlotte Booth from her office of matron of the school at Denbigh belonging to the said charity, and to grant to her a pension of 50*l.* per annum.

11th August 1865.—By an order of the said Board of his date, the Company were authorised to pay to the said Mrs. Elizabeth Charlotte Booth out of the income of the charity the sum of 41*l.* 0*s.* 9*d.*, in respect of costs incurred by her in relation to the proceedings upon which the foregoing order was made.

16th February 1877.—By a certificate of the said Board of this date, the Company were authorised to take legal proceedings against the lessee or occupier of No. 26, Austin Friars, London, to enforce the performance of the terms of a certain agreement dated 14th June 1875.

described in the last report, one large room for each of the eight almspeople, divided into a sitting and bed room, and they have small gardens behind. They are occupied chiefly (and indeed almost wholly) by women, but men are not excluded, and one was lately presented by the parish of Stratford-le-Bow, and one also with his wife was a short time ago presented by the parish of Bromley. The man is dead and his wife will be continued, the presentation being joint and, I presume, also several. The presentation is by the vestries of the parishes of Stratford and Bromley, the presentation being certified by the rector and vicar. Four rooms are appropriated to each parish, and every vacancy is filled up by the parish whose room is vacated. The Company uniformly accept without question the presentation of the parish. Up to Christmas 1860 the almspeople were paid 3*l.* per annum each. Since that time the Company, taking into consideration the small allowances which they receive from all sources, the same appearing not to exceed 1*l.* a month, have ordered that the founder's allowance should be increased from 3*l.* per annum to 12*l.* per annum. It is probable that the result of this will be to induce the parishes to withdraw their former allowances, and that the almspeople will not therefore be benefited. I am told that if this should be so, the Company will be prepared still further to raise their stipends, so that the income of the almspeople should not be less than 21*l.* a year. The great increase of the rents under the recent letting has no doubt led to this resolution on the part of the Company, but it must still, I apprehend, be regarded as the result of bounty and not of legal obligation.

In addition to the money allowance, the Company pay for the benefit of the eight almspeople—

The Company having found that the Bromley poor were allowed coals by the parish, they therefore ordered four tons of coals, one for each of the Stratford poor.

School.

The school is still at the east end of Stratford Bow church, and consists of one room over a covered space or cloister. The Company appoint a master who is not in Holy Orders. The present master is Mr. Fredk. Chipperfield, who was appointed about nine years ago. He had been a pupil-teacher at the Abbey Street, Bethnal Green, school (a British school). The founder's stipend of 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* has for many years been increased to 54*l.* 12*s.* a year, or 1*l.* 1*s.* a week, and the master is allowed to take private scholars in addition to the scholars on the foundation, who are always 35 in number and pay nothing. The foundation boys are not admitted under 7 years of age and they may remain till 14, but many are taken away to work before that age. A charge of 3*d.* a week is made for each foundation scholar for providing books, stationery, &c. The master informs me that as the churchwardens of the two parishes declined to fill up vacancies in the school, he has himself done so, and has from time to time admitted those who, upon inquiry, he thought had the greatest need of it. In addition to those on the foundation, the master also has at the present time 35 private scholars, most of whom pay 6*d.* a week. At the time of his appointment there were only 12 boys on the foundation and one private scholar.

In addition to the payment to the master and for repairs, which is included in the sum stated under that head in the account of the almshouses, there is an annual sum of 3*l.* 8*s.* for three tons of coal.

There is no residence for the master or other advantage beyond what I have mentioned.

I am informed by the clerk of the Company that the Company is now building at Tottenham a school for the poor freemen of the Company, and that the balances of this estate and Sir Thomas Cullum's estate is designed to be employed in the aid of this new educational foundation.

SIR JOHN JOLLES'S CHARITY.

Sir John Jolles, by his will of the 24th February 1607, bequeathed to the Company 200*l.*, to be lent to two young men at 3*l.* per cent. and paid—

	£	s.	d.
To the churchwardens of Allhallows, Barking - - -	2	0	0
And by a codicil of the 2nd October 1860—
To the parish of Haddenham, Isle of Ely - - -	2	0	0
To the parish of St. Leonard's, Bromley - - -	2	0	0
To the wardens - - -	1	0	0

The 200*l.* is part of the 3,811*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* mentioned in Clonne's Charity. The churchwardens of Allhallows Barking, and of Haddenham receive 2*l.* a year, but only 1*l.* a year is paid to the parish of St. Leonard's, Bromley, and 20*s.* is carried to the warden's account, this exhausts the charge of 6*l.* mentioned in the deed poll referred to in Clonne's Charity.

JOHNSON'S CHARITY.

Hugh Johnson by his will, proved in 1618, bequeathed to the Drapers' Company 200*l.*, to be lent to young men of the Company at 5*l.* per cent.

	£	s.	d.

To the poor of the town of Macclesfield - - -	5	0	0

The 200*l.* forms part of the 3,811*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* mentioned in Clonne's Charity.

The sum of 5*l.* is paid to the churchwardens of St. John's, Hackney, and 5*l.* to the parish of Macclesfield annually.

KENDRICK'S CHARITY.

John Kendrick, by his will of the 29th December 1624, bequeathed to the Company 2,400*l.* to purchase lands of 100*l.* a year, and bestow the same as follows:—

For the releasing six poor prisoners in London - - -	24	0	0

The Company purchased an estate in Fleet Street and Fetter Lane in the city of London, which at the time of the last inquiry produced an income of 316*l.* a year, of which something more than 100*l.* per annum appeared to be employed in charitable purposes. The Commissioners certified the case to the Attorney General, and an information ex-officio was filed on the 28th January 1839, praying that it might be declared that the whole of the rents and profits of the said premises ought to be applied to the purposes of the said will, and that the same might be decreed to be so applied for the future, and that it might be declared that the said Company were not entitled to appropriate any part thereof to their own benefit, and that they might be decreed to make good the amount which they had so retained in their hands as aforesaid out of such rents for such time as to the Court might seem just, and that the same might be applied according to the intention of the will, and that all necessary accounts might be directed, and, if necessary, it might be referred to the Master to approve of a scheme for the application of the said increased rents and the sum which might be coming from the said Company. The cause was heard on the 19th March 1841, and the Court by its decree declared that according to the true construction of the will the whole of the rents and profits of the premises in Fleet Street and Fetter Lane belonged and ought to be applied to the purposes mentioned in the said will, and it was referred to the Master to take the accounts of the charity estate as therein mentioned, and to settle a scheme for the administration of the charity, with directions for the taxation and payment of costs as therein mentioned.

The Master made his report of the 13th March 1847, and thereby found the amount due from the defendants, and taxed the costs. The Court, by its order of the 17th April 1847, confirmed the report, and directed that, after payment of the costs as therein mentioned, the residue of the sum of 1,646*l.* 8*s.* 9*d.* should be invested in the purchase of Consols, and that the dividends thereon should be applied in the same way as the income of the charity was directed to be applied by the scheme. The scheme settled by the Master was approved with the exception of the third clause, in which it was proposed to apply the 8/100ths for the benefit of the poor of the parish of St. Margaret, and which the Court directed should be applied for the other objects of the charity. I append a copy of the scheme as finally settled.

Averaging about 28l. 10s. a year was distributed to poor clothworkers in sums varying from 5s. to 1l. The recipients are recommended by a court of the Clothworkers' Company, and the distribution is made at a meeting of the master and wardens of the Drapers' Company in the month of November.

The remainder is paid to the poor of the Drapers' Company, forming part of the fund, out of which 60 poor of the Company, called the "poor on the roll," receive pensions of 4l. per quarter each.

They are selected by the master and wardens, as vacancies occur at their discretion, by a general vote or agreement, and not by any rotation of choice. The roll thus represents an expenditure of 240l. per quarter, of which the above balance forms a part.

QUEEN ELIZABETH'S COLLEGE AT GREENWICH.

Queen Elizabeth by her letters patent of the 25th November 1575, on the petition of Sir Geo. Hayward, Wm. Lambard, and others, granted that there should be a college or hospital of poor persons at East Greenwich for the relief and support of poor and indigent persons, and to be called "Collegium Pauperum Reginae Elizabeth," to consist of a warden, sub-warden, and 18 poor persons, and that the Master of the Rolls and the two senior wardens of the Drapers' Company should be the president and governors, and be incorporated.

The statutes of the college, made in 1578, are of great length, and are set out in pp. 398 and 399 of the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 32, part 2), to which I beg to refer.

The Commissioners of Inquiry state that the founder's deeds settling the property, which constituted the endowment of the college, had not been found. It appeared that there was a direction or request in the will of Mr. Lambard of the 16th May 1597, that the president and governors would be pleased to make leases from time to time to such of his name as should be his heir male of his manors and lands in Kent for the then usual and accustomed rents. The president and governors in 1608, "in performance of" such earnest suit and petition," covenanted with Sir Malton Lambard to seal to him and his heirs male leases of the lands therein mentioned (within three years before the expiration of existing leases) for 21 years, and so from 21 years to 21 years, with the several benefits and advantages therein contained, and saving only that the president and governors might increase the rents, so that the total rents thereafter reserved should not exceed the sum of 5l. more than the total rents on the lease then in being. The Commissioners stated the demises to the Lambard family at the same rents down to the year 1830, and observed that whether they ought to be set aside was a fit question for the Attorney-General.

An information ex-officio was filed by the Attorney-General (Sir Frederick Thesiger) on the 29th October 1845 against William Lambard, claiming to be heir-at-law of the founder, and Sir Percival Hart Dyke, Baronet, and the Rev. Thomas Randolph, the executors of Multon Lambard, the last lessee and the president and governors of the college, praying that the several leases of the 11th March 1830 therein mentioned might be set aside, and that the defendants, William Lambard, Sir Percival Hart Dyke, and Thomas Randolph, might be directed to deliver up possession of the premises held by them as aforesaid to the said president and governors, and might be decreed out of the assets of the said testator, to pay and make good to the college such principal sum over and above the said rent reserved by the said leases as might seem proper. And that it might be declared that the said indenture of the 3rd March 1608, and the covenants therein contained, were invalid and void and not binding on the said president and governors of the said college, and if necessary proper directions might be given for the management and letting of such lands in future.

It appears by some correspondence between the solicitor of the Attorney-General (J. P. Fearon, Esq.) and the solicitor of the governors, of the 26th and 31st January 1850, that some proposals were made and partly accepted for a compromise of the suit. Mr. Lambard having, however, objected to some of the terms proposed (apparently as to costs) the suit was heard before the Vice-Chancellor (Sir R. M. Rolfe) on the 12th November 1850, when it was declared that the five several leases of the 11th March 1830 granted to Multon Lambard, deceased, ought to be set aside, and the Court decreed the same accordingly, and that the defendants, William Lambard and the Rev. Thomas Randolph, should deliver up the said leases, and execute a proper deed or deeds to be settled by the Master, in case the parties differed, for surrendering the said leases and the hereditaments thereby demised to the said defendants, the president and governors of Queen Elizabeth's College, but without prejudice to the liability of the defendants, William Lambard and Thomas Randolph, to pay the rents thereby reserved up to that time, and by consent the defendant, William Lambard, his executors, &c., was to hold the said charity hereditaments thenceforth for his life and for 30 years afterwards at a reserved rent of 300*l.* a year, and a lease was to be made to him accordingly. And that it be referred to the Master to settle such lease, and that the same should contain covenants on the part of the lessee or lessees to keep in repair the said premises after the same should have been put into repair under the direction therein-after contained, and the said lease was also to contain all other usual covenants and provisions. And it was ordered that all such necessary repairs of the said premises as the Master should think fit be executed out of the funds of the said charity estates. And that it be referred to the Master to inquire what repairs were necessary, and to ascertain the expenses thereof. And that such repairs as the said Master should approve, and such sum as the said Master should certify to be necessary to defray the expenses thereof, be done and paid for out of the funds of the said charity accordingly. And that the costs of and all charges and expenses properly incurred by the Attorney-General and the said defendants, the president and governors, in the suit or in relation thereto be paid and retained by the said last-named defendants out of the funds of the said charity.

In pursuance of the said decree a lease was made by the president and governors, and settled by the Master, bearing date the 12th day of January 1854 of the farms (particularly described, No. 1, in the table below) to the said William Lambard and his assigns, from the 25th December 1850, for the term of the natural life of the said William Lambard and for 30 years from the day of his decease, but subject to impeachment for waste as therein-after mentioned, at the annual rent of 300*l.*, and William Lambard thereby covenants to insure the buildings and the farms, he being permitted to retain one half of the sum expended in effecting and keeping up such insurance, and that he will keep the said buildings in repair, being allowed rough timber for the same.

The present rental is—

Ground at the Back of Queen Elizabeth's College, facing South Street, which the president and governors have agreed to let on a building lease (for the erection of ten houses) for a term of 90 years, from Midsummer 1859, at a peppercorn for the first year and 50 l. a year for the remainder of the term, under the authority of the Charity Commissioners of the 29th July 1859. An additional agreement has been sanctioned giving the lessee the option of erecting another house on the same ground, facing the south, subject to an additional rent of 4 l. a year in respect of such lease. On the 29th March 1852 the Attorney-General ex officio filed an information against the president and governors of Queen Elizabeth's College, Greenwich, stating the various gifts and endowments of the college, and stating that while the annual income of the said charity property, including Rokeby's and Walrond's gifts, was then considerably more than 1,000*l.* per annum, the whole average annual expenditure, including pensions of 21*l.* per annum to each of 20 almspeople, and all other recurring and incidental expenses, did not exceed 570*l.*, and that there was therefore a large and increasing surplus income which, according to the existing rules and constitutions of the charity, there were no means of properly applying. That the charity as then constituted was a mere adjunct to workhouses of the several parishes who send paupers to it, inasmuch as the foundation expressly directed that the poor who were to be the objects of the charity should be such only as had been before relieved at the charge of the parish, and charging that the benefits of the charity might be greatly extended if the above-mentioned restriction could be dispensed with, and the number of recipients increased, and praying that it might be referred to the Master to approve of a scheme.

The cause was heard and a decree pronounced the 22nd February 1855, whereby an inquiry was directed of the property of the charity and to approve of a scheme, and to inquire in particular whether it would be proper to apply for an Act of Parliament with reference thereto. By the chief clerk's certificate of the 9th August 1856, the property was found, and corresponds with the foregoing table, except as to the ground at the back of the college, and except the stock, which has since been increased by a further sum of 1,000*l.* He certified that a scheme was settled and had been established by an order of the 5th August 1856, and that it was not fit or proper to make any application to Parliament.

The scheme is set forth in the printed book appended to this report. It will be observed that there is no notice of the change suggested in the information as to the almspeople having previously received relief of the parish, and that it remains still a rule that the poor admitted should have previously received parish relief. It is obvious that the true rule would have been to have made the reception of parish relief neither a necessary qualification nor a ground of exclusion.

The eighth clause of the new scheme directs that the governors shall determine whether the persons elected are persons duly qualified. The governors, however, rely upon the selection of the authorities having the nomination, in which the parishes and the poor seem to have uniformly acquiesced.

The impression on the poor of so many populous parishes, that they will not be admissible to Queen Elizabeth's Hospital unless they have previously been recipients of parish relief, must have so demoralizing a tendency that I have earnestly requested that the subject might be brought before the president and governors of the college, with the view of considering the propriety of obtaining such an alteration of the scheme as would render the previous reception of parish relief neither a ground of qualification nor exclusion. If the president and governors should be of opinion that such an alteration should be made, I presume that it can be effected under the Charitable Trusts Act, 1860, without any expense to the institution.

An example of the working of the system is seen in the fact that persons at the last election at Deptford for this charity applied for and received parish relief to qualify themselves, and were then disappointed at finding that by the same act they had disqualified themselves for another charity. I am told that the guardians of the poor, understanding the object of candidates, commonly admit their claim to parochial relief a week, without inquiry as to the necessity.

The college, which was rebuilt in 1817, was enlarged under the scheme of 1856 to receive double the number of members, 40 instead of 20. The building, which before the alteration formed three sides of a quadrangle, has received additions of two houses at each corner, and 12 houses facing the south at the back of the chapel. The buildings and the expenditure thereon was approved by the Court of Chancery. The cost was 4,528*l.* Each of the 40 tenements has one room above and one below, and a wash-house.

The inmates are men and women, and are mostly aged persons.

They are now appointed as follows:—

Two by the Master of the Rolls;
Two by the wardens of the Drapers' Company;
Two by the High Steward of East Greenwich; and the rest from parishes within the hundred of Blackheath, viz:—

Two from Deptford;
Six from Lewisham;
Two from Lee;
Six from Eltham;
Two from Charlton;
Two from Woolwich; and Fourteen from East Greenwich.

The nomination by one of the parishes interested was produced before me, and is in the following form. In another form the statement was that the person presented was qualified in all points according to the intention of the donor. Another form simply stated that Mrs. M was elected.

"According to the directions of the ordinances and statutes for the nomination of one alms man or woman to be placed in the hospital in the room of A.B., deceased, we met together in the parish church of G. on , and after examination taken of all the poor inhabitants that are by the founder's institutions capable of places in the hospital, we have nominated C.D., aged years, whom we know to be of honest life and a person in all points qualified according to the intention of the pious donor, and fit to receive that relief which he hath provided for them, and therefore present to you to give order that may be admitted into the place now void."

Signed by the—Vicar.

Churchwardens.
Sidesmen.
Overseers of the Poor.

I find that in the nominations from the parish of Lewisham, the certificate was that the nominees were "inhabitants of our parish for many years past who have received parochial relief."

In a certificate of nomination from the parish of Charlton, one nominee was stated to be a fit and proper person, "excepting that he cannot say the articles of the Christian belief and the Ten Commandments of God in English."

The appointment of the Master of the Rolls is made by a nomination in writing containing the name only.

In 1858 it was 67l. 11s. 5d. In 1857, 27l. 19s. 6d. In 1856, 108l. 1s. 9d. In 1855, 50l. 12s. 5d., making an average of the last five years of about 73l., but I am told it would be safer to estimate it at

The account of the charity estate for the year 1860 began with a balance against the charity of 78l. 7s., and the greater expenditure of that year for new windows and other works left a balance of 322l. 0s. 6d. against the charity estate on the 31st of December in the same year. It will be observed that the ordinary income for the future will exceed the ordinary expenses by about 60l. a year.

The 50l. a year for the demise of the land in South Street (No. 21 in the above table) had not come into the account of receipts.

Some leases of property in Queen Elizabeth Row, Greenwich, will expire in 1863, and some increase of rent is expected.

In addition to the 45s. per month and the other benefits above stated, the almspeople receive 16s. 3d. a year from Macey's Gift, and about 6s. a year each from Stanton's, Watton's, Chappel's and Tallis' Gifts.

MACEY'S GIFT.

Joseph Macey, by his will of the 29th July 1791, gave all his stock in the 3l. per cent. Reduced Annuities, 4l. per cent. Consolidated Annuities, 5l. per cent. Annuities, and 3l. per cent. Consolidated Annuities, subject to certain life estates to Queen Elizabeth's College for the poor people there.

The present state of the stock standing in the Company's name to the account of this Charity is as follows:—

	Dividends.
	£	s.	d.
150l. 3l. per cent. Consols	4	10	0
610l. 3l. per cent. Reduced Annuities	18	6	0
325l. 10s. New 3l. per cent. Annuities	9	15	2
	£32	11	2

This sum is distributed amongst the 40 almspeople in the college, in half-yearly payments, it affords 8s. 1½d. half-yearly or 16s. 3d. per annum to each, and 1s. 2d. extra to the matron.

WALROND'S GIFT.

Edward Walrond, by his will of the 28th November 1720, gave to Queen Elizabeth's College 1,000l. South Sea Stock. This was part of the 4,200l. like stock mentioned in the Reports of the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 32, part 2, p. 402). Upon the payment of the South Sea Stock the fund was invested in 4,764l. 14s. 9d. 3l. per cent. Reduced Annuities. In December 1857 the Company sold out 3,500l. stock, which produced 3,271l. 6s. cash, and was applied towards the expense of building additional almshouses.

There remain the sum of 1,264l. 14s. 9d. 3l. per cent. Reduced Annuities as stated in the table of the present property given above (p. 38).

ROOKBY'S CHARITY.

Ralph Rookby, by his will of the 14th June 1594, gave 100l. to the poor of Queen Elizabeth's College. This sum, which I presume came to the possession of the Drapers' Company, bears interest 5l. a year, which is paid by the Company, and is brought into the account to the credit of the college.

In respect of this gift on the annual visitation by the governors (usually composed of the visitation committee of the Company) a sufficient sum is added to the 5l. to make up 10s. 6d. to each of the poor in the College.

STANTON'S GIFT.

William Stanton, by his will of the 12th June 1610, gave (inter alia) 40s. towards the better relief of the poor people harboured and kept in Queen Elizabeth's College.

On referring to the accounts of the trustees of Hatcliffe's Charity, who are the trustees also of Stanton's Charity, it appears to be stated that payments of 2l. per annum to the inmates of Queen Elizabeth's College are made. As the personal inspection of the college and other institutions under the management of the companies has not been considered necessary (except under special circumstances) I have not had an opportunity of inquiring of the almspeople whether they receive this sum. The clerk of the governors (Mr. Sawyer) has no knowledge of it, but he proposes to make inquiry on the subject at the next visitation.

WATTON'S GIFT.

Peter Watton, by his will of the 13th June 1722, gave 50l. to be laid out in some estate of inheritance, and the rents distributed among eight poor people of Queen Elizabeth's College.

It appears by reference to the accounts of Captain Peter Watton's Charity, rendered by the minister and churchwardens of Greenwich, that the sum of 206l. 5s. New 3l. per cent. Annuities stands in the names of certain persons of the parish, and that of the dividends 2l. a year is paid to the inmates of Queen Elizabeth's College. I have not personally visited the college, such visitation being deemed by the Board unnecessary unless specially called for, and as to the fact of this payment I can only make the same observations as on the case of Stanton's Gift.

CHAPPEL'S GIFT.

Mrs. Dennis Chappel, by her will of the 30th June 1769, bequeathed all the residue of her estate to be laid out in the public stocks, and the dividends distributed to the poor of Queen Elizabeth's College.

It appears by reference to the accounts of this charity, rendered by the minister and churchwardens of Greenwich, that the sum of 231l. New 3l. per Cents stands in the names of certain persons of the parish, and that the dividends of 8l. 1s. 8d. are paid to the inmates of Queen Elizabeth's College.

Mr. Sawyer, the clerk of the Company, will make inquiry as to the payment of this rentcharge.

TALLIS' GIFT.

Joan Tallis, by her will of the 12th June 1587, gave to the poor of the hospital 10s. yearly for ever.

It appears by reference to the accounts of the parish of Greenwich that a rentcharge of 10s., issuing out of premises late the Old Greyhound Inn, Stockwell Street, Greenwich, was received by the churchwardens in 1856, and by them distributed to the inmates of Queen Elizabeth's College, but that since that time it has not been received by them.

LUCAS' HOSPITAL AT WOKINGHAM, BERKS.

Henry Lucas, by his will of the 11th June 1663, gave his residuary estate, which he believed would be about 7,000l., for building, founding, and endowing an hospital or almshouse in Berks or Surrey for the relief of old men, and a master to be their chaplain; the said master to have 10l. a year, the said poor men of the poorest inhabitants of the forest division in the county of Berks and of the bailiwick or reputed bailiwick of Surrey in or near the forest, to be nominated after the death of his executors by the Drapers' Company. The foundation is recited and confirmed by letters patent of the 18th January in the 18th year of Car. 2. (1666), wherein the purchase of land and the erection of a hospital and chapel at Wokingham is stated, together with the investment of the endowment money in the purchase of lands in the county of Bedford by the executors. The letters patent contain a license in mortmain to the master and brethren who are thereby incorporated, together with directions for the future appointment and removal of the members. The executors, Robert Raworth and Thomas Bush, on the 12th March 1666, made and signed statutes for the government of the hospital, an abstract of which is set out in the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 32, part 2, pp. 412–413). The brethren are by these ordinances (clause v.) to be 16 besides the master, and it thereby ordained that "such poor and impotent persons decayed in estate by sickness and other misfortunes, and not by their own wicked, wasteful, and riotous courses, not having of their own to the clear value of 20l. to relieve themselves, as shall be born or inhabiting by the space of three "years at least, in some of the parishes in the forest division in the county of Berks, and bailwick or parishes withip the late bailwick of Surrey, shall be from time to time for ever hereafter elected and chosen brethren of the said hospital, and for avoiding of disputes and questions, how many shall be taken out of one county and how many out of the other (because the forest division in the county of Berks is of a greater extent, and contains more parishes and poor than the now or late forest division in the county of Surrey), we will and ordain that for ever hereafter nine of the said 16 brethren shall be elected out of the said forest division in the county of Berks brethren of the said hospital; and the seven residue of the said 16 brethren shall be elected out of the said now or late bailwick of Surrey brethren of the said hospital. And out of every parish successively and alternately, so that one may be taken out of every parish from time to time if there to be had."

The estate of this charity is as follows:—

In hand.

The hospital forms a block of buildings with two wings, one being the master's house and the other the chapel, and having fuel house behind.

The hospital is composed of 12 brethren, but there are rooms for 16, being one room for each. The rooms are over each other. In the elevation shown to me there appears to be attics, but I have not ascertained how they are occupied.

The allotment of 30 acres arose under an award of the 3rd July 1817, by an Act of 53 Geo. 3., intituled "An Act for vesting in His Majesty certain parts of Windsor Forest in the county of Berks, and for inclosing the open commonable lands within the said forest."

The allotment was made—

Unto and for the Rev. William Bremmer and his successors, the master and chaplain of the hospital or almshouse founded by Henry Lucas, one parcel of land situate on the Great Heath, numbered on the map 163, containing 30 acres (15 acres part thereof having been taken as part of the allotment directed by the said first-mentioned Act to be made to His Majesty as compensation for forestal rights), bounded on the north by allotments to Brackley Woods, George Clay, and William Goodchild respectively, on the east by the Finchhampstead Road, on the south by the parish of Finchhampstead, and on the west by the parish of Barkham. The boundary fences of this allotment on the east and south and west parts thereof are to be made and for ever maintained by the said master and chaplains and his successors for the time being. And it was declared that such allotment should be in trust for the supply of fuel for the chaplain and poor men residing in the said hospital, to be there used and consumed and not elsewhere.

The Drapers' Company have an offer of the sum of 500l. for the purchase of the foregoing allotment, which they propose to accept if the step be sanctioned by the Commissioners. It is now unproductive. There are a few fine trees, and the rest is gorse or furze from which fuel is cut by some of the brethren, but of which others make no use. The brethren have no fuel but what they purchase, except from this ground. If the land be sold it may be a question whether the 500l. should be allowed to purchase coals for the almspeople, or whether it should be made a portion of the capital fund to raise the numbers of brethren to the full complement of 16. The dedication to the purpose of fuel in the allotment is not, I suppose, a binding dedication of the charity property so as to exclude the Commissioners from such an appropriation as they should conceive more beneficial to the objects of the endowment. I believe some questions on the effect of the allotments of land on this common and their charitable character were brought before the Commissioners in my report on the Chertsey Charities.

The disbursements on account of this estate are—

II. Hospital Expenses.

He is the perpetual curate of Wokingham, and resides at the hospital, having, as I understand, no parsonage house.

The foundation directs that the allowance to the master shall be 50l. It was increased on the 11th June 1801 to 70l., and the brethren were at the same time raised from 10l. to 14l. There was a further increase on the 5th February 1819, by which the master was allowed 100l. and the almspeople 20l.

These additions were made by resolutions of the court of assistants of the Drapers' Company.

In the year 1860 extraordinary repairs were made amounting to 87l.

The income of the charity therefore exceeds the expenditure by about 60l. The balance of cash against the trust 31st December 1860 was 2l. 7s., but 100l. Consols had been purchased in that year at the cost of 94l. 10s.

The nominations are made by the parishes in turn. The brethren must be single men of 50 years of age at the least. The Master sends notice of the vacancy to the parish next in turn, to present according to a rota exhibited in the table below.

The first nomination of brethren specified in the letters patent was of persons of "Finchhampstead, Wokingham,

"Easthampstead, Clewer, Old Windsor, Barham, Arberfield, Bindfield, Hurst, and Ruscomb, in the county of Berks, within the division of the Forest of Windsor; and of Chertsey, Egham, Chobham, Thrimley, and Bagshot, in the bailiwick of Surrey, being the most poor of the parishes and places aforesaid."

At the time of the last inquiry the number was reduced to 13. They have since then been 12 in number.

The parishes stand in the rolls of the Company in the following order:—

Berkshire.

Wokingham.	Binfield.
Arborfield.	Hurst.
Wokingham Town.	Ruscombe.
Finchamstead.	Bray.
New Windsor.	Sandhurst.
East Hampstead.	Winfield.
Clewer.	Swallowfield.
Old Windsor.	Sunninghill.

Surrey.

Chobham.	Stoke.
Chertsey.	Thorpe.
Bisley.	Purbridget.
Purford.	Warplesdon.
Wainborough.	Byfleet.
Egham.	Woking.
Frimley.	Horsell.
Bagshot and Windham.

The nominee of the parish appears before the court of assistants with a presentation on the following form:—

"Whereas a late brother of the said hospital, and some time an inhabitant of the parish of , died some time since. And our parish of being next in succession to nominate and recommend a fit person to be admitted into the said hospital in his stead, we, the minister, churchwardens, overseers of the poor, and other inhabitants of the said parish of , do therefore present to your worshipps A.B. of our said parish of , he being a person of sober and honest life and conversation, a single man above 50 years of age, and as we verily believe not worth 20*l.*, and duly qualified in all other respects, according to the ordinances and constitutions of the said hospital to be admitted a brother thereof. And we therefore desire your worshipps to admit accordingly.

As witness our hand this day of (Signatures)

He is thereupon sworn and admitted a brother of the hospital by the court.

The lands of the charity appear by the letters patent to be vested in the "Masters and Brethren of the Hospital of the foundation of Henry Lucas." The estates have, however, been always let, and the rents received by the Draper's Company, and the stock arising from surplus rents has been invested, and stands in the name of the Company. The allotment of the land on Wokingham Common was, however, accurately allotted to the master and brethren.

PART III.

SIR JOHN MILBORNE'S ALMSHOUSES.

Sir John Milborne is stated by the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 32, part 2, p. 395), and by the recitals of the will of William Dolphin, to have granted by deed poll of the 5th March, 26 Henry VIII., to William Dolphin, in fee, 13 tenements (which he had newly built) and gardens in the parish of St. Olave, near the Tower of London, by the description of an eighth part of an acre.

And William Dolphin, by his will of the 24th March 1534, devised the same 13 tenements and also 11 messuages, namely:—

Five messuages in Thames Street, in the parish of Saint Lawrence, Pountney.

Two messuages in the parish of Saint Nicholas, near Newgate.

Two messuages against the gate of Saint Martin the Great; and

Two messuages in the parish of Saint Mary, Aldermay, in the ward of Cordwainers, and bounded on the east by the King's highway, to the Draper's Company, on trust, to repair the said 13 tenements, and pay every month to and amongst 13 poor men, being householders, married or unmarried, 32*s.* 10*d.*, especially such as should have most need and be brethren and sisters of the said Company, and if there should not be drapers found, then others to be taken, householders of the parish of Saint Edmund and Saint Bartholomew the Little. And the will declared that the master and wardens, and their successors, for their pains should have 20*s.* yearly, namely:—

	s	d
The master	-	6 8
Wardens	-	3 4
Clerk	-	3 0
Beadle	-	2 0

with a devise over in default as therein mentioned to the mayor, commonalty, and citizens of the City of London.

The Commissioners of Inquiry (p. 397), state that, "if the Company are only liable to pay the specific sums mentioned in Dolphin's will, they are entitled to the credit of having advanced out of their own revenues upwards of 400*l.* a year to the support of these almshouses; but if, on the other hand, the premises described, and producing 589*l.* 13*s.* 10*d.* a year, are those which were devised to them under the directions of Sir John Milborne, the whole of such income, except what is expressly given to the Company's officers, is applicable to the support of the almshouses, it ought to be carried to a separate account," and the Commissioners conclude by stating that they thought it was a fit case to be certified to the Attorney-General.

The attention of the Charity Commissioners was directed to the subject by the letter of the clerk of the Drapers' Company of the 7th June 1856, stating the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry, and requesting to know exactly the position in which the Company were placed with respect to the almshouses and the property stated in such report to answer the description of that mentioned in William Dolphin's will, and whether it was intended that any steps should be taken with reference to the question raised in the Commissioners' Report.

By a letter from the solicitor to the Attorney-General, addressed to the Charity Commissioners, dated the 14th July 1858, he states that he had found among the papers of his predecessor, Mr. Parkes, an opinion of Mr. J. E. Blunt, of the 17th February 1841, that it was extremely doubtful upon the construction of the will of the founder whether the Company were not entitled to the whole premises, subject to the payments specifically directed, but that as the will was not fully set out in the case, it would be right to obtain a full copy. The statement of the will given in the case submitted to Mr. Blunt was that which is contained in the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry. The case was in fact a copy of that report. Mr. Blunt further suggested that communication should take place with the Company, and that it should be proposed to them to concur in a scheme and in a reference to ascertain the property; but that nothing further was done in the matter.

The Board having requested to be informed whether there was any intention to take the matter up, Mr. Fearon, by his letter of the 19th July 1858, says that he had taken the Attorney-General's directions on the subject of the charity, and that it was not his intention to take any proceedings on the certificate of the late Commissioners.

An ancient book of the Company, containing a description of deeds, and which appears to be a list made at some former and remote time of deeds in their possession, describes shortly under the head of "Almshouses," to which a later hand has added the words "at Tower Hill," the following instruments:—

1. One indenture whereby Edmund the Prior of the Holy Cross and the convent of the same did bargain and sell the plot of ground in the parish of Saint Olave on Tower Hill of London, abutted and for the building of the 13 almshouses to Sir John Milborne, knight, his heirs and assigns.—24 , 26 Henry 8.

2. An exemplification of the recovery of the land at Tower Hill against the prior and convent thereof by Sir John Milborne, knight.—1 February, 26 Henry 8.

3. A deed poll by which the said Sir John Milborne, knight, did confirm unto William Dolphyn, his heirs and assigns, the said 13 tenements and void plot of ground measured for the fulfilling of the said William Dolphyn's will, with the usual warranties and livery of seisin endorsed.

4. One deed poll whereby the said prior and convent did release unto Sir John Milborne, knight, his heirs and assigns, the former plot of ground, with the obligation of 200*l.* with the said prior and convent.

5. The last will of William Dolphin, draper, whereby he devised the premises for 13 poor and for further relief they have to have paid unto them 12 times a year, 32*s.* 10*d.* among them, and 20*s.* to the master, wardens, and officers as above stated.

The deed poll referred to by the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 32, part 2, p. 395) has not been produced to me, nor does there appear to be any proof of its existence. In reply to my inquiries Mr. Sawyer, the clerk of the Company, informs me: That he has no knowledge of any deeds relating to Sir John Milborne's Almshouses, or the property referred to by the Commissioners of Inquiry as connected with them,—that there is a tradition that deeds were lost at the Great Fire when the Hall was destroyed, and also at a later fire, in 1772, when the whole of the east side of the Hall was burnt,—that many deeds had been deposited in a damp strong room, and were discovered about the year 1825 or 1826 dropping to pieces from damp, and in a great measure illegible, some perfectly so, that nothing was done to preserve them, and the fragments were thrown away to the best of his recollection.—That the Company have now a strong room in which there are ancient deeds, and that no specific search had been made prior to the time of this inquiry in that room for deeds relating to this property. Since the commencement of this inquiry a search has been made, and an ancient deed has been produced to me of the 4th January, 31 Henry 8., whereby John, archbishop of Thebes, and perpetual commendatory of the cathedral church of Carlisle is witnessed to have bargained and sold to William Dolphin and his heirs all those messuages and tenements, &c. which the said archbishop, or any other person or persons to his use, have or be seized of in the City of London, namely, five messuages or tenements in Thames Street in St. Laurence, Pountney, two other small messuages or tenements situated in Saint Nicholas in the Shambles in Newgate, and two other small messuages or tenements in St. Martin-le-Grand. There is evidently nothing in this instrument capable of identifying the property of the Company with any endowment fund, and nothing else has been discovered amongst the muniments of the Company; and even if it were, under all the circumstances of the case I apprehend that the Board would not be inclined to differ from the view of the Attorney-General, as communicated by Mr. Fearon's letter of 8th July 1858.

It is to be observed that it is very possible that much property, the acquisition of which cannot be explained by this and other Companies, might have been granted and confirmed to them by the letters patent of the 14th of July of the 4th of Edward VI., and further assured by the statute of the 5th James I., which I have mentioned in my report on the charities of the Fishmongers' Company. The Drapers, amongst other Companies, appear to be entitled to benefits under the grant and the statute, but the Fishmongers' Company alone, so far as I have yet discovered, have obtained and placed among their records a copy of so much of the letters patent as describes the particular property comprised therein in which they were interested.

The property belonging to the Company in the parish of St. Lawrence Pountney, is—

SIR JOHN MILBOURNE'S ALMSHOUSES AND LADY ASKEW'S ALMSHOUSES.

30th September 1861.—By an opinion of the Board of Charity Commissioners of this date, the Company were advised that they might proceed to remove the inmates of the above almshouses, situate in Cooper's Row, Tower Hill, and Beech Lane, Barbican, London, to new almshouses recently erected at the expense of the Company upon a piece of land belonging to them at High Cross, Tottenham, the said Company having executed a declaration of trust to the effect that they would stand possessed of the last-mentioned premises upon the same trusts as those affecting the almshouses to be vacated.

The Bow Lane estate is supposed by the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 32, part 2, p. 397) to be in Saint Mary, Aldermanbury, but this is an inaccuracy, as the property is in the parish of Saint Mary, Aldermay; but as it is in the Cordwainers' Ward it may be still the property in question, it being equally possible that the former parish may have been mentioned in the will by mistake for the latter. No. 12 (and the house at the back now all thrown into one), let to Messrs. Carlisle Pitman & Co. for 21 years, from Midsummer 1854, at	140	0	0

The almshouses consist of 16 old buildings in Cooper's Row, at the back, or parallel with, Crutched Friars. A proposal for the removal of these almshouses and the rebuilding of them upon a site at Tottenham, in the county of Middlesex, was brought before the Board by the Drapers' Company on the 26th May 1859, and is the subject of a report of Mr. Simons (by whom some inquiries on the subject were made) of the 6th July 1859, to which I beg to refer.

I may observe that the large expenditure which the Company propose to incur in these alterations, amounting to about 8,000*l.*, is such a dedication of property to charitable purposes as would not be far from equivalent to what could be required of them under the most adverse construction of the identity of the annual endowments.

The expenditure on the almshouses and for the maintenance of the almspeople are—

	£	s.	d.
16 almspeople, of whom 13 receive 2 l. 2 s. per month, and 3, 2 l. 12 s. 6 d. per month	422	2	0
Coals for the same number of almspeople, at 18 sacks each per annum	32	12	9
A medical attendant for the almspeople	21	0	0
For gas light	4	4	0
For water	4	4	0
Gifts of 2 s. 6 d. each on the annual visitation	2	0	0
	£486	2	9

There are always repairs necessary, but as the Company are about to rebuild and dispose of the site as above stated, it is not necessary to calculate the average amount. The necessary substantial repairs were lately estimated at 800*l.*

The almspeople are appointed by the master and wardens from the poor of the Company at a court of wardens.*

OGBOURN'S CHARITY.

Richard Ogborn, by his will of the 31st October 1833, bequeathed to the Company 1,000*l.* 3*l.* per cent. Bank Annuities, the dividends to be applied annually for the liberation of poor prisoners confined in Newgate, or the Compters, by compounding for their debts.

The dividends on 900*l.* 3*l.* per cent. Consols (100*l.* having been required to pay the legacy duty) amount to 27*l.* per annum, which are applied in the manner described in the account of Frances Clark's Charity (p. 15).

PARKER'S CHARITY.

William Parker, the elder, by his will of the 6th April 1576, gave to the Company a house in Watling Street, on trust, to pay to the churchwardens of Saint Antholin 6*l.* a year for a learned preacher to read a lecture of divinity two days in a week for ever. The sum of 6*l.* a year is annually paid to the churchwardens of Saint Antholin's parish.

PEMEL'S ALMSHOUSES, IN STEPNEY.

John Pemel, by his will of the 28th February 1681, bequeathed to the Company 1,200*l.* to lay out the same 7th March 1862.—By an order of the said Board of this date, the Company were authorised to grant a lease of the site of above almshouses in Cooper's Row for 84 years, at the annual rent of 200*l.*, the lessee undertaking to expend 4,000*l.* in the erection of substantial buildings.

4th August 1866.—By an order of the said Board of this date, the Company were authorised to grant a lease of the site of the above almshouses in Beech Lane for 80 years, at the annual rent of 45*l.*, the lessees undertaking to expend the sum of at least 800*l.* in the erection of substantial buildings.

The legacy which was received in 1682 was not laid out until 1694, when 564l. 6s. had accrued as interest, of this 342l. 10s. was employed in the purchase of a site for the almshouses, and the residue of the accumulations was applied for the building.

By indentures of the 18th, 19th, and 20th of June of the same year, the Company, in consideration of the 1,200l. principal of the legacy, charged property in Saint Olave's, Southwark, and in Threadneedle Street of ample value with a rentcharge of 52l. 12s. a year, clear of all taxes, for the maintenance of the almspeople and the other purposes of the trust. The property in Threadneedle Street is represented by 10,687l. 17s. 6d. 3l. per cent. Consols, standing in the name of the Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery, and a field at Tottenham, purchased by the authority of the Court of Chancery by the sale of 2,597l. 0s. 1d. like stock. This is the field on which Milborne's and Lady Ascew's almshouses are proposed to be erected. The property of Saint Olave's, Southwark, remains in the possession of the Company.

The almshouses are in Whitechapel Road and are occupied by eight widows, four of whom are nominated by the Company and four by the hamlets of the parish of Stepney alternately, as vacancies arise. The nominations are made by the parish officers of each district, usually the incumbent and churchwardens.

PENNOYER'S CHARITY

Samuel Pennoyer, by his will of the 29th June 1652, devised to certain trustees, members of the Drapers' Company, certain lands and tenements in trust to apply the rents yearly for putting forth apprentices fatherless children, male or female, for each such child	£	s.	d.
For a weekly lecture at St. Stephen's, Bristol	-	12	0
Officers of the Company	-	20	0

The property of this charity consists of the following :—

	£	s.	d.
A farm in the county of East Meath (described in the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry, vol. 32, part 2, p. 426), John Rorke, by lease for 33 years, from May 1844	-	560	0

	£1,053	12	4

The lease of the farm was granted on surrender of a former lease, which was granted on the terms specified in the following minute of the 9th June 1836.

"That in accordance with the authority given to the clerk by the Court, he entered into an agreement with Mr. Rorke for letting him the Meath estate for 41 years, from 12th May 1836, upon his paying a fine of 500l., and agreeing to pay a further sum of 1,500l. upon the granting upon the lease, and to pay a rent of 500l. per annum for the first five years of the term and 600l. for the remainder of the term, and to expend 2,500l. in the permanent improvement of the property, and to accept a lease of the said farms containing covenants in conformity with the agreement on such other covenants not inconsistent therewith as were included in the lease to Mr. Halpin,—whereupon it was resolved that the Court approve of what the clerk had done, and it was ordered that the Company's seal be affixed to a lease to the said Mr. Rorke pursuant to such agreement."

On the 9th May 1844 the matter was again brought before the court and the following minute made :—

"Read a letter from Mr. Edmund Rorke, the tenant of the Meath estate, calling the court's attention to the details of his agreement, and to the lease founded thereon, pointing out several difficulties arising out of the present lease, and submitting for the consideration of the court, that the Company should either purchase back his interest in the estate at a fair value, or that the Company should accept a surrender of his lease and grant him a new lease for the remainder of the term, with certain modifications in the covenants, and particularly omitting those which were prospective and have been fully performed, and also suggesting that questions may arise as to the tenant's liability to pay the tithe of the lands therein comprised in consequence of the Acts passed for the commutation of tithes, and the said Mr. Rorke being in attendance and called and heard thereon, and the court being satisfied that the property is not of the annual worth which it was calculated it would be after the large outlay made for its improvement, and being well satisfied with Mr. Rorke's performance of the covenants, and considering the great expediency of settling all doubtful questions relative to the party liable to pay the tithe, and it appearing that such tithe had been converted into a rentcharge, amounting to nearly 60l. per annum, and that under the circumstances 500l. per annum, in addition to such rentcharge, would be a fair rent to be hereafter paid by Mr. Rorke,—It is resolved that upon Mr. Rorke's surrender of his lease he be granted a new lease for the remainder of his term at 560l. per annum over and above all outgoing, excepting tithe, omitting therein all the prospective covenants contained in the old lease, and which have already been fulfilled, and that such lease should be a the said Mr. Rorke's expense, and shall be granted to him under the direction of the master and wardens, and it was ordered that the Company's seal be affixed thereto."

The charges and distribution of the fund are as follows—

The nomination is by the court of assistants, who nominate in rotation. Applicants for apprenticeship apply to the members of the court individually who present them to the court. They must be according to the will fatherless children of known godly English parents, of the age of 14 or upwards. Since the union the children of Irish parents have been considered to come within the description.

They may be of either sex, boys are bound for seven years and girls for five. They are in nearly all cases bound to live with the master or mistress.

The balance due to the charity at the end of 1860 (31st December) was 658*l.* 12*s.* 2*d.

QUARLES' CHARITY.

John Quarles, by his will dated in 1587, gave to the Drapers' Company 200*l.*, to be lent to four young freemen. It appears that the trust of the interest is to pay yearly to the—

The sum of 5*l.* 8*s.* annually is paid to the churchwardens of St. Peter-le-Poor on their receipt.

The sum of 8*s.* is carried to the account of the wardens of the Company, and 4*s.* to the clerk, who is the rent collector meant by the term renter in the bequest.

The 200*l.* is calculated in the 3,811*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* mentioned in the report on Clonne's Charity.

RAINEY'S CHARITY.

John Rainey, by his will of the 21st February 1631, directed the Drapers' Company, out of the rent of 100*l.* to be had of three messuages in Gracechurch Street, to pay annually to the—

To the Company for defraying any expenses, or for their poor	-	4	0 0

The testator in his will recites that the property is let at 100*l.* per annum, subject to great fines, which he directs shall continue to be taken, and the amount so received and employed for the use, relief, and comfort of the poor distressed members of the Company, or for the repair or rebuilding of the houses in case of necessity.

The property is not, however, let upon fines, that being an inconvenient and improvident system.

A copy of which letter and of the reply thereto are as follows:—

"Drapers' Hall,

30th July 1861.

"GENTLEMEN,

"The court of assistants of the Drapers' Company will at their meeting, which is fixed for Monday next the 5th August, have under their consideration so much of the will of Mr. John Rainey as relates to his bequest to the master of the Worsboro' Grammar School and the lectureship at the church or chapel of that place, and I shall be obliged by your furnishing me with information on the subject, together with the names of the visitors of the school appointed under the directions of Mr. Rainey's will.

"The court will like to have some account of the school, with the sort of education imparted to the scholars; the number attending, with the age of their admission; and if the school is entirely for boys or for children of both sexes. You will be so good as to state if it is a free school, or whether anything is paid for the children's education, and if so, how much? You should also let me know if the master receives private scholars, and the amount paid with each. Will you also let me know if the admission is ordered by the visitors.

"By the will of the founder the lecturer is to preach twice every Sabbath day in the church or chapel of Worsboro', will you, when you write, let me know if this duty is regularly performed; I shall also be obliged by your informing me how Mr. Rainey's gift for the poor of Worsboro' is disposed of.

"Worsboro', August 1st, 1861.

"RELATIVE to your inquiries respecting the Worsborough Grammar School, together with the distribution of the Rayner's Bequest Charity, I beg to make the following reply: firstly, I am not aware that any person, except Her Majesty's Inspectors of Schools, makes any visits to the school. The deputy master informs me the number of names on his register amounts to 46, all of which are boys, but the average attendance of the scholars is 32-3. The children have a sound English education,—the catechism and liturgy of the Church of England, grammar, and geography are taught to such as remain at school until their reason is sufficiently developed to attain those subjects. The children are admitted at the age of seven years and upwards, and pay the various sums of 2*d.*, 3*d.*, 4*d.*, and 6*d.* per week, according to the means of the parents. No private scholars are taught by the master; any person in the parish may have their children admitted by applying to the deputy master. The lecturer, the Rev. John Andrew, delivers a lecture at our parish church twice daily on Sunday, morning and afternoon. That part of the Rayner's

CHARITIES OF RAINEY AND HIBBENS.

John Rainey or Rainey, by his will of the 21st February 1631, bequeathed to the Company 200*l.* to purchase lands and distribute the rents to the most needy, aged, and distressed poor members of the Company.

Anthony Hibbens, by his will of the 18th May 1639, bequeathed to the Company 200*l.* for purchasing a house, and the rent to be given amongst the poor of the Company. And by indentures of the 18th and 19th June 1694 the Company agreed to pay 20*l.* a year amongst the poor of the Company according to the wills above mentioned, and charged the same on certain leases in St. Michael Barrishaw and St. Stephen, Coleman Street. This property is situated in Basinghall Street, and is the property of the Company, let to John Tregon at a much greater rent.

The 20*l.* a year is carried to the account of the charities general, and forms part of that distribution. (See John Rainey's Charity.)

LADY RAMSAY'S CHARITY.

Lady Mary Ramsay, by her will of the 8th July 1601, gave to the Drapers' Company 200*l.*, to be lent out at 5*l.* per cent., and the profits distributed towards the relief of the poor of the Company. This forms part of the 3,811*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* mentioned in Clonne's Charity.

The 10*l.* a year applicable for the poor of the Company forms part of the pensions to the poor on the roll. (See Kendrick's Charity.)

ROYLEY'S CHARITY.

Theophilus Royley, by his will of the 12th February 1655, devised to the Company lands in the parish of St. Giles, Cripplegate, in trust, after the expiration of 32 years from his decease, out of one moiety of the rents and profits to dispose as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
To 80 poor men of the Company -	20	0	0
To the minister of St. Mary-le-Bow -	1	0	0
To the clerk and sexton -	0	10	0
To the youngest wardens -	0	10	0
To two persons for collecting the rents	8	0	0

and the residue in placing out children of the poor of the Company, 5*l.* a boy and 3*l.* a girl. And he directed the other moiety of the rents should be disposed of amongst his grandchildren, but not to go beyond two degrees from his daughter Mary.

The estate was administered by the Company without, so far as I can discover, any suit or directions of the Court of Chancery and according to the directions of the will. The property having increased in value, the specific payments directed to be made did not exhaust the moiety of the income, and the payments to the grandchildren ceased in 1751, when the last of the persons entitled under that bequest died. The trust was then indebted to the Company and continued so for about eight years. No separation of the moieties of the accounts took place until long afterwards. The account was continued under the head of Royley's Trust as one fund, and as the payments to members of his family had ceased altogether, and the objects of the charity were so limited as to exhaust only a portion of the income, the gross fund had considerably increased. Up to the 1st January 1836 the Commissioners of Inquiry (Reports, vol. 32, part 2, p. 428) found that the aggregate accumulation was 5,912*l.* 15*s.* 8*d.*, of which the balance of the charity moiety was 1,714*l.* 4*s.*, and of the other or family moiety, 4,198*l.* 11*s.* 8*d.* The Company subsequently presented their petition to the Court of Chancery under Sir Samuel Romilly's Act, stating the will, and stating that the property, one moiety of the rents and profits whereof was by the will devised to charitable purposes aforesaid, consisted of certain tenements and premises in Old Street, St. Luke's, Middlesex, and had very considerably increased in value, and then produced a yearly rental of about 275*l.*, and one moiety of the said yearly rental was, and for some years past had been, more than sufficient for fulfilling the charitable bequests to which the same was devoted by the said testator, and there was then a considerable balance in the hands of the Company, which had arisen from the overplus of the moiety of the said rents after answering the charitable purposes and bequests aforesaid, and stating also that the Company were desirous of the direction of the Court of Chancery for the application of the balance and the future regulation of the said charity; and praying that it might be referred to the Master to inquire into the trusts of the charity declared by the testator's will, and to settle a scheme for the future management thereof, and for the application of the said charity funds towards the charitable objects mentioned in the said testator's will, or as near thereto as might be, having regard to the increase of the said funds.

The Court, by its order of the 31st January 1840, referred it to the master to settle a scheme for the future regulation of the charity and for the application of the income of the said charity funds towards the said charitable objects mentioned in the said testator's will, or as near thereto as might be, having regard to the will and the income of the funds, and it was ordered that the Attorney-General should have notice of the order, and be at liberty to attend the Master. The Master, by his report of the 24th May 1841, found that, besides the moiety of the annual rents (then 137*l.* 10*s.*), the balance of the surplus of the said moiety which had been accumulated had been invested by the Company in 1,898*l.* 18*s.* 7*d.* 3*l.* per cent. Consols, the annual dividends of which were 56*l.* 19*s.* 2*d.*, and he thereupon approved of the following scheme for the administration of the increased income.

* JOHN RAINEY'S CHARITY.

27th April 1866.—By an order of the Board of Charity Commissioners of this date the Company were authorised to grant a lease for the term of 80 years, from Midsummer 1866, at the ultimate annual rent of 1,408*l.*, of property situate in Talbot Court, Gracechurch Street, London, comprised in an agreement to which such order was annexed.

21st January 1863.—By an order of the said Board of this date the Company were authorised to grant a lease of No. 2, Talbot Court, aforesaid upon the terms of the said agreement.

27th August 1869.—By an order of the said Board of this date the Company were authorised to grant a renewal of a lease of No. 56, Gracechurch Street, for the term of 80 years, from Midsummer 1866, at the annual rent of 220*l.*, the lessee undertaking to lay out on the property not less than 2,700*l.*

20th February 1877.—By an order of the said Board of this date the Company were authorised, within the period of six calendar months (which period was subsequently extended for a further period of three months) to complete an arrangement for the sale of property in Talbot Court, Gracechurch Street, for the sum of 470*l.*, upon the terms of an agreement whereon such order was endorsed.

The sum of 470*l.* was subsequently remitted to the banking account of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds and invested in their name in Consols.

14th June 1878.—By an order of the said Board of this date the Company were authorised to grant a lease for the term of 60 years at the annual rent of 420*l.*, of No. 56, Gracechurch Street, London.

1st. That the sum of 40*l.* shall be annually paid to 80 poor men of the said Company of Drapers by equal portions on the 5th of November in each year.

2nd. That the sum of 2*l.* shall be paid annually to the minister of St. Mary-le-Bow for preaching a sermon on the 5th November in every year; the sum of 1*l.* to the clerk or sexton for his pains and for candles; the sum of 1*l.* to the youngest warden of the said Company for the time being to take the oversight of the distribution of 40*l.* to such poor as aforesaid; and the sum of 16*l.* to the person the court of assistants shall appoint to gather the rents of the said charity messuages and tenements and receive the dividends of the charity fund.

3rd. That the said court of assistants shall in future expend any sum of money not exceeding 30*l.* for placing forth a boy, and any sum not exceeding 20*l.* for placing out a girl, and that such court of assistants shall in selecting such boys and girls give a preference to the children of widows of members of the said Company, and shall in placing forth such boys and girls expend any sum not exceeding 5*l.* in placing forth a boy, and not exceeding 20*l.* in placing forth a girl, and that when and as often as the Company shall have in their hands any of the moneys aforesaid ready to be advanced in the manner herein-before stated, that the said court shall cause to be posted up in some conspicuous place in the porter's lodge at the entrance of the said Hall, in manner heretofore accustomed as to the said gifts 5*l.* and 3*l.*, a notice that such moneys are ready to be advanced, and shall in default of applications cause to be advertised in two or more of the London daily newspapers a notice to the like effect.

4th. And that the court of assistants shall apply the residue of the income of the said charity estate and funds, if any, in placing forth poor boys and girls of the court, having regard to the preference directed by the said testator's will as to the children of widows of members of the said Company.

The court by its order of the 5th August 1841 confirmed the Master's report, and directed the costs to be taxed and paid out of the said accumulated stock.

The present estate of the charity is one moiety of the rents of the following property:—

	£	s.	d.
Nos. 28 and 30, Old Street, St. Luke's. { Building lease to James Gardner for 61 years, from Midsummer, 1844.	20	0	0
No. 29, Old Street and Builders Yard. { Building lease for the same term to Samuel James.	10	0	0
Nos. 1 to 5, Royley Street, St. Luke's. { Building lease for the same term to Thomas Moore.	10	0	0
Nos. 6 to 10, Royley Street, St. Luke's. { Building lease to John Brain's representatives, same term.	30	0	0
Nos. 11 and 12, Royley Street, St. Luke's. { Building lease to R. H. Shrewsbury, same term.	21	0	0
Nos. 13 to 16, Royley Street, St. Luke's. { Building lease to John Brain's representatives, same term.	24	0	0
	115	0	0
Of which the moiety of the charity is 2,000 l. Consols 3 l. per cent. standing in the name of the Company, consisting of the residue of the 1,898 l. 18 s. 7 d. mentioned in the Master's report, after paying costs and a small subsequent accumulation	57	10	0

This is applied as follows under the scheme—
A sum of 10*s.* a-piece is given to so many poor freemen of the Company as apply for it at the warden's court held in the month of November (not exceeding 80). For three years past the full number have not applied. In 1858 there were 77 applicants. In 1859 and 1860 only 75 in each year — 37 10 0
The minister 2*l.*, clerk and sexton of Bow Church 1*l.* — 3 0 0
In 1860 one apprentice fee (a girl) — 5 0 0
In 1859 40*l.* was assigned; and
In 1858 100*l.* (three 30*l.* and one 10*l.*).
The clerk 16*l.* and the wardens 1*l.* — 17 0 0
At the close of the year 1860 there was a balance to the credit of the charity of 294*l.* 17*s.* 5*d.*

The remaining moiety of the estate was, as it has been seen, devised by the testator to be disposed of by his trustees and their successors "amongst such of his grandchildren by such sums and proportions as the court of assistants should for the time being think fit, having respect to the necessities of his grandchildren not going beyond two degrees from his daughter." The accumulation on this account in 1836 has been stated as 4,198*l.* 11*s.* 8*d.*, and the subsequent accumulations, in the absence of any appropriation, might be readily calculated. It will be seen that this fund was not, nor was the moiety of the estate from which it proceeded, the subject of any question in the proceedings in the Court of Chancery. The gift of the rents to the grandchildren would, I apprehend, have been a gift of the corpus (unless it be read as a reservation for the benefit of two degrees of the kinsfolk only), but that right does not appear to have been insisted upon, and the claimants on the income of the fund expired a century ago. The Drapers' Company under these circumstances claim to hold the property as lapsed to them and subject to no further claim, charitable or otherwise.

I should, however, observe that the Company have determined to apply the accumulated fund as of their own bounty towards the erection of an educational institution and almshouses at Tottenham (mentioned elsewhere), and to dedicate the growing income of the same moiety until further order for the maintenance of the same institution.

THOMAS RUSSELL'S CHARITY (Will).

Thomas Russell, by his will of the 7th July 1593, devised to the Drapers' Company certain messuages in the city of London, to pay 19*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* yearly, viz.:—

	£	s.	d.
To 13 poor members of the Company, 2 s. 6 d.
a month - - - - -	19	10	0
To the renter and beadle - - - - -	0	3	4

The Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 32, part 2, p. 436) state the income of the premises described under this devise at the time of the inquiry, and the fact that the specific payments only were applied to charitable trusts, and they add that in order that it might be determined whether the Company were entitled to the surplus rents, the case had been certified to the Attorney-General.

On the 10th January 1839 an information ex-officio was filed by the Attorney-General against the Drapers' Company, praying that it might be declared that the whole of the rents and profits of the said premises ought to be applied to the purposes in the said will pointed out or to some other like charitable purposes. And that the said Company were not entitled to appropriate any part thereof to themselves. And that the said Company might be decreed to make good and pay, to be applied as aforesaid as the Court might direct, the whole surplus of such income which had been so retained by them as aforesaid during such time as to the Court might seem just. And that it might be declared how such increased rents, together with whatever might be coming from the said Company, ought to be applied, and that, if necessary, it might be referred to the Master to approve of some proper scheme.

The Court, by its decree of the 17th July 1840, declared that the whole of the rents referred to were applicable for the charitable purposes of the will of Thomas Russell, or to some other like charitable purposes, and directed the account of the receipts of the defendants since the filing of the information to be taken, and a scheme to be settled for the future administration of the charity. The decree appears to this point to have been taken by consent. By a decree, on further directions, of the 16th December 1845, it was declared that the scheme in the Master's report of the 10th December 1845 was a proper scheme for the future administration of the charity, and the costs of the Attorney-General were ordered to be paid out of the 1,898*l.* 8*s.*, the balance found due from them in respect of the charity estates, and the residue of the said sum was ordered to be invested in Consols in their names, and the interest was directed to be applied as part of the income of the charity. A printed copy of the scheme, which was settled by the Master, is appended to this report.

The present property of the charity is—

The sum (except the allowance of 20*l.* to the clerk) is disposed of in pensions of 25*l.* each to 19 poor of the Company, according to the scheme. They are necessarily free of Company, and are selected by the master and wardens at their court, at their discretion, without other qualification.

The scheme allows 20*l.* a year to the clerk of the Company.

On the 31st December 1860 there was a balance of 10*s.* 8*d.* against the trust.

RUSSELL'S CHARITY (Deed).

Thomas Russell, by deeds poll of the 6th July 1593, gave to trustees (the same being afterwards conveyed to the Company) a yearly rent of 50*l.* 10*s.*, charged on messuages and hereditaments, called the Crown rents, in St. Leonard, Shoreditch, on trust, to pay—

	£	s.	d.
To 20 unbeneficed preachers at St. Paul's Cross, each 10 s.	10	0	0
Churchwardens of St. Leonard, Shoreditch, for bread to the poor on Sunday	2	12	0
Two poor scholars of Oxford and Cambridge, each 6 l. 13 s. 4 d. for six years each	13	6	8
To the poor of Barton, Staffordshire	2	12	0
To the school there	21	10	0

The Company receive 40*l.* 8*s.* (the land tax being deducted) from the representatives of Mr. Smart, the owners of property in Shoreditch.

The Company receive annually a certificate from the Lord Mayor of the preceding year of the names of the ministers who have preached at the Cathedral Church of St. Paul before the Lord Mayor during his mayoralty, and the Company then pay the sum of 8*l.* to the Chamberlain of the City, leaving the distribution to the City functionaries. I do not see exactly the purpose of the certificate, nor does it appear whether any of the preachers are unbeneficed.

The sums of 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, without deduction, are paid to two scholars of Oxford and Cambridge, selected by the court of assistants of the Company.

The sum of 2*l.* 12*s.* is paid to the churchwardens of St. Leonard, Shoreditch, and the same to the churchwardens of Barton, Staffordshire.

The Company also pay 30*l.* 10*s.* to the master of the Barton Free School, Staffordshire.

The present master is Mr. George Heap. He was appointed by the Company on the recommendation of the visitors of the school. I have addressed certain questions to him as to the state of the school, to which, by a letter of the 9th May 1861, he replied as follows:—

“Free School, “Barton-under-Needwood,
May 9th, 1861.

“Sir,

1. “THE premises generally are in a very dilapidated condition. The roof is bad, and lets in the wet in many places, and in one place it is falling in. One of the gables is falling off. The floors are worn through in several places. The doors are out of repair and fit very badly. The fireplaces are worn out. The windows are most of them falling out. The watercloset wants moving, it being near the front door, and smells badly. A new pump is wanted. The brickwork wants pointing, as the mortar is falling out of the joints, and some of the bricks are loose near the foundation. The fences are very bad round the premises. There are no suitable outbuildings.

“The house is occupied by the master, who also holds the land adjoining the school, this and two small allotments are worth about 9*l.* 10*s.* per annum.

2. “There are 80 names on the books. Boys only are admitted. The number is not limited.

3. “The age of admission is six and upwards. A charge of 1*s.* per annum is made for firing. All reading books and slates used in the school are provided by the school fund committee at Barton, but copy-books, pens and ink, and books for home lessons the parents provide.

4. “Admission to the school is obtained by the parents or guardians making application to the master. Children living in Barton, Tatenhill, Dunstall, and Wichnor are admitted free.

5. “There are two private day scholars who pay each 6*d.* per week.

6. “The present course of instruction is of an elementary character, comprising reading, writing, spelling, arithmetic, grammar, English history, and geography. Greek and Latin are not taught.

7. “The present master is not a graduate of a University or Certificate.

9. “Formerly there were 12 visitors appointed by the Drapers' Company. Three of these are dead, three have left the neighbourhood, and the remaining six are living in or near Barton.

“In reference to question 6, I understand that application was made some years ago to the Draper's Company for an alteration in the course of instruction, which was granted.”

(Signed) GEO. HEAP.

It should be observed that the Company pay annually 57*l.*, being much more than they receive. The increased allowance had been made to the school whilst the charity of the same founder under the will was administered as it was before the information. Since the information the Company have not withdrawn the extra payment.

The Drapers' Company in the year 1841 were led to institute proceedings in the Court of Chancery for liberty “either at once by a writing under their seal, or after such inquiries and by such mode of proceedings as the Lord Chancellor might direct, to remove or to declare the removal as from the 9th December 1840 (or such other terms as the Court should direct) of William Thompson from the “office of Master of the Grammar School.” It appears that the Court on the 16th July 1841 ordered “that the Company should exercise visitatorial jurisdiction in the matter of the petition and upon the charge made thereby against William Thompson. And that the several persons who had made affidavits in support of the petition should attend and be examined by such members upon such charge, with liberty for the said William Thompson to attend such inquiry by himself, his counsel and solicitor, and to cross-examine such witnesses, and also in contradiction and defence of and against such charge to call and examine such witnesses and to make such statement before the said Company and their said assessor as he should think fit. And that all witnesses before giving their testimony be sworn either before one of the Masters of the Court or before a Master extra in the country, and after such inquiry should have been made,—it was ordered that the said Company be at liberty if they should think fit and adjudge by writing under their corporate seal to remove the said William Thompson from being schoolmaster.”

The visitation was held, an assessor having been duly appointed; the master and wardens of the Draper's Company, by their order of the 18th February 1842, adjudged by writing under the corporate seal “that the said William Thompson be and he was thereby removed from being the schoolmaster of the Free Grammar School of Barton-under-Needwood, in the county of Stafford, upon the ground of the allegations of immoral conduct charged against the said William Thompson, or such schoolmaster as aforesaid having been in our judgment and opinion established before us.”

The Company in respect of this inquiry incurred a charge of 259*l.* 19*s.* 11*d.* for costs. In 1844 they expended 82*l.* 19*s.* 8*d.* in the repair of the school. On the 31st December 1861 there was on the books of the Company a balance of 757*l.* 16*s.* 1*d.* against this charity. The Company would probably have been entitled to the costs of removing the master out of the charity funds, if they had asked to retain them. How far the other excess of payments would be allowed may be a question.*

AGNES SMITH'S CHARITY.

Agnes Smith, sometime before 1620, gave the Company 50*l.* for 50*s.* a year to be paid to the churchwardens of St. Leonard's, Shoreditch, annually. This is paid accordingly on their annual receipt.

JOHN SMITH'S CHARITY.

John Smith, by a direction given inter vivos on condition that the Company would make the payments after directed, gave them 1,250*l.* to distribute amongst 20 poor, honest, decayed men of the Company 25*l.* annually, and—

* THOMAS RUSSELL'S CHARITY.

30th November 1882.—Her Majesty, by Order in Council of this date, declared Her approbation of the following scheme for the administration of the charity.

SCHEME for the ADMINISTRATION of the above-mentioned FOUNDATION, except as is in this SCHEME mentioned.

1. This foundation and its endowment, except as in this clause provided, shall henceforth be administered under this scheme under the name of Thomas Russell's Charity, herein-after called the foundation, by the Worshipful Company of Drapers of the City of London, herein-after called the Company. Nothing in this scheme shall affect such interest in the schoolhouse of the foundation as by a deed dated the 4th day of February 1873 was transferred to the school board of Barton-under-Needwood under section 23 of the Elementary Education Act, 1870.

2. The part of the endowment to be henceforth applied for purposes not educational shall consist of the following yearly payments to be made by the Company, that is to say:—

To 20 preachers yearly, preaching at Paul's Cross, not being benefited, 10*s.* each, if and so far as any such payment can be made;

To the churchwardens of the parish of St. Leonard's, Shoreditch, in the county of Middlesex, 2*l.* 12*s.*, to be by them applied for the poor of that parish as heretofore;

To the churchwardens of Barton-under-Needwood, 2*l.* 12*s.*, to be by them applied for the poor of that township as heretofore.

Subject as in this scheme provided, the endowment shall be applied wholly to the educational purposes of this scheme.

3. Religious opinions, or attendance or non-attendance at any particular form of religious worship, shall not in any way affect the qualification of any person for being a member of a governing body under this scheme.

4. From and after the date of this scheme all lands and hereditaments, not being copyhold, belonging to the foundation, and all terms, estates, and interests therein, shall vest in the Official Trustee of Charity Lands and his successors in trust for the foundation; and all stock in the public funds and other securities belonging to the foundation shall be transferred to the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in trust for the foundation.

5. The Company shall pay to the school board of Barton-under-Needwood the yearly sum of 19*l.*, to be by them applied in providing prizes and scholarships to be awarded to boys and girls who are and have for not less than three years been in any public elementary school or schools in the school district of Barton-under-Needwood, and have from the principal teacher or principal teachers of such school or schools a certificate or certificates in writing of their good conduct, regularity in attendance, and proficiency during that period. The amount of each scholarship shall be applied or accumulated by the governors for the benefit of the holder in payments for education, deposit in a Post Office Savings Bank, or such other manner as they think fit.

6. Subject to payment of any necessary or proper outgoings, the residue of the income of the foundation shall be applied in maintaining an exhibition, tenable for three years at either of the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, and to be awarded under such conditions not inconsistent with the provisions of this scheme as the Company may from time to time prescribe to deserving students who are

The founder appears to have desired to make a different appropriation of this fund by his will, which has not, however, been attended to.

The 25*l.* is paid yearly to the account of the charities general, and forms part of the distribution under that head (see Sir R. Champion's Charity). The clerk and rent gatherer receive 8*s.* 4*d.* a year and the beadle 3*s.*, and the upper porter 2*s.* a year.

SIR SAMUEL STARLING'S CHARITY.

Sir Samuel Starling, by his will of 7th August 1673, directed his trustees to convey to the Company a messuage in the parish of Saint Sepulchre to distribute one moiety of the rents for the relief of the poor of the Company and the other moiety for the use of the stock of the said Company.

The sum of 4*l.* a year is still paid by the Company to the account of the charities general, as representing the benefaction of the donor, nothing in Giltspur Street (parish of St. Sepulchre) being now belonging to the Company. It remains as at the last inquiry.

and have, for at least two terms, been resident at either of those universities, and who are, in the judgment of the Company, in need of such aid.

7. No boy or girl shall, by reason of any exemption from attending prayer or religious worship, or from any lesson or series of lessons on a religious subject, be deprived of any advantage or emolument under this foundation to which he or she would otherwise have been entitled.

8. Any income of the foundation not applied under the foregoing provisions, and not needed as a balance to meet current expenses, shall, on passing the yearly accounts, be invested in the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in trust for the foundation in augmentation of its endowment.

9. The Company may receive any additional donations or endowments for the general purposes of the foundation. They may also receive donations or endowments for any special objects connected with the foundation which shall not be inconsistent with or calculated to impede the due working of the provisions of this scheme. Any question arising upon this last point shall be referred to the Charity Commissioners for decision.

10. Within the limits prescribed by this scheme the Company shall have full power from time to time to make regulations for the conduct of their business and for the management of the foundation, and such regulations shall be binding on all persons affected thereby.

11. Any question affecting the regularity or the validity of any proceeding under this scheme shall be determined conclusively by the Charity Commissioners upon such application made to them for the purpose as they think sufficient.

12. If any doubt or question arises within the Company as to the proper construction or application of any of the provisions of this scheme, the Company shall apply to the Charity Commissioners for their opinion and advice thereon, which opinion and advice when given shall be binding on the Company and all persons claiming under the foundation who shall be affected by the question so decided.

13. From the date of this scheme all jurisdiction of the ordinary relating to or arising from the licensing of any master under the foundation shall be abolished.

14. From and after the date of this scheme all rights and powers reserved to, belonging to, claimed by, or capable of being exercised by any person or body other than Her Majesty as visitor of the foundation shall be transferred to Her Majesty, and all such rights and powers, and also any like rights or powers vested in Her on the 2nd day of August 1869 shall be exercised only through and by the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales.

15. The Charity Commissioners may from time to time, in the exercise of their ordinary jurisdiction, frame schemes for the alteration of any portions of this scheme, provided that such schemes be not inconsistent with anything contained in the Endowed Schools Act, 1869, and amending Acts.

16. From and after the date of this scheme the foundation shall for every purpose, except as herein-provided, be administered and governed wholly and exclusively in accordance with the provisions of this scheme, notwithstanding any former or other scheme, Act of Parliament, charter, or letters patent, statute, or instrument relating to the subject-matter of this scheme.

17. The Company shall cause this scheme to be printed, and copies may be sold at a reasonable price to all persons applying for the same.

STOCK'S CHARITY.

John Stock, by his will of the 26th February 1780, gave the Company 100*l.*, and the interest applied annually for the benefit of the poor of the Company. The sum appears to have purchased 200*l.* 3*l.* per cent. Consols. The sum of 6*l.* a year is carried to the account of the charities general for the benefit of the poor of the Company.

STOCK'S GIFT TO CHRIST'S HOSPITAL.

John Stock, by his will of the 26th February 1780, empowers the Drapers' Company to present one boy to be maintained and clothed in Christ's Hospital. The presentation, when a vacancy occurs, is made by the court of assistants.

STOCKER'S CHARITY.

John Stocker is said to have directed by his will (date unknown) that the Drapers' Company should between the feasts of All Saints and Christmas yearly distribute to the poor people of the parish of Saint Mary, Abchurch, one load of coals.

s. d.

To the poor prisoners of the King's Bench, Marshalsea, White Lion, Newgate, and Bethlehem, each 5*s.* in bread 25 0
Master and wardens - - - 5 0
The Company pay 2*l.* a year on the receipt of the churchwardens of the parish of St. Mary, Abchurch, and send yearly at Christmas 50 2-lb. loaves to each of the prisoners of the Queen's Bench, Marshalsea, Newgate, Bethlehem, and Horsemonger Lane.

The distribution is in kind, and delivered on the receipt of the governor or keepers. The bread in 1860 was 5*l.* 18*s.* 9*d.* The 5*s.* is carried to the account of the master and wardens, making 8*l.* 3*s.* 9*d.* in lieu of 3*l.* 10*s.*, the founder's gift.

TARN'S CHARITY.

William Tarn and the Drapers' Company, by their indenture of the 18th July 1799, declared the trust of the sum of 400*l.* Consols transferred by W. Tarn to the Company to pay the dividends (after deducting 20*s.* for executing the trust) to the rector and churchwardens of the parish of Middleton-in-Teesdale for supplying coals or other fuel for the use of the school at Newbiggin in the said parish.

The Company remit annually, on application, the sum of 11*l.* to the minister and churchwardens of the parish of Middleton-in-Teesdale. The last receipt was on the 8th of July 1857, expressed to be for the gift due to the 5th of July 1857. No application has been since made, and three years' dividends are in hand.

SIR WILLIAM TERRY'S CHARITY.

This charity does not appear to have taken effect. Nothing more is known of it than at the last inquiry.

THOMPSON'S CHARITY.

Lawrence Thompson, by his will in 1601, gave to the Company 100*l.*, to be lent out at 5*l.* per cent., and the interest paid to the poor of St. Peter, Cornhill.

The 100*l.* forms part of 3,811*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* mentioned in Clonne's Charity, and the 5*l.* is paid annually to the churchwardens of the parish of St. Peter, Cornhill.

THOROWGOOD'S CHARITY.

William Thorowgood, by his will of the 6th August 1602, gave an annuity of 4*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* out of houses in Aldgate for poor decayed brothers and sisters of the Company. The Company receive 4*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* from the owners of the property, and carry it to the account of the charities general (see John Rainey's Charity).

TORKINGTON'S CHARITY.

John Torkington is stated in the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 32, part 2, p. 434) to have devised to the Company, by his will of the 19th October 1563, a messuage in the parish of St. Edmund, to pay 40*s.* to the use of the poor of that parish. The Company have no property in the parish, and I cannot find that any payment of this description has been ever made. There is no notice of this will in the books of the Company, and I am ignorant of the source of the former report.

JOHN WALTER'S ALMSHOUSES in ST. GEORGE'S, SOUTHWARK, and ST. MARY'S, NEWINGTON.

John Walter, by his will of the 17th October 1656, gave to the Company certain messuages in trust to pay out of the rents—

ST. GEORGE, SOUTHWARK ALMSHOUSES.

The land for the erection of the almshouses in St. George's Fields appears to have been conveyed in the lifetime of Mr. John Walter, and that, in 1650, eight almshouses had been built upon it, and by a deed of the 20th February in that year it was declared that the four houses lying next together towards Newington should be from time to time inhabited by aged, godly, and distressed poor people of the said parish of good name and fame and of quiet life and honest conversation, and none to be chosen but such as, for the space of two years then before, should have received relief of the said parish, unless there should happen such an extraordinary object of charity as therein-after mentioned who had not received parish relief, and yet should be thought more fit to be preferred than any other, and that the said parishioners should elect only those poor as should inhabit those four houses, namely, to inhabit the corner house thereof, two poor aged and godly single men, and to inhabit the other three houses, six poor aged and godly single women, two in each house: that the two houses lying next such four houses should be for the habitation of four single women or widows of the said parish, two in each house, to be appointed by the wardens of the Company, and the two houses lying next together northward for the habitation of such poor as the four wardens of the Drapers' Company should elect to be taken from any place whatsoever, and that of those two houses, the corner house should be for two men, and the other for two single women or widows; and it was agreed that the parishioners of St. George's (several being parties to the deed) should from time to time repair the almshouses or should forfeit the benefit of the election of their parish poor.

SAINT MARY, NEWINGTON, ALMSHOUSES.

The same John Walter appears to have in his lifetime built eight almshouses and a chapel, for which, by a deed of the 2nd January 1650, ordinances were made in most respects similar to those for the St. George's almshouses above stated, with the exception that the almshouses were to be chosen from St. Mary's parish. This deed provides that six of those eight almshouses erected as aforesaid should be from time to time for the dwellings of the honest, quiet, aged, and godly poor of that parish: the corner house westward for two men, and the three houses next it and the two houses next the chapel on the east side of that chapel for ten women of that parish, two to dwell in every house together. And that all the poor only to dwell in the four houses on the west side of the chapel should be from time to time thereafter named and chosen by such of the parishioners of that parish as thereafter mentioned, they making their election of such poor people and in such manner as thereafter expressed, and that those poor people to dwell in the other two houses on the east side of the chapel, and in the two houses lying together next them towards the east should be for the several dwellings of such godly, aged, or fit poor as the four wardens of the Drapers' Company should from time to time name, elect, and place to dwell or inhabit therein, and the poor which were to dwell in the said two last-mentioned houses towards the east were to be taken away from any place, town, or parish whatsoever, and that of those two houses the corner or end house should be for the habitation of two men, and the other house for the habitations of two single women or widows. And it was further agreed that if thereafter at any time the master, wardens, and court of assistants of the Drapers' Company or the said founder should find cause and think fit to have but one person to dwell in every of those eight almshouses, that, then, and from time to time thereafter there should be but one to dwell in every of the said houses accordingly.

The lord of the manor of St. Mary, Newington, appears to have been a party to the deed settling the site of the almshouses in that parish, being part of the waste of the manor, which I presume became enfranchised by this conveyance.

The will of the testator devising the estate for the endowment before referred to, in addition to the specific provisions above stated for the poor in the almshouses and the various officers, appointed that such honest and godly poor as should happen to be sick, extreme aged, blind, or bedrid and could not work, but by want should be like to perish, should, in the time of such their necessities, and to avoid extremities, be relieved (as their necessities might require) by the said governors or paymaster with some part of the moneys which should happen to be in stock for the said poor. And he appointed the two younger wardens to be governors of the almshouses. Various other directions for the government of the institutions are set forth in the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 32, part 2, p. 407), which it is unnecessary to repeat.

A further endowment arose from ANN MILLS' GIFT.

Ann Mills, by an indenture of the 10th December 1690, granted to the Company two messuages in Lime Street and land in Islington, upon trust, to apply the rents for the relief of the poor of the almshouses in St. George's and Newington. The property derived from this source is numbered in the tabular statement of the Charity estate, Nos. 12 and 13 (page 354).

The other endowment of the almshouses arose from WALTER and RICHARD MILLS' GIFTS.

Dr. Walter Mills and Richard Mills in the year 1725 each gave to the Company 350*l.* South Sea Annuities (making together 700*l.* South Sea Annuities) in trust, to pay to the almspeople of St. George's and Newington and also to eight almspeople in the St. Leonard, Shoreditch, almshouses 10*s.* per annum each. This has now become 794*l.* 6*s.* 6*d.* (part of 1,489*l.* 8*s.* 9*d.*) Reduced 3*l.* per cent. Annuities. The South Sea Annuities have been paid off (see Table No. 10 below). Under the second clause in the scheme hereafter mentioned, the Company are directed, after the retention of 5 per cent. commission, to pay the dividends to the St. George's and Newington almshouses and to the Shoreditch almshouses in equal portions. The construction of this has been one third to each set of houses. I rather think equality of each recipient was meant, but it must be remembered that the number of the almspeople were formerly the same in each house.

The Commissioners of Inquiry by their Report, (vol. 32, part 2, pp. 408, 409), set forth the estate and the management of the institution up to the time of their inquiry.

On the 31st May 1852 an information was filed against the Drapers' Company by the Attorney-General at the relation of James Brooker and John Ireland, two inhabitants of the parish of Saint Mary, Newington, which was several times amended by adding parties, and praying that an account of the estate might be taken, and that it might be ascertained and declared in whom the legal estate of the said almshouses, chapel, and premises were then vested. And that it might also be ascertained who and what classes or class of persons were entitled to elect the said almspeople according to the true construction of the said indenture of the 2nd January 1650 and of the 10th September 1650, or either of them, and the said will of the said testator John Walter, and that it might be referred to the Master to settle a plan or scheme for the future application of all the rents and profits, interest, dividends, annual produce, and revenues respectively belonging to the said endowment of almshouses in the said parish of Saint Mary, Newington, to the use of the said charity according to the trusts of the indenture of the 2nd January 1650 and the will of the said testator, and such other gifts and bequests as aforesaid respectively, or as near thereto as might be.

The information came on to be heard on the 11th June 1855, when an inquiry was directed of who or what classes or class of persons were entitled to elect the almspeople for the almshouses in the parish of St. Mary, Newington.

The chief clerk certified that the persons so entitled were the rector or parson, the churchwardens and overseers of the poor of the said parish, and so many of the parishioners as had borne the office or place of churchwarden or overseer of the said parish or the greater number of them assembled at a public meeting or vestry to be convened in manner by the said indenture of 2nd January 1650 prescribed, and the four wardens of the Drapers' Company.

The chief clerk's certificate (dated in December 1855) further stated other particulars of the deed of settlement, together with a local Act of the 54 Geo. 3., relating to powers for rebuilding the workhouse of St. Mary's parish, whereby the rector, churchwardens, and overseers, and also the justices of the peace for Surrey resident in the said parish, together with certain persons therein named, and their successors to be appointed in manner therein-after mentioned, were appointed governors and guardians of the poor of the said parish for the purposes of well-governing, providing for employing and managing the poor and for carrying the several other purposes of the said Act into execution. And that by the 57th section of the same Act the inhabitants of the said parish in vestry assembled were required to nominate eight householders, of whom the justices of the peace for the eastern half hundred of Brixton and borough of Southwark should appoint four to be overseers, and such persons so nominated should thenceforth, together with the churchwardens for the time being, be overseers of the poor of the said parish, and they were thereby required to take upon themselves the office of governor and guardians, and to perform all duties of the said office, as well as the matters and duties incident to the office of overseers of the poor.

The information came on to be heard for further consideration on the 6th March 1856, when the costs of the suit were directed to be taxed and paid out of the funds of the charity, and a proper scheme was ordered to be settled by the judge of the court. In accordance with this order the costs found due to the different solicitors and paid in the year 1856 amounted to 1,671*l.* 15*s.* 5*d.*

It was on the 12th November 1857 ordered that the application should be adjourned to be heard in Court upon the question whether the right or election conferred by the deed of the 20th February 1650 was not a duty, power, or privilege within the meaning of the 19 & 20 Vict. c. 112. s. 3., and therefore to be exercised by the vestry elected under the provisions of the 18 & 19 Vict. c. 120., as amended by the last-mentioned Act, or whether it was in the minister, churchwardens, and overseers, and such parishioners of the parish of St. George-the-Martyr, Southwark, as should pay taxations to the poor, and should not keep inmates or poor lodgers, or the greater number of them. And this question coming on the 25th February 1858, it was declared by the Court that the minister, churchwardens, and overseers, and such parishioners of St. George-the-Martyr, Southwark, as pay taxations to the poor, and do not keep inmates or poor lodgers, or the greater number of them, assembled at a public meeting or vestry to be convened for the purpose, pursuant to the provisions of the deed dated the 20th February 1650, were the parties to be represented in proceeding on the inquiries directed by the order of the 1st August 1857, or such of them as related to the last-named parties; and with that declaration it was ordered that the said application be remitted back to Chambers.

Several questions arose in the discussion in Chambers as to the right of the several portions of the charitable objects to a rateable increase of the income of the charity, and as to the right of a wider class of poor to participate in the gift in cases of great distress and emergency, under the clause in the will above referred to. The case was argued in Court as well as in Chambers, and judgment was delivered by the Vice-Chancellor (Kindersly) on the 5th March 1860, a transcript of the short-hand writer's notes of which judgment is annexed to this report.

The scheme ultimately settled by the Court and confirmed on the 27th April 1861 is as follows:—

1. The Drapers' Company shall have power to grant leases of the charity estates for any term not exceeding 21 years in possession, provided that such leases be at the best rent that can reasonably be obtained and without fine or foregift.

2. The Drapers' Company shall pay the dividends to accrue due on the sum of 794*l.* 6*s.* 6*d.* Reduced 3*l.* per cent. Annuities (which represents the gifts of Walter Mills and Richard Mills), after deducting the commission of 5 per cent. on the amount thereof, which is to be paid to their clerk in three equal portions among the poor inhabiting the three several almshouses at St. Leonard's, Shoreditch, St. Mary, Newington, and St. George's, Southwark.

The Drapers' Company shall carry the income arising from the land which was the gift of Robert Render, after deducting the like commission of 5 per cent. to be paid to their clerk to the account of the St. Mary, Newington, almshouses, to be wholly applied as a part of the income of such almshouses.

The Drapers' Company shall carry the income arising from the land, which was given by Ann Mills, in equal moieties to the accounts of the almshouses of St. Mary, Newington, and St. George's, Southwark, to be applied as parts of the incomes of such almshouses respectively.

Out of the income of the remaining trust property and funds of the charity, there shall be paid by the Drapers' Company to the trustees of the municipal charities of the city of Hereford for the time being, or any two of them, 20*l.* per annum, to be applied for the benefit of the poor of that city.

To the clerk of the Drapers' Company for the time being, a commission or salary after the rate of 5*l.* per cent. per annum on the income of such remaining trust property and funds, which commission or salary is to cover all expenses for collecting the income and keeping the accounts of the charity, but this allowance and the previously allowed commission to the said clerk of the Drapers' Company is not to exceed in the whole the annual sum of 50*l.*

To the vestry clerk of the parish of St. George's, Southwark, and to the clerk of the governors and guardians of the poor of St. Mary, Newington, 10*l.* per annum each, and an additional sum of 2*l.* 2*s.* per annum to each of such clerks for books, printing, stationery, postages, and other incidental expenses.

To the beadle of the Drapers' Company 1*l.* per annum and to the two elder or upper wardens of the Drapers' Company 10*l.* per annum, to be equally divided between them, and to the poor of the Drapers' Company 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* per annum.

To the clerk and sexton of each of the two parishes of St. Mary, Newington, and St. George's, Southwark, 13*s.* per annum, to be equally divided between them; and to the parsons or rectors of the two last-named parishes for visiting and spiritually comforting the almspeople, the sum of 3*l.* 3*s.* each per annum.

3. Out of the accumulated fund already made of the charity property, the sum of 40*l.* sterling shall be paid to the trustees of the municipal charities of the city of Hereford for the time being, or any two of them, to be applied for the poor of the said city, and the sum of 53*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* sterling shall be applied for the poor of the Drapers' Company, and the sum of 205*l.* 17*s.* 8*d.* sterling shall be carried to the account of the St. George's, Southwark, almshouses, to make good deficiencies in annual payments heretofore made, and the residue of such accumulated fund (subject to the payment of the costs of this suit) shall be divided into two equal parts, one of which shall be carried to the account of the St. Mary, Newington almshouses, and the other to the account of the St. George's, Southwark, almshouses, and such parts thereof as shall consist of cash shall be respectively invested in 3*l.* per cent. Consolidated Bank Annuities.

4. The income of such part of the accumulated fund, as under the preceding direction shall be carried to the account of the St. Mary, Newington, almshouses, or as shall be invested to that account under the directions herein-after contained, and one moiety of the surplus income of the charity, after making the payments directed by the second clause, shall be applied according to the provisions herein-after contained with reference to the income of the St. Mary, Newington, almshouses, and the surplus (if any), less only such sum as it may be necessary to retain in hand for current purposes, shall be invested in 3*l.* per cent. Consolidated Bank Annuities to the account of the St. Mary, Newington, almshouses. The income of such part of the accumulated fund as under the preceding direction shall be carried to the account of the St. George's, Southwark, almshouses or as shall be invested to that account under the directions herein-after contained, and one moiety of the surplus income herein-before mentioned shall be applied according to the provisions herein-after contained with reference to the income of the St. George's, Southwark, almshouses, and the surplus of such last-mentioned income (if any), less only such sum as it may be necessary to retain in hand for current purposes, shall be invested in 3*l.* per cent. Consolidated Bank Annuities to the account of the St. George's, Southwark, almshouses.

MODE of applying the separate INCOME of ST. MARY, NEWINGTON, ALMSHOUSES.

5. The number of the poor in the St. Mary, Newington, almshouses shall be increased to sixteen.

6. The Drapers' Company shall, with the approbation of the judge of the Court of Chancery, to whose Court this cause and matters are attached, to be obtained by summons at Chambers, provide by addition to or alteration of the existing almshouses belonging to St. Mary, Newington, or by the erection of new almshouses on the same or any other site, or in such other mode as shall be deemed preferable, proper accommodation for the number of almspeople, and the costs of so doing shall be paid out of the capital of the fund standing to the account of the St. Mary, Newington, almshouses.

7. The St. Mary, Newington, almshouses shall be kept in good repair, and insured against fire out of the income belonging to the said almshouses.

8. Three-fourths of the inmates of the St. Mary, Newington, almshouses shall from time to time be elected out of such of the poor of that parish as shall be honest, godly, and fit persons inhabitants of that parish, and who shall be deemed fit objects of charity by the majority present at any meeting duly convened of the following persons, viz., the rector and churchwardens and overseers of St. Mary, Newington, for the time being, the governors and guardians of the poor of that parish for the time being, and such of the ratepayers in that parish as shall have held any of the above-mentioned offices who shall be resident in that parish, or who being non-resident shall have given to the said clerk to the said governors and guardians notice in writing of their places of residence, which persons are herein-after described in the aggregate as the electors of St. Mary, Newington. The rest shall be chosen by the Drapers' Company as they shall see fit.

9. The electors of St. Mary, Newington, shall hold their meetings at such time and place as they shall determine. At every such meeting seven shall be a quorum; every election made shall be immediately certified to the Drapers' Company by the clerk to the governors and guardians of the poor of St. Mary, Newington, whose duty it shall also be to convene and attend the meetings of the electors, and keep proper minutes of the proceedings at such meetings. And that the mode of convening such meetings shall be by the said clerk giving five clear days' notice in writing to such electors, to be left at their usual place of abode (if residing in such parish), and in case of any such electors residing out of the said parish, then such notice shall be sent by post to the places of residence of such last-mentioned electors, as they shall from time to time have specified in writing to such clerk.

10. The Drapers' Company shall be at liberty to expend a sum not exceeding 20*l.* a year in providing medical attendance on and medicine and medical comforts for the inmates of the St. Mary, Newington, almshouses.

11. Each of the almspeople in St. Mary, Newington, almshouses shall receive 1*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.* per calendar month, and 2*s.* 6*d.* on the annual visitation by the Drapers' Company, and further, two tons of coals a year. But these allowances shall be rateably reduced if the income proves deficient.

MODE of applying the separate INCOME of the ST. GEORGE'S, SOUTHWARK, ALMSHOUSES.

12. The number of the poor in the St. George's, Southwark, almshouses shall be increased to 16.

13. The Drapers' Company shall, with the approbation of the judge in Chambers, to whose Court this cause and matters are attached, to be obtained by summons at Chambers, provide by addition to or alteration of the existing almshouses belonging to St. George's, Southwark, or by the erection of new almshouses on the same or any other site, or in such other mode as shall be deemed preferable, proper accommodation for the number of almspeople, and the cost of so doing shall be paid out of the capital of the fund standing to the credit of St. George's, Southwark, almshouses.

14. The St. George's, Southwark, almshouses shall be kept in good repair and insured against fire out of the separate income of the said almshouses.

15. Three-fourths of the inmates of the St. George's, Southwark, almshouses shall from time to time be elected out of such of the poor of the parish as shall be honest, godly, and fit persons, inhabitants of the parish, and who shall be deemed fit objects of charity by the majority at a meeting duly convened, of the following persons, viz., the rector of St. George's, Southwark, for the time being, and the churchwardens and overseers of the poor, and such parishioners of the parish of St. George-the-Martyr, Southwark, as pay taxations to the poor, and do not keep inmates or poor lodgers, or the greater number of them, assembled at a public meeting or vestry, to be convened for that purpose, pursuant to the provisions of the deed dated the 20th day of February 1650, which persons are herein-after described as the electors of St. George's, Southwark. The rest shall be chosen by the Drapers' Company as they shall see fit.

16. The Drapers' Company shall be at liberty to expend a sum not exceeding 20*l.* a year in providing medical attendance on and medicine and medical comforts for the inmates of the St. George's, Southwark, almshouses.

17. Each of the almspeople in the St. George's, Southwark, almshouses shall receive 1*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.* per calendar month and 2s. 6d. on the annual visitation of the Drapers' Company, and further two tons of coals a year; but these allowances shall be reduced if the income prove deficient.

RULES applicable to both sets of ALMSHOUSES.

18. No inmate shall be absent for any time exceeding 48 hours without the consent in writing of one of the wardens of the Drapers' Company, and then only for such time as such consent shall authorise.

19. The wardens of the Drapers' Company shall have power to remove from the almshouses any inmate who, in their judgment (which shall be final), shall be guilty of insobriety, immorality, or unbecoming conduct, or shall become unfit to remain an inmate.

20. The wardens of the Drapers' Company, or any two of them, accompanied by their clerk, shall visit and inspect each set of almshouses twice in each year without further expense to the charity than that of coach hire.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

21. If the surplus income applicable to either set of almshouses shall at any time exceed 100*l.* a year, the Drapers' Company shall apply to the Charity Commissioners of England and Wales for directions as to how such surplus shall be applied.

22. This scheme shall be printed by the Drapers' Company at the expense of the charity, and a copy given to each member of the court of assistants of the Drapers' Company, and to each rector and vestry clerk of each of the parishes of St. Mary, Newington, and St. George's, Southwark.

The decree of the 27th April 1861 declares that the surplus income of the charity estates is applicable to the almshouse charities of Saint Mary's and Saint George's, and approves the foregoing scheme and directs the costs to be taxed and paid.

represents the estate of the charity which was formerly situated in Lombard Street, and which is mentioned in the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 32, part 2, p. 408), where it is stated that two houses in Lombard Street belonging to this endowment were required by the Corporation for improving the approaches to London Bridge, and that the sum of 3,370*l.* was fixed as the price to be received by the Company for such houses. This money was paid into the Court of Exchequer, and the premises in Lombard Street were, by deed of the 23rd March 1837, conveyed to the London Bridge Trustees, and the purchase money was laid out in the purchase of 3,703*l.* 6s. Consols in the name of the Accountant-General, "The account of John Walter's Charity." Under subsequent orders of the Court of Chancery the purchase of an estate, called Harlington Grange Farm, was directed to be made on behalf of the charity for the sum of 3,150*l.*

By an indenture of the 7th August 1845, between Robert Lindseil of the first part, the Rev. Edward Lindseil of the second part, and the Drapers' Company of the third part, the parties of the first and second parts, in consideration of 3,150*l.*, conveyed to the Company a capital messuage, with the outbuildings, yards, orchard, and garden thereunto adjoining,

* JOHN WALTER'S ALMSHOUSES AND OTHER CHARITIES.

30th October 1874.—By an order of the Board of Charity Commissioners of this date, Company were authorised to sell for the sum of 730*l.* to the Commissioners of Sewers a piece of land, containing 180 square feet, forming the frontage of No. 30, Lime Street, City. The period of six calendar months, limited by the foregoing order of the completion of the sale, was by a subsequent order dated 27th October 1876, extended for a period of six calendar months from that date.

The purchase money (730*l.*) was subsequently remitted to the banking account of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds, and invested in their name in Consols in trust for the charity.

25th May 1875.—By an order of the said Board of this date, the Company were authorised to grant a lease of No. 30, Lime Street, City, for the term of 80 years, from 25th March 1874 at the annual rent of 100*l.*

The houses in each parish are occupied by 12 poor persons. In the St. Mary's almshouses there are two men, one of whom is married, and 10 women. In St. George's almshouses there is one man and 11 women, nine have been appointed in each place by the respective parishes, and the remainder by the Drapers' Company.

The expenditure for 1860 was as follows:—

Newington almspeople, 1 l. 7 s. 1½ d. per month each (the excess over the 24 s. to the other Institution has arisen from a division of the 15 l. a year (No. 14) which has been continued to the married members)	195	6	0

There was at the end of the year, 1860–1, a balance of 3,161*l.* 15*s.* 1½*d.* to the credit of the charity. This will be applicable to the costs, and to the extension of the charity under the scheme.

In my report on the administration of the charities of the city of Hereford, I called the attention of the Board to the distribution of this charity in that city in small sums to a vast number of persons as one of no utility or advantage. The same distribution is still continued; the payment is made by the Drapers' Company to the mayor of Hereford, and they receive a certificate from some gentlemen of the city, I presume deputed by him, of the manner of application. The last certificate was as follows:—

"To all to whom this present writing shall come, but especially to the worshipful wardens of the Linen Drapers' Company, London, greeting," "We, the undersigned, Edward Howells, of Hereford, clerk, Frederick Whitfield, of the same city, wine merchant, and Richard Johnson, town clerk for the city, do hereby certify that we did, on the 17th and 21st January, distribute 20*l.* bequeathed by J. Walter, late citizen and draper of London, to the poor distressed inhabitant householders, residing in the city of Hereford, and the suburbs thereof, in the sum of fourpence each, and that we did for that purpose attend the several dwellings of the said poor distressed persons, as witness, &c."

(And then follow the names of all the recipients of the charity).*

27th February 1877.—The following order of this date, affects the provisions of the 21st clause of the scheme for the administration of the charities:—

In the matter of JOHN WALTER'S ALMSHOUSES, in the respective parishes of St. George's, Southwark, and St. Mary's, Newington, in the county of Surrey, regulated by a scheme established by an order of the High Court of Chancery made in the matter of "John Walter's and other Charities," and dated the 29th April 1861; and In the matter of "The Charitable Trusts Acts, 1853 to 1869."

Whereas by the 21st clause of the above-mentioned scheme it is provided that if the surplus income applicable to either set of almshouses shall at any time exceed 100*l.* a year the Drapers' Company shall apply to the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales for directions as to how such surplus shall be applied:

And whereas the master, and wardens, and brethren,

ALICE WALTER'S ALMHOUSES, IN ST. LEONARD, SHOREDITCH.

Alice Walter, the widow of John Walter, by deed poll of the 13th April 1658, gave to the Drapers' Company 400*l.*, they engaging to pay 20*l.* per annum, as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
To the eight poor almspeople	-	19	4 0
To the four wardens	-	0	10 0
Clerk of the Company	-	0	6 0

and she gave a further sum of 100*l.* to the said Company, they paying 5*l.* a year for coals for the almshouses.

The parish, it appears, purchased the ground on which the almshouses in Saint Leonard, Shoreditch, stand, and the houses were erected by contributions by John Walter in his lifetime, and by his friends.

These almshouses have no other endowment. The only estate of the charity consists of the eight almshouses which are situated in Old Street, in the parish of St. Leonard, Shoreditch, together with eight other almshouses which have been subsequently built on the same ground and other contributions. The whole constitute a block of buildings of one storey, with four outer doors.

Each occupant has one room. Fourteen are chosen by the parish and two by the Company. They are all women at present. Eight of the 16 almswomen receive 5*s.* 10*d.* per month each, making 28*l.* a year, which includes the 10*s.* each, under the gift of Walter and Richard Mills, and 24*l.* (not 24*l.* 4*s.*), under the deed poll of April 1658, above referred to. In this case, and also in those of St. George's, Southwark, and St. Mary's, Newington, the pensions of the poor of the Company who are in the almshouses are made up to 2*l.* 2*s.* 0*d.* per month each, from the funds of the Company, as charged on the account of the charities general.

WHEELER'S CHARITY.

Nicholas Wheeler, by his will of the 28th January 1618, bequeathed to the Company 60*l.*, to be lent to two young men of the Company, paying 15*s.* each to the relief of the poor of St. Giles', Cripplegate.

The 60*l.* forms part of the 3,811*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* mentioned in Clonne's Charity. The 30*s.* a year is paid to the churchwardens of St. Giles', Cripplegate.

WILSON'S CHARITY.

Robert Wilson, by his will dated in 1639, gave to the Drapers' Company 100*l.*, to be lent to a young freeman of the Company at 1*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* per cent. interest, to be distributed at Christmas between poor men of the Company.

The 100*l.* is part of the 3,811*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* mentioned in the report on Clonne's Charity, and the 1*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* is appropriated to the pensions on the roll (see Kendrick's Charity).

WINCH'S CHARITY.

Robert Winch, by his will of the 15th August 1671, gave to the Drapers' Company 200*l.*, to be lent to two young members of the Company, at 40*s.* per cent. It does not appear that more than 100*l.* was received by the Company, and they were, in fact only charged with that sum in the report of the master on the loan charities, dated the 14th December 1843. The fund is administered under the decree of the Court, for which see Clonne's Charity.

The sum of 4*l.* a year is carried to the account of the Company's general charities, and applied to the pensions of the poor on the roll (see Kendrick's Charity).

The sum which, under the deed poll of the 22nd June 1843, is stated as the interest of this charity, to be paid by the Company, is only 2*l.* a year, being the 40*s.* per cent. on the 100*l.*; however, 4*l.* appears to be the annual appropriation.

and Sisters of the Guild or Fraternity of the Blessed Mary the Virgin of the Mystery of Drapers of the City of London, commonly called the Drapers' Company, being the trustees of the said above-mentioned charities, have represented to the Board of Charity Commissioners that the amount of the surplus income of each of the said set of almshouses now exceeds 100*l.* a year, and have requested the sanction and authority of the said Board for applying a sufficient part of such surplus income in increasing the stipends of the inmates of the said almshouses respectively:

Now the said Board, having considered and inquired into the premises, do hereby order and direct, that, subject to, and until the further order or direction of the said Board, the said Company, as such trustees as aforesaid,

The Commissioners of Inquiry in their Report (vol. 32, part 2, p. 447) set forth the foregoing list of gifts and legacies, which, they state, are recorded in the books of the Company, to be lent out in sums varying from 20*l.* to 50*l.* each, for different periods, without interest, comprising together 20 donors, "Dame Helen Branch and others," and amounting altogether to a capital sum of 2,270*l.* The Commissioners add that no money has been lent out by the Company for a great number of years, nor any steps taken to comply with the object of the donors, and that they had therefore certified these cases to the Attorney-General.

I have stated in my report on Clonne's Charity the information filed by the Attorney-General ex-officio in respect of the other loan charities, but I do not find that any proceedings have been taken with reference to any of the cases comprised in these 20 gifts. They have never formed the subject of any account in the books of the Company, and the only record of them is, therefore, the wills or entries of the donations. It is possible that they have been lost. A committee of the Company, on the 8th December 1791, observe that as to money left by different donors to be lent to young tradesmen, it was supposed that such moneys had been long since lost. It is unfortunate, perhaps, that the above-mentioned sums were not included in the suit mentioned in Clonne's case. As the matter at present stands, I can only submit it to the Board whether it should or should not be brought under the notice of the Attorney-General.

The gifts of Sir Richard and Lady Champion of 200*l.* and 100*l.*, included in the above donations, were also the subject of certificate to the Attorney-General, but neither in this case do any proceedings appear to have been taken.

All which I submit to the Board.

THOS. HARE,
Inspector of Charities.

17th December 1861.

APPENDIX.

FRANCIS BANCROFT'S CHARITY.

By an order made by the Board of Charity Commissioners for England and Wales in the matter of Francis Bancroft's Charity, dated the 4th day of March 1859, upon the application of the Drapers' Company as the trustees of the said charity, the said Company as such trustees were authorised to apply by petition to the Court of Chancery for an Order of Board, 4th

March 1859.

shall be at liberty, if, and so long as the amount of the surplus incomes of the said respective almshouses after providing for the proper repair and maintenance of the buildings belonging thereto will admit, to appropriate and apply so much of the said surplus income of the said respective almshouses as may from time to time be necessary in increasing the pensions or stipends of the inmates of the said respective almshouses from 1*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.* per month to 2*l.* 2*s.* per month.

Sealed by order of the Board this 27th day of February 1877.

(L.S.)

HENRY M. VANE,
Secretary.

order empowering them to carry into effect a certain contract or agreement, dated the 17th day of January 1859, for the purchase on behalf of the said charity at the price of 3,000*l.* certain freehold property situate in the city of London, and to provide the purchase money partly by the realisation of the sum of 930*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* Bank 3*l.* per cent. Annuities standing in the name of the Accountant-General of the said court in trust for the Eastern Union and Hadleigh Junction Railway Act, 1846, the account of the Drapers' Company, trustees of Francis Bancroft's Charity, and partly out of the general funds of the charity.

By an order made by the said Board in the matter of the above-mentioned charity, dated the 31st day of January 1863, upon the application of the trustees of the said charity, the said trustees were authorised to apply by petition to the said Court of Chancery for an order, in pursuance whereof certain copyhold hereditaments belonging to the said charity situate in the parish of Chiswick, in the county of Middlesex, might become vested in certain individual trustees to be approved by the said Court.

By an order made by the said Board in the matter of the said charity, dated the 14th day of June 1867, the said trustees were authorised to sell part of the trust estate belonging to the said charity situate on the north side of the Mile End Road, in the parish of Stepney in the county of Middlesex, for not less than the sum of 1,050*l.*; and it was by the said order directed that the purchase money should be paid by the said trustees to the banking account of the Official Trustees for investment in their name in trust for the said charity.

By an order made by the said Board in the matter of the said charity, dated the 10th day of December 1867, it was ordered that the sum of 369*l.* 19*s.* 7*d.* sterling, which had been paid by Mr. Joseph Blood in respect of the enfranchisement of certain copyhold property, should be paid to the banking account of the said Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in trust for the said charity.

By an order made by the said Board in the matter of the said charity, dated the 7th day of July 1868, the trustees of the said charity were authorised to grant a building lease of a piece of land fronting to the Mile End Road in the county of Middlesex, for the term of 80 years, at the yearly rent of 40*l.*

By an order made by the said Board in the matter of the said charity, dated the 11th day of January 1870, it was ordered that the sum of 140*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.* sterling, which had been paid by Mr. William Matthews in respect of the enfranchisement of certain copyhold property, should be paid to the banking account of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in trust for the said charity.

By an order made by the said Board in the matter of the said charity, dated the 31st day of May 1872. The trustees of the said charity were authorised to effect the purchase of certain property mentioned in the schedule to the order, comprising three pieces of land, formerly part of Clapton Hall Farm, near Dunmore, in the county of Essex, known as part of the River Mead, and containing 2*a.* 3*r.* or thereabouts, for 165*l.*, and to provide the requisite funds by the sale of a sufficient part of the sum of 1,115*l.* 10*s.* 9*d.* Consols held by the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds.

By an order made by the said Board in the matter of the said charity and of the charity founded in or about the year 1693 by Henry Dixon, dated the 29th day of October 1872, the Drapers' Company, as the trustees of the said charities respectively, were authorised to grant a building lease of certain pieces of land belonging to the said charities situate in the Poultry and Queen Victoria Street in the city of London, containing 4,000 square feet or thereabouts, for the term of 80 years from the 24th day of September 1871, at the annual rent of a peppercorn for the first year of the said term, 1,000*l.* for the second year of the same term, and 2,000*l.* for the residue thereof.

By an order made by the said Board in the matter of the said charity dated the 12th day of May 1874, the trustees of the said charity were authorised to take such proceedings at law as they should be advised were necessary against Mr. William Randall Lacey for recovering possession on behalf of the said charity of certain hereditaments known as Nos. 9, 10, and 11 in the Poultry, and No. 34 in Bucklersbury, in the city of London.

By an order made by the said Board in the matter of the said charity, dated the 13th day of August 1874, the trustees of the said charity were authorised to enfranchise and sell certain property mentioned in the schedule to the order, comprising a close of land, called One Acre Pasture, adjacent to Clapton Hall Farm in the parish of Great Dunmow, in the county of Essex, for not less than 18*l.* 10*s.*

By an order made by the said Board in the matter of the said charity, dated the 20th day of November 1874, the trustees of the said charity were authorised to sell certain property mentioned in the schedule to the order, comprising 4 closes of land, known as Eight acres, Three acres, Five acres, and Five acres, and containing respectively 8*a.* 2*r.* 19*p.*, 3*a.* 3*r.* 26*p.*, 5*a.* 3*r.* 5*p.*, and 5*a.* 3*r.* 25*p.*, being part of the aforesaid Clapton Hall Farm, for not less than 847*l.*

By an order made by the said Board in the matter of the said charity, dated the 10th day of January 1875, the trustees of the said charity were authorised to erect two new cottages and to repair certain other property belonging to the said charity, called the Clapton Hall Farm, at a cost of 1,000*l.*, and to apply the above-named sum of 847*l.* for that purpose, and to provide the remainder of the cost by the sale of certain timber belonging to the said charity standing upon the said farm.

By an order made by the said Board in the matter of the said charity, dated the 9th day of February 1875, the trustees of the said charity were authorised to exchange with Sir George Howland Beaumont the property mentioned in the first schedule to the said order, comprising a piece of land containing 2*a.* 3*r.*, forming part of the aforesaid Clapton Hall Farm, for the property mentioned in the second schedule to the order, comprising two pieces of land containing respectively 1*a.* 1*r.* 2*p.* and 2*r.* 16*p.* or thereabouts.

By an order made by the said Board in the matter of the said charity, dated the 3rd of March 1876, the trustees of the said charity were authorised to grant a lease of certain property mentioned in the engrossment of the said lease upon which the said order was endorsed.

By an order made by the said Board in the matter of the said charity, dated the 31st day of October 1876, the trustees of the said charity were authorised to sell certain property mentioned in the schedule to the order, comprising a piece of land, containing 10,300 square feet or thereabouts, situate adjoining St. Benet's church, in the parish of Stepney, in the county of Middlesex, for not less than 500*l.*

By an order made by the said Board in the matter of the said charity, dated the 3rd day of November 1876, upon the application of the trustees of the said charity, the said Board approved of the enfranchisement which had been effected by the said trustees of certain copyhold property, comprising two messuages situate on Chiswick Mall, in the said county of Middlesex, with the garden and appurtenance, in consideration of the sum of 91*l.* 11*s.* 2*d.*, and the said trustees to effect the enfranchisement of certain copyhold, comprising a cottage and garden, called Potters; a messuage, with the orchard and garden, called Courtmans; and a tenement and one acre of land, called Cock Watts; a messuage erected in place of a tenement, called Printers, with the appurtenances; and a tan yard, called Bird's Garden, all situate in the parish of Prittlewell, in the county of Essex, these in the occupation of Mr. Benjamin Spurdelow, at a cost of 535*l.*, and to provide the amount of the aforesaid cost and proper incidental expenses by the sale of a competent part of the sum of 3,245*l.* 11*s.* 2*d.* Reduced 3*l.* per cent. Annuities then held by the said trustees.

By an order made by the said Board in the matter of the said Francis Bancroft's charity, dated the 10th day of November 1876, the trustees of the said charity were authorised to execute a certain deed poll, upon the engrossment whereof the said order was written for the effectuation of a certain arrangement referred in the said deed poll.

By an order made by the said Board in the matter of the said charity, dated the 8th day of January 1878, the trustees of the said charity were authorised to sell certain property mentioned in the schedule to the order, comprising two pieces of land containing respectively 1*a.* 6*r.* 0*p.* and 2*a.* 5*r.* 0*p.* or thereabouts, situate in North Street, Prittlewell, in the county of Essex.

By an order made by the said Board in the matter of the said charity, dated the 12th day of April 1878, the trustees of the said charity were authorised to effect the enfranchisement of certain copyhold property mentioned in the first schedule to the said order, comprising certain lands, messuages, and tenements held of the Crown manor of Enfield and of the manor of Worcester, both in the county of Middlesex, at a cost of 439*l.* 9*s.* 2*d.*, and to provide the amount of the aforesaid cost and proper incidental expenses by the sale of a competent part of the sum of 2,278*l.* 10*s.* 11*d.* Consolidated 3*l.* per cent. Annuities there held by the said trustees.

By an order made by the said Board in the matter of the said charity, dated the 6th day of May 1879, the trustees of the said charity were authorised to accept from the Local Board of Health at Enfield, in the said county of Middlesex, the sum of 60*l.* for compensation in respect of damage alleged to have been occasioned by the said Local Board to property belonging to the said charity situate at Enfield Lock, in the said county of Middlesex, and it was by the said order directed that the said sum of 60*l.* should be paid by the said trustees to the banking account of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds, to be held by them in trust for the said charity.

By an order made by the said Board in the matter of the the said charity, dated the 15th of February 1881, the trustees of the said charity were authorised to sell certain property mentioned in the schedule to the order, comprising two messuages with the gardens and appurtenances, situate on The Mall, in the parish of Chiswick, in the county of Middlesex, for not less than 3,000*l*.

This list revised 22nd March 1883, and corresponds with the files in the matter.

A. W.

HENRY DIXON'S CHARITY.

By an order made by the Board of Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, in the matter of Henry Dixon's Charity, upon the application of the trustees of the said charity, dated the 3rd of April 1883, the trustees of the said charity were authorised to sell, for not less than 2,000*l*., the property described in the schedule to the said order, comprising a piece of land containing 3 acres or thereabouts, situate at Forty Hill, Enfield, in the county of Middlesex, abutting upon a road leading from Enfield Chase to Enfield.

19th June 1863.—By an order of the Board of Charity Commissioners of this date, made in the matter of John Pemel's Almshouse Charity, the Company were authorised to sell the almshouses belonging thereto, situate near the turnpike-gate, Mile End Road, in consideration of the sum of 1,800*l*. sterling, and of the further sum of 3,333*l*. 6*s*. 8*d*. Consols.

19th June 1863.—By a further order of the said Board of this date made in the matter of John Pemel's, Sir John Jolles', and John Edmanson's Charities, the Company were authorised to sell or permanently appropriate a piece of land at Bow, possessed by them in trust for Sir John Jolles' and John Edmanson's Charities aforesaid, as a site for new almshouses for the purposes of Pemel's Charity aforesaid, upon the following terms:—

1. That the Company should, out of the said sum of 3,333*l*. 6*s*. 8*d*. Consols, appropriate 400*l*. in trust for Sir John Jolles' Charity, and 133*l*. 6*s*. 8*d*. in trust for John Edmanson's Charity.

20th April 1869.—By an order of the said Board of this date made in the matters of Sir John Jolles', John Pemel's, and John Edmanson's Almshouse Charities, and of Thomas Corney's Charity, the Company were authorised to sell a dwelling-house, called "Elmslea," in the parish of Tottenham, in the county of Middlesex, and a piece of land, containing 1*a*. 1*r*., together with a right of way to a place called Bruce Grove, in trust for the sole use and benefit of Thos. Corney's Charity, in consideration of the sum of 3,000*l*., to be provided out of the funds of that charity, and to apply the said sum towards payment of the sum of 14,920*l*., authorised by the Court of Chancery to be expended in the erection of new almshouses for the aforesaid almshouse charities.

21st November 1876.—By an order of the said Board of this date made in the matter of Thomas Corney's Charity aforesaid, otherwise "The Drapers' Company's "Female Orphan School," at Tottenham, it was directed by way of scheme—in partial variation of the provisions of the founder's will—that the limit of age for the continuance of girls at the school, fixed by such will at 15 years, be in special cases, with the approval of the trustees and upon the recommendation of the head mistress, exceeded for such period as the trustees may determine from time to time.

11th February 1879.—By an order of the said Board of this date, made in the matter of—1, Thomas Corney's Charity, and 2, Sir John Jolles', John Pemel's, and John Edmanson's Almshouse Charities, the Company were authorised to carry into effect the several transactions contemplated by the agreement, dated the 29th May 1878, annexed to such order. And it was by such order directed as follows:—

1. That the sum of 550*l*., to be paid by the Company as trustees of Thos. Corney's Charity in respect of property to be acquired in trust of that charity under the terms of the agreement, should be provided by sale of stock held by the Company in trust for that charity.

2. That the sum of 50*l*., to be paid to the Company as trustees of the said almshouse charities under the terms of the said agreement, should be held by them in trust for those charities in the shares and proportions following, viz., as to four sixths from John Edmanson's Charity, one sixth from John Jolles' Charity, and one sixth from John Pemel's Charity.

3. That the sum of 470*l*., to be paid by the Company as trustees of the said almshouse charities in respect of property to be acquired in trust for those charities under the penultimate clause of the said agreement, should be provided by the appropriation to that object of the aforesaid sum of 50*l*., and to the extent that such sum was insufficient for the purpose, by the sale of stock held by the Company in trust for three charities, with a proviso that the said full amount of 470*l*. should, as between those charities, be provided in the shares and proportions above mentioned.

To the CHARITY COMMISSIONERS for ENGLAND and WALES.

On the proposed removal of the inmates of almshouses situated in Cooper's Row, Tower Hill, and Beech Lane, Barbican, both in the City of London, to almshouses to be erected by the Drapers' Company on a site called "The Elms" at Tottenham, Middlesex.

The Drapers' Company are the trustees of almshouses built by Sir John Milbourn, Knight, in Cooper's Row, Tower Hill; it is stated that there were originally 13, now there are 16, inhabited by 16 widows of freemen of the Drapers' Company.

An external tablet records—This edifice was erected by Sir John Milbourn, Knight, Alderman of this city, A.D. 1535; when the addition of the last three was made is not known. I saw nothing to lead me to suppose it was not about the same period. The houses are very small, low, and require thorough repair; the ventilation is bad, the small windows being all in front, and as the back wall is a party wall to other buildings no through draught can be obtained.

Many of the sitting rooms are lower than the road, under these, in a very low dark underground cellar—each house has a water-closet, &c. I was astonished that this portion of the building has not been noticed by the sanitary officers. The staircases are exceedingly narrow and difficult. I saw several of the occupants who are unable to make use of them either to descend to this place or ascend to the small bedroom above, over which there is a loft in the gable, which does not appear in many cases to be used.

Beech Lane Almshouses, Barbican, the gift of Lady Askew, are supposed to have been built either in 1540 or 1544, and thoroughly repaired in 1691, there are now eight houses inhabited by a like number of the widows of freemen of the Drapers' Company, who are the trustees of the charity, these almshouses contain only the sitting room and bed room over, and are all lower than the road; they are better ventilated and generally less objectionable than Cooper's Row.

In the yard at the back is a privy, which is the only convenience for the whole of the occupants.

These houses are in a very bad state of repair, although the external appearance does not convey that idea.

It is superfluous to add both these almshouses are situated in noisy and densely populated districts ill-suited for the residence of old age and infirmity.

The application of the Drapers' Company to the Charity Commissioners is to sanction an exchange of the 16 almshouses in Cooper's Row, and eight ditto in Beech Lane, Barbican, for a like number to be erected on their newly purchased land at Tottenham High Cross. See letter from the clerk of the Company appended.

The site known by the name of "The Elms" is stated to be singularly salubrious. I had this information confirmed by a lady who had conducted a large school on the premises for the last 25 years.

The plan of the ground and the proposed buildings will be seen in the plans also appended.

I may remark I have seen almshouses built by the Drapers' Company at Queen Elizabeth's College at Greenwich on the same plan and dimensions, and I consider them well adapted for the purpose.

Mr. Herbert Williams, of 52, Broad Street, E.C., the Company's surveyor, reports the houses now proposed to be removed are quite worn out and incapable of efficient repair, and particularly calls attention to the wretched construction of the staircases, from which accidents have occurred, and the impossibility of obtaining ventilation by back windows, or placing the water-closets in any other position than the dark underground cellars where they are at present.

The report contains the following estimate for putting in repair, to last 21 years:—

The 16 houses in Cooper's Row	-	800
The 8 houses in Beech Lane	-	400
Also valuation of the site of the houses in Cooper's Row	-	1,200
Value of old materials	-	150
Valuation of site in Beech Lane	-	400
Old materials	-	100

I have not attempted to test the accuracy of these figures by application to an unbiassed professional man, but suggested that the Commissioners would most probably require such confirmation.

The result of my endeavour to ascertain the feeling of the almspeople on their proposed removal is favourable to the plan; in fact, the only objections named were two, a few who feared the removal from connexions in the locality, and a much larger number who are apprehensive that their money cannot be expended so advantageously, and consequently will not go so far as now.

In order to gain some information on this point I visited several of the inhabitants of a considerable range of almshouses within 50 yards of "The Elms," from whom I learned that no difficulty is experienced by them in this respect, as they can obtain all necessaries at London prices.

The 16 inmates of the almshouses in Cooper's Row receive from the Drapers' Company,—four, two guineas a month; twelve, a guinea and a half a month; also 18 sacks of coals each per annum, with gratuitous medical attendance and medicines, and 2s. 6d. each at the committee's annual visit.

The eight inhabitants of Beech Lane almshouses receive each a guinea and a half a month, 18 sacks of coal each and 2s. 6d. at the visitation. No medical aid is provided for the occupants of these houses, and they receive, equally divided, the dividends on stock, amounting to 25l. per annum, bequeathed by Samuel Whitbread to the poor widows resident in the Drapers' Almshouses in Beech Lane, or wherever else the said poor women should be removed to, be equal half-yearly payments; still the addition of medical attendance is an important advantage.

I am of opinion that the proposal of the Drapers' Company, if carried out, will conduce greatly to the comfort of the recipients of each of the charities affected by it; that far better houses, much more suitably located, will be obtained; therefore, the sanction of the Commissioners may with propriety be accorded to the arrangement.

All which I submit to the Board.

JOHN SIMONS,
Inspector of Charities.

6th July 1859.

DEAR SIR,

Drapers' Hall, June 22, 1859.

I am very sorry that the absence from town of the Company's surveyor has prevented my forwarding you the plan of the proposed almshouses at Tottenham until now, and I hope the delay will not have caused you inconvenience.

With reference to our conversation when you were here, I may venture to state that the Company will be willing to exchange the site on which it is proposed to erect the almshouses at Tottenham for the sites of the present houses in Cooper's Row and Beech Lane, and I will therefore request that my application to the Commissioners may be considered to contain a proposition to that effect, which will probably be placing the subject in a more convenient shape for you to report upon.

I am, &c.
(Signed) W. H. SAWYER.

John Simons, Esq.

To the CHARITY COMMISSIONERS for England and Wales.

In pursuance of an order of the Board, dated 25th July 1862, I have inspected Sir John Pemel's almshouses, situate at Stepney, Middlesex, under the administration of the Drapers' Company, also the site to which it is proposed to remove the said almshouses at Bow, and have to report as follows:—

SIR JOHN PEMEL'S ALMSHOUSES.

Sir John Pemel, by will dated 28th February 1681, bequeathed to the Drapers' Company 1,200l., in trust, to lay out the same in land, and employ the first clear rents in the purchase of land at Stepney, and building thereon an almshouse consisting of eight rooms, and afterwards to pay—

	£	s.	d.
To the eight almswomen yearly 4l. each	32	0	0
For coal	8	0	0
To the clerk of the Company	1	0	0
For clothing for the almswomen	6	0	0
	£47	0	0

The testator directed that four of the almswomen should be poor widows of deceased freemen of the Drapers' Company, and four widows of mariners or seamen, at the time of their election inhabiting Stepney.

The said eight widows to be admitted at the court of assistants of the Drapers' Company, and subject to such orders as that court should make for their government.

The legacy received in 1682 was not laid out until 1694, when 564l. 6s. had accumulated as interest; of this 342l. 10s. was employed in the purchase of the site of the present almshouses, and the residue in building them.

In the same year the Drapers' Company, in consideration of the 1,200l. principal, charged property of ample value in Southwark and Threadneedle Street with a rentcharge of 52l. 12s. per annum, clear of all taxes, for the maintenance of the almswomen and the other purposes of the trust. This is the whole income of the charity, while the annual expenditure, which varies but little from the following statement, leaves the charity always in debt to the Company:—

	£	s.	d.
The eight almswomen receive 6s. 8d. each per month	-	32	0 0
Clerk of the Company	-	1	0 0
Coals	-	10	0 0
Medical attendant on the almspeople	-	5	0 0
Clothing, 5l. every third year	-	1	13 4
Repairs	-	say	10 0 0
Water	-	3	12 0
Insurance	-	0	18 0
Gift of 2s. 6d. each at the annual visitation	-	1	0 0
	£65	3	4

Pemel's eight almshouses are situate near to the turnpike in the Mile End Road, they are leasehold for 500 years, from Lady-day 1673, at an annual rent of 1s.

The Drapers' Company solicit the sanction of the Board to the sale of the above almshouses and site to Messrs. Mann, Crossman, and Company, of the Albion Brewery, for the sum of 1,800l., and such sum of money as will produce 100l. a year in Consols.

The approbation of the Board is also desired to the transfer of the eight widows, occupants of the above, to almshouses to be erected at Bow adjoining almshouses, and on ground belonging to Edmansons' and Jolles' Trust Estates, also under the management of the Drapers' Company.

The present almshouses consist of eight single-roomed tenements, built nearly 170 years ago, which are stated to want important repairs: this, however, did not strike me; on the contrary, considering their age, they appeared to me to have been well kept up, and in fair condition; the arrangement of them is very defective, viz., one water-closet in the centre for the use of all the occupants, one receptacle for the dust, and one cistern for the supply of water, several of the inmates being too infirm to fetch the latter are much inconvenienced; they informed me the constant noise of the thronged road and the costermongers who are established immediately in front of the almshouses are great disadvantages. I visited each house, and in no instance was the slightest objection expressed to the proposed removal.

The site to which it is intended to transfer Pemel's almshouses is situate at Bow, rather over a mile from the present building; it is in my opinion every way more desirable for the purpose, the neighbourhood far better, the premises open and extensive, transit by railway and road to the metropolis every few minutes. It will be seen from the plan accompanying the application for the sanction of the Board what portion of the ground is occupied with almshouses; there is a chapel, and a reader is appointed to officiate.

With reference to the price of the old site, I may notice Mr. Herbert Williams, a competent land surveyor and valuer, and Mr. Sawyer, the clerk to the Company, inform me it is worth the sum offered only to the owners of the brewery, that if it were let on a building lease at the highest estimated rental, it would not command anything like the value of the present offer.

The advantages to the almswomen are obvious. Mr. Sawyer informs me it is intended to give them each 27s. a month instead of their present 6s. 8d., and in exchange for their old single room, a modern house, containing a sitting room, bedroom, washhouse, watercloset, &c. to each (similar to the almshouses last built on the same plot by the Drapers' Company, which are very comfortable).

On the subject of the parties who have the right of nominating four widows from Stepney to these almshouses concurring in the proposal, I find the nomination is exercised by all the hamlets of Stepney in rotation in the following order:—

Mile End Old Town.
Poplar.
Limehouse.
Ratcliffe.
Lower Wapping.
Spitalfields.
Bethnal Green.
Mile End New Town.

The election is made by the churchwardens of each hamlet, and it is suggested that as the alteration is so manifestly advantageous to the parish widows there can be no doubt of their desire to promote it, for when some months ago it was in contemplation to remove these almshouses to Tottenham the churchwardens of each of the above districts were written to, and assented gladly, although the benefit then offered was only the improved dwelling, and that some miles from town.

There being but four elections among eight districts, there are of course many churchwardens to each hamlet who are never called upon to exercise the right of appointment.

On review of all the information I have received, coupled with a careful inspection of the premises, I am clearly of opinion that the sanction of the Board may with propriety be given both to the sale of Sir John Pemel's almshouses and site and the removal of the occupants to Bow.

All which I submit to the Board.

5th August 1862.

JOHN SIMONS,
Inspector of Charities.

DRAPERS' COMPANY.

APPENDIX.

A COPY of the WILL of MR. FRANCIS BANCROFT, deceased, late Citizen and Draper of London, with an account of the salaries, duties, and emoluments of the officers and servants of his school at Mile-end; together with the rules and orders for the general conduct of that institution.

THE LAST WILL of MR. FRANCIS BANCROFT.

I, Francis Bancroft, Citizen and Draper of London, considering the uncertainty of human life, do make my last Will and Testament, in manner and form following:

First, I recommend my soul to God my Creator, hoping through His mercy, and the merits of Jesus Christ my blessed Saviour and Redeemer, to receive pardon for all my sins, and life everlasting.

My body I desire may be embalmed within six days after my death, and my entrails to be put in a leaden box, and included in my coffin, or placed in my vault next the same, as shall be most convenient; and that my coffin be made of oak, lined with lead; and that the top or lid thereof be hung with strong hinges, neither to be nailed, screwed, locked down, nor fastened any other way, but to open freely, and without trouble, like to the top of a trunk.

And I desire to be buried in a vault which I have made and purchased for that purpose under my tomb in the parish church of St. Helen's, London, within ten days after my decease, between the hours of nine and ten o'clock at night. And I do direct, that the whole expenses of my funeral, over and above what I have hereafter given for mourning and rings, shall not exceed the sum of two hundred pounds, which I leave to the care and management of my executors herein-after named. And as to such worldly estate, as God in his mercy has been pleased to bestow upon me, subject to, and charged with, the payment of my debts, funeral charges, and legacies, hereby given, I give, devise, settle, and dispose thereof as follows:

Imprimis, I give my silver basin to the said church of St. Helen's, there to be used at the communion service, or otherwise in the service of that church; and for no other use or purpose whatsoever.

Item, I give to my cousin, William Turner, junior, a ring of twenty shillings value, and my diamond table ring, and ten pounds for mourning; and I give to my cousin, Martha Turner, a ring of twenty shillings value, and my rose-diamond ring: I give to my cousin, Nathaniel Cole, the sum of one hundred pounds: I give to my cousin, Thomas Catmore, son of Captain Thomas Catmore, the sum of five hundred pounds, in case he shall attain his age of twenty-one years, and serve out the term of his apprenticeship, and not otherwise:—likewise I give him my large trunk, marked T.B., full of linen; and the bedding and furniture of my chamber; and all my pieces of tapestry, together with my books and pictures; but not to have them removed till a month after my death, and then to be delivered to him: I give to my cousins, John and Anne Wallis, a ring of twenty shillings value to each of them; and to their children, John, Robert, Thomas, Rebecca, and Martha, five pounds per annum each, during their natural lives respectively, to be paid half yearly by even portions: I give to Mr. Francis Howard, Toyman, in St. Paul's Churchyard, and his wife, ten pounds a-piece for mourning; and five pounds per annum to the said Francis, during his life, to be paid half yearly by equal portions: I give to Sarah Marsh, in Coleman Street, and her daughter, Sarah Shaw, seven pounds ten shillings each, for mourning; and ten pounds per annum each, during life, to be paid half yearly by equal portions; and to the said Sarah Shaw, my silk-damask night-gown: I give to Mr. Robert Dobson, Woodmonger, and to Mr. Henry Hadley, Distiller, ten pounds each, for mourning; and to my cousin, Eade, and his wife; Thomas Essington, and his wife; Thomas Norton, and his wife; Robert Dobson, Corn Factor, and his wife; Mr. Henry Bedell, Scrivener; Mary Bales, William Phillips, Distiller, and Phillis Deane; and to each and every of them, a ring of twenty shillings value: I give to my tenants, James Stokes and wife; William Mollose, and his wife; Edward Earling, and his wife; and to each and every of them, a ring of ten shillings value: I give to Mr. Mark Bates, in St. Paul's Churchyard, Toyman, the sum of forty pounds: I give to Mr. John Turner, of Drapers' Hall, London, twenty pounds: I release and forgive unto Nathanael Frank the ten pounds due to me, by note under his hand, and all interest in respect thereof, and do order the same note to be delivered up by my executors: I give to William Burges, Wire-drawer, all my wearing apparel, both linen and woollen, except what is in the trunk aforesaid, together with my hats, wigs, and shoes.

Item, I give and devise to the Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters of the Guild or Fraternity of the Blessed Mary the Virgin, of the mystery of Drapers, London, and to their successors and assigns for ever, all my messuages, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, as well freehold and leasehold as copyhold, situate and being in the several parishes of Woodham-Ferris, Clement's Green, Dunmore, and Prittlewell, in the county of Essex; and in the several parishes of Chiswick, St. Giles's-in-the-Fields, and St. Margaret's, Westminster, in the county of Middlesex; and in the parishes of Raydon, Layham, and Hadley, or elsewhere, in the county of Suffolk; and in the parish of St. Gregory, in London; and all other messuages, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, whatsoever and where-soever, whether freehold, leasehold, or copyhold, whereof and wherein I am seised or possessed, or any other person or persons in trust for me, or to my use; such of the premises as are copyhold having been by me already surrendered to the use of my Will.

And also all my goods, chattels, ready money, plate, bills, bonds, mortgages, South Sea stock, Annuity stock, Orphans' stock, East India bonds, South Sea bonds, and all other my personal estate whatsoever, not herein otherwise disposed of, subject unto, and charged with, the payment of my debts, legacies, and funeral expenses. All the said estate, real and personal, amounting together, as I compute the same, to the value of twenty-eight thousand pounds, more or less; To have and to hold all and singular the premises before mentioned, unto the said Master and Wardens, and Brethren and Sisters, of the said Guild or Fraternity aforesaid, their successors and assigns for ever; so subject nevertheless, and charged, as aforesaid, upon the several trusts, and to and for the several intents and purposes herein-after mentioned and expressed; and to and for no other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever; that is to say, upon trust, That the said Master and Wardens, and Brethren and Sisters, of the said Guild or Fraternity, and their successors, do and shall, out of my personal estate, lay out and expend the sum of four or five thousand pounds, or thereabouts, more or less, as in their discretion they shall see most fitting, in the purchasing of a convenient piece of ground of inheritance, within the weekly bills of mortality of London, where they shall judge most advisable; and for the building thereon alms-houses for twenty-four old men, with a convenient chapel, and school-room for one hundred poor boys; and two dwelling-houses for two masters, and such other outbuilding, walling, and accommodations as shall be adjudged necessary and commodious for the purposes aforesaid.

And my desire is, that the said twenty-four old men shall be members of the Drapers' Company, of good life and conversation; and shall, from time to time, be chosen and admitted by the Master and Wardens of the said Company for the time being, or the major part

One in April at St. Helen's.

The other in October at St. Michael's or elsewhere.

And I do direct the said two masters shall, from time to time, be chosen and approved by the Court of Assistants of the said Company; and that, before they shall be admitted, they do give bond, with two sufficient sureties, in the penalty of one hundred pounds, or more, to be obedient and conformable to the orders of the said Company; and quietly to leave and depart from the said school and habitation, upon three months' notice, in case of dislike or misbehaviour, upon order made for that purpose by the said Court of Assistants; and that a new master be afterwards by them chosen in his stead.

And I do further direct and appoint, that the said one hundred boys shall be chosen and placed into the said school by the order and authority of the said Master and Wardens; subject nevertheless to such Orders and Rules as the said Court of Assistants, or Committee thereof, shall, from time to time, make for the good regulations and government of the said school; and for breach thereof, or other reasonable cause, that such boys shall be displaced and expelled by the same authority, and other boys chosen in their stead; and that no children shall be capable of being chosen under the age of seven years, nor above ten years, at their Election; nor be continued in the said school after the age of fifteen years.

And I do recommend to the said Company those excellent rules prescribed for the government of charity schools in Great Britain and Ireland, in a book printed by John Downing, for Jonathan Bowyer, in Ludgate Street, in the year one thousand seven hundred and ten, if the Company shall approve the same.

And my will and mind is, that the said number of one hundred boys shall be constantly kept up, in case so many poor children shall be produced and tendered for the choice and approbation of the said Company at their Wardens' Court; and that they shall be taught to read, write, and cast accounts, and well instructed in the principles of the Christian religion, according to the doctrine of the Church of England, as by law established; and I do appoint, the said masters shall read prayers in the chapel every morning and evening alternately; and that the said old men, unless hindered by sickness, or other reasonable cause, together with the boys, shall constantly attend the said service.

And upon further trust, and my will and mind further is, that the said twenty-four old men, by and out of the rents and produce of my said trust-estate hereby devised, shall have eight pounds per annum a-piece duly paid them towards their support and maintenance, by four even quarterly payments; and six sacks, or half a chaldron of coals, each yearly; and a bays gown every third year.

And that the said two masters shall have thirty pounds a-piece salary, to be paid quarterly, as aforesaid; and that twenty pounds a-year be allowed to buy coals and candles for the use of the said school and masters, as the said Court of Assistants shall direct and appoint; together with a sufficient allowance for books, pens, paper, or other necessities, for the said school; and that the said boys shall be clothed yearly with blue coats, caps, stockings, shoes, and linen, like to other charity-children; which I leave to the discretion and direction of the said Court of Assistants, or care of the said Master and Wardens, for the time being; and I do desire the said Master and Wardens, and such others of the said Court of Assistants as are usually appointed for their visitations, will be pleased once a year, or oftener if occasion requiring, to visit the said school and alms-houses; to cause the said children to be publicly examined and catechised; and to inquire into the state, condition, and behaviour of the said poor men; as well as to take, view, and give orders for the needful repairs of the said school and alms-houses; and that a sum not exceeding five pounds be expended in a dinner on that day for the said Committee; and the two masters invited to partake thereof.

Also I desire and appoint two sermons to be preached on a Sunday in the forenoon yearly for ever, in commemoration of these my charities; the one in April, in the parish church of St. Helen's aforesaid, by the minister of that parish; and the other in October, in the parish church of St. Michael's, Cornhill, or elsewhere, as the said Master and Wardens for the time being shall direct and appoint; and that the said masters and children, and old men be then and there present, and the children publicly examined and catechised; and that public notice thereof be given in the respective churches the preceding Sundays immediately after morning and evening prayer; and the ministers shall have twenty shillings each for preaching the said sermons; and the readers ten shillings each for examining and catechising the said children; and the clerks and sextons two shillings and six-pence each respectively.

And my will and mind further is, that when any of the said children shall be fifteen years old, they shall leave the said school, and be paid two pounds ten shillings to buy them clothes to fit them for service, or four pounds to place them apprentice to honest handicraft trades, as the said Master and Wardens shall think most proper; and that the said Master and Wardens and Court of Assistants shall have full power, from time to time, to displace and put out the said masters, or children, or old men, or any or either of them, and place in others in their stead, at their wills and pleasure, in case they shall conceive sufficient cause for their so doing.

And whereas I have been at considerable expense in purchasing a piece of ground, making a vault, and erecting a tomb, in the church of St. Helen's aforesaid; I do hereby give and appoint the sum of two pounds per annum for ever, and more, whensoever needful, for the cleansing, taking care of, preserving, and repairing my said vault and tomb as aforesaid; it being my intention and express desire, to have the same kept up in good order and repair for ever, whether the church be standing or not; and to that end, I hereby subject and charge all my said estate in London and Middlesex with the payment and support thereof, before any of the charities herein-before mentioned.

Item, I give to the said Fraternity of Drapers the sum of thirty-five pounds, to buy six or more silver plates, to be by them used, and kept in remembrance of me; and to the Master and Wardens and Clerk, that shall be in such office or station at the time of my decease, to each of them a ring of twenty shillings in value, whom I desire to be present at my funeral, and hold up my pall; and to the Clerk of the Company for the time being, for his care and trouble in receiving my rents, keeping my accounts, and looking after my charities, I give him the sum of twenty pounds per annum; and to his man for the time thirty shillings per annum.

Item, I do direct and appoint, that the said Fraternity shall, out of the rents and produce of my said trust-estate, pay and allow to my executors all such costs and charges and expenses as they shall be put unto on account of their executorship; and likewise shall thereout be allowed, and retain to themselves all such sum and sums of money, costs, charges, and disbursements, as they shall at any time hereafter be put unto, or reasonably expend, in and about the proving of my Will in perpetuam rei memoriam, in the Court of Chancery, and otherwise; and for all repairs, views, journeys, charges in law or equity, visitations or other expenses and outgoings whatsoever, on account of this my trust: hereby willing and desiring them, after my said school and the alms-houses are built and finished, as aforesaid, to dispose of the residue of my personal estate in the purchasing of lands, or estate of inheritance, in fee-simple, to be settled and assured as counsel shall advise, unto and upon the said Company, and their successors for ever, to answer the several charitable ends and purposes aforesaid; and, in the meantime, until such purchase or purchases may be had, to place out or continue the same at interest, or in any of the public funds or stocks, or otherwise, for the improvement thereof, as in their discretion they shall see fit; or to assign and transfer the same, as occasion may require. But my will is, that neither they, nor any of them, shall be answerable in anywise for any loss that shall or may happen by reason of any purchase or defect in any security to be by them made or taken in pursuance hereof.

And in case, at any time hereafter, there shall appear any considerable overplus of my estate beyond what is herein-before by me given and provided for, I then leave it to the Master and Wardens and Assistants of the said Company, for the time being, to apply and dispose of the same, for improving of this my charity, as they shall think fit.

And in case my said estate shall prove deficient to answer the purposes aforesaid, then I likewise leave it to the said Company to make a proportionable reduction

Masters, old men, and boys to be present, and the boys catechised.

Allowance to the minister, reader, &c. for this service.

Children to leave the school at fifteen, and allowance for placing them out.

Power of displacing masters, old men, or boys.

Allowance for repair of the vault and tomb at St. Helen's.

Directions for keeping the vault and tomb in repair, and charge on his estate for that purpose.

Six silver plates to the Drapers' Company.

Rings to the Master, Wardens, and Clerk.

Twenty pounds per annum to the Clerk for trouble; to the Clerk's servant 12. 10s. per annum.

Expenses in executing the trust to be allowed.

Also for proving the Will in Chancery.

And for repairs, views, law-charges, &c.

After building the Hospital, the residue of the personal estate to be laid out in lands.

And in the meantime to be placed at interest or in the funds.

Not to be answerable for losses by any purchase or defect in security.

The overplus of the estate (if any) to go for improving this charity.

To make a proportionable reduction of this Charity in case of deficiency in the estate; and the Company not to be prejudiced by this trust.

The executors to make over the stocks to the Company.

And to assign and deliver over to them the rest of the personal estate.

Executors appointed.

A legacy of 20*l.* to each of them.

Revocation of former Wills.

of this my charity, in such method and manner as to them shall appear most reasonable; it being my express desire and meaning, that neither the said Company, nor their estate, shall in anywise be lessened, prejudiced, or impaired by reason of their acceptance of this trust.

And I do hereby direct and appoint my executors to assign, make over, and transfer all and singular my several stocks herein-before mentioned, and all other stocks whatsoever, which I have, or am entitled unto, in any of the public companies, or otherwise, unto the said Master and Wardens, and Brethren and Sisters, of the Fraternity aforesaid; and shall likewise assign and deliver over unto them all mortgages and other securities whatsoever; and all other my personal estate, before mentioned to be by me given and devised unto them, to the end that the same may be applied by them to the several trusts, and for the several charitable purposes, herein-before directed and appointed.

And lastly, I do nominate and appoint my worthy friends, Samuel Webb, and John Gould, of Hackney, Esquires; Nicholas Cripps, of the county of Kent, Gent.; Thomas Barnard, of London, Gent.; and James Jackson, of Woodford, in Essex, Gent.; being all of them Citizens and Drapers of London, aforesaid, executors of this my last Will and Testament: and I give unto each of them twenty pounds a-piece for their care and trouble in the execution thereof.

And I do hereby revoke and make void all former or other Wills by me at any time heretofore made; and do declare this present writing, contained on six sheets of paper, to be my true and only Will. In witness whereof, I, the said Francis Bancroft, the testator, to all and every of the said six sheets my hand and seal have subscribed and set, this eighteenth day of March in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty-seven, and in the first year of the reign of our sovereign Lord King George the Second.

F. BANCROFT.

Signed, sealed, published, and declared by the said Francis Bancroft, the testator, to be his last Will and Testament, in the presence of us, who subscribed our names as witnesses thereunto, in the presence of him, the said testator, this 18th day of March, 1727.

GEORGE WAITE, Lecturer of St. Mary, Islington.
JOHN BATEMAN, of Islington.
WILLIAM UNWIN, Clerk to Mr. Turner, of Drapers' Hall.

BANCROFT'S HOSPITAL.

The Officers and Servants, with their Salaries, Duties, and Emoluments.

There are two schoolmasters and an usher.

One master is called the head master; and the present one has an annual salary of two hundred and fifty pounds; which, with the use of a house and garden, free of rent, and free from all expense of repairs and taxes, and fifty-four sacks of coals, is in full of all emoluments whatever to him; but the above-mentioned salary is not to be considered as appertaining to the office of head master, as the Court have reserved to themselves the right, upon any future appointment, of fixing it at such sum as they shall deem fit and proper.

The other master is called the under master, and the present one has an annual salary of one hundred and sixty pounds; which, with the use of a house and garden, free of rent, and free from all expense of repairs and taxes, and fifty-four sacks of coals, is in full of all emoluments whatever to him. The same observation which is made upon the subject of the salary of the head master also applies to that of the under master, as well as of the matron and other servants of the establishment.

Since January 1841 the office of præpositor has been abolished, and an usher employed instead. He is appointed by the visiting committee, and his duties are to assist in instructing the lower classes and to superintend the boys out of school hours in the playground and boarding-house. His salary is forty pounds a year, with board, lodging, and washing. The present usher also holds the office of singing-master, and receives for that twenty pounds a year more.

There is a chaplain, a clergyman of the Church of England, who has a salary of thirty-one pounds ten shillings per annum, in full of all emoluments whatever. For many years past, the office of head master and chaplain have been united.

There is a medical attendant of the hospital, who has an annual salary of eighty-four pounds, which is in full of all emoluments whatever to him; the drugs, &c. being paid for out of the trust funds.*

There is a matron, who is a single woman, who has an annual salary of sixty-three pounds; which, together with board, washing, and lodging at the hospital, free of cost, is in full of all emoluments whatever to her.

There is a woman cook, who must be a single woman without children; she has sixteen pounds per annum wages, which, together with board, washing, and lodging at the hospital free of cost, is in full of all emoluments whatever to her.

There are four other women servants, all single women without children; each of them has wages, fixed from time to time by the visiting committee; which, together with board, washing, and lodging at the hospital, free of cost, is in full of all emoluments whatever to them.

The masters, officers, and servants are not permitted to take or accept any fee, perquisite, or gratuity whatsoever from any of the tradesmen employed, or from the friends of any of the boys, or any other person upon any occasion or pretence whatsoever.

The Duties of the Two Masters.

The head master has the management of and is responsible for the general conduct of the whole establishment, and is to see that the other officers and servants perform the several duties allotted to them. The under master is in all things to be subordinate to the head master; and in the absence or sickness of the latter, the under master is to perform all his duties; and in the absence or sickness of the under master, the head master is to perform all his duties.

The duties and authorities of the two masters with respect to the alms-men are set out in the rules and orders for the government of the hospital.

The two masters (subject to the subordination of the under master to the head master), with the assistance of the usher, are to instruct, educate, and govern the boys, pursuant to the directions contained in the Founder's will; and to teach them to read, write, and cast accounts; moreover, to educate them as well in the principles of the Christian religion, according to the doctrines of the Church of England, as in loyalty to the Sovereign: and each master is to take his share of the duty according to the best of his ability. All corporal punishment to be inflicted on any of the boys is to be inflicted by the head master, and the under master is not to inflict corporal punishment on any boy, but is to show up any boy who, in his opinion, shall deserve corporal punishment, to the head master, for him to inflict it; but this does not extend to delinquencies during the absence of the head master, which, in the opinion of the under master, shall require immediate punishment.

Prayers are to be read in the chapel by one of the masters every morning on a week day, throughout the year, at half-past eight o'clock, and every evening on a week day at half-past four; and by the chaplain once on every Sunday and on Christmas Day and Good Friday, at such hour as shall be consistent with the time when Divine Service is to be performed, as herein-after mentioned.†

The under master or matron is always to be present at each of the boys' meals of dinner and supper, and at their prayers.

The two masters are never to be absent from the hospital at the same time; so that at all hours, as well out of school time as in school time, and in holiday time, one master may always be upon the spot for the government of the alms-men and boys.

The duties of reading prayers in the chapel, and attendance for government of the hospital out of school times and during holidays, are to be performed by the two masters alternately day by day, or otherwise, as they shall agree upon, or the visiting committee shall direct.

Each master is to have a master-key of the boarding-house, and of the two dormitories, and of every other apartment therein; except the private apartments of the matron and servants, and except the pantries, store-room, cellar, and wardrobe, the keys of which are to be kept

* The stipend of the medical attendant is now one hundred and twenty-five pounds per annum, and includes the charge for drugs.

† The present hours of divine service on Sundays are half-past ten a.m. and three p.m.

exclusively by the matron, but the masters are to have access thereto at reasonable times, at their pleasure, but in her presence.

The head master is to attend the master and wardens of the Company at the Hall, from time to time, for the admission of boys, settling petty accounts, and other business of the hospital.

The head master is to keep all the accounts at the hospital, and have disbursement of the petty expenses, and other sums payable which are not paid by the clerk of the Company, in usual course, or in pursuance of bills previously signed by the wardens or chairman of the visiting committee.

Both or either of the masters, as the visiting committee or master and wardens visiting the hospital, or as the clerk of the Company, shall at any time direct, is to assist them in taking and entering the minutes of their orders and proceedings at the hospital; and both the masters are to have access thereto at all times unless it shall be otherwise directed.

The two masters are freely to communicate with each other and act in concert in all matters relating to the hospital and school, subject, nevertheless, to the subordination of the under master to the head master, as herein mentioned; and in case of difference of opinion, the head master shall decide. And both masters are to report all misbehaviours, breaches of order, and neglects of the masters, officers, servants, alms-men, boys, and others, and all matters requiring the notice and attention of the governors, to the master and wardens, visiting committee, or clerk of the Company; and in case either master shall refuse to join in reporting anything which in any way shall come to the knowledge of the other, or which the other shall think necessary to be reported, such other shall report singly, and it shall be no excuse to either master, who does not report any matter which ought to be reported to the governors, that he has communicated or reported the same to the other master, or that he thought the other ought to have reported the same.

The Duties of the Chaplain.

The chaplain is to read prayers and preach in the chapel of the hospital once every Sunday throughout the year, and also on Christmas Day and Good Friday, at such hour as shall from time to time be settled.

The Duty of the Medical Attendant.

He is to attend at the hospital daily, as well on the alms-men as the boys, and is to enter minutes of such his attendance in the book which is kept at the hospital for that purpose; he is also to attend at Drapers' Hall, from time to time, to furnish information to either the court of assistants, master and wardens, visiting committee, or clerk of the Company, of the state of the boys in the school.

The Duties of the Matron.

The matron has the chief control and management of the boys out of school hours, subject to such orders as may from time to time be issued by the masters, and such assistance as may be personally given by them and the usher. She is to receive by weight and measure, and examine the quality, keep under lock and key, and deliver out by weight and measure, all provisions and stores whatever, and keep regular accounts thereof. She is to attend at all the boys' meals when the under master is not present, and assist in the carving and distribution of the victuals. She is to have the charge of the furniture and boys' clothing, and is to see that the same is kept in proper repair, and mended and kept clean, and is to keep such articles as are not in actual use locked up. She is to attend the boys and see that each boy is twice every day properly washed and combed, and especially to superintend the washing and combing of such of the little boys as cannot do those offices for themselves. She is to examine and take care of the state of the boys' health, under the direction of the medical attendant, and report to the head master, or in his absence to the under master, such as are sick and require confinement or medical assistance; and when sick, she is to see that the boys are properly nursed and assist therein, and take charge of the boys' persons in health and in sickness. She is to superintend and direct all the operations in the kitchen, and manage the whole domestic economy of the boarding-house. She is to superintend the performance of the duties of all the women servants, who are subordinate to her.

The matron is daily to visit every room in the boarding-house, and go through both the dormitories every night after the boys are in bed, to see that they are properly lodged, and that no irregularities are committed.

The matron is to make up her account of petty expenditure weekly to every Saturday night, and on the Monday following to deliver it to the head master, or in his absence to the under master, to the end that it may be regularly drawn out and entered by him.

The matron is subordinate to the masters, and should report to the head master, or in his absence to the under master, all irregularities and misconduct whatever, or anything worthy of notice, either in the boys, the servants, or relating to the building, furniture, clothes, stores, or otherwise; and she is also to make like reports of the same things to the visiting committee, or the clerk of the Company, at any visitation on board day, as well as communicating the subject of them to the masters; for which purpose she is to keep a journal wherein to enter daily all occurrences requiring note, which journal is to be produced to the visitors and their clerk, and be open to the inspection of the masters.

The Duties of the Women Servants.

All the women servants are immediately subordinate to the matron, and are to follow her directions in all things.

The cook is to perform all the cooking, light the kitchen and furnace fires, and clean and take care of the kitchen, back kitchen, sculleries, pantries, and cellar, and the cooking coppers, kitchen utensils, dishes, porringers, plates, and spoons.

The other three servants are to clean and take care of all the other parts of the boarding-house, and light the other fires therein; and make all the beds, and do such other work as the matron shall direct.

They are to assist every evening in washing and combing the boys, and attend upon and nurse any of the boys who may be sick.

They are to mend all the house linen and boys' shirts and stockings.

The cook and the other women servants, with the assistance of such of the boys as may be appointed thereto, are to do all other domestic business not herein-before described, which is to be done in or about the boarding-house, the furniture, and the boys' persons and clothes, under the superintendence and direction of the matron.

The Boys' Conduct.

The boys are to be admitted to the school by the master and wardens, at their courts at Drapers' Hall, subject to the regulations made by the court of assistants.

Every boy, previously to his being received into the school, is to bring a certificate from the churchwardens and overseers of the poor of the parish to which he belongs, acknowledging that he has a legal settlement in their parish, and undertaking to receive him on his being sent from the school at the expense of the parish, the signature of which certificate is to be verified by a declaration before a magistrate; and he is also to bring an authority in writing from his father, or nearest friend, consenting that he may be sent to his parish, or, in case of sickness or hurt, to any hospital for relief of sick persons. And every boy, previously to his admission, is to be examined by the medical attendant of the hospital, and to bring a certificate in writing from him as to the state of his health. Forms to be observed in these documents are in the appendix hereto, and are furnished to the friends of the boys by the clerk of the Company. These papers must be produced to the clerk of the Company, and are afterwards regularly filed and preserved by the head master, at the hospital. Nevertheless, the master and wardens, on consideration of any particular circumstances, are at liberty to dispense with the production of the said documents, or any of them, and to make a special order for any boy being received into the school without them, on such conditions as they shall see fit.

No boy can be received into the school until after he shall have had the small-pox or cow-pox.

No boy can be received into the school without an order in writing for that purpose, signed by the clerk of the Company, addressed to the head master, or in his absence to the under master of the school; and which order is given by the clerk, on production of the documents above mentioned, or on an order being made by the master and wardens for any boy being received into the school without them.

The order for the admission of any boy will become void unless the documents above mentioned are produced within four weeks from the date thereof, and unless the boy be admitted on the same day on which the medical certificate is dated; and it also will become void if within four weeks he shall not become entitled to be received into the school, unless the master and wardens shall by a subsequent order allow further time for either of those purposes.

Eight boys, whose discretion and good behaviour entitle them to confidence, are appointed by the head master from time to time and are called monitors, and are removable at the pleasure of the head master. Such monitors act as assistants to the masters, and superintend and are responsible for the conduct of the other boys, and report all misbehaviour to the masters; the monitor appointed for that purpose by the master rings a bell for the boys' rising in the morning, and by way of notice of school times, meal times, and bed time, and on any other occasion when it is necessary to convene the boys; and the monitors also take care of, light, and put out the candles, whenever any are used; and they wear some badge or token, to denote their authority and responsibility. The appointment to the office of monitor is considered as a reward for good behaviour, and such boys as conduct themselves well therein are presented by name to the governors at their annual visitations, for their notice.

The head master appoints by rotation or otherwise, as he may deem most advisable, such of the boys as it is found convenient to employ in assisting the servants in any domestic business; and no boy not so appointed is on any account to be employed therein, nor is any boy to be employed in any such business in any other manner, or at any other time, than shall be fixed by the general rules of the school, or than the head master, or in his absence the under master, shall direct.

The boys are lodged in separate beds, and are quartered in the dormitories at the discretion of the head master, four monitors being quartered in each dormitory, and no boy, after bed time, and before the hour of rising, is allowed to be absent from or leave his dormitory on any occasion without the previous permission of a monitor.

The boys, on the ringing of a bell in each dormitory, rise at six o'clock in the morning from Lady-day to Michaelmas, and at half-past six o'clock in the morning from Michaelmas to Lady-day; and they then immediately wash their faces and hands and smooth their hair with a comb, after which they remain in the dining hall or school room until it is time to proceed to chapel; and at eight o'clock have their breakfast.

The school duties commence at half-past seven o'clock in the morning from Lady-day, during the summer half-year, to Michaelmas, and at nine o'clock in the morning from Michaelmas to Lady-day, and continue, with the exception of half of an hour allowed for breakfast, without interruption, till noon throughout the year. When the boys come out of school at noon they proceed to do such domestic duties as may have been assigned to them.

The boys dine at half-past twelve o'clock every day, when a bell is rung to summon them for that purpose.

School recommences at two o'clock in the afternoon, and continues till the boys proceed to chapel—the afternoon of every Wednesday and Saturday, which are half-holidays, excepted.

The boys sup at six o'clock every evening.

Grace is said before and after breakfast, dinner, and supper each day, by one of the monitors, or other boy appointed by the master or under master.

At half-past seven o'clock in the evening from Lady-day to Michaelmas, and at half-past six o'clock in the evening from Michaelmas to Lady-day, the boys assemble in divisions and clean their shoes and brush their clothes; and the boys are then stripped to the waist and thoroughly washed with soap and their heads and hair washed and thoroughly combed and brushed; and as they are finished, they retire into the dining-hall. And at nine o'clock in the evening from Lady-day to Michaelmas, and at eight o'clock in the evening from Michaelmas to Lady-day, the boys go to bed, having previously united in a decent orderly manner in the dining-hall in a short evening prayer, said by one of the monitors or other boy appointed by the master, with the exception of Sunday, on which day the house prayers are always read by the senior monitor.

The boys are constantly habited in the school dress, as well when absent on leave as when at school, to the end that their behaviour may be the better observed and known.

A distinct playground is allotted for the boys, and therein there is a covered shed for them to play in in wet weather, and such shed is paved with flag-stones, and the boys are prohibited from ever remaining or playing in the front court.

The boys are not permitted to go into their dormitories in the daytime, so that they may be fresh for their sleeping in, and the windows thereof are to be kept open all day, when the weather permits.

Out of school-time the boys are in the playground before mentioned, or in the school room.

If any boy is discovered wilfully injuring the books provided at the expense of the institution, the parents or friends of such boy are deemed responsible for the value of the same.

The boys are to behave with duty and obedience to their masters, and with meekness and respect to all; they are to set a good example to each other, and refrain from vice, and more especially from stealing, lying, swearing, profanation of the Lord's Day, and other enormous crimes; and if any shall be found guilty of any such he is to be reported to the visiting committee, and punished in such way as the court may see fit.

There are no calendar holidays, and the only holidays are as follows, viz., from the day before Christmas Day to the 7th of January, and from the day after the visitation in July till the following Tuesday four weeks, and the following days only are whole holidays, viz., the 18th of March, in commemoration of Mr. Bancroft, the founder. St. George's Day, Good Friday, Easter Eve, Easter Monday, Easter Tuesday, Whit Monday, and Whit Tuesday, the Sovereign's birthday, the 5th of November, and Lord Mayor's Day, and the day after the sermons at St. Michael's and St. Helen's. On these days the boys publicly catechised are allowed to visit their friends from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

The house is kept open for the boys' board, as well during the holidays as at other times, it being optional with the friends of the boys whether they have them home or leave them at the hospital during the vacations.

During holidays and half-holidays the same hours are observed, and chapel services and other duties performed, in the same manner as in school time.

At all times previous to the boys going to chapel they are to assemble under the shed or in the school, and go from thence in a sober orderly manner, two by two, and return in the like order, and leave their books in the school.

Whenever the boys assemble for school or chapel, they meet five minutes before the time when school or chapel shall begin; and one of the monitors appointed for that purpose calls over the names of the boys and notes down such boys as are absent, and delivers the list of the absent boys to the master present, who deals with them for such neglect according to their respective deserts.

No boy is permitted to leave the hospital ground, either during holidays or at any other time, upon any occasion, without the special leave of one of the masters; nor to sleep from the hospital without leave in writing from the master, wardens, visiting committee, or one of them, or from the clerk of the Company, to be granted only for some very special reason to be assigned; and on any leave of absence being granted, the masters are to be informed where and to whom, and for what, the boy applying for leave wishes to go; and if leave be given, the master is to give the boy an absence badge, with some number or other distinguishing mark, to be carried about such boy. Any boy being out of the hospital ground without such absence badge, or in case of any deceit touching the same or his absence, or in case of any boy having leave of absence does not return within the time limited, he is deemed guilty of misbehaviour, and punished accordingly by the master, or expelled or otherwise punished at the discretion of the master, wardens, or court of assistants, if they see fit to interfere therein.

The first Wednesday and Saturday in every month are appropriated for the admission of the friends of the boys, who on such days are allowed free access to them from one p.m. till chapel time. Parents may also visit the boys in the playground between one and two p.m. any day but Sundays.

The friends of every boy who shall be expelled or dismissed the school, or shall depart therefrom without the consent of the proper authorities, shall return his clothes to the matron.

The Boys' Clothing.

Each boy has annually one jacket, a waistcoat without sleeves, and two pairs of trousers; and he has also a waistcoat with sleeves every other year.

Three shirts.

Four pairs of stockings.

Four pairs of shoes.

One cap and a black ribbon to put round the neck.

The boys have clean shirts every Sunday and every Thursday, and clean stockings once a week.

Each boy's hair is cut by a person employed for that purpose once every month, as close as scissors can be got to the head.

The boys have clean sheets once a fortnight, the sheets of the beds in the two dormitories being changed successively week after week.

Boys' and Servants' Diet.

Each boy has for breakfast every morning eight ounces of white bread, and every other morning half a pint of milk and water, in equal quantities of each; and on the intermediate mornings half a pint of cocoa.

The boys have each day for dinner fifty pounds of either roasted or boiled meat, with potatoes, and occasionally greens, and a quantity of bread averaging two ounces for each boy. Each boy has for dinner:—

Four days a week 8 oz. (undressed) meat with potatoes (or frequently green vegetable when the latter can be procured) and 2 oz. bread.

Twice a week 5 oz. meat with pudding (suet or fruit) and potatoes and 2 oz. bread.

Once a week baked rice pudding or boiled rice and treacle and 2 oz. bread.

The meat is contracted for, and is to be of the best quality—the best ox beef and the best wether mutton.—The beef is either rounds or buttocks for boiling, in pieces, as nearly as possible, of twenty-five pounds each and without bone, and in pieces of ten pounds each for roasting; and the mutton is the leg of about ten pounds each, with the shanks cut off, to the upper joints.

The boys on alternate evenings have bread and cheese for supper, about six ounces of the former and an ounce and a half of the latter for each boy, and on the other evenings bread and butter.

Thrice a week they have bread and cheese with water.

Thrice a week bread and butter with milk and water.

Once a week bread and treacle with milk and water.

The boys' beverage is the best water.

The weekly diet provided for the servants is as follows:

Ten and a half quartern loaves of bread	-	-
Thirty-five pounds of meat	-	-
Three-quarters of a pound of suet	-	-
Three pounds of flour	-	-
One pound of raisins	-	-
Four pounds and a half of cheese	-	-
Four pounds and a half of butter	-	-
Salt	-	-

amongst them.

And half a barrel of beer in a fortnight.

The following diet is established for the boys on feasts or holy days:

18th of March, the Founder's day.—Sixty pounds of roast beef and dumplings rubbed in the dripping-pan, with vegetables.

Saint George's Day.—Sixty pounds of roast beef and fifty pounds of good plum pudding with vegetables.

Easter Sunday.—Sixty pounds of roast beef and Yorkshire pudding, with vegetables.

Last Sunday in April.—Sixty pounds of roast beef and fifty pounds of good plum pudding, with vegetables.

Whit Sunday.—Sixty pounds of shoulders of veal and gooseberry pies, with vegetables.

The Sovereign's Birthday.—Sixty pounds of shoulders of veal and gooseberry pies, with vegetables.

Examination Day, last Thursday in July.—Sixty pounds of shoulders of veal and fruit pies, with vegetables.

Last Sunday in October.—Sixty pounds of roast pork and apple pies, with vegetables.

Fifth of November.—Sixty pounds of roast beef and dumplings rubbed in the dripping-pan, with vegetables.

Lord Mayor's Day.—Sixty pounds of roast pork and apple pies, with vegetables.

Christmas-Day.—Sixty pounds of roast beef and fifty pounds of good plum pudding, with vegetables.*

And on these feast-days the boys have generally two-pence each allowed them in lieu of beer.

Immediate Government of the Hospital.

The immediate government and superintendence of the establishment is vested in five members of the court of assistants of the Drapers' Company, to be annually chosen by the court on the election-day in August, to be called the VISITING COMMITTEE of BANCROFT'S HOSPITAL; and any three of them are to be a quorum.

The committee are to give orders for the purchase and supply of provisions, either by contract or otherwise, from time to time, as they shall see fit, pursuant to the rule of diet established, with such variations as occasional circumstances may render advisable.

* On the feast-days the beef is to be the sirloin or ribs as far as the seventh.

The committee for the time being, or any three of them at least once a fortnight, on such day as they shall settle amongst themselves, or oftener, at their discretion, are to meet at the hospital without previous notice at the hospital being necessary, and there shall personally review the boys, the school, and dormitories, and examine the stores and provisions, and examine the accounts to be kept by the master and by the matron, up to the Saturday night preceding such visitation; and they are to be liberty to visit the alms-men and alms-houses whenever they see fit. Minutes of the proceedings and orders made on every such visitation are to be taken by the head master, or in his absence by the under master, and such minutes shall afterwards be drawn out at length by the head master, or in his absence by the under master, and a copy thereof from time to time is to be transmitted to the clerk of the Company, to the end that such minutes may be preserved in duplicate, and may be always resorted to as well at the hospital as at the Hall.

In case of any sudden emergency, the masters of the hospital are forthwith to give notice thereof to the clerk of the Company, and to one of the members of the visiting committee at the least, to the end that what may be necessary therein may be done.

The accounts of the household expenditure are to be kept quarterly, and show the provision, consumption, and price of each article distinctly within each quarter.

The committee are to have no allowance in respect of the meetings at the hospital, other than and except that they are to be respectively reimbursed such sum as they shall expend in coach-hire from the Company's Hall to the hospital and back again.

The general committee of the court of assistants are to visit the hospital to hear the boys publicly examined on the last Thursday in July, and the master and wardens are to continue to attend at St. Helen's Church on the last Sunday in April, and at St. Michael's on the last Sunday in October, to hear the boys catechised, as mentioned in the Founder's will.

The government of the hospital is at all times to be subject to such provisions and directions in the Founder's will as shall be applicable to the establishment, and also subject to such directions and regulations as the court of assistants shall give or make when they shall see fit to interfere therein.

The remnants of furniture which from time to time may be worn out, and all the woollen and linen rags, and all the remnants of every description arising from the boys' clothes, and every sort of kitchen stuff (if any) and all sorts of offal, however trifling, which shall not be used at the hospital, are to be sold on account of the trust.

RULES and ORDERS for the GENERAL CONDUCT of the INSTITUTION.

I. That the head master have the management of, and be responsible for, the general conduct of the whole establishment, and see that the other officers and servants perform the duties of their several stations; and that the under master be in all things subordinate to the head master.

II. That in the absence or sickness of the head master the under master perform all his duties as master; and in the absence or sickness of the under master the head master perform all his duties.

III. That the masters read prayers in the chapel morning and evening, alternately or otherwise as they may themselves arrange; and take care that the alms-men and children devoutly attend the said service, unless hindered by sickness or other reasonable cause, to be admitted by one of the masters, to whom application must be made for exemption from attendance.

IV. That full divine service be regularly performed in the chapel once every Sunday throughout the year, and also on Christmas Day and Good Friday, at such hours shall, from time to time, be fixed by the head master; and that during the time of the service the hospital gates be closed and locked.

V. That the daily chapel service commence at half-past eight a.m., and half-past four p.m., throughout the year.

VI. That each master keep a register, and set down therein such faults and offences as are worthy of notice, which shall from time to time be committed in breach of any of the rules to be observed by the alms-men; and deliver in the same to the visiting committee at their first meeting in every month: to the end that they may be informed of the same.

VII. That the masters never leave the hospital at the same time; to the intent that one master may at all times, as well as out of school hours as in school hours, and in holiday time, be upon the spot for the government of the alms-men and boys: excepting only on such extraordinary occasions as shall be specially sanctioned by the visiting committee; and then the matron shall be apprised of it, that she may have more especial care of the boys.

VIII. That the alms-men, unless hindered by sickness or other reasonable cause, do devoutly attend the public worship of God in the chapel, morning and evening regularly, in their gowns; and take their seats there in order as they come.

IX. That one of the alms-men, or other person appointed by the master and wardens, officiate as clerk in the chapel whenever divine service is performed; and that the bell be tolled for the space of five minutes on week days, and a quarter of an hour on Sundays, before the prayers commence.

X. That after the bell hath been tolled for the stated time, the chapel clerk note down the names of such alms-men as may be absent, and make a weekly report thereof to the head master.

XI. That in case the master and wardens shall have permitted the wives of any of the alms-men to reside with their husbands, such wives do constantly attend divine service every Sunday morning and afternoon; unless hindered by sickness or other just cause to be allowed by one of the masters.

XII. That one of the alms-men, or other person appointed by the visiting committee, do sweep and keep the chapel and school in clean and decent order, and bring up coals, and light the fires in the school and chapel when necessary; and also sweep and keep clean the portico, stone steps, and pavement before the chapel, school, and masters' houses.

XIII. That the two alms-men appointed to reside in the lodges do each keep the key of his respective gate, and lock up the same so soon as the clock shall have struck the hour of nine in the winter, and ten in the summer; and that in case any alms-men shall be found to have been absent without leave after the gates have been closed more than four times within the space of one year, he shall not be received again into the said alms-houses, or be entitled to the pension or allowance of an alms-man; unless afterwards restored thereto by an order of the court of wardens, on good assurance of amendment for the future.

XIV. That the alms-man who shall have been appointed to keep the east gate do every morning, before ten o'clock, sweep and clean the whole of the gravel roads, and roll them when necessary; that he sweep also the foot-path in front of the hospital without the walls, next to the highway; and that every night from Michaelmas to Lady-day, at half-past eight p.m., and from Lady-day to Michaelmas, at half-past nine p.m., he toll the bell fifty strokes by way of warning of the time of locking up.

XV. That either of the masters, when he shall see just cause, may give license to any one or more of the alms-men, not exceeding two in number at one time, to be absent from his habitation and prayers for the space of one day and night, so that he do not license any one person to be absent more than four times in one year: and that the persons obtaining such license, from time to time, give notice thereof to the other master, to the end that he may note the same.

XVI. That any two or more of the wardens, or the visiting committee, from time to time, as they shall see cause, may give license under their hands to any of the alms-men to be absent from their habitations for any space of time, not exceeding twenty-one days. And in case the court of assistants or the masters and wardens for the time being shall think fit, for the better support and encouragement of any of the said alms-men, to employ any of them in the Company's service at the Hall, that the said wardens, or any two of them, may license such of them as shall be employed to be absent from time to time, in the daytime only, as the duty of such service may require, giving notice thereof to the masters.

XVII. That the said alms-men and their wives (if permitted to reside with them) behave with submission and respect to the masters, and live in brotherly love and friendship towards one another.

XVIII. That no alms-man nor his wife use any railing, bitter, or uncharitable speeches to any of the other alms-men or their wives; and that no alms-man presume to strike any brother or brother's wife, under the penalty of a private reprimand for the first offence, a public reprimand for the second, and for the third offence expulsion from the hospital for ever.

XIX. That if any alms-man or his wife presume to take the name of God in vain, or be drunk, such offender receive for the first offence a private, and for the second a public, reprimand. If after the second time he or she offend in like manner, that the party so offending be forthwith reported to the court.

XX. That if any of the said alms-men haunt or frequent any public-house, and resort thereto after notice given him by either of the masters to refrain therefrom, the person so resorting thereto, after such notice given as aforesaid, receive for the first offence a private, and for the second a public, reprimand. If after the second time the offence be repeated, that the party so offending be forthwith reported to the court.

XXI. That if any of the inmates of the hospital commit adultery or fornication, or be guilty of theft or such like enormous crime, he or they so offending be for ever expelled.

XXII. That if the wife of any of the said alms-men, who shall have been permitted to reside with her husband, prove with child, she shall not be permitted to lie-in in any of the said alms-houses; but shall be removed by her husband (so soon as it shall have been discovered that she is with child) until she be delivered, under the penalty of his being for ever expelled in case of breach or disobedience of this order.

XXIII. That neither of the said alms-men presume to take an apprentice, or do any other act by which any charge may possibly accrue to the parish where the said alms-houses are situate, under pain of expulsion.

XXIV. That neither of the said alms-men presume to marry during his continuance in the said alms-houses, without leave of the wardens for the time being, under pain of expulsion.

XXV. That if any alms-man, or his wife, presume to beg during the time that he or she may be harboured in the said alms-houses, the offender suffer expulsion for the same.

XXVI. That no alms-man, or his wife, sell any chandlery ware, liquors, or fruits within the grounds of the hospital, or keep any bulk or stall there, or any public shop for exposing anything for sale, or put up any sign or show-board within the premises, under the penalty of forfeiting three months' pension for the first, and expulsion for the second, offence.

XXVII. That no linen be laid upon or dried in the ground before the alms-houses.

XXVIII. That no alms-man, nor his wife, keep any swine or rabbits or poultry within the ground, under the penalty of five shillings for every such offence.

XXIX. That none of them keep any dog within the said alms-houses or ground, under the penalty aforesaid.

XXX. That none of them take in any inmate, servant, or other person, to inhabit the said alms-houses, other than such as shall be allowed by the visiting committee for the time being, in case of sickness or inability, under the pain of expulsion.

XXXI. That every alms-man daily, before the hour of ten in the morning, sweep and make clean the pavement before his dwelling; and that no ashes, soil, dust, nor any other thing, be cast out or laid in any part of the ground belonging to the said alms-houses, other than the places appointed for that purpose.

XXXII. That none of the said alms-men presume to take down, break, or deface any of the brickwork, tiling, wainscot, or other thing belonging to the hospital under pretence of altering or amending the same, or otherwise, under the penalty of forty shillings, over and above the expense of restoring the same to the condition it was in before such alteration was made.

XXXIII. That the alms-men from time to time repair the glass windows of their respective houses at their own charge, to the end they may be careful to prevent the same from being broken.

XXXIV. That upon the death, expulsion, or other removal of any alms-man, all the grates, cupboards, dressers, shelves, locks, bolts, and similar improvements which he may have put up in his house, be left therein for the benefit of the said house.

XXXV. That for the better observation of the foregoing ordinances, and that no person concerned may plead ignorance thereof, it is ordered that the same be printed and framed and constantly hung up in the chapel, and that they be read by one of the masters twice in each year, viz., on the first Monday in March and the first Monday in September, in the said chapel, immediately after divine service.

I am,
Worshipful Sirs,
Your Worships' humble Servant.

KIRKHAM SCHOOL, IN LANCASHIRE.

SCHEME approved of by one of the MASTERS of the COURT of CHANCERY for the regulation and management of the school.

1st. That the scheme of education for the free scholars of the school shall comprise instructions in the Greek and Latin languages, and all subjects requisite for a good classical education; and also instructions in English literature, composition, history, geography, and all subjects requisite for a good English education; and also instruction in writing and arithmetic, mensuration, algebra, trigonometry, and in such other branches of mathematics, and in the rudiments of such branches of natural science, and in such other subjects of English education as are adapted to the wants of an agricultural, commercial, and manufacturing population, and as the Visitors of the school shall, from time to time, order and direct to be taught therein.

2nd. That there shall be three masters of the School, namely, the head master, a second or under master, and a third master or usher: and all the masters shall be members of the Established Church of England, and shall, in the discharge of their duties, conform themselves to the orders and directions of the Visitors.

3rd. That the head master shall be in Holy Orders, and shall have received a regular academical education at the University of Oxford or of Cambridge, and taken the degree of Master of Arts or of Bachelor of Civil Laws at one of those Universities; and shall be qualified to give instruction in the mathematics and the Greek and Latin languages, and all other subjects requisite for a good classical education.

4th. That the second master shall be qualified to give instruction in the Latin language, and in English grammar, writing, arithmetic, mensuration, algebra, geography, history, and such other subjects of English education, including the rudiments of any branch of natural science as are usually taught in the school.

5th. That the third master or usher shall be qualified to teach English reading and writing and arithmetic, and the rudiments of English grammar, history, and geography.

6th. That the head master shall have and exercise a general superintendence and direction over the whole establishment, and shall take especial care that all the boys are regularly instructed in the Church catechism, and that they receive a good religious education suitable to their respective ages, and in strict accordance with the ritual and the doctrines and discipline of the Church of England as now established; and in order thereto, some part of the Holy Scriptures shall be daily read in order, in Greek by those that are able, in Latin by others, and by the lowest in English.

7th. That it shall be the office of the head master to read prayers selected from the Liturgy each morning and afternoon at the opening and closing of the school; and to teach the upper boys the learned languages and the higher branches of mathematics, and such other subjects of education as are usually taught in the school; and he shall have and take under his immediate tuition one-fifth of the scholars, or such greater or less proportionate number thereof, as the Visitors shall, from time to time, order and direct.

8th. That the respective offices of the second master and third master shall be, to give instruction in the school according to the several qualifications before required of them; and they shall, in the discharge of their respective duties, act under the governance and direction of the head master.

9th. That the head master shall have an annual salary of 150*l.*; he shall be required to reside in the school-house; he shall have the use thereof and of the garden and offices appurtenant thereto rent-free, upon condition that he do pay all taxes, rates, and assessments, and other out-goings in respect thereof, and keep the same in tenable repair; and the above salary shall be in addition to any payment which the head master may be entitled to under the will of Dr. Grimbaldson, by reason of his being a Master of Arts, and having been educated at the College of Eton, Westminster, or Winchester.

10th. That the annual salary of the second master shall be 120*l.*, and that of the third master or usher 80*l.*

11th. That the salaries of the masters shall be paid in the manner following; that is to say, the Drapers' Company shall, out of the income arising from Colborne's Charity, pay to the head master 45*l.*, to the second master 16*l.* 10*s.*, and to the third master or usher 8*l.*; and the Trustees of James Barker's Charity shall, out of the income appropriated to purposes of education, pay to the said masters the residue of their respective salaries; and such salaries shall become due and be payable half yearly, at Lady-day and Michaelmas-day in every year; and in case of the death of any master at any intermediate time, his executor shall be entitled to receive and be paid a proportionate part of the salary for the current half-year; and his successor, if appointed within that half-year, shall be entitled only to the residue.

12th. That no master shall receive any perquisites from the parents or guardians of any of the free scholars.

13th. That no master, being a clergyman, shall hold any ecclesiastical office or function requiring him to perform in person weekly parochial duty; and that no master shall take any secular office, or be engaged in any secular business, other than the business of the school.

14th. That there shall be three general meetings in each year of the Visitors of the school for the admission of scholars and the transaction of the business connected therewith; and that such meetings shall be respectively held on the second Monday in January, on Whit Monday, and the second Monday in October.

15th. That it shall be lawful for any three of the Visitors, on any emergent occasion, to summon, by written notice to be served personally on the other Visitors, or left at or sent by the post to their respective places of abode, a special meeting to be held on such day, and for the transaction of such business relating to the school as shall be specified in such notice, which shall be served, or sent by the post, or left as aforesaid, seven days at least previous to such special meeting; but that no other business than that specified in such notice shall be transacted at such special meeting.

16th. That it shall be lawful for the Visitors to adjourn any general or special meeting to any other day, without giving notice of any adjourned meeting.

17th. That no business shall be transacted at any meeting of the Visitors unless three of them, at least, be present; and that all meetings, general and special, original and adjourned, shall be held at the school-house, or at such other convenient place in the vicinity thereof as the Visitors shall, at any previous general meeting, appoint for the purpose.

18th. That a chairman shall be chosen at each meeting by a majority of the Visitors present; and in case of the votes for a chairman being equal, the Visitors shall draw lots for a casting vote, which casting vote shall determine the election of a chairman.

19th. That in case of a difference of opinion, all questions shall be determined by the major part of the Visitors, including the chairman, present at each meeting; and if they are equally divided in opinion, the chairman shall have a casting vote; but, except in case of an equality of votes, the vote of the chairman shall have no more force than that of any of the other Visitors present.

20th. That all boys shall be eligible as free scholars who have been born in any of the several townships of Kirkham, Greenalgh with Thistleton, Little Eccleston with Larbreck, Ribby with Wray Hambleton, Bryning with Kellemergh, Great and Little Singleton, Westby with Plumpton, Warton, Freckleton, Newton with Scales, Clifton with Salurich, Weeton with Presse, Medlar with Wesham, and Treales, Roseacre, and Wharbes.

21st. That it shall be lawful for the Visitors to direct the admission into the school of other boys, whose father or mother is, or has been at the time of his or her death, resident in (although such boys have not been born in) any of the townships aforesaid, upon payment of such quarterly sum, as the Visitors shall direct, in aid of the funds for the sustentation of the school; and such other boys, when so admitted, shall be eligible to exhibitions, and, except as to such payment, shall have all the benefits and privileges of and be considered as free scholars; but the number of such other boys shall be limited from time to time by the Visitors, and shall not be so great as to prevent the admission or to affect the due instruction of boys eligible as free scholars by reason of their having been born in any of the townships aforesaid.

22nd. That no boy shall be admitted to the school except by the order or direction of the Visitors in writing; and all applications for and admissions into the school shall be made at one of the three general meetings aforesaid.

23rd. That no boy shall be admitted to the school until he has attained the age of seven years, and can read English words of one syllable with facility; and no boy shall be allowed to remain therein after the age of nineteen years, except under the express permission of the Visitors previously granted at one of their general meetings.

24th. That each scholar shall appear in the school clean and neat in his person and apparel.

25th. The head master shall keep a regular and correct register of the age and date of admission of each scholar, and of his time of quitting the school; and make therein such remarks as to his attendance, behaviour, and proficiency during each half-year as may enable the Visitors to form an opinion thereon; and that such register shall be laid before them at each of their general meetings.

26th. That the hours of attendance for the masters and scholars shall be, between the 31st of March and the 1st day of October, in the morning from nine to twelve o'clock, and in the afternoon from two till five o'clock; between the 30th September and the 1st of April, in the morning from nine to twelve o'clock, and in the afternoon from one to four o'clock, except on Sundays, and except on the afternoons of Wednesdays and Saturdays, which shall be allowed as half-holidays.

27th. That there shall be the following vacations in each year: namely, ten days at Easter, commencing at noon the day before Good Friday; five weeks at the time of hay harvest; and three weeks at Christmas; and the commencement of the hay harvest and Christmas holidays shall be fixed, from time to time, by the Visitors at one of the preceding general meetings.

28th. That no master shall absent himself from the school during the prescribed hours of attendance, except for some urgent or unavoidable cause, or by the express permission, in writing, of the Visitors previously obtained; in which the reason for such permission and the time of absence thereby allowed shall be stated.

29th. That no scholar shall absent himself from the school during the prescribed hours of attendance without assigning some good reason for his absence, which shall be satisfactory to the head master, nor (except in case of illness) without his previous permission.

30th. That such books, pens, ink, paper, slates, pencils, and other articles as in the opinion of the Visitors are requisite, and are not provided from other sources, shall be provided for the use of the scholars by the Trustees of Barker's Charity; and the parents or guardians of each boy shall pay such sum for the same, or the use thereof, as the Visitors shall from time to time direct; and shall also pay sixpence on the 1st day of October, and the like sum on the 12th day of January, in each year, for or towards fuel for the use of the school; and all payments under this rule, or Rule 21, shall be made to the second master of the school, or such other person as the Visitors shall direct, who shall account for and pay over the same to the Trustees of Barker's Charity; and the clear balance thereof, after payment of all out-goings, shall be applied by them in aid of the funds for the sustentation of the school.

31st. That the Visitors shall have power to establish a library for the use of the school, and to make such rules for the regulation thereof as they shall think fit; and the Trustees of Barker's Charity, having regard to the sufficiency of funds in their hands, shall be at liberty to expend such monies, from time to time, as they shall think fit, not exceeding 20*l.* in any one year, in the purchase of books and other articles for the use of such library; and the parents or guardians of each scholar above the age of twelve years, and receiving any instructions either from the head or second master, shall pay for the use of such library the sum of five shillings at the commencement of each half-year's education; and such payments shall be made to the second master of the school, or such other person as the Visitors shall direct, who shall account for and pay over the same to the Visitors, to be applied by them in the formation and sustentation of such library.

32nd. That the Visitors shall have power to appoint an extra master or masters to give instructions in the French or other modern language to the scholars whose parents or guardians are desirous that they should learn the same, and are willing to pay such extra master or masters such sum per quarter, for instruction therein, as the Visitors shall, from time to time, approve of and allow.

33rd. That the Visitors shall have power to appoint a lecturer in the school on any scientific subject; but such lecturer shall only be appointed with the consent of the Trustees of Barker's Charity, and when they have sufficient funds in their hands for the payment of such lecturer.

34th. That if the parent or guardian of any boy be desirous that he should receive an English education only, or that his classical education should be confined to the learning of the Latin language, he shall signify his desire in writing to the Visitors at one of their general meetings, and the Visitors shall have power to direct and limit the course of education of such boy.

35th. That a competent person, or persons, shall be appointed annually by the Visitors, at their general meeting in January, to examine the scholars in the different subjects of instruction, and more especially as to their knowledge of the fundamental principles of the Christian religion and the doctrines thereof according to the Church of England, and to class them according to their respective merits; and such examination shall take place in the month preceding Whit Monday; and a report in writing of the state of the school shall be made by the examiner or examiners to the Visitors at their general meeting on that day; and a copy of such report shall be transmitted to the Drapers' Company; and that the Trustees of Barker's Charity, having regard to the monies in their hands, shall be at liberty to apply annually such sum as they shall think fit, not exceeding the sum of 20*l.*, in payment of fees to such examiner or examiners.

36th. That the Visitors shall be at liberty to direct prizes, in books or scientific instruments, to be annually distributed among the scholars who have distinguished themselves at the examination.

37th. That a list of the subjects of education of each class, and the names of the boys therein, distinguishing those who have gained prizes, shall be made out by the head master annually, at Whitsuntide, and registered in a book kept for that purpose; and that he shall send a copy of such list, written by one of the boys, to each of the Visitors, and another copy thereof to the Drapers' Company; and cause another copy to be hung up in the school-room.

38th. That the head master shall have power to expel any scholar of the school, or to suspend for a limited time his right to attend the same, who shall wilfully transgress the rules and orders of the school, or be guilty of other misconduct; but in case of dispute between the head master and the parent or guardian of such scholar, as to the propriety of such expulsion or suspension, the same shall be submitted to the consideration and decision of the Visitors, who shall have power to order such scholar to be re-admitted, or to make such other order in the matter as they shall think fit.

39th. That the Trustees of Barker's Charity shall have power, having regard to the amount of funds in their hands applicable to the sustentation of the school and the number of scholars therein, to increase from time to time the portion of the salaries of any of the masters payable by them; or, on the appointment of any new master, to diminish the amount thereof; but the salaries of the respective masters shall not be less than the sums aforesaid, unless there be insufficient funds for the payment thereof.

40th. That when the Trustees of Barker's Charity have sufficient funds in their hands for the purpose, they shall allow, for an exhibition or pension to one or more of the free scholars going to the University of Oxford or Cambridge, who shall be elected by the Visitors at one of their general meetings, such annual sum or sums as the trustees shall think fit, not exceeding 80*l.* for each scholar, which shall be paid to him half yearly, for the space of not more than four years, and the amount thereof shall be fixed previous to his election.

41st. That no scholar shall be eligible to an exhibition who has not been educated at the school at least three years after completing the thirteenth year of his age; and where the merits of the candidates shall be equal, a preference shall always be given, in the first place, to a scholar born in the township of Kirkham; and in the next place, to a scholar born in any of the other townships mentioned in Rule 20. And the Visitors shall have power to deprive any scholar of his exhibition for misconduct, and they shall have power to deprive, and shall deprive, each scholar of his exhibition, who, before he has completed the usual course of education for the degree of Bachelor of Arts or Civil Law, shall, unless in case of illness, or some urgent or unavoidable cause, to be approved of and allowed by the Visitors, be absent from the University, except at the usual times or vacations or absence allowed by the rules of the University and his particular college; and no scholar shall be entitled to any payment in respect of his exhibition until he has satisfied the Trustees of Barker's Charity, by the certificate of the tutor of his college, or other satisfactory evidence, that he has complied with the directions of this rule as to residence in the University.

42nd. That the head master shall be allowed to take boarders, for the purpose of education in the school, provided such boarders do not exceed ten in number; or such greater or less number as the Visitors shall, from time to time, order and direct, and provided that the taking thereof do not occasion any neglect, improper treatment of, or prejudice to the free scholars; and no preference or distinction be shown or made in the mode of their classification or instruction; and the rule aforesaid relating to perquisites shall not, as regards the head master, be applicable to boarders; and that no boarder shall be eligible to an exhibition unless by reason of his having been born in any of the several townships aforesaid, unless by reason of the residence of either of his parents he shall be eligible, or admissible into the School.

43rd. That a minute in writing shall be made of all orders and directions of the Visitors touching the school; and that the same shall be registered in a book kept for the purpose.

IN CHANCERY.

The ATTORNEY GENERAL v. the DRAPERS' COMPANY.

HOWELL'S CHARITY.

3rd May, 1843.

THE JUDGMENT.

LORD LANGDALE, Master of the Rolls.

The information in this case is filed for the purpose of establishing a Charity under the Will of a person of the name of Howell; and he founded that Charity in the words I am about to read: "I command my executors immediately after my death to send to the city of London 12,000 ducats of gold, to be delivered to the house named 'Drapers' Hall and the Wardens thereof. The said Wardens to have in charge that, as soon as they should receive the same, they should forthwith buy for the same house 400 ducats of rent yearly, for evermore, in possession for evermore; and it is my will, that the said 400 ducats be disposed unto four maidens, being orphans next of my kin and of blood, to their marriage, if they can be found, every one of them to have 100 ducats; and if they cannot be found of my lineage, then to be given to other four maidens, though that they be not of my lineage, so that they be orphans honest and of good fame, and every of them 100 ducats; and so every year for to marry four maidens for ever. And if the said 12,000 ducats will buy more land, then the said 400 ducats to be spent to the marriage of maidens being orphans, increasing the four maidens aforesaid, as shall seem by the discretion aforesaid of the Master and Wardens of the said house of Drapers' Hall; and that this memoria to remain in writing in the Book of Memories in the said house, in such manner as it shall at no time be undone for ever."

Now the only observation necessary to make upon this Will at present is, that it is perfectly clear, upon the face of it, that no beneficial interest whatever was given to the Company. It is perfectly clear, from the clause which I have read, in terms, that the Testator intended the whole rent, to be derived from the land which was to be purchased, to be applied to the purposes herein indicated.

It appears that the executors of the Testator did not transmit the whole sum which they were commanded to transmit; that they transmitted a smaller sum, and with that smaller sum lands were bought from the crown.

On the occasion of that purchase a grant was made by the crown, "In consideration of which premises before by our said Sovereign Lord the King, by these presents bargained and sold as is aforesaid, the Master and Enfeoffees and Brethren of the said Guild or Fraternity, for them or their successors, covenant, promise," and so on, that they will make the payment therein required. That is the first, and then, besides, "and also the said Master and Enfeoffees and Brethren, in further recompense and satisfaction of the said message" and so on conveyed to them, "are contented and agreed, and by these present Indentures, for them and their successors, covenant, promise and grant to and with our said Sovereign Lord the King, his heirs and successors, that they, the said Master and Enfeoffees and Brethren, and their successors, or one of them, or their assigns, shall and will yearly hereafter give, distribute, and dispose the rents, revenues, sums of money, issues, and profits which, at any time hereafter shall clearly come, accrue, arise, or grow of or in the said message, gardens, and other the premises with their appurtenances, purchased from the King as aforesaid, (over and above all due charges, and such sums of money, and other costs and charges which hereafter shall be bestowed or spent in or about the reparations of the same premises, or any parcel thereof,) to and for the marriage of poor maidens, being orphans, at the discretion of the Master and Enfeoffees of the said Guild or Fraternity."

So that, when they procured this grant from the crown, they as plainly as possible stated here that the rents of the lands which were conveyed to them should be rents to be applied to this particular purpose;—this particular purpose being, to apply the funds to the marriage of four of the Testator's kindred—four maidens.

A difficulty plainly arose with respect to the ascertainment of the individuals who were entitled to the benefit of the Charity; and, moreover, it appeared that the funds at that time were not sufficient to answer fully the intent of the Founder. The whole sum not being transmitted, the whole rent did not appear to be sufficient to pay for the reparations, and also to provide the portions which were intended. There is indeed some ambiguity upon that subject, in consequence of the exact value of the ducat of gold not being stated, but I think such is the inference which, naturally, and almost necessarily, is to be made from the circumstance here stated.

In consequence of the difficulty which arose, some persons who claimed to be entitled to the benefit of this Endowment filed their Bill for the purpose of having their claims established; complaining of the expense to which they had been put, and desiring that they might have the benefit of this Charity. The complaint which was made by them as to the difficulty of ascertaining who were the persons entitled was also a complaint made by the defendants, the Drapers' Company, at that time. They also alleged that there was a difficulty in the mode of ascertaining who the persons were who were entitled to the benefit of the Charity; but in their answer they add a passage which has been referred to several times, and which is undoubtedly of the utmost importance in this case, not only for the purpose of knowing what was their view of the uses to which they should apply the gift which they accepted, but also for the purpose of ascertaining what were the questions which arose in the case; and of importance therefore for the purpose of aiding in determining what was decided by the Court in a case where it is argued on the one side, in the absence of specific words, that the decision was to a particular effect, and where it is argued on the other side that it was not so. It is also of some importance to ascertain in what way the gift was accepted. There have been instances in which the Court has held that you may infer from contemporaneous transactions what was the trust assumed by the persons who accepted a gift. No doubt, generally speaking, the gift must be accepted according to the intention of the giver, as declared at the time; but where the object is to make a corporation account, particularly such a corporation as a college like Catherine Hall, where Lord Eldon expressly referred to it as not being under any obligation whatever to accept an increase of endowment, they may accept an increase with certain qualifications which the Court may collect from the transactions that took place at the time, whether those transactions are established by documents that existed at the time, or proved by a constant course of conduct adopted at the time, and persevered in downwards: this is not a case precisely of that sort, but here we have, (as we have not in very many cases,) the defendants in this case declaring by their answer, that they always intended, and still do intend, God willing, as near as they can, to perform the said Will and Testament of the said Thomas Howell, with as much of the rents of the premises as shall come clearly to their hands, over and above all charges, if they were ascertained, or hereafter shall be ascertained, what maidens or orphans of his kin or lineage ought, of right, to have the same legacies according unto his Will, which, hitherto, they cannot perfectly attain to know.

So that nothing can be more clear than this, that the difficulty was to obtain a rule by which they should ascertain from time to time who were the persons entitled to claim the benefit of this endowment; it being stated by the defendants that they were willing and intended to apply so much of the rents from the premises as should come clearly to their hands.

Now we are to observe that, at this time, the rents do not appear to have been equal to answer the full purpose of the Founder; as I have stated before, the rents at that time were 106*l*.^{*} The decree adopts a rule by which it was hoped (that hope did not turn out to be quite successful), but it adopted a rule by which it was hoped they should be able, at all times, to ascertain who were the parties entitled to the benefit of this Charity, having regard to the amount of the rent at that time, and approves of a scheme by which the whole was disposed of. It gives 2*l*. for the reparation of and maintaining the property, and 84*l*. for the portions which are to be given to the poor maidens who are entitled to the benefit of the Charity. Upon this occasion it is to be observed that nothing whatever is reserved to the Company. If the Company were entitled to any benefit or had been supposed by the Court to be entitled to a beneficial interest in the rent, surely it would not have been very just to abandon and neglect, altogether, such interest. There is no such declaration made, nor could the declaration be made, because the Company had stated in their answer that they were willing to apply all that clearly came to their hands. This decree being made, I say clearly, with reference to the rents then received, because it exhausted the whole and no more, it certainly might be looked for that it would have some consideration to such increase or decrease as might reasonably, for some purposes, occur: it provided this, and directed the sums to be paid out of the rents, not directing the Company to pay without regard to the rents, but the sums to be paid were to be paid out of the rents. Well, then, if there were to be a decrease from a particular cause, namely, destruction by fire, provision was made for that, but still no direction is contained that in every other event, nor is it to be collected from the direction to pay out of the rent, that in every other event, the decrease is to be made good by a payment by the Company out of their own pockets—no, they were to apply these sums out of the rents.

Then there might be an increase by the improvement of the rents of those estates which were already purchased; there might be an increase by the new purchases to be made by so much of the money as had not been transmitted by the executors of the Founder; and in both those cases a provision was made for the increase to the extent which is here mentioned, that is, to the extent of 16*l*., to be added to the 84*l*.—to that extent there was to be an increase. In either of those cases the increase was to be 16*l*. That increase would make four sums of 25*l*.; 84*l*. and 16*l*. made it 100*l*.; and four times 25*l*. made 100*l*.: 25*l*. for each

^{*} The decree of Sir Nicholas Bacon, the Lord Keeper, which is here alluded to, was made on the 24th June 1606, and the part alluded to is in these words:—

"Provided also, that if the said Master and Wardens shall, at any time hereafter, receive the sum of three thousand two hundred and fourscore ducats of gold, or the value thereof, of the executors or administrators of the said Thomas Howell, being the rest of the said twelve thousand ducats bequeathed by the said Thomas Howell to the said Drapers, for the use aforesaid, or such part or portion of the said three thousand two hundred and fourscore ducats as will or may purchase an increase of lands and tenements, or other yearly hereditaments, to the yearly value of 16*l*. or under; that then the said Master and Wardens and their successors shall, yearly from thenceforth, pay, or cause to be paid, upon certificate as is aforesaid, to four of the said orphans so to be certified, so much as the said increase in rent of the said premises to be purchased by the receipt of any part of the residue of the said twelve thousand ducats yet to be received and hereafter received shall amount unto; foregoing that, in the whole, the said orphans shall not be paid above the yearly sum of one hundred pounds: and, for a full and perfect end to be made of all controversies, it is further ordered, adjudged, and decreed by the said Lord Keeper and Court of Chancery, that the said Master and Wardens and their successors shall be, from henceforth for evermore, clearly exonerated and discharged against the said complainants, and every of them, and all other orphans that have, or pretend to have, title to any of the legacies aforesaid, by virtue of the said Thomas Howell's Will, of all manner of account hereafter to be yielded or given to them, or any of them, for any receipt or other thing whatsoever, before the date of this present decree."

maiden entitled to the benefit of this Charity. Now, without having arithmetical demonstration of it, I feel so strongly persuaded that what was meant here was to have the increase up to that sum which the Testator himself had intended to be the endowment to be given to these poor maidens, that I do not feel I can entertain a reasonable doubt upon the subject. I believe this decree had in view the sum which was limited by the Founder, and, with that view, provided for an increase to that extent; and you have not one word as to any surplus that might probably arise.

Here, then, it is the rental, the income actually bought, which was required for the purpose of answering the Will; the defendants stating in their answer that they were willing and desirous to apply everything that clearly came to their hands—that came to their hands clearly for the purposes of this Will, which provided for more than these 400 ducats—they were willing to apply that. There was occasion at that time to apply that which they had; and there was reasonable occasion to look forward to an increase which would make the fund sufficient to answer that which the Testator specifically intended. There was an offer by the defendants to apply everything; and in that state of things the Court was silent, and did not proceed any further; and the question is, whether I am to collect from that decree, that the Court declared by implication (an express declaration is not found or contended for in any way); but whether it is to be considered that the Court by implication declared, because it had not disposed of the surplus to an extent greater than this 16l., that therefore the rest was to be applied for the benefit of the Company; I confess I am totally unable to follow the reasoning by which that is attempted to be made out. If it had been intended, there ought to have been a declaration; and there could not have been that declaration, because it would have been contrary to the offer of the Company. The question clearly never did arise or could arise in the pleadings in that case; and I am very clearly of opinion that this decree does not by anticipation decide the question which is brought before me to-day; and that I must look at these documents, and see whether, according to the rules of construction which have been adopted in this Court, where funds are given to a Charity with a direction to apply them all to the purposes of the Charity in a manner to exclude all notion of a beneficial interest being vested in the Trustees; I am, in this case, to consider that the Trustees have a right to apply all the funds, beyond that which was directed by this decree, to their own benefit. I consider that I cannot do so; but that I must, on the contrary, make an opposite declaration.

Now nothing can be more satisfactory in an investigation of this kind than to find that there is no possibility for any imputation of bad or corrupt conduct on the part of the defendants. The present defendants, beyond all question, have applied this fund just in the manner in which it has been applied by their predecessors: in all probability they never looked at the original foundation at all; but instead of applying it to any beneficial purposes of their own, it is now shown by the evidence, and by their answer, and it is admitted by the Attorney-General, that they have applied these funds not to their own benefit, but in a most beneficial manner for the most useful charitable purposes; and one may entertain very great doubts whether extending the charitable purposes of the Founder will be productive of effects anything like so beneficial as the charitable purposes promoted by the defendants: but with that I have clearly no concern at all; I have nothing to do but to consider the instruments as they are brought before me, and declare the rights in the way in which I understand them. It is another consideration whether extending these premiums to the marriage of young women in Wales is likely to be more beneficial in the way of charity than the way in which the Company have bestowed it.

Now with respect to the time from which the account is to be directed, certainly it is quite satisfactory to me to find that the Attorney-General confines himself to the filing of the Bill; and the account, therefore, must be directed from that time alone; and, I may say this, that if it had been pressed otherwise, I think I must have come to that conclusion. I think I could not, with any justice, have charged this Company with applying to its own purposes any of those funds. Every case depends upon its own circumstances: there are cases in which the account has been taken from the time when the information was given from the publication of the Report of the Commissioners of Charity; other cases in which it has been from the time of filing the Bill; and others from the date of the decree. Those three periods of time have, according to the various circumstances of each case, been adopted; but I think that which is now proposed by the Solicitor-General, on behalf of the Attorney-General, is what is quite right to be done in this case.

With respect to the costs, the Company have thought fit to have this question tried, they have thought fit to have it tried in order that they might have the application of this money according to their own view of what was right. I have not the least doubt that if the costs are asked against the Company by the Attorney-General, he must have them.

Therefore, I think there must be a declaration that all this income is applicable to the purposes of the Testator's Will. The account must be taken from the filing of the information, and the costs must be paid by the defendants.

Mr. Pemberton Leigh.—There must be a scheme.

Lord Langdale.—I suppose you would wish it to be referred to the Master to approve of a scheme?

Mr. Pemberton Leigh.—Yes, my Lord, it will be necessary in taking the account to direct that the Master shall charge a certain rent for the Hall.

Lord Langdale.—He will set a value upon the Hall, and take an occupation rent.

Mr. Pemberton Leigh.—No, my Lord, he cannot charge them with the value, they have built it with their own money, but he will charge them with an occupation rent.

Lord Langdale.—Yes.

SCHEME.

Company to keep a separate Account of Receipts and Payments.

1. That the Drapers' Company, as Trustees of the Charity, shall keep a separate account of the property and income of the Charity, and of the expenditure thereof; and shall annually make up such account and audit the same before a Court of the Company.

Power to let, sell, or exchange Charity Estates.

2. That the said Company shall, with the approbation of the Court of Chancery, grant or contract for the grant of any building, improving or other leases, for any term or number of years, of all or any part of the lands, estates, and property for the time being belonging to or held in trust for the said Charity, and also sell, convey, or exchange, or contract for the sale, conveyance, or exchange of all or any part of the same lands, estates, and property, for such price or prices, upon such terms and conditions, and with, under, and subject to such powers and provisions and in such manner respectively as the said Court of Chancery shall from time to time by its order authorise or direct; and for the purposes aforesaid, or any of them, and also for the improvement or better management of the said Charity estates or any of them, make and execute all or any such deeds, leases, and conveyances, and accept all or any such surrenders, and make and enter into all such contracts and arrangements, and do all such acts, matters, and things whatsoever as the Court of Chancery shall in manner aforesaid authorise or direct.

Surplus Income to be invested.

3. That the Company shall from time to time, with the sanction and approbation of the Court, lay out and invest the surplus rents, profits, and income of the Charity estates and property, and all or any monies arising from any sale or exchange of the Charity estates and property, or any part thereof, and all or any other monies for the time being belonging to the Charity, in the purchase of lands or hereditaments, or Government or real securities; and that from time to time, when and as often as any such purchase or investment shall be made as aforesaid, the lands and securities respectively so to be purchased or obtained shall be conveyed or transferred unto or otherwise vested in the Company, their successors and assigns, upon trust for the benefit of the said Charity, as the Court of Chancery may from time to time direct.

How sanction of the Court to be obtained.

4. That the sanction of the Court of Chancery for the exercise of any of the powers contained in this Scheme, for the exercise whereof the sanction of the Court is required, shall be obtained by leaving with the Chief Clerk of the Master of the Rolls, without any special order previously obtained for that purpose, a proposal in writing relative thereto; but that no proceedings shall be taken on such proposal unless the Attorney-General shall have been served with a summons in due course according to the practice of the Court to appear on such proceedings, and the Attorney-General shall also be at liberty in like manner to lay any proposal touching the matters of this Scheme before the said Chief Clerk.

Property to be kept in repair and insured.

5. That the said Company shall keep the property belonging to the Charity in good and sufficient repair, and shall also keep the same insured from fire, unless the lessees or tenants thereof shall be by covenant bound to repair and insure the premises, in which case the said Company shall see that they keep such covenants.

6. That there shall be allowed to the Clerk of the Company, or to such other person as the Company shall in that behalf appoint, for the expenses of the Charity and property thereof, 5l. per cent. on the income arising therefrom, such poundage to include all expenses of collection.

Allowance for Management.

7. That the said Company shall in every third year, on the 1st day of June in such third year, or on some day within ten days thereof, make up and deposit with the Record and Writ Clerk in whose division the said cause of "Attorney-General v. Drapers' Company" is, a summary account of the income of the Charity, and the expenditure for the preceding three years.

Abstract of Accounts to be deposited in Record and Writ Clerk's Office.

8. That the clear annual income of the Charity shall be applied in the maintenance of Schools in Wales for the instruction of Girls, and in maintaining, clothing, and providing portions for Orphan Inmates educated in such Schools, and in keeping up the Establishment hereinafter provided. That the word "Orphan" used in this Scheme shall be taken as meaning any Girl whose father or mother shall be dead; but in case of Candidates being in other respects equally objects of the Charity, those who have lost both parents shall be preferred; and in carrying out this Scheme the whole of the Diocese of Llandaff shall be deemed to be in Wales, and preference shall be given to that Diocese, both as to the priority and size of the foundation to be established and maintained therein, and that not more than one School shall be established and maintained from the proceeds of the said Charity beyond the limits of that Diocese.

Application of Income.

9. That the said Company shall purchase out of the funds of the said Charity ten acres of land, or such other quantity as may be deemed necessary by the Court, in the neighbourhood of Cardiff, being within the present limits of the Diocese of Llandaff, and also ten acres, or such other quantity as in like manner may be deemed necessary in or in the neighbourhood of Denbigh, as sites for such Schools and the buildings to be attached thereto respectively; such sites to be previously approved of and such purchases to be made with the approbation of the Court.

Company to purchase Sites for Schools.

10. That the said Company shall expend such sum as shall be approved of by the Court in the erection of Schools and premises, with suitable residences for the Orphans, Matrons, and Assistants, and other inmates and scholars, on the sites which may be so approved of, and which shall be purchased as aforesaid; such erections to be made and the said grounds to be laid out according to a Plan or Scheme or Plans or Schemes to be approved of by the Court.

Schools to be built.

11. That, for the purpose of a due and efficient management of the said Schools, each School shall be under the superintendence of fifteen Governors, resident within fourteen miles of the place where the School of which they respectively shall be Governors shall be situate, and which Governors shall in the first instance be appointed by the Court; and the vacancies in the number hereby fixed shall, after the first appointment of Governors, be filled up by the Drapers' Company; and the Bishop of the diocese in which any of the Schools shall be established shall be ex officio a Governor of such School.

Local Governors.

12. That no person shall be appointed or continue Governor who shall not be resident within fourteen miles, as herein-before stated, and who shall not be rated to the relief of the poor upon a rental of 30l., or who shall be or become bankrupt, or take the benefit of any Act for the relief of insolvent debtors.

Qualification.

13. That every person appointed a Governor shall, previously to his acting as such, sign a paper expressing his willingness to act as Governor, and perform the duties of a Governor according to the rules hereby laid down.

Governors to sign a consent.

14. That the Governors of the said School respectively shall hold Monthly Meetings, which shall be held the first Saturday in every month in the School premises, and shall at such Meetings examine the monthly accounts of the House Steward, and receive applications for admission to the School, and shall admit as scholars such girls as they shall see fit, over and above the Orphans to be maintained in the Schools.

Monthly Meetings.

15. That at every Meeting any five of the Governors of either of the said Schools respectively shall form a quorum, who, previously to proceeding on the business of any Meeting, shall elect a Chairman from amongst the Governors present, who, in case of an equality of votes, shall have a double or casting vote; and when the Bishop of the diocese in which any of the said Schools shall be established shall be present at a meeting of the Governors of such School he shall be the Chairman thereof.

Five to form a Quorum.

Minute Book.

16. That each set of Governors shall keep a Minute Book, in which shall be entered minutes of the proceedings at every meeting; and such minutes shall be signed by the Chairman of the meeting.

Report to be made to the Company.

17. That the Governors of each School shall annually transmit a Report of the state and condition of the School to the Drapers' Company, accompanied by such observations as they may think proper.

Clerk to the Governors may be appointed.

18. That each set of Governors shall be at liberty to appoint a Clerk to keep their accounts, enter the minutes of their proceedings, and perform such other duties as may be required by them as such Governors; and the salary of such Clerk shall be such as the Governors think fit to allow, not exceeding 20*l.* per annum for each clerk; and such salary shall be paid by the said Company out of the income of the Charity property.

Schools to be subject to Visitation.

19. That each of the said Schools shall be open to the visitation of an Inspector of the Committee of Council for Education, and the said Committee shall be requested to permit an Inspector periodically to visit the Schools, and be present at the annual examinations, and shall be requested to report to the said Company upon the nature and course of instruction, the progress made by the pupils, and the general state and condition of the Schools, with such suggestions for improvement as he may consider proper; a copy of which Report shall be transmitted to the local Governors.

House Steward to be appointed.

20. That a House Steward shall be appointed by, and hold his office during the pleasure of, the local Governors; and such House Steward shall reside in the house, and shall, under the directions of the local Governors, hire and employ such servants as shall be necessary for the establishment, keep the accounts, and examine and defray the household bills and other expenses. And the said House Steward shall (besides his board and lodging) have a fixed yearly stipend, not exceeding 60*l.*; and the wife of the House Steward (if any) may, in the character of a Housekeeper, render such services in the domestic management of the establishment as the Matron may from time to time require; and she shall receive for such services such remuneration as the Governors may from time to time direct. And the chief Matron or Governess shall (subject to such general directions and regulations as the local Governors shall in that behalf give and make) have and exercise the general control and supervision over the establishment and the arrangements thereof; and the House Steward and Housekeeper shall in all respects be subordinate and obedient to the Chief Matron or Governess, whose duty it shall be to see that proper order is observed, and that the wants of the Orphans and other inmates are well and sufficiently provided for. And the local Governors shall appoint a Committee of their body to assist the chief Matron or Governors with respect to such supervision; and such Committee shall at least once a year report on the state and condition of the establishment, the management and domestic arrangements, and the mode in which the Orphans and other inmates are provided for, and the state of the furniture and other property of the establishment. And the local Governors shall make arrangements for the payment of the household bills of the establishment without delay or credit; and they shall cause the accounts of the income and expenditure of the establishment to be made up yearly, and in time for the Annual Meeting of the local Governors; and the local Governors, after taking into account the annual expenditure for board and maintenance, shall from time to time fix the sum to be required in respect of each pay Boarder.

Committee to report upon Condition of Establishment.

21. That there shall be a chief Matron or Governess, and so many paid Assistants in each School as the said Governors may deem necessary; and such Matrons and Assistants shall be maintained out of the funds of the Charity.

Stipend to Matron and Assistants.

22. That the chief Matron shall be allowed a stipend of 100*l.*, and each assistant 40*l.*, and that the chief Matron and Assistants, before their respective appointments shall take place, shall sign the following declaration:—"I, A.B., do solemnly and sincerely declare that I am a member of the Church of England and Ireland as by law established."

First appointment of the Matron.

23. That the first appointment of the chief Matron shall be made by the Court.

After first appointment, Company to appoint Matron and Assistants.

24. That the chief Matron, after the first appointment of Matron, and also the Assistants, shall be appointed by the Drapers' Company; and it shall be lawful for the said Company to displace any Matron and any of the Assistants, upon any just cause, upon giving three months' notice thereof to the person intended to be removed; but no such removal shall take place unless the Governors of the School from which such person may be removed, or the Inspector of the Committee of Council on Education, shall have reported to the said Company that such removal is necessary.

25. That the said Company shall be at liberty, upon the recommendation of the Governors of the School from which any Matron or Assistant may be removed, to make to the person so removed such allowance, either annually or otherwise, as the said Company may think fit, and from time to time, on such recommendation as aforesaid, to alter, increase, diminish, or discontinue such allowance; provided that such retiring allowance be made only to persons who shall have filled the office of Matron or Assistant for a period of ten years, or who shall have been first an Assistant and afterwards a Matron for periods amounting together to fifteen years, except in cases of illness or other special circumstances, to be certified by the Governors; provided also that no retiring allowance shall in any case exceed 30*l.* per annum, and that the total aggregate amount of such allowances shall never at any time exceed 80*l.* per annum.

Retiring Allowance for Matrons and Assistants.

26. That whenever a vacancy shall occur in the office of Matron or Assistant in either of the said Schools, notice thereof shall be given by Advertisement twice at least in two London and two local newspapers circulating in the neighbourhood of the School wherein such vacancy shall have arisen, which notice shall state the particular office which may be vacant, with such description thereof, and of the qualifications required for the fulfilment of the duties thereof, as may enable candidates to apply for the same; and the last of such notices shall be published fourteen days at the least before the day appointed for the election; and that all such candidates shall by such notice be required, within the time to be thereby limited, to forward testimonials to the Clerk of the Drapers' Company, who shall render such parties as shall apply to him necessary information concerning the office so become vacant.

Notice of Vacancies to be published.

27. That the testimonials of every Candidate for such office shall be read and be taken into consideration at a Court of the Company, who, after a careful inquiry as to merits of the respective Candidates, shall appoint such person as they may consider most competent to perform the duties of such office.

Mode of appointment.

28. That each Matron shall have the care, superintendence, and direction of the School to which she shall be appointed, and of the inmates of the Establishment, and shall devote her exclusive attention to the same, and shall, to the utmost of her ability, train the girls committed to her charge in piety and virtue, according to the principles of the Christian religion.

Matron to have the Superintendence of School, &c.

29. That the Matron and Assistant shall reside in the School premises, and shall have separate apartments.

And to reside on the Premises.

30. That it shall be lawful for the Drapers' Company to appoint for each of the said Schools, during their pleasure, an Examiner to assist in the religious and moral education of the girls, and to allow him a stipend, not exceeding 50*l.* per annum; but no such appointment to be made without the sanction of the Bishop of the Diocese in which the School is situate.

Examiners may be appointed.

31. That the Examiner shall be a married man or widower, a clergyman of the Church of England in priest's orders.

Qualification of Examiner.

32. That such Examiner shall attend at the School on two days at the least in every week, unless prevented by illness or other good cause, to be approved by the Governors, and shall examine the girls as to their general proficiency, and assist in their religious and moral culture, and that he shall report in writing to the Governors once in every three months as to their state and condition, and that copies of such Report shall be forwarded by the Governors to the Drapers' Company.

Duties of Examiner.

33. That there shall be received into the School to be established within the Diocese of Llandaff thirty Orphan Girls, and into the School to be established at Denbigh twenty-five Orphan Girls, as inmates on the foundations respectively, or such lesser number as may require admission thereto; and such Orphans shall be nominated by the Drapers' Company to the said Schools, from Candidates recommended by the local Governors; and the said Company shall act as Guardians to such Orphan Girls during the period they remain at School; but if at any time any Orphan Maidens who shall be certified by the Bishop of Llandaff to be of the blood of Thomas Howell, the Founder, shall apply to be admitted into the said School, such person shall be preferred to all others, and shall be nominated accordingly.

Orphan Inmates to be received into Schools.

Pay of Boarders.	34. That the local Governors for the time being shall be at liberty to admit to the benefit of each School so many Boarders as they shall from time to time think proper, not exceeding Thirty respectively, who shall be subject to the same regulations in all respects as the Orphan inmates on the Foundation, so far as the same will apply. But such Boarders are not to receive any benefit from the Charity, except their Education, and are to pay, by quarterly payments in advance, such annual sum for their board as the Governors shall from time to time think sufficient to cover the expense of their board, washing, and maintenance.	43. That the said monies received from quarterly or weekly payments shall be distributed as follows, that is to say, one-third part thereof shall be laid out and expended in the purchase of suitable books for the Library of the School in respect of which such payments shall have been made; one other third part thereof in the purchase of prizes for distribution after the Annual Examination herein-after mentioned; and the remaining third part shall be equally divided between the Chief Matron of such School and her Assistants.	Application of other Monies.
Allowance for the Maintenance of Orphans.	35. That the said Orphans on the Foundation shall reside in the house attached to the School, and shall be provided with food and raiment out of the income of the Charity, and there shall be allowed thereout such sum as shall be found necessary for the maintenance of each of such Orphans.	44. That there shall be taught in the Schools the principles of the Christian religion, reading, writing, arithmetic, English grammar, geography, biography, history, the elements of astronomy, garden botany, music, French, and drawing, and such other subjects as the Governors shall from time to time direct.	Course of Instruction.
Surgeons to be appointed.	36. That the said Company shall appoint a Surgeon to attend the inmates of each of the said establishments, who shall be allowed such sum of money for medicines and attendances, not exceeding 20 l. per annum for each Surgeon respectively, as the local Governors shall think proper.	45. That suitable prayers, taken from the Liturgy of the Church of England, shall be read by the Matron or by the Examiner when he shall be present, and accompanied by the reading of a suitable portion of the Holy Scriptures, every morning and evening, in the said Schools; and the Matron and Examiner shall take care that each child (except as herein-after provided for) be well versed in the Church Catechism. But the said Schools and Establishments shall be open to female children of parents of all religious tenets, and no child shall be required to learn the Catechism of the Church of England, in case her parents or next friends shall express in writing to the Governors their objections, on conscientious grounds, to her doing so, and in all other respects the religious scruples of the parents and guardians shall be respected.	Prayers to be read in Schools.
Governors to obtain Church Accommodation.	37. That the inmates of the School, with such of the other girls attending the Schools as shall attend for that purpose, shall regularly attend Divine Service every Lord's Day in the Parish Church, or some other convenient Church or Churches; and the Governors of the said Schools (if they shall find it necessary) shall be at liberty to obtain and pay for proper Church accommodation for the inmates of the said Establishments: provided that no girl whose parents or guardians, from conscientious scruples to be duly notified in writing to the Governors, shall object to the attendance of such girl at Church, shall be required to attend; and provided also, that the Governors may, on good cause to be shown to their satisfaction, dispense with such attendance in any particular cases, if they shall think fit.	46. That every girl shall be taught needlework, and to cut out and make up her own clothes, and get up fine linen, either separately or in classes, as the Chief Matron may direct; and such of the girls on the Foundation as the Chief Matron shall appoint shall be taught domestic cookery.	Same to be open to Children all Religious Denominations.
Payment of Salaries and Expenses.	38. That the several Salaries of the Matrons and Assistants, and of the Examiners, Surgeons, and other Officers appointed to the Schools, shall be paid quarterly by the Governors of the respective Schools, who shall also advance monthly to the House Steward the necessary funds to purchase all provisions, fuel, and other necessities supplied for the support and maintenance of the girls and other inmates in the said Schools respectively, out of the monies to be furnished to them by the said Company for the purpose; and the said Company shall, out of the income of the said Charity, from time to time provide and pay to the said Governors of the said respective Schools the necessary funds and monies for making the said several advances and payments.	47. That the hours of attendance and discipline in the Schools, and the internal regulations and management thereof, and the holidays to be allowed, shall be such as the respective Chief Matrons, with the approbation of the Governors for each of the said Schools, shall direct and appoint; but two afternoons in every week, one of which shall be Saturday afternoon, shall be a holiday.	Needlework &c. to be taught.
Company to purchase Clothing.	39. That the said Drapers' Company shall annually purchase suitable materials for clothing the said orphans on the foundations, which shall be made up in the Schools.	48. That the parents or next friends of the children may agree with the Chief Matron of either of the Schools to receive their children as day boarders, and shall pay for such board to the Governors such sum of money as the Governors shall agree to, such sum not to exceed the average cost of board of the Orphans on the Foundation and other inmates in the said School; and while they remain in the said School the said day boarders shall be in all respects on the same footing as the other day scholars in the said School, but the number so admitted shall not exceed such limit as the Governors shall by any general regulation prescribe.	Hours of Attendance.
Day Scholars.	40. That such number of girls shall be received for education, as day scholars, into the said Schools, as the Governors for each School shall from time to time fix; and such girls shall be admitted with the approbation of the said Governors; and the said Governors shall have power to expel from the School of which they are Governors any girl guilty of repeated acts of gross misconduct.	49. That the girls of the Schools shall be allowed, with the approbation of the chief Matron or one of the Assistants of such School (subject to such regulations for the return thereof as the Governors shall think fit to direct), to take home any books, not exceeding one at a time, from the Library of the School at which such girl shall be attending.	Day Boarders.
Payments by Day Scholars.	41. That there shall be paid by every girl, not being an orphan, on her admission to either of the said Schools as a day scholar, such sum as the Governors of each School shall from time to time, by a rule or regulation to be made by them for that purpose, fix, not exceeding the sum of Ten Shillings, as an entrance fee; and such sum, not being less than Twopence or more than Sixpence per week, as the Governors of each School shall from time to time, by any general rule or regulation, fix; such payments to be made either quarterly or weekly, in advance, as the Governors shall think fit; and the said Governors may prescribe different rates of payment, with reference to the ages of the pupils, and may, in the case of any Orphan, remit the entrance fee and charge for education; but in all other respects the payments shall be uniform for all pupils attending the same School at the same time.	50. That there shall be an annual examination of the girls at each of the Schools, which shall take place before the Midsummer holidays, on such days as shall be fixed by the Chief Matrons and Governors, such examination to take place in the presence of the chief Matron and her Assistants and the Governors, and such persons as they may choose to invite, and the parents or next friends of the children.	Library Books.
Account of Entrance Fees to be kept.	42. That the House Steward shall receive all such payments, and shall keep an account thereof, with a separate account of the entrance fees, and shall account for and pay the same once in every month to the Clerk of the Governors; and the monies arising from such entrance fees shall be applied in the purchase of books, slates, and stationery for the girl in respect of whom the same shall have been paid.	51. That one month's previous notice of such examination in either of the said Schools shall be sent to the Drapers' Company, who shall communicate the same to the Committee of Council on Education, and shall request the said Committee to send an inspector to attend: he said examination as herein-before directed; and notice shall also be sent to the Bishop of the Diocese in which such school shall be situate inviting his presence, or that of the diocesan inspector authorised by him.	Annual Examination.
Application thereof.		52. That the chief Matron and Governors of each School shall distribute such and so many prizes, consisting of either dress, books, or other appropriate and useful presents, to and amongst such meritorious girls attending the said School as shall distinguish themselves in learning and good conduct, and who, in the judgment of the chief Matron and Governors, are deserving of the same.	Notice thereof.
			Prizes to be distributed.

53. That no single prize shall exceed 2*l.* in value, and the expenses of providing the same shall be defrayed out of the prize fund herein-before set apart for such purpose.

54. That no girl shall be admitted as inmate to either of the said Schools before she shall be seven years of age; nor shall any girl be admitted upon the Foundation after she shall be twelve years of age; and no girl shall be admitted as a day scholar under the age of five years. And (unless under the authority of a Minute of the Governors) no girl shall continue in either of the said Schools after she shall have attained the age of seventeen years, unless she be an orphan, but orphans may remain until they are eighteen years of age.

55. That the Drapers' Company shall, out of the income of the Charity, set apart a fund, to be called "The Portion and Endowment Fund," which Fund shall always be kept up to the amount of 500*l.*, and shall, as far as may be, be invested at interest; and such Fund shall be appropriated, in sums not exceeding 100*l.* to any one Orphan, for the benefit of the Orphan inmates who shall have left the said Establishment, after having been educated therein on the Foundation; and the said Company shall apply the same as marriage portions, to be paid on the marriage of such Orphan, she having in the meantime maintained an unblemished character, to the satisfaction of the Governors; and the Governors are to be at liberty to advance a portion of the said sum in the meantime, for the benefit of the said orphan, by apprenticing her or advancing her in life, or otherwise making provision for her on her leaving the School or afterwards; and such payments, whether for marriage portions or otherwise, shall be paid either at once or by instalments, in such manner and at such times as the Governors of the said Schools shall recommend: but that no Orphan inmate, unless she shall have been received on the Foundation as of the blood of the Founder, shall have any claim or title to any portion of such Fund, unless on the recommendation of the Governors; and that every Orphan inmate who shall have been duly proved and certified to have been of the blood of the Founder shall, after leaving the said Establishment, and being of unblemished character, be entitled, on her marriage, to a marriage portion of 200*l.* out of the said Fund; and the Governors are to be at liberty to advance a portion of the said sum for her benefit in the meantime, in the same manner as herein-before provided with regard to the other Orphan girls on the Foundation.

56. That such ladies as the Governors shall from time to time authorise shall be at liberty, subject to such regulations and control as the Governors may prescribe, to visit and inspect the said Schools and the Establishments, but shall not have any power or authority to interfere with the management or regulation of the Schools.

57. That the Court of the Drapers' Company shall be invited every third year to depute two Members of the Court and the Clerk of the Company to attend the Annual Examination of the said Schools, and report to the Court of the said Company the state and condition of the Schools, and any suggestions for improvements.

58. That if there shall remain in any year a surplus of the income of the said Charity unapplied, after payment of the stipends, outgoings, and expenses herein provided to be paid out of the income of the said Charity, or uninvested under the provision contained in the third clause of this Scheme, and when and so often as the same shall amount to 1,000*l.*, the Drapers' Company shall apply to the Court of Chancery for further directions as to the application thereof; provided always, that the said Company shall have power to apply out of such surplus any sum, not exceeding 200*l.* in any one year, to any object within the scope and spirit of this Scheme, if extraordinary circumstances shall in their judgment render it expedient so to do.

59. That this Scheme shall be printed, and a copy thereof furnished to each Governor and the Chief Matron and each of the other Officers in or connected with the said Schools.

THE MYSTERY OF IMPROVIDENCE.

The CHARITY of THOMAS HOWELL, established for the benefit of his Monmouthshire kinsfolk and others, A.D. 1540. By Thomas Falconer, Esq., Judge of the County Courts of Glamorganshire and Brecknockshire.

Second Edition.

THE CHARITY OF THOMAS HOWELL.

THOMAS HOWELL, by his will dated in 1540, and made by him during his residence at Seville, in Spain, bequeathed as follows:—

"Item, I comaunde myne executours that I leve in Sywell, that incontynent, after my deathe, they doo send to the citie of London 12,000 duckats of gold, by billes of cambio, for to delyver to the House called Draper's Hall—to delyver theyme to the Wardeynes thereof; and the said Wardeynes, so sone as they have receyved the same 12,000 duckats to buy therewith 400 duckats of rent yearly for evermore—in possession for evermore. And it is my will, that the said 400 duckats be disposed unto four maydens, being orphans—next of my kynne and of bludde—to their marriage—if they can be founde—every one of them to have 100 duckats—and if they cannot be founde of my lynnage, then to be geven to other foure maydens, though they be not of my lynnage, so that they be orphans, honest, of goode fame and every of them 100 duckats—and so, every yere, for to marry four maydens for ever. And if the said 12,000 duckats will bye more lande then the said 12,000 duckats to be spente to the marriage of maydens, being orphans, increasing the foure maydens aforesaide as shall seme by the discretion aforesaide of the Master and Wardeynes of the saide House of Draper's Hall; and that this memoria to remain in writing in the Booke of Memoryes in the said House in suche mannere as it shall at no time be undone for ever."

In the year 1543 the Drapers' Company, having received 8,720 ducats as part of and on account of the said bequest, purchased of Henry VIII. some premises, hereafter mentioned, in the City of London, which had become forfeited to the Crown, on the attainder of Thomas Cromwell Earl of Essex—the greatest and most powerful of those fearless ecclesiastical reformers who struck down the domination of the Church of Rome in this kingdom and the temporal power of its priesthood—and on the conveyance of the property the Company covenanted with the King to distribute and dispose of the rents and profits which at any time thereafter should clearly accrue from the said premises, over and above the costs and charges of reparation, to and for the marriage of poor maidens, being orphans, at the discretion of the Master, Brethren, and Sisters of the said Company for the time being.

On this occasion an Indenture, dated March 31, 1543, and confirmed by Letters Patent dated July 4, 1545, was made between King Henry VIII. of the first part, and the Master, &c. of the Company of Drapers of the other part; and in consideration of 1,200*l.* the King granted to the Company a capital messuage and two gardens and other buildings to the same annexed in the Parish of Saint Peter le Poor, within the Ward of Broad Street, in the City of London, and in the Parish of St. Stephen, Coleman Street, paying yearly ten shillings and four pence into the Court of Augmentations, and in further recompense and satisfaction the Master, &c. covenanted to dispose of the rents and profits for the benefit of the female orphans as aforesaid.

The messuages and gardens are particularly set out in the Letters Patent. The capital messuage and gardens abutted in Broad Street South, and certain messuages, tenements, and cellars lay together near the Church of the Convent of the Augustine Brothers, in the said Parish and in the Ward of Broad Street, and abutted on the street leading towards Lothbury on the south and the way leading to the Priory of the Augustines upon the north; also a messuage, cellars, and a gate-house fronting south towards Broad Street, and abutting north on the Church-yard of the said Convent, and a water-course and running of conduit water to the said capital messuage, and a way to the said capital messuage and tenement thereto belonging by the gate called Friars gate, to Broad Street.

In the year 1559, and nineteen years after the death of Thomas Howell, a suit (Chryssley v. Chester) was instituted in the Court of Chancery by certain poor female orphans, alleging themselves to be kinswomen of the Testator, and that the Company had not properly applied the revenues, and praying to have the benefit of the Charity. This was in the first year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth.

Scheme to be printed.

The Company by their answer admitted they had received 8,720 ducats, and that the tenements and gardens purchased produced 105*l.* per annum. They stated that one year with another they had received, over and above all charges, the sum of 70*l.*, which they had bestowed on the marriage of maiden orphans, and that 30*l.* a year was required for necessary repairs—that they always intended, and did intend, God willing, as near as they could, to perform the will of the said Testator, with as much of the rents as should come clearly to their hands, over and above all charges—if it were ascertained, or thereafter should be ascertained, what maidens or orphans of the Testator's kin, or lineage, ought by right to have the same legacies, according unto his will, which thereunto they could not perfectly attain to know.

By a Decree made on the hearing of the above suit [June 24, 1559], it was ordered:

That once every year, at the Feast of the Purification, a Certificate should be made out of a certain pedigree or "herbal" [Heirbal?] therein mentioned—which Certificate should be made by the Bishop of Llandaff for the time being, or, if vacant, by the Dean and Chapter of the same Diocese, in writing under their respective seals, and delivered to the said Master and Wardens, ascertaining and proving that the four orphans named therein were next of kin, lineage, and blood of the said Testator, and that they were orphans, fatherless, and of the age of twelve years and upwards, and were then living, on which certificate the said Masters and Wardens for the time being should forthwith make payment of 84*l.* yearly out of the rents and revenues of the said lands to the hands of the said Bishop, or Dean and Chapter, to the use of the said four orphans, for that year, equally between them to be divided, that is, to each of them 21*l.*; and if it should happen, at any time, that the said orphans being then next of kin and blood of the said Thomas Howell should be within the age of twelve years and not marriageable, the money should be paid over to four orphans being of the next descent, as should be above the age of twelve years and marriageable, and that under certain-mentioned circumstances the money might be paid though they were named before they ought to receive the same.

And it was further provided that if the said premises should be decayed by casualty by fire, and that 84*l.* could not be levied, the Company should be charged apportionably. And it was provided that if the property should be improved in value above the 84*l.* payable to the orphans, and 21*l.* allowed to the Company for their ordinary and extraordinary charges, that then the same improvement over and above the sum of 84*l.* and 21*l.* should be equally divided and paid yearly to the said four orphans—portion and portion alike—foreseeing always that the same improvement yearly, to be divided to the said orphans, did not exceed the value of 16*l.* by the year. And it was provided that if the Company should receive the remaining 3,820 ducats, or such portion as would purchase an increase of lands to the yearly value of 16*l.*, the Company shall pay the orphans so much as the increased rent should amount to—foreseeing that in the whole the said orphans should not be paid above the yearly sum of 100*l.*

It did not appear that the last-mentioned sum of 3,820*l.* was ever paid to the Company. It is also an important fact that the Attorney-General was not a party in the suit.

The reference in the above Decree of the year 1559 to a certain Pedigree of the family of Howell has this explanation:—In the year 1556, and during the reign of Queen Mary, and when Nicholas Heath, Archbishop of York, was Lord Chancellor, a Pedigree of the Howell family was certified in a commission signed by Cardinal Pole, who was then Archbishop of Canterbury. The Commission was not issued in any suit in Chancery.

This Commission to preserve the remembrance of the family of the Testator, and which was not made to advance any ecclesiastical object, was the first interference of the Church in the affairs of the Charity.

The family of Thomas Howell was of Monmouthshire, and many persons of that name are still to be found in the county. The most eminent of the name, though it might be impossible to connect him with the Testator, was James Howell, who was the son of a Rev. Thomas Howell, and was born near Brecknock, about the year 1596. He visited Spain, Italy, &c., and his "Epistolæ Ho-Elizianæ" have been many times reprinted. His portrait has been preserved in Monmouthshire, at Llantillo Crosseny. As he was the son of a clergyman, it is not at all improbable his father removed from Monmouthshire in order to accept church preferment in Brecknockshire.

By the Decree of 1559 it was ordered that a certificate should be annually made of four orphans out of the Pedigree certified by the order of Cardinal Pole, and "that the said certificate should be made by and from the "Bishop of Llandaff for the time being."* The object of this certificate was not to transfer any interest in the Charity to the Bishop of Llandaff, but because Monmouthshire being in the diocese of Llandaff, a bishop in those days was one of the best public officials to be referred to on the subject of the family connections of a Monmouthshire family. Moreover, Anthony Kitchen, or Dunstan, was in 1559 Bishop of Llandaff, and he resided in the palace of the bishopric, in the parish of Mathern, near Chepstow, in Monmouthshire. He was buried at Mathern, as well as his immediate successors in the see, namely, Hugh Jones and William Blethin. The official residence, therefore, of the Bishops of Llandaff being at that time in Monmouthshire, was another sufficient reason to apply to them for the certificate.

In the year 1593 another order of the Court of Chancery was issued, the Lord Keeper Puckering directing the certificate of the Howell family to be made by and from the Bishop of Llandaff for the time being, and by four, three, or two Justices of the Peace of the County of Monmouth, the Dean and Chapter of Llandaff to act instead of the Bishop during the vacancy of the see.

Probably this last order was occasioned by the orphans of the Howell family being unable to procure the certificate of the Bishop of Llandaff respecting their descent, after the order of the year 1559 was made. The fact, however, that Justices of the Peace of the County of Monmouthshire were associated thereafter with the Bishop in making the certificate is remarkably significant. It demonstrates that in 1593 the chief descendants of the Howell family were to be found in Monmouthshire, and it further proves that the Bishop of Llandaff, or the Dean and Chapter of Llandaff, had no more interest in the Charity than the Justices of the Peace of the County of Monmouth. The Charity was not for the promotion of religious teaching, but was purely secular and eleemosynary; and the very great importance of this distinction will be made apparent in the sequel.

No other legal proceedings respecting the Charity appear to have taken place until the 27th of July 1838, when an information was filed by the Attorney-General against the Master, Wardens, Brethren, and Sisters of the Guild or Fraternity of the Blessed Mary the Virgin, of the Mystery of Drapers of the City of London, for the establishment and regulation of the Charity.

The answer to the information stated that out of the rents carried to the account of the Charity, the following payments were made:—

	£	s.	d.
Quit-rent to the Grocers' Company	-	1	0	0
Quit-rent to the Parish of St. Edmund the King	-	0	5	4
Clerk of the Company	-	0	10	0
Incidental expenses for Surveyor's charges and repairs	-	-	-	-
To the Order of the Bishop of Llandaff on the receipt of a certificate that the four persons therein named had been appointed to receive marriage portions, such persons being maidens, or those next of kin, and lineage, and blood to Thomas Howell, and of the age of twelve years and upwards	-	84	0	0

And it was stated that the rest of the revenue was carried to the account of the income of the Company. The printed accounts do not show what amount of money was paid under the head of Surveyor's charges and repairs.

The Defendants admitted that, at the time of the information, the rents carried to the account of the Charity amounted to 1,941*l.* 15*s.* 1*d.* yearly; and this appears to have been exclusive of any occupation rent for Charity property in their own occupation.

The Company in their answer relied on the Decree of the year 1559, as absolutely giving to them the whole

* In the first edition of this pamphlet it was stated, on the authority of Hayden's "List of Bishops of Llandaff," that the see was vacant in 1559, when this Order was made. It appears, however, from the list of bishops in Williams's "History of Monmouthshire" (Appendix, p. 44), that Anthony Kitchen, or Dunstan, was Bishop of Llandaff from 1545 to 1563. He is spoken of by Bishop Godwin as "the shame and reproach of the see" (Coxe's "Monmouthshire," p. 10), having affected to change his opinions as often as the articles of professed belief of the members of the Established Church were changed by law during the time he was a bishop. He died in 1563. Hugh Jones, after a vacancy of three years in the see, succeeded him in 1566, and was buried at Mathern in 1574. He is said to have been the first Welshman advanced to the see in nearly three preceding centuries. His successor was William Blethin, a Welshman. Gervase Babington was bishop from the year 1591 to the year 1595. William Murray, a Celt, but a Scotchman, was made bishop in 1627. No ecclesiastic of a Welsh family has been promoted to the see since 1675, or during nearly the last 200 years. Learning, prudence, and the moral character and courage of a gentleman, however, and not his place of birth, should influence the nomination of a bishop.

residue of the income, after applying the sums therein mentioned for the purposes of the Charity, which sums, they contended, were limited to 100*l.* a year. They insisted also on the long usage which had prevailed respecting the disposition of the Charity income. They were charged with a misappropriation of the rents, and by the Decree of Lord Langdale, Master of the Rolls, dated April 29, 1845, they were declared to have misappropriated them. They claimed to apply as they should think fit nearly the whole income of the Charity, and their claim was set aside.

The Decree of April 29, 1845, declared that the whole funds in the hands of the Defendants, and the rents of the land purchased under the will of Thomas Howell, were applicable to the charitable purposes of the will. It was ordered, among other things, that the Master should settle a scheme for the future administration of the Charity and the future application of the income, and he was to state, having regard to the charitable objects contemplated by the Testator, whether it would be fit and proper any and what extension of charitable objects and uses should be made of the said Charity, so as to embrace other objects than those immediately contemplated by the Testator; also to inquire if it were necessary an Act of Parliament should be obtained to carry into effect such scheme as he might approve of, and to settle the Draft of a Bill for an Act of Parliament to extend the scheme, and to enable the Defendants to purchase such part of the Charity Estates whereon the Hall and Buildings occupied by them were built, and the gardens thereto attached, discharged of the Charitable Trusts to which they were subject, and for the investment and disposition of the purchase-money.

The Master reported, February 12, 1846, that it was most beneficial the Hall and Gardens should be sold, subject to a lease at a ground rent of 120*l.* a year. By an Order of March 10, 1846, the Master was directed to approve of such lease; and on the 16th of April 1846 a Lease was made by the Drapers' Company to the Trustees nominated by and on their behalf, of the Hall, &c. for 23 years, from the 25th of December 1843, at a rent of 120*l.* a year.

Another Order was made by the Master of the Rolls, June 2, 1846, for the approval of the Draft of a Bill for an Act of Parliament for the sale of the Hall, &c., and the Act of the 9th and 10th Victoria, c. 19 (A.D. 1846), was passed, "to authorise the sale of part of the Charity "Estates vested in the Master, Wardens, Brethren, and "Sisters of the Guild or Fraternity of the Blessed Virgin "Mary, of the Mystery of Drapers of the City of London, "upon the Trusts to the will of Thomas Howell, "deceased."

Under the authority of that Act, the Hall, &c. were sold to the Drapers' Company. This was the first Act of Parliament passed relating to the Charity, and it may be treated as the completion of the Decree of 1845, so far as relates to the gathering together of the property of the Company. The administration of the Charity became the subject of a second Act of Parliament, which will be mentioned hereafter.

The Information was filed in 1838; the hearing was on May 3, 1843; and the judgment of Lord Langdale appears to have been given immediately on the hearing. It occupied nearly five years to obtain the interpretation of the will and a declaration of the trusts. In 1559 (ante, pages 16 and 17) the Decree seems to have been obtained in less than six months. The account against the Company having been ordered from the filing of the information, in July 1838, and an occupation rent being charged on account of the Hall, &c., there was payable on account of the Charity, on the accumulation of rents during the pendency of the litigation from the year 1838 to the year 1846 (when the first Act of Parliament was passed), a sum of about 16,000*l.*

The Company were ordered in 1843 to pay the costs of the information—"having," said Lord Langdale, "thought "fit to have this question tried in order that they might "have the application of this money according to their own "view of what was right." Their view of what was right was, that 100*l.* a year only should be applied to the purposes of the Charity.

Lord Langdale also said, "that nothing could be more "satisfactory in an investigation of this kind than to find "that there is no possibility of any imputation of bad or "corrupt conduct on the part of the Defendants. The "present Defendants, beyond all question, have applied "this fund just in the manner in which it has been applied "by their predecessors; in all probability they never "looked at the original foundation at all, but, instead of "applying it to any beneficial purpose of their own, it is "now shown by the evidence and the answer, and it is "admitted by the Attorney-General, that they have applied "the funds in a beneficial manner for the most useful

"charitable purposes." He also said, "that very great "doubt might be entertained whether extending the "charitable purposes of the Founder would be productive "of effects anything like so beneficial as the charitable "purposes promoted by them." [6 Beavan's Chancery Reports, p. 389.] How far more satisfactory would it have been had Lord Langdale spoken to this effect:—

"Ail persons who are called upon to administer local or public trusts should remember that their first duty is to acknowledge themselves to be accountable, and they should freely admit their responsibility by publishing, at stated intervals of time, the origin of the trusts, the objects of the trusts, and the application of the funds under their control. If money is expended by them, they should announce the amount and its application; if money is in hand they should declare it, and if, unfortunately, debt is incurred, it affects their private character and honour if they fail to publish the particulars, and truthfully to explain the cause. There should be no secrecy, and any attempt to keep private or to conceal the state of affairs is to be condemned. I regret that in this case there has been concealment from the public for a very long series of years. The attempt to bring to light the management of the Charity has occasioned five years of litigation. Why has there been this delay? Either the procedure of this Court is flagrantly iniquitous, or hindrances have been opposed to the hearing of the cause by the acts of the parties, which deserve the strongest censure on those who have caused them. My decision has been checked by no difficulty in the case. The facts presented to my consideration are free from doubt; the construction of the will of the Testator has no obscurity, though time has hidden from the benefit of his Charity those whom he intended his trustees to remember to be of his blood and kin; and the misappropriation of the funds is manifest. I can offer no excuse for the conduct of the Drapers' Company, and no other excuse can be suggested than that practice, so pregnant of abuse and so common among the companies of the City of London, of hiding from public investigation their dealings with charity funds, and then setting up their long and successful secrecy in order to sanction what they have done. They excuse their own acts because they are similar to the acts of their predecessors. To justify such a defence they should be able to prove the acts of their predecessors to have been commendable."

The above statement relates the history of the administration of the Charity from its foundation until the year 1846.

As there are different legal rules for the administration of Charities, it is important to notice the following, and to observe the class of Charities in which the Charity in question was included:

I. If a Charity were founded to support a religious establishment, or to promote religious education, and the intentions of the Founder are not clearly expressed, the presumption is, first, that he intended to establish a Charity connected with some particular form of religion; secondly, that the form of religion intended was that which he himself professed; and thirdly,—if no evidence is given of his own religious views—that the established religion of the country was meant to be supported.

II. In educational Charities the Court will not deprive particular classes of person of the benefits of the secular education offered by enforcing rules of religious instruction, unless there be an expressed intention to that effect.

III. Where the Charity is purely eleemosynary the presumption is, that all classes, irrespective of religious doctrines, are intended to participate in the bounty of the Founder, unless there are clear and distinct expressions of intention to exclude particular persons from its benefits.

(See the Case of Attorney-General v. Calvert, reported 23 Beavan's Reports, 248; 21 Jurist, 500; 26 Law Journal, 682.)

From the recital of the facts which has been made it is obvious—

1. That the primary intention of Thomas Howell was to benefit his own kinsfolk.

2. That the benefit intended by the Testator was purely eleemosynary.

3. That even if the kin of the Testator were not members of the Established Church, they would have been entitled to the benefit of the Charity, and there is no exclusion of other persons from the benefit of the Charity on the ground of their particular religious belief. It was a Charity open to Dissenters.

4. That whatever locality could be named to which the Charity could be referred, it was the county of Monmouth.

5. That the Bishop of the diocese of Llandaff is in no manner named either in the will of the Testator, nor in orders of the Court of Chancery, as having any title to administer the funds of the Charity, or to superintend their distribution, though in practice the Drapers' Company, for a long series of years previous to the year 1838, paid into the hands of the Bishop of Llandaff for the time being the sum of 84*l.* a year for the purposes of the Charity.

On the 4th of March 1851 the Master of the Court to whom the cause stood referred reported, among other matters, that the income of the Charity property, exclusive of interest accumulating on the income which was paid during the litigation, was 2,138*l.* 13*s.*, and that it was fit there should be an extension of the objects and uses of the Charity. On the 4th March 1852 an order was made in the cause, ordering that an application should be made to Parliament by the Attorney-General for an Act to enable the Court of Chancery to extend the said Charity to the establishment, maintenance, and benefit of schools in Wales for the instruction of girls, and for the maintaining, clothing, and providing portions for the orphan inmates educated in the schools so to be established, and keeping up the establishment of such schools in such manner as the Court should think fit. It also sanctioned the purchase by the Drapers' Company of a house in Throgmorton Street, part of the Estates of the Charity.

In pursuance of this direction, a Bill was brought into Parliament, and the Act of the 15th and 16th Victoria, ch. 14, was passed, namely, "An Act for the regulation and management of the Charity founded by Thomas Howell, on or about the year 1540, and for other purposes."*

The first section of the Act empowers the Company to purchase No. 29, Throgmorton Street, discharged for the charitable trust to which it was subject.

The other sections of the Act are as follow:—

"II. That it shall be lawful for the Court of Chancery to extend the said Charity to the establishment, maintenance, and benefit of schools in Wales for the instruction of girls, and the maintaining, clothing, and providing portions for the orphan inmates educated in the schools to be so established, and the keeping up the establishment for such schools, in such manner and subject to such provisions and regulations as the said Court shall from time to time order or direct, and from time to time make and give such decrees, orders, or directions in relation to the Charity and the premises as shall be requisite or proper, having regard to the extension hereby authorised as aforesaid; provided, that for the purposes of this Act the whole of the Diocese of Llandaff shall be deemed to be in Wales; provided also, that in preparing such schemes preference shall be given to the diocese of Llandaff, both as to the priority and size of the foundations to be established and maintained under the authority of this Act; and that not more than one school shall be established or maintained from the proceeds of the said Charity beyond the present limits of that Diocese.

"III. That if any orphan maiden who shall be certified by the Bishop of Llandaff to be of the blood of the said Thomas Howell shall apply to be admitted into any of the schools established or maintained under the authority of this Act, such person shall be preferred to all others; and that every orphan inmate of any of the said schools who shall have been duly certified to be of the blood of the said Thomas Howell shall, after leaving such school and being of unblemished character, be entitled on her marriage to a marriage portion of two hundred pounds out of the funds of the Charity; and that the Governor may advance a portion of such sum for her benefit in the meantime.

"IV. That the Bishop of the Diocese in which any of the said schools shall be established shall be ex officio a Governor of such school, and shall, when present at a meeting of the Governors of such school, be chairman thereof.*

"V. That it shall be lawful for the said Company, their successors and assigns, by and under the order and direction of the said Court of Chancery, to purchase and hold such pieces of ground as sites for the schools to be established as aforesaid, and the buildings and appurtenances to be attached thereto, as shall be approved of by the said Court; and that such pieces of ground, when so purchased, shall be conveyed unto or otherwise vested in the said Company, their successors and assigns, upon trust for the said Charity, in such manner as the said Court of Chancery shall order or direct.

"VI. That it shall be lawful for the said Company, their successors and assigns, from time to time, with the sanction and approbation of the said Court of Chancery, to grant and contract for the grant of any building, improving, or other leases for any term or number of years of all or any part of the lands, estates, and property for the time being belonging to or held in trust for the said Charity, and also to sell and convey or exchange and contract for the sale and conveyance or exchange of all or any part of the same lands, estates, and property, for such rents, at such prices, upon such terms and conditions, and with and subject to such powers and provisions, and in such manner respectively as the said Court of Chancery shall from time to time, by its order, authorise or direct, and for the purposes aforesaid, or any of them, and also for the improvement or better management of the said Charity estates, or any of them, to make or execute all or any such deeds, leases, and conveyances, and accept all or any such surrenders, and to make and enter into all such contracts and arrangements, and do all such acts, matters, and things whatsoever, as the said Court of Chancery shall in manner aforesaid authorise or direct.

"VII. That it shall be lawful for the said Company, their successors and assigns, from time to time, with the sanction and approbation of the Court of Chancery, to lay out and invest the surplus rents and profits and income of the Charity estates and property, and all or any monies arising from any sale or exchange of the said Charity estates and property, or any part thereof, and all or any other monies for the time being belonging to the Charity, in the purchase of lands or hereditaments, or Government or real securities; and that from time to time, when and as often as any such purchase or investment shall be made as aforesaid, the lands and securities respectively so to be purchased or obtained shall be conveyed and transferred unto or otherwise vested in the said Company, their successors and assigns, upon trust for the benefit of the said Charity, as the Court of Chancery may from time to time direct.

"VIII. That all the costs, charges, and expenses incident to and attendant or in anywise relating to the applying for, obtaining, and passing this Act, and incidental and preparatory thereto, shall be paid out of the Charity estates, monies, and property, in such manner as the said Court of Chancery shall direct.

"IX. That in this Act the following words and expressions shall have the several meanings hereby assigned to them, unless there be something in the subject or context repugnant to such construction; (that is to say.)

"The expression 'Company' shall mean and include the Drapers' Company, by their corporate name of 'The master, wardens, and brethren and sisters of the Blessed Mary the Virgin of the Mystery of Drapers of the city of London,' and their successors, and other the trustees for the time being of the Charity.

"The expression 'the Charity' shall mean the said Charity founded by Thomas Howell, as established and administered under the authority of this Act."

The 10th Section is what is called in all such private Acts of Parliament, "The General Saving Clause;" and

* The Court of Chancery does not assume to interfere with Parliament, and both in the House of Lords and in the House of Commons there is uncontrolled power to check the mischief of any scheme which may be embodied in a bill before Parliament. As regards the declaration of the Court of Chancery in respect of trusts, Lord Cottonham (Chancellor) said, in the case of The Attorney-General v. the Ironmongers' Company (2 "Mylne and Keen's Reports," p. 385, A.D. 1841)—"As for a reference to the Master to approve of a Scheme for an Act of Parliament, I do not profess to understand how that alters the import of the declaration. His Honour the Master of the Rolls declares that at present the Court has no jurisdiction, and desires a bill to be presented to Parliament for the purpose of obtaining powers which he considers the Court not now to possess. It would be hard to conceive a more complete denial of the Court's jurisdiction than this course: the meaning of it is plain—that as the law now stands, the Court has no jurisdiction to apply the fund except in redemption of slaves, and will never have any such jurisdiction until the law is altered. There is no foundation for that proposition, nor has this Court anything to do with directing bills to be brought in for the purpose of extending its power to objects of bounty not named in the will, nor in the Testator's contemplation." Every member of either House of Parliament who knew of this bill relating to Howell's Charity, when pending, and all the mischief it contained, and permitted it to pass into law unopposed, is responsible for it. The bishops in the House of Lords were silent on the occasion when Howell's Charity Act passed, and they probably habitually set the example of the silence referred to in the "Letter of the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, M.P. for the University of Oxford," dated February 29, 1860, who thus complained that the clergy are not financial reformers: "I cannot say (he states) I have observed, on their (the clergy's) part, a general desire to check (public) expenditure, though undoubtedly a no less real and more severely the pressure of taxation which it causes." This letter was addressed by Mr. Gladstone to a Welsh clergyman. The wish of Mr. Gladstone evidently is, that the clergy should remonstrate against any needless or mischievous expenditure of public money; and public money, be it remembered, includes Church and Charity property. He does not ask for non-interference. If the bishops, for example, see a great Charity job in the House of Lords, it is their duty to pounce on it and to destroy it, or to become remonstrant economists.

* Before this was determined on, the courtesy of receiving the assent of the Bishop of Llandaff to this provision, and to the Act generally, should have been observed. If it were observed—"Non ullo casu arbitrator hoc constanti episcopo posse contingere ut ulla intermissio fiat officii."

the 11th Section provides that it is not a public Act, but that a copy, printed by the Queen's printer, may be admitted as evidence thereof by all Judges, Justices, and others.

The Act contemplates the establishment of Schools in the Diocese of Llandaff; and, strangely enough, provides by Section 2 that the whole of the Diocese of Llandaff shall be deemed to be in Wales. This provision was to include, by a sort of parenthesis, the English county of Monmouth—as though the county of Monmouth was not that very District which had primary claims to be regarded when a locality was to be distinctly assigned for the general application of the funds of the Charity. As, however, admittance to the schools is not limited to children born in Wales, but is open to children born anywhere and without any personal or local preference (except in the case of Founder's kin), the provision is applicable only to the locality of the schools which are directed to be in Wales, and the provision is unmeaning, since, with one exception, it is generally enacted that the "schools" to be established shall be within the present limits of the Diocese of Llandaff.

The same Section declares that not more than one School shall be established from the proceeds of the said Charity beyond the present limits of the Diocese of Llandaff. Schools, that is more than one, were to be established in Glamorganshire and Monmouthshire, and only one beyond the limits named.

By Section 4, the Bishop of the Diocese is to be Chairman of all meetings of the Governors.

The following is an extract of a published Letter of the Bishop of Llandaff, dated December 20, 1859:—

"Two schools, one at Llandaff and the other at Denbigh, have been built on a large scale.

"On the 29th of November last the school at Llandaff was handed over by the Drapers' Company to the local Governors, who are fifteen in number—the Bishop of the Diocese being ex officio a Governor and Chairman of the Board—and on the 1st December the same steps were taken at Denbigh.

"At the Llandaff school thirty orphan girls—the word being interpreted in the scheme children who have lost one or both of their parents—are to be instructed, clothed, and maintained; and a Portion and Endowment Fund is to be established by the Drapers' Company for their benefit. In addition to these, Pay Boarders, not exceeding thirty in number, who are to pay for their board, washing, and maintenance such annual sum as the Governors shall think fit, are to be admitted, receiving gratuitously the same education as the orphans. Such number of girls are also to be received for education, as day scholars, at a low rate of payment, as the Governors from time to time shall fix.

"As it is desirable that the nature of the education prescribed by the scheme should be generally known, for the guidance of those who wish to make application for the admission of orphan girls, I beg to subjoin the 44th and 46th Sections of the scheme.

"Section 44. That there shall be taught in the schools the principles of the Christian Religion,	History,

Reading,	Elements of Astronomy.
Writing,	Garden Botany,
Arithmetic,	Music,
English Grammar,	French, and
Geography,	Drawing,
Biography,

and such other subjects as the Governors shall from time to time direct.

"Section 46. That every girl shall be taught needlework, and to cut out and make up her own clothes, and get up fine linen, either separately or in classes, as the chief matron may direct; and such of the girls on the foundation as the chief matron shall appoint shall be taught domestic cookery.

"The orphans are to be nominated by the Drapers' Company from candidates recommended by the local Governors. No girl is to be admitted before she shall be seven, nor admitted on the foundation after twelve, years of age.

"The Governors are prepared to receive applications on behalf of orphans, and they are to be addressed to Charles Luard, Esq., Cardiff, Clerk to the Llandaff Branch of the Charity."

The following are the names of the Governors of the Charity:

The Drapers' Company (Trustees).
The Right Rev. the Bishop of Llandaff.
The Right. Hon. Lord Tredegar, Monmouthshire.
C. Octavius Morgan, Esq., M.P., Newport, Monmouthshire.

The Very Rev. the Dean of Llandaff, Llandaff, Glamorganshire.

Rev. E. Hawkins, St. Wollo, Monmouthshire.

Rev. T. Stacey, Cardiff, Glamorganshire.

Rev. Roper Tyler, Llantrithyd, Glamorganshire.

Col. T. K. Tynte, Kefn-Mably, Glamorganshire.

E. Priest Richards, Esq., Cardiff, Glamorganshire.

John Knight Bruce Pryse, Esq., Dufferyn, Glamorganshire.

John Coke Fowler, Esq., Llandaff, Glamorganshire.

Charles Croft Williams, Esq., Roath, Glamorganshire.

Evan David, Esq., Fairwater House, Glamorganshire.

Richard Bassett, Esq., Bonviltone, Glamorganshire.

The Glamorganshire Governors all reside within a very few miles of the town of Cardiff, and the three Monmouthshire Governors within a short distance of the town of Newport. The scheme provides that they are to be fifteen in number, and are to be resident within fourteen miles from Cardiff, and thus all persons resident beyond Newport, living in Monmouthshire, are excluded from being entitled to become Governors. The orphans to be nominated may be selected from any part of the kingdom. The universality of choice may be limited by expectations dependent on the certainty that the Governors themselves will be a very domestic party at Llandaff. All orphans are qualified to be elected. The field of selection is vast, and the very generality of it is an absurd provision. In its vagueness the scheme almost violates the principles of law which govern the Court of Chancery in the declaration of trusts.

The Governors are, in fact, merely assistants of the Drapers' Company: what they do is to be subject to the approval of the Company, except when they incur personal responsibility in contracting debts in respect of salaries, provisions, &c. Contracts for goods, work, or services will be made with the Governors. This "privilege" the Drapers' Company leave to the Governors without stint or limit, and the only mode in which the Governors can creditably return the compliment of such an unlimited reliance on their own personal incomes will be to abstain from incurring a single debt, and to set a good example to the poorer classes in refusing the concession of credit to themselves. At all events, when any of the Governors incur debts—if they should be tempted and should commit such a fault—and such debt should charge the pocket of an absent colleague, let him weekly be informed of the fact. It is a Charity with a fixed income, and not a railway, which the bishop of the Diocese is to superintend.

The sort of schools which have been established will be understood from the following description of them published in the Building News:—

"During the past week two schools for orphan girls at Llandaff, in South Wales, and Denbigh, in North Wales, erected by the Drapers' Company of London, under the direction of the Court of Chancery, in 'Howell's Charity Trust' have been completed, and the local Governors, whose duty it will be to manage the schools and recommend to the Drapers' Company suitable candidates for admission, were invited to meet the clerk and architect of the Company to inspect the building, and enter upon their duties and possession.

"The buildings are each of considerable extent; in style and character, Domestic Gothic.

"Accommodation is provided for about sixty resident scholars in each establishment, besides day scholars, and suitable and separate apartments for a head matron or governess, four assistant teachers, house steward, and servants. Infirmary, library and board-room, porter's lodge, and usual domestic offices, occupying with the playground, gardens, &c., about four acres of an estate of twenty acres that has been purchased for the use of each Institution in South and North Wales.

"The buildings have been erected most substantially of the limestone of the neighbourhood, with sandstone dressings to doors, windows, chimney shafts, &c., all the external walls being lined with brick, having a space of two inches between the stone and brick, to prevent the possibility of damp. All the stone is laid in regular course, 'the beds and face dressed.' The roofs are covered with green and blue slates in alternate courses, finished with ornamental ridge tiles. The principal portion of the carpenters' and joiners' works are executed in 'pitch pine' of a superior description, carefully cleaned off and varnished, instead of being painted. The walls of all the rooms in general used by the children are lined (four feet high) with 'match boarding,' which, together with the fittings (many being of a novel and ingenious description) are stained and varnished in like manner.

"The entrance halls, corridors, and day-rooms are warmed with hot water, the other rooms by open fires, the fire-places being formed entirely of fire-brick (except the front bars and bottom grating) which are fitted so as to be easily removed and replaced when necessary.

"The windows, with very few exceptions, are fitted with sliding sashes, hung with lines and weights, and are made suitable to 'mullion windows,' in place of the usual Gothic casements, by which it is so difficult to keep out wind and weather in exposed situations.

"The kitchens, laundries, and other domestic offices are fitted up with the best and latest improvements, but at the same time in such a manner that the scholars can be readily instructed in all branches of the usual household duties falling to the lot of those who have their living to gain by the practice of domestic economy.

"The meeting of the Local Governors appointed to the school at Llandaff took place on the 29th ultimo, presided over by Lord Tredegar (in the unavoidable absence of the Bishop of the diocese); and the meeting at Denbigh took place on the 1st inst., presided over by the Bishop of Asaph.

"At each of the meetings the rules and regulations laid down by the Court of Chancery for the future management of the schools were read and explained by W. H. Sawyer, Esq., the Clerk of the Drapers' Company; after which the Governors inspected the buildings, under the guidance of Mr. Herbert Williams, the architect of the Company. Great satisfaction being expressed, a vote of thanks was passed to the Drapers' Company for the liberal* and efficient manner in which the schools had been erected and finished, for the purpose of carrying out the objects of the Trust.

"Messrs J. Barnsley and Sons, of Birmingham, have been the contractors for both schools; and they, together with the Clerks of the Works (Mr. Henry Bushby at Llandaff, and Mr. S. Knight at Denbigh), were complimented by the Governors on the superior workmanship, it being particularly remarked that better specimens of joiners' work had seldom been seen in buildings of this class.

"The cost of the school at Llandaff has been about 18,000*l.*, and that of the one at Denbigh 16,000*l.* The furnishing of the same, which is now proceeding under the direction of the architect, will be about 2,000*l.* each, in addition."—Building News.

As the sum thus named for these two buildings is thirty-eight thousand pounds—exclusive of the price of the land on which they are built—there are few honourable persons who will not exclaim, "Can such a gigantic job have been accomplished, and the scheme for it have been sanctioned by the Court of Chancery?" The institutions at Llandaff and Denbigh exhibit, indeed, the mystery of Improvidence. Who were the Busy-bodies who promoted their establishment? † About one-third of the fund has been expended on buildings, &c., about one-third sent to North Wales, and the other third reduced to the minimum of usefulness at Llandaff!!

"The establishment," states one of the Governors, in a letter published in the "Merthyr Telegraph," "will be under a matron—who is to be appointed by Sir John Romilly, the Master of the Rolls—and several competent teachers. The education will be of a superior kind—comprising reading, writing, geography, garden-hotany, music, and French. The principles of the Christian religion are to be taught, and the chaplain will be a clergyman of the Church of England; but the scheme provides that if objection be made, and due notice be given by the parent or guardian of any girl, such girl shall not be required to learn the catechism or other formularies of the Church. To constitute a candidate for admission, the girl must have lost one parent at least, but not necessarily both. Marriage portions will be given to orphans educated in this school to the amount of 200*l.* in cases where the girl is descended from the Founder, and 100*l.* in other cases.

"I have only to add that I have been appointed one of the Governors of this Institution, and shall have much pleasure in inquiring into the case of any girl who may be desirous of becoming a candidate. Those who are natives of this diocese will, I believe, have a preference over others. And I am inclined to think that the class of families from which candidates are most likely to be accepted are those of persons who were in business, or offices, or farms, and who, if they had lived, would have been able to give their children a superior education, which, in consequence of the parent's death, they will lose."

The provision which leaves the access of a Dissenter to the Institution open can only be nominal. There is no Dissenter among the Governors, though the Governors say a Dissenter may be admissible. In fact, any orphan of tender years, for example, the child of a Baptist, if kindly treated could hardly hesitate to join the congregation of the majority of its companions. Even the little Jew Mortara, kidnapped, gipsy fashion, with the sanction of Pio Nono, if treated with care and kindness would not fail when at years of discretion to lecture his own father on his belief, even though no special means, beyond the selection of his companions, were taken to anticipate such conduct.

Originally the Charity had no exclusive character; now it is, practically, a Charity for Religious Education, under the superintendence of the Bishop of Llandaff. It is not to be presumed, whatever the words used may express—and the extent of dissent in Wales from the Established Church explains why they have been used at all—that the Bishop of Llandaff, the Dean of Llandaff, or the other Governors will do otherwise than act in their recommendations under the sincere conviction of their own belief, and keep the new establishments to promote that religious education which the chaplain is appointed to superintend. The very character, system, and scheme of the new Institution makes this not merely probable but unavoidable. It is impossible there can be several conflicting religious dogmas preserved in the minds of young girls constantly living under the same roof, and no such expectation was formed when, by the fourth section of the Act of Parliament, the Bishop of Llandaff for the time being was constituted head of the governing body. Not those who act within the scheme, but those who have framed it in so narrow a spirit as the teaching of a few girls in a magnificent convent, are to be condemned, if exclusiveness is complained of.

The Diocese of Llandaff may be described to be a diocese abounding in female orphans. How often is the wailing of female voices heard, and the sad spectacle repeated when, through ignorance, folly, negligence, or accident, the lives of many colliers are suddenly destroyed! Nowhere are schools for the education of females more needed. Many are the female orphans to teach, and many are the girls who desire and need instruction who have no schools to which they can resort, but they are not of the class of orphan maidens who are to be taught the French language at Llandaff.

It is an object of the greatest public importance that in the mining districts there should be girls' schools. It is the mother who must chiefly teach all children in their own homes—she it is who purchases for her household, and who usually regulates all domestic arrangements. If the father dies it is the widow upon whom all the family depend; if the daughters go into service their success is connected with their early instruction, and if they remain at home their safety and character are sustained through the training they receive. It is through a really efficient and improved system of education of the poorer classes that the vices sought to be dealt with by institutions, now so popular with magistrates, for the moral training of adults, must be checked. Would that we could say for ourselves what Miss Bremer said of the efforts in favour of popular instruction in America—"The hope of the New World is not to reform so much through prisons as through schools, and still more through Homes: when all homes become that which they ought to be, and that which many already are, the great reformatory work will be done." Let the daughters and sisters of the working men learn to love cleanliness, neatness, and the being taught in schoolrooms, and the wives and mothers of the men will become the best teachers of virtue.

Every effort to do good, however controlled, is to be commended, but that which is to be condemned is the preference of little, very limited, or minute objects, when the power to do great good is unconditionally possessed. When it was said that girls' schools were to be established out of the funds of Howell's Charity, it was presumed that

* The gentlemen present should have remembered these verses:—
"Agmondesham Vesey, Esq., out of his own bounty, Built this bridge at the expense of the county."

† Sir Charles Lyell, in one of his works on North America (1st Series, vol. i., p. 111), in relating the provision made at Boston, in Massachusetts, for the delivery of public lectures, says:—"In reality, the sum bequeathed by Mr. John Lowell for his foundation, though magnificent, was by no means enormous—not much exceeding 70,000*l.*, which, according to the usual fate awaiting donations for educational objects, would all have been swallowed up on the erection of costly buildings, after which the learned would be invited to share the scanty leavings of the 'Committee of Taste,' and of the merciless architect—'reliquias Danaum atque immitis Achillei.' But in the present case the Testator provided in his will that not a single dollar should be spent on bricks and mortar; in consequence of which proviso a spacious room was at once hired, and the intentions of the donor carried immediately into effect, without a year's delay." Then, referring to other institutions, he says:—"These collegiate buildings, in support of which the public came forward so liberally, were left, like Girard College, half finished; whereas, if the same funds had been devoted to the securing of teachers of high acquirements, station, character, and celebrity, and if rooms of moderate dimensions had been at first hired, while the classes of pupils remained small, a generation would not have been lost," &c. And, citing Prescott, he applies these words:—"Architecture is a sensual gratification, and addresses itself to the eye; it is the form in which the resources of a semi-civilised people are most likely to be lavished." If so, semi-civilisation is the governing power of many charities.

what was designed really was the establishment of schools for girls—such institutions as are generally understood to be “schools.” The accumulated funds of the Charity ought, in this year, from the date of the filing of the Information in 1838—if these gigantic and costly buildings had not been raised—to have been upwards of 40,000*l.*, exclusive of interest on the accumulating funds; and, in addition, the annual income should be upwards of 2,000*l.* a year—there ought also to be an annual income from the purchase money paid for the very valuable land on which the Drapers' Hall stands, and the garden of the same, purchased by the Company of the Charity under the Act of Parliament of 1846—and which property was worth far more than 120*l.* a year (ante, p. 18). The purchase money paid to the Charity was distinctly capital, and so ought the accumulated funds to have been treated. With these magnificent means—which ought to have produced at least 3,500*l.* a year—some thirty or forty “Howell's schools” might have been established throughout the diocese, and if the teaching in them had been such as in the schools of William Ellis, of London, they would have been a source of unbounded happiness in a few years to thousands of persons. The annual income was sufficient to have allowed the schoolmistresses of such schools not the meagre payment that is given to a housekeeper, but handsome and sufficient salaries, equal to reward the proper and high qualifications which the mistresses of schools ought to possess. Had such a design been acted on, a vast multitude of women throughout Glamorganshire and Monmouthshire would, in a short interval of time, have been preserved from the wretchedness which is the lot of ignorance.

What have we now? It is hardly possible to refrain from expressions of deep indignation at the manner in which the Charity funds have been disposed of. The Act of Parliament provides that Schools shall be established in the Diocese of Llandaff. This Act has been interpreted to mean the grand and gigantic building which towers on the heights of Llandaff. The word “schools” implies that many persons will be taught in more than one school. The institution at Llandaff is the only school in the Diocese of Llandaff, in which Diocese “schools” are directed to be established, and it is open to a very limited number of girls. The expression, also, in the Act that only one school shall be established out of the limits of the diocese, has been interpreted to mean the establishment of a similar gigantic and costly building in North Wales to that at Llandaff, the maintenance of which must exhaust half the remaining funds of the Charity. A division of the income is practically made when no division could have been intended; and the express words of the Act of Parliament appear to have been interpreted so as to sanction the most irrational conclusions, and the most reckless waste of the Charity funds. There is an excuse, in part, for what has been done by the use of the word “inmates” in the Act, but the censure that is expressed may be extended to the scheme which was made the foundation of the Act, as well as to the scheme which is said to give effect to the intention of the Act of Parliament. A title in the county of Monmouth to participate in the Charity was recognised in the Act of Parliament relating to this Charity, the income of which, as before stated, should have amounted to 3,500*l.* a year at the least; and what is the amount of benefit obtained?—The misappropriation of the funds has been sinful.

There is a school in the county of Glamorgan which is absolutely necessary for the education of a certain class of orphans. In the days of Howell the teaching of deaf and dumb children to read and write, and to become intelligent and instructed, was not thought to be practicable. Happily it is now otherwise. As such persons, however, are to be found—one here, and another there—and are dispersed in distant places, and as a special education is needed in order to possess the capacity to be their teachers, it is necessary such children should be collected round a teacher in some one place which must, in most instances, be necessarily distant from their own homes. A single institution for such children exists in the Principality of Wales, and it is to be regretted that it is very insufficiently supported by voluntary subscriptions. It is established at Swansea; but it also happens that Swansea, though a town in Glamorganshire, is beyond the present limits of the Diocese of Llandaff—and it is to the present limits of the diocese that the “schools” of Howell's Charity are confined—with the exception of one school, which may be beyond such limits. Here, then, was the one school, which should have been the exceptional one, and to which a portion of the funds of the Charity might have been with peculiar propriety appropriated. The mental condition of mute children who are permitted to remain uneducated it is terrible to contemplate. Would that a merciful remembrance of them could have influenced those by whom the new scheme of this Charity was framed.

No objection whatever could be expressed to the diversion of the funds of the original Charity to the establishment of schools for the teaching of girls. The original object of the Charity was to grant marriage portions to the female kin of the Testator, and failing them, to other maidens. There was no direction given by the Testator to train up his kin to entitle them to receive the money, and in the will there were no designated persons, even among his next of kin, who could in preference the one to the other claim the fund. In the course of time the known members of the family of Howell have disappeared, and the Act of Parliament and the proceedings in Chancery indicate an entire forgetfulness of their home having been in Monmouthshire.

The benefit the Testator intended to give under his will was not to provide marriage portions for any unmarried orphan girls not related to him, but for some female orphans not of his kin, in such years when orphans of his own kin might not claim or accept the marriage portion provided for them. The substitutes were not the primary objects of his Charity. His own kin, however, have, in the lapse of years, passed out of sight. It is a mere sham, in the third section of the Act of Parliament, to refer to them. It is known to be beyond the bounds of human probability, or almost possibility, that any person could legally, or presumably, prove his relationship to the Testator. There are no ancient registers to refer to, no documents connected with the descent of land nor the testimony of wills, by which any connection of blood with his family can be established. Those who inserted the third section in the Act knew it to be a sham, though a good cloak for a new abuse. The 84*l.*, though paid on the receipt of the Bishops of Llandaff, as stated in the answer to the Bill of Chancery (ante, p. 17), was not paid to persons who, even as heirs general of Noah, and under the title of a “Welsh Pedigree,” pretended to be of the family of the Testator, though this might have been their best title, if they had set up the pretence of family consanguinity. The money was paid to very worthy recipients of it, but not to persons who could prove any claim to it. One-fourth of it was generally handed over to the head of a very distinguished family in Monmouthshire, and was well disposed of. Any proof of relationship, directly or indirectly, of any family to that of the Testator is utterly lost.

The chief object of the Charity had therefore failed. As, however, a charity is defined to be “a general public use,” and the word “public” to mean “a purpose which, whatever it may be, is not the personal use and enjoyment of any assignable individual or individuals”—it was right that some other object of the Charity should be substituted for the one expressed by the Testator which should be regarded to approach near to the original intention; and such an object would very commendably be the establishment of Girls' Schools—but such schools ought not to be convents in which to train girls with the avowed object to portion them off in matrimony when duly prepared under the inspection of a board of reverend and venerable gentlemen.—[Ante, pp. 19, 20, and 21.]

The granting of marriage portions to maidens was anciently a common practice, and it is still common in Roman Catholic countries. Many persons must have observed that in France it is frequent for the Sovereign to announce, in order to mark the favour with which he regards his reception in a particular district, that a certain number of marriage portions shall be distributed by a mayor or some other public official. In England the practice is condemned, and there are the strongest reasons to censure it. But there are two modes by which girls can be designated for marriage portions: either by an immediate choice and selection, so that until the gift is announced the anticipation of it cannot affect the habitual thoughts and mind of the recipient;—or by training the recipients from childhood to the expectation of being certain to receive it if a course of conduct marked out to be observed during a fixed period of time is followed. The first of these is what the Testator expressed, and is by no means exposed to very serious objections which should prevent the adoption of the other mode of donation. The probability is that the Testator himself would have said, “There shall be no long training in a school with the expressed intention of receiving money with a view to marriage on leaving school. If money is given on leaving school, let all words relating to marriage be expunged.” So ought all persons to think; and the scheme, as it is now declared, might be shown, in this respect, to be obnoxious to the gravest censure. It is best, however, to abstain from arguing the objections, for they must suggest themselves to the mind of any reflecting person. It has the appearance of a coarse disposal of the girls, and exhibits an offensive disregard of the delicate character of the mind of every really well-educated woman.

The scheme would appear to have been drawn out under the direction of the continuing Trustees of the Charity, namely, the Drapers' Company, and the new buildings to have been erected by their authority, and subject to their approval. Had the Drapers' Company as Trustees been removed under Lord Langdale's decree, as it was desirable they should have been, the funds of the Charity would, in all probability, have been saved; public opinion in the Diocese of Llandaff might (or might not!) have been consulted in the administration of the Charity, and schools for girls conducted by well paid and instructed teachers might have been established throughout the mining districts. It is to the Trustees, and not to the Governors, that blame is to be imputed, unless indeed to such (if any) of the Governors who, before they acted as Governors, assented when the scheme was pending to that which was finally determined on. There must have been parties promoting the information in Chancery, and their assent is to be presumed to have been given to the acts of the Trustees since the date of the Decree. Did they connive at the jobbing which has been exposed in these pages?

What ought now to be done?

First, the Drapers' Company ought to be removed from the office of Trustees.

Secondly, a new scheme for the administration of the Charity ought to be obtained.

Thirdly, the great buildings at Llandaff and Denbigh should be sold with as little delay as practicable.

Failing the power to effect these measures, then this might be done:—

1. The Drapers' Company should be removed from the office of Trustees.

2. Powers should be obtained for a new scheme of administration.

3. The establishment at Denbigh to be sold in order to restore to Glamorganshire and Monmouthshire the moiety of the annual income of the Charity.

4. The building at Llandaff should be converted into an Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, open to the whole Principality, as the school at Swansea now is, and part of the income of such school made dependent on voluntary donations, in consideration of receiving boys as pupils.

5. That schools for girls should, from time to time, be built out of income set apart to accumulate for the purpose and out of the money arising from the sale of the Denbigh buildings, and that such schools should be endowed out of the remaining annual income.

Even if the buildings fell to ruin, it would be advantageous to the people of Glamorganshire and Monmouthshire—so that the income were applicable to schools for girls. There is, however, no necessity why they should fall to ruin, for the one at Llandaff would make an excellent County Hospital—an institution much needed in Glamorganshire. It might have served as a County Lunatic Asylum but that the new buildings for that purpose are determined on.

To make this statement of the affairs of Howell's Charity complete, it ought to conclude with an account of the income and expenditure of the funds from the year 1838 to the present time—especially distinguishing the amount expended in law costs, the purchase of land, architects' and builders' charges—money received on account of the sale of the Drapers' Hall and garden, &c. No such account is yet published, but the Trustees will no doubt consider it to be their duty to render it, and the Governors of the Charity to print it, and to print also, annually, the accounts of future years. Failure in such a duty is always personally dishonourable to those who manage Charities.

To the Public generally the case is important, on account of the illustration it presents of the little protection afforded by the Court of Chancery in the administration of charities, and the necessity of some provision by which particulars of schemes for the administration of local charities shall be published before they are sanctioned either by the Court of Chancery or by private Acts of Parliament.

Would it could be expected that those who have assented to the great wrong which has been done in the wasteful expenditure of the accumulated funds of the Charity, and in the censurable appropriation of the annual income, would become the prime movers of a change that might recover the whole annual revenue for the institution of Schools for Girls in the mining districts of Monmouthshire and Glamorganshire, so that the Charity might everywhere be recognised, as it ought now to have been, through the schools it might have been sustaining, to be a source of infinite blessing to many thousand families and female orphans who, under the present narrow and mischievous scheme, are deliberately excluded from its benefit! A little courage, a hope in human improvement, and an earnest sense of what is right, might accomplish a change even now. As it is, the funds and revenue of what might have been a noble and most useful Charity have been scandalously misapplied.

There is a solemn prayer, expressively setting forth the great principle of the Reformation, heard in the churches of Protestants at the time of Advent and on other occasions, in these words,—“Blessed Lord, who has caused all Holy Scriptures to be written for our learning; grant that we may in such wise hear them, READ, mark, learn, and inwardly digest them, that by patience and comfort of thy Holy Word we may embrace and ever hold fast the blessed Hope of everlasting life which THOU hast given us in our Saviour Jesus Christ.” If this Prayer were meant, as we believe, to refer to lay folk as well as to divines, there were means given for its accomplishment in a mighty and merciful degree through this Charity. But those whose acts have been related forgot the Invocation, and were ungoverned by its Spirit. That which they did or assented to being done must be regarded to be a great public calamity to the counties of Monmouth and Glamorgan.

APPENDIX.

Note A.

After the publication of the first edition of this statement, I received many letters from gentlemen whose opinions are to be highly esteemed, very strongly condemning what has occurred. One writer says:—

“Could not Mr. Dillwyn, M.P., be induced to introduce into his Trustees Bill some compulsory power on Courts of Equity to publish proposed schemes in local newspapers, and so much of the history of a Charity as may enable the public to understand the objects of the trust and the application to the Court? A good case is a great help to bring about some such enactment.”

A job sometimes means the abuse of power on the part of persons acting within the limits of authority. It is an abuse of this kind to make a Charity open to Dissenters practically the Charity of one denomination of religious believers. Children of Dissenters may be admitted, but if admitted the same paid provision for their religious superintendence should be honestly provided as in the case of other children. It is discreditable if Dissenters' children are admitted without such provision. They have equal claims to those of others on the charity. A job also means waste, and the waste of a private inheritance, as well as of the funds of a Charity, is immoral and wicked.

As the children of Dissenters, when in these schools as permanent boarders, will be “at home,” it will be an imperative duty on those who superintend their religious education to teach them, as their parents would have done, the religious principles or characteristic tenets of their sect. Every child when “at home” is so taught, or, at all events, the being so taught is always affirmed by divines to be a moral obligation of the highest degree on parents, guardians, or persons exercising domestic control over children. As such children may be admitted to the schools at Denbigh and Llandaff, it must be assumed they will be admitted on terms securing such instruction. This being so, the Bishops of St. Asaph and Llandaff must, if they fulfil the duty they have undertaken truly and faithfully, take care that such children are daily educated as “at home” in the principles of Dissent professed by their parents, as other children are taught the principles of the Established Church, or a solemn duty will be neglected. As respected a mere day-school it would not be so, for the attendants on such schools continue under the immediate domestic control of those in whose care they are.

There is a negative duty of non-interference with the religious professions of belief of the children promised by the rules of the Charity, but this can never supersede the duty of direct teaching; and surely Dissenters will demand the domestic teaching of their tenets to the children of their sects?

One child of a Dissenter, it is said, has been already nominated for admission, and it will be a gross breach of faith if, after providing by the rules for the admissibility of Dissenters, and boasting of their admissibility the children of Dissenters are not admitted, pari passu, with other children.

There therefore arises out of this state of things, as well as from the general facts which have been discussed, the gravest possible moral questions, the solution of which involves the whole scheme of the Charity.

There is also a great moral difference in persons aiding the ministers of different sects to promote religious instruction, and in engaging themselves in direct teaching. Those who superintend religious teaching should themselves believe in the arguments connected with such teaching. Those who will not and ought not to teach without such belief may and ought, nevertheless, to entertain sincere respect for the earnest belief of those with whom they differ; in the one case, there may be aid given in humble submission to the possible and probable errors of human judgment; but in the other case, namely, of direct religious teaching, there can be no speaking without an utterance of what the teacher thinks to be error or to be false, unless the teacher believes in what he teaches.

Note B.

The arguments the writer has heard against this Pamphlet are something to this effect: Parliament has dealt with the Charity funds, and the Court of Chancery has sanctioned what has been done; therefore, why not leave all that has been done uncensured? Or, Parliament might have placed the distribution of the funds in any locality; and as the inhabitants of the counties of Glamorgan and Monmouth had no legal title to claim the fund, therefore any complaint respecting what has been done is idle and vain. The morality of such reasoning is corrupt, and if it were not so, it would sanction the suppression of all rebuke of completed acts, however morally wrong. Parliament, it is true, had power to direct the distribution of the funds by a shilling per head among the whole population of the kingdom, as well as to appropriate it to the use of thirty orphan inmates and others in the Institution at Llandaff, and to twenty-five orphan inmates and others in the Institution at Denbigh, selected, if it so pleases the Governors, from any part of the United Kingdom. This is perfectly true, but who could commend such acts? Parliament, in making a special law relating to Howell's Charity, expressed the opinions of certain persons who caused that law to be made, and the chief object of this Pamphlet has been to criticise, for a public object, the morality of those who procured the enactment of that law—such law having caused a waste of the Charity funds in brick and mortar, reduced the usefulness of the Charity to the lowest possible degree, and showing a disregard of great public interests. It was necessary to give a locality to the administration and application of the funds, and the fund was rightly assigned in part, and should have been assigned in its entirety, to a district within the diocese of Llandaff, although it was not a Church Charity fund. The county of Monmouth was in possession of the Charity, so far as it had any locality, on account of the payments made through a very long series of years in the locality, and up to the time of the filing of the information. The proper locality of the Charity being settled, the next step was to deal with the Charity, with a view to benefit females, and doing this, the moral condition of the women living in the mining districts of the diocese of Llandaff should have been thought of. Had this been done, how many might have been rendered children of Virtue whose fate will probably be hereafter as deplorable as that of those very many poor and uninstructed beings who live in sight of Llandaff, and who, if there had been no waste of the great means possessed for their instruction, might have been preserved from Vice. It is a matter of very little importance that there was a legal right to waste the funds of the Charity in discussing the conduct of those who interfered in their disposal.

There are certain persons, it must be admitted, who cannot be convinced through this reasoning. Who indeed could be convinced, who could deliberately dispose of the funds in the manner related, and divide them, though distributable among Dissenters, under the chief superintendence of the Bishops of St. Asaph and Llandaff, making no selection of Dissenters to be Governors?

That no enlarged view of the value of the Charity should have prevailed among the Trustees is not at all remarkable, the London Companies having long since practically asserted the doctrine that little boarding schools and almshouses—of great cost and having vast buildings—are the best of Charities.

Note C.

The advantages of publishing the accounts of Orphan Charities have lately been thus shown:—

"By the list of orphans in the Merchant Seamen's Orphan Asylum, December 31, 1858, it appears that there were 73 boys, with girls, making up a total of 110. The Balance Sheet shows salaries to Secretary, Clerk, and Collector, 360*l.* 6*s.* 2*d.* The salaries of Masters, Matron, School-mistress, and Porter, 198*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.*! School-books, 9*l.* 3*s.* 3*d.* Here is food for reflection! Mark, I beseech you, the cost of the educational staff, the 'plant' for educational purposes; compare it with the salaries to the late faithful Secretary, the Clerk, and Collectors—360*l.* 6*s.* 3*d.*! The expense of the dinner and collection, 158*l.* 1*s.* 9*d.*, over and above 51*l.*, the proceeds of dinner-tickets. Note D.

In the same year in which the Act of Parliament of the 15th and 16th Vict., ch. 14, relating to Howell's Charity, was passed, the Act of the 15th and 16th Vict., ch. 17, was passed for "the Regulation of the Charity founded by "George Jarvis for the benefit of the Poor of the Parishes "of Stanton-on-Wye, Bredwardine, and Letton, all in the "county of Hereford, and for other purposes." George Jarvis, of Weston Green, Thames Ditton, in the county of Surrey, who died February 12, 1793, by his will left the yearly income arising from a sum of 30,000*l.*, and from the residue of his personal estate, to be divided in certain proportions among the poor inhabitants of the parishes of Stanton-on-Wye, Bredwardine, and Letton, in the county of Hereford, in money, provisions, physic, or clothes, as his trustees, or the major part of them, should think fit. Having a fear of architects, builders, and of gentlemen who assume to possess great architectural taste, he declared expressly that "His Mind and Will was, that none of the "said trust monies should be appropriated in erecting any "public or other building whatsoever." The funds of the Charity in the year 1801 amounted to the sum of 75,544*l.*, producing an income of 2,313*l.*, but subject to increase when certain annuities should terminate; in 1822 the Charity fund amounted to 92,496*l.*, and produced an income of 2,774*l.*, and in the year 1851 the fund amounted to 100,015*l.* 12*s.* 7*d.*, and the income was 3,000*l.* 9*s.* 4*d.*

The effect of this large sum to be distributed in charity was chiefly to enable the farmers to reduce the amount they themselves paid in wages to labourers who received money from the Charity, but other abuses sprung up of a very serious character. It was necessary there should be a new scheme for the administration of the Charity. Here, again, was a fund which, if efficiently applied to the education of the poor in Herefordshire, would have been the source of infinite blessing to them. The labourers in the parishes named perfectly well understood that the Charity, as then applied, chiefly benefited their employers, and it would be difficult to conceive in what manner any public fund directed to be distributed among the labouring or other population of a district generally could have any other result than the corruption of morals. It was determined to resort to Parliament in order to obtain an Act for the better regulation of the Charity, and for the establishment of some schools. This application was made, and then another form of abuse—namely, of jobbing—became triumphant. The parties who framed the rules of Howell's Charity at Llandaff seem to have been the same as those who framed the rules of Jarvis's Charity—or, the rules of the one were chiefly copied from the other. They both, so far as the writer has seen those of Howell's Charity, exhibit much identity of expression and an equal narrowness of intellect in their conception. If they were hatched in the Court of Chancery, it is time such a breeding establishment should be closed. Powers were given by the Act of Parliament to the Trustees to build out of the funds of Jarvis's Charity, and the expenditure of money on buildings has been most wasteful: it is said 30,000*l.*, or the amount of the original bequest, which the Testator expressly forbade to be expended towards any building, has been expended in buildings.

The following is from the population returns of the year 1851:—

	Population.	Houses.
Bredwardine	422	89
Staunton	586	122
Letton	214	53
Total	1,222	264

The wise proposals of the eminent and intelligent Dean of Hereford (the Rev. R. Dawes) in respect of the regulation of this Charity when the new scheme was pending were utterly disregarded: they sanctioned no jobbing.

An Act for the Regulation and Management of the Charity founded by Thomas Howell in or about the Year One thousand five hundred and forty; and for other Purposes.
[Royal Assent, 30th June 1852.]

WHEREAS an Information was, on the Twenty-seventh day of July, One thousand eight hundred and thirty-eight, filed by Her Majesty's Attorney-General in the High Court of Chancery against the Master, Wardens, and Brethren and Sisters of the Guild or Fraternity of the Blessed Mary the Virgin of the Mystery of Drapers of the City of London, for the establishment and regulation of the above-mentioned Charity: And the said Information stated, amongst other things, that Thomas Howell, who died at Seville, in the kingdom of Spain, in the year One thousand five hundred and forty (being the Thomas Howell above mentioned), by his Will directed his Executors to send to the city of London Twelve thousand Ducats of gold, to be delivered to the House named Drapers' Hall and the Wardens thereof, the said Wardens to have in charge that, as soon as they should receive the same, they should therewith buy for the said House Four hundred Ducats of Rent yearly for ever to have in possession, and willed further that the said Four hundred Ducats yearly should be bestowed in Marriage to Four Maidens being Orphans and of his lineage and blood, if they could be found, and the next of kin to be first served of the said Four Maidens, and they to have each of them One hundred Ducats; and if no such Maidens of his blood should be found, then to marry other Four Maidens, although they should not be of his lineage, with condition that they should be honest and of good name and fame, each of them to have One hundred Ducats, and to spend the Four hundred Ducats in Marriage, every year to marry Four Maidens for ever; and if the said Twelve thousand Ducats should buy more than the said Four hundred Ducats of yearly Rent, to bestow the residue in Marriage of Maidens being Orphans, and to the increase of the said Four Maidens' Marriage, as best should seem to the Wardens of the said House: And that, by an Indenture bearing date the Thirty-first day of March, One thousand five hundred and forty-three, made between King Henry the Eighth of the first part, and the Master, Wardens, Brethren, and Sisters of the Company of Drapers of the other part, the said King, for the consideration therein-after expressed, granted to the said Master, Wardens, Brethren and Sisters, and their successors, the Capital Messuage and two gardens and other buildings to the same annexed, in the parish of Saint Peter-le-Poor, within the Ward of Broad Street, in the City of London, and in the parish of Saint Stephen, Coleman Street, paying yearly Ten shillings and fourpence into the Court of Augmentation: And the said King thereby declared that he would grant to the said Master, Wardens, Brethren, and Sisters, and their successors, the Premises aforesaid by Letters Patent under the Great Seal, with the rents and profits thereof, from Lady Day then last; in consideration whereof the said Master, Wardens, Brethren and Sisters, covenanted to pay to the said King the sum of One thousand two hundred pounds, and the said Master, Wardens, Brethren and Sisters, in further recompense and satisfaction of the Messuage, lands, and other premises before mentioned, did for themselves and their successors covenant with the said King and his successors that they and their successors would and should yearly thereafter give, distribute, and dispose of the rents and profits which at any time thereafter should clearly accrue from the said Premises, over and besides all charges and costs which should be bestowed in the reparation of the said Premises, to and for the Marriage of Poor Maidens being Orphans, at the discretion of the said Master, Wardens, Brethren, and Sisters of the said Company for the time being: And that by Letters Patent, bearing date the Fourth day of July, in the Thirty-fifth year of King Henry the Eighth, the said King, in consideration of One thousand eight hundred Marks, granted to the said Master, Wardens, Brethren, and Sisters of the said Company of Drapers, the said Capital Messuage and Gardens mentioned in the said Indenture, in the Parish of Saint Peter-le-Poor, and in the same Letters Patent described as abutting upon Broad Street South, and the Messuages, Tenements, and Cellars lying together near the Church of the Convent of the Augustine Brothers in the said Parish and in the Ward of Broad Street, abutting upon the street leading towards Lothbury on the South, and the way leading to the Priory of the Augustines upon the North; also a Messuage or Tenement, Cellars, and a Gatehouse fronting South towards Broad Street, and abutting North of the Churchyard of the said Convent, and a Watercourse and running of conduit water to the said Capital Messuage, and a Way to the said Capital Messuage and Tenement thereto belonging by the Gate called Friars Gate to Broad Street: And that about Nineteen years after the death of the said Testator Thomas Howell a Suit was instituted in the said Court of Chancery by certain Orphans of Wales, on behalf of themselves and other kinsmen of the said Thomas Howell, against the Master, Wardens, Brethren, and Sisters of the said Company of Drapers, setting forth the purport of the Will of the said Thomas Howell, and alleging that the Defendants had received the Legacy thereby bequeathed, and had purchased with part thereof Lands and Tenements of the yearly rent of One hundred and five Pounds, but had disposed of the residue to their own uses, and claiming the benefit of the said Charity; and that the said Company put in their Answer in the said Suit, and thereby stated amongst other things, that they had received Eight thousand seven hundred and twenty Ducats, which they had disposed of in the purchase of Tenements and Gardens which produced a Rent of One hundred and five Pounds per Annum or thereabouts, but that the reparations and other charges of the Premises so purchased had stood them in Thirty Pounds a year, and were like to do so yearly, so that one year with another they had received over and above all charges Seventy pounds, which they had bestowed in the Marriage of Maiden Orphans as therein mentioned, and that they always intended as near as they could to perform the said Will with as much of the rents of the premises as should come clearly to their hands over and above all charges: And that, by the Decree made in the said Suit on the Twenty-fourth day of June, One thousand five hundred and fifty-nine, it was Ordered, that once every year, at the Feast of the Purification, a Certificate should be made out of a certain Pedigree or herbal therein mentioned, which Certificate should be made by the Bishop of Llandaff for the time being, or if vacant by the Dean and Chapter of the same Diocese, in writing under their respective seals, and delivered to the said Master and Wardens, ascertaining and proving that the Four Orphans named therein were next of kin, lineage, and blood to the said Testator, and that they were Orphans, fatherless and of the age of Twelve years and upwards, and were then living, on which Certificate the said Master and Wardens for the time being should forthwith make payment of Eighty-four pounds yearly out of the Rents and Revenues of the said Lands and Tenements to the hands of the said Bishop or Dean and Chapter, to the use of the said Four Orphans for that year equally between them to be divided, that is, to each of them Twenty-one pounds; on which payment the said Bishop or Dean and Chapter should deliver to the said Master and Wardens an Acquittance, which should be a sufficient discharge to the said Master and Wardens and their successors, against the said Four Orphans, and all others, for so much as should be paid to their use: And, if it should happen at any time that any of the said Orphans then being next of kin and blood to the said Thomas Howell should be within the age of Twelve years and not marriageable, all such sums of money as should then be due should be paid over to such other Four of the said Orphans, being of the next descent, as should be above the age of Twelve years and marriageable, provided that the Orphans then being within the age of Twelve years should not be secluded nor lose their portions, but that, when they should accomplish the age of Twelve years or upwards, and the same certified in form aforesaid, payment should be made to them: And it was further Ordered, that such Maidens as should thereafter be married, being justly certified in form aforesaid to be of kin to the said Testator according to the said Pedigree, might notwithstanding their said Marriage be admitted to receive their portions when the time should come, although they should be so married before they ought to receive the same: And it was further Ordered, that if it should chance the said Tenements out of which the said yearly sum of Eighty-four pounds was to be paid should be so decayed that the same could not be levied, the Master and Wardens should be charged but with the residue that should remain, and that if the said Lands and Tenements should be improved over and above the said sum of Eighty-four pounds, and over and above Twenty-one pounds allowed yearly to the said Master and Wardens for their ordinary and extraordinary charges, the same improvement over and above the said sums of Eighty-four pounds and Twenty-one pounds should be equally divided yearly to the said Four Orphans equally in form aforesaid; foreseeing always that the same improvement yearly to be divided to the said Four Orphans did not exceed the value of Sixteen pounds by the year: Provided also that, if the said Master and Wardens should at any time thereafter receive the sum of Three thousand two hundred and eighty Ducats of the Executors of the said Thomas Howell, being the residue of his Legacy, or so much as might purchase an increase of Lands and Tenements or other yearly hereditaments to the yearly value of Sixteen pounds or under, that the said Master and Wardens should yearly thenceforth pay on Certificate as aforesaid to Four of the said Orphans so much as the said increase in rent of the premises so to be purchased should amount to; foreseeing that in the whole the said Orphans should not be paid above the yearly sum of One hundred pounds: And the said Information further stated, that out of the rents carried to the account of the said Charity the following payments were made; (that was to say,) a quit rent to the Grocers' Company, One pound; a quit rent to the Parish of Saint Edmund the King, Five shillings and fourpence; to the Clerk of the Company, Ten shillings; incidental expenses for the Surveyor's charges and repairs; to the order of the Bishop of Llandaff, on the receipt of a certificate that the Four persons therein named had been appointed to receive marriage portions, such persons being maidens, orphans, next of kin and lineage and blood to Thomas Howell, and of the age of Twelve years and upwards, Eighty-four pounds; and that the residue of the said rents was carried to the account of the said Company's Income:

And whereas the said Defendants to the said Information put in an Answer thereto, and they thereby admitted (amongst other things) that out of the rents carried to the account of the said Charity, amounting, as stated in such Answer, at the time of the said Information being filed, to the sum of One thousand nine hundred and forty-one pounds fifteen shillings and one penny per annum, the said several payments in the said Information mentioned were made, and that the residue of the said rents was carried to the account of the said Company's income; and the Cause came on to be heard before the Right Honourable the Master of the Rolls, and a decree was made by his Lordship on the Twenty-ninth day of April, One thousand eight hundred and forty-five, whereby it was declared (amongst other things) that the whole of the Funds or sums of money which came to the hands of the Defendants under and by virtue of the said Will of the said Thomas Howell were applicable to the charitable purposes mentioned in the same Will, and that the whole of the said Land and Premises mentioned in the said Indenture of the Thirty-first day of March, One thousand five hundred and forty-three, and the Letters Patent of the Fourth day of July in the Thirty-fifth year of King Henry the Eighth, were held by the said Company in trust for the charitable purposes in the said Will declared: And it was further Ordered, that it should be referred to the Master in rotation, amongst other things, to take an Account of what the Property of the said Charity then consisted, and what was the then present Income arising therefrom: and it was further Ordered, that the said Master should approve of and settle a Scheme for the future administration of the said Charity, and the application of the income thereof; And that it should be referred to the Master to inquire and state whether, having regard to the charitable objects contemplated by the said Testator, and the increased amount of the Rents, Profits, and Income of the Charity Estates, it would be fit and proper that any and what extension of charitable objects and uses should be made of the said Charity, so as to embrace other objects than those immediately contemplated by the said Testator; and if he should be of opinion that such extension should be made, then he was also to approve of a Scheme for such purpose: And the said Master was to inquire and state, whether it was necessary that an Act of Parliament should be obtained for carrying into effect such Scheme as he might approve of, and if he should be of opinion that the same was necessary, then that he might settle the Draft of a Bill for an Act of Parliament to be applied for by the Defendants for the establishment of any such extended Scheme for the Appropriation and Application of the Income of the said Charity Estates, or any part thereof; and also for the absolute Purchase by the said Defendants of such part of the said Charity Estates whereon the Hall and Buildings occupied by them were built, and of the Gardens attached thereto, discharged of the Charitable Trusts to which the same were then subject; and for the Investment and Disposition of the Purchase Money to be paid by the said Defendants for the same:

And whereas Sir George Rose, the Master to whom the said Cause stood referred, made his Report dated the Twelfth day of February, One thousand eight hundred and forty-six, and thereby found amongst other things, that with the money the said Company received for Oils sent to them by the Executors of the said Testator, Thomas Howell, the costs, charges, and losses deducted, they the said Company purchased Tenements and Gardens in the City of London of the yearly rent of One hundred and five pounds or thereabouts, and that the site of the said Hall with the Gardens thereto belonging was part of the hereditaments so purchased; and that if the said Hall and Gardens were then to be sold, it would, under the circumstances mentioned and stated in the said Report, be more beneficial to the said Charity that the same should be sold subject to a Lease thereof for Twenty-eight years from the year One thousand eight hundred and forty-three, at a ground rent of One hundred and twenty pounds a year:

And whereas by an Order of the Master of the Rolls, dated the Tenth day of March, One thousand eight hundred and forty-six, it was Ordered, that the said Master's said Report should be confirmed; and it was referred to the said Master to approve of a Lease of the Hall and Garden of the said Defendants, to be granted by them to such persons as should be nominated by the said Defendants for a term of Twenty-eight years, to be computed from the year One thousand eight hundred and forty-three, at the yearly rent of One hundred and twenty pounds; and by Indenture of Lease, dated the Sixteenth day of April, One thousand eight hundred and forty-six, and made between the said Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters, of the one part, and Robert Hendrie, Nathaniel Huson, Robert Barclay, and William Vardon, of the other part (the said last-named parties being Trustees nominated by and on behalf of the said Company), the said Hall and Gardens, as delineated and described in the Plan drawn on the back of the Fourth Skin of the same Indenture, were granted and demised by the said Master, Wardens, Brethren, and Sisters unto the said Robert Hendrie, Nathaniel Huson, Robert Barclay, and William Vardon, their executors, administrators, and assigns, for the term of Twenty-eight years from the Twenty-fifth day of December, One thousand eight hundred and forty-three, at the yearly rent of One hundred and twenty pounds:

And whereas by another Order of the Master of the Rolls made in the said Cause and dated the Second day of June, One thousand eight hundred and forty-six, it was referred to the said Master to settle and approve of the Draft of a Bill for an Act of Parliament to enable the said Defendants to purchase such part of the Charity Estates whereon the said Defendants' Hall and Buildings occupied by them were built, and of the Gardens attached thereto, discharged of the Charitable Trusts to which the same were subject, and for the Investment and disposition of the Purchase Money to be paid by the said Defendants for the same: And the said Master by his Report, dated the Fourth day of June, One thousand eight hundred and forty-six, certified that in pursuance of the said Order he had settled and approved of the Draft of a Bill for the purposes last aforesaid (being the Bill which was passed and carried into effect by the Act next herein-after mentioned): And the said last-mentioned Report was confirmed by an Order of the Master of the Rolls dated the Sixth day of June, One thousand eight hundred and forty-six.

9 & 10 Vict.
c. 19.

And whereas an Act was passed in the Tenth year of the reign of her present Majesty, intituled "An Act to authorise the Sale of Part of the Charity Estates vested in the Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters of the Guild or Fraternity of the Blessed Mary the Virgin of the Mystery of Drapers of the City of London, upon the Trusts of the Will of Thomas Howell, deceased," whereby, after reciting the filing of the above-mentioned Information on the Twenty-seventh day of July, One thousand eight hundred and thirty-eight, and the said Decree of the Master of the Rolls made on the hearing of the said Information on the Twenty-ninth day of April, One thousand eight hundred and forty-five, and the said Master's said Report dated the Twelfth day of February, One thousand eight hundred and forty-six, and the said Order of the Master of the Rolls of the Tenth day of March, One thousand eight hundred and forty-six, and the said Indenture of Lease of the Sixteenth day of April, One thousand eight hundred and forty-six, and the said Order of the Master of the Rolls of the Second day of June, One thousand eight hundred and forty-six, and the said Master's said Report of the Fourth day of June, One thousand eight hundred and forty-six, and the said Order of the Master of the Rolls of the Sixth day of June, One thousand eight hundred and forty-six, it was enacted, That it should be lawful for the said Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters, as the Trustees of the said Charity Estates, at any time thereafter, with the approbation and under the direction of the Court of Chancery, absolutely to make sale and dispose of the Freehold Reversion and Inheritance of the Hall, buildings, gardens, and premises comprised in the said therein and herein-before recited Indenture of Lease, unto the Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters for their own use and benefit, for such sum or sums of money, and under and subject to such special conditions and restrictions, as to the said Court of Chancery should seem reasonable, and that, upon payment of the Purchase Money into the Bank of England in manner therein-after directed, the Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters should grant, convey, and assure the same, with their rights, members, and appurtenances, to the use of them the Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters, their successors and assigns for ever, discharged of and from all the Charitable Uses and Trusts to which the same hereditaments and premises were then or should at the time of such sale be subject or liable: And it was also enacted, That the hereditaments and premises comprised in such grant, conveyance, or assurance should immediately upon the execution thereof be held and enjoyed by the Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters, their successors or assigns, freed and absolutely discharged of and from all such Charitable Uses and Trusts as aforesaid: And it was also enacted, That the Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters, if and when they should become the Purchasers of all or any part of the said hereditaments by the said Act authorised to be sold as aforesaid, should pay their Purchase Money into the Bank of England, in the name and with the privity of the Accountant-General of the High Court of Chancery, to the credit of the cause "The Attorney-General v. Drapers' Company, Ex parte the Drapers' Company," in the manner directed and provided by the said Act: And it was also further enacted and provided by the same Act, That the Certificate of the Accountant-General of the said Court of Chancery, together with the receipt of the Cashier of the Bank of England of the payment of such purchase money, should be a sufficient discharge for the same: And the same Act also contained provisions for the Application and Investment of such Purchase Money, and for the payment of the costs, charges, and expenses of obtaining the said Act and of the Sale or Sales thereby authorised under the sanction and by the direction of the said Court of Chancery, to be obtained in the manner in the same Act mentioned and provided in that behalf:

And whereas the said Master to whom the said Cause stood referred made his Further Report therein, dated the Fourth day of March, One thousand eight hundred and fifty-one, and he thereby certified and found, amongst other things, that the Accounts of the Renter Wardens of the said Company contain from a very early period—(that is to say)—from the year One thousand five hundred and sixty—a separate Rental under the head of "Howell's Trust," corresponding in substance with those of later years; and that the Property now held by the said Company in the Parish of Saint Peter-le-Poor lies altogether, and consists of the Company's Hall and Gardens on the West side and partly on the North, and is bounded partly on the North and East sides by Austin Friars and on the South by Throgmorton Street, and that the remainder of the said Property is in Dowgate, in the Parish of St. Mary, Botham; and that part of the Property held by the said Company in trust for Howell's Charity forms a connected range of Buildings and Premises bounded on the East by Bush Lane and Dowgate Hill, on the North in part by the Parsonage House and Old Church-yard of St. Mary, Botham, and the rest of the North side, consisting of houses on the North of Scots Yard, which runs into Bush Lane, and on the South that it is bounded partly by Plumbers' Hall, and that there are two Warehouses on the South by Checquer Yard, which run from Bush Lane to Dowgate, the site of which Warehouses is partly in Saint Mary, Botham, and partly in Saint Michael Royal, and is considered as belonging part to Howell's Charity and part to the said Company: And the said Master further found that there are also in Scots Yard six other Houses and Warehouses, being part of the said Howell's Charity Property, which till about the year One thousand eight hundred and twenty-nine were let on lease, latterly at rents amounting to nearly Four hundred Pounds, and which have been abandoned by the Lessees or left on the expiration of the Leases, and that it was alleged that they had been offered in several ways to be let, but that no adequate offer had been made for them: And the said Master further found, that the present Income arising from the said Charity Property, exclusive of the Interest on the Purchase Money of the said Hall of the said Company, is Two thousand one hundred and thirty-eight pounds thirteen shillings or thereabouts: And the said Master further stated, that he was of opinion that, having regard to the Charitable objects contemplated by the said Testator and the increased amount of the Rents, Profits, and Income of the Charity Estates, it would be fit and proper that an extension of Charitable objects and uses should be made, so as to embrace other objects than those immediately contemplated by the said Testator, and that a Scheme had been proposed by the said Attorney-General for the future

Report, 4th
March, 1851.

administration and management of the said Charity and the Estates and Property thereof and the application of the Income thereof, including an extension of the Charitable objects and uses of the said Charity other than those immediately contemplated by the said Testator: And the said Master further stated, that he had perused and considered such proposed Scheme, and approved thereof as a proper Scheme for the purposes aforesaid; and that in a Schedule annexed to his said Report, he had set forth the particulars of such Scheme: And the said Master further found, that it was necessary that an Act of Parliament should be obtained for carrying into effect such Scheme; and, the Draft of a Bill for such Act having been laid before him, that he had perused and settled and approved of the same as a proper Bill for an Act of Parliament to be applied for, for the establishment of such extended Scheme for the Appropriation and Application of the Income of the said Charity Estates as aforesaid: And the said Master further found amongst other things, that the said Hall and Buildings had been purchased by the said Defendants under the provision of the said Act of the ninth and tenth years of the reign of her present Majesty, with the approbation of the Court, and that the same had been duly conveyed to or to the use of the said Defendants discharged of the said Trusts: And the said Master further found, that at the time of the passing of the said Act, a Message or Tenement situate at the West end of the said Hall, being Number Twenty-nine in Throgmorton Street, and part of the said Charity Estates, was not included in the provisions of the said Act, the same having been then treated as a separate tenement, but that such message or tenement had been since added to the said Hall, and was then occupied by the Clerk of the said Drapers' Company; and that the said Drapers' Company were desirous of purchasing the same, and that the provisions of the said proposed Act should be extended so as to enable them to do so, and that he was of opinion that the said proposed Act should be extended accordingly; and that he had therefore in settling the said Bill for an Act of Parliament to be applied for for the establishment of the said extended Scheme as aforesaid, settled the same so as to enable the said Defendants to purchase the said Message or Tenement situate at the West end of the said Hall, being Number Twenty-nine in Throgmorton Street aforesaid, and then in the occupation of the said Clerk of the said Drapers' Company as aforesaid, discharged from the Charitable Trusts to which the same was then subject; and the said Master further stated, that he had caused the said proposed Bill to be engrossed on Nineteen sheets of paper, and in testimony of his approbation thereof, he had signed his allowance at the foot of the said Engrossment:

And whereas by an Order made in the said cause bearing date the Fifteenth day of March, One thousand eight hundred and fifty-one, it was ordered, that the Master's said Report should be confirmed:

And whereas by a Further Order made in the said cause, dated the Fourth day of March, One thousand eight hundred and fifty-two, it was ordered, among other things, that application should be made to Parliament by her Majesty's Attorney-General for an Act enabling the Court of Chancery to extend the said Charity to the establishment, maintenance, and benefit of Schools in Wales for the Instruction of Girls, and the maintaining, clothing, and providing portions for the Orphan Inmates educated in the Schools to be so established, and the keeping up the establishment for such Schools, in such manner as the said Court should think fit, and also enabling the said Company to purchase the said Message or Tenement, Twenty-nine Throgmorton Street, for their own use, and as Trustees for the said Charity to purchase and hold sites for the Schools to be so established, and also to let, sell, exchange, and otherwise manage the Estates of the said Charity, and to invest the surplus income thereof in the purchase of land under the direction of the said Court; and it was further ordered, that the Bill to be so introduced into Parliament for obtaining such last-mentioned Act should be in accordance with the Draft Bill, which was therein stated to be produced in Court, and marked with the letter A. and with the initials of the Registrar, at the time of making such Order; and the Draft Bill so produced in Court and marked as aforesaid corresponds with the Bill which is intended to be passed and enacted by this Act:

And whereas the said Message or Tenement situate at the west end of the said Hall in Throgmorton Street aforesaid, together with the appurtenances, is described in the Schedule to this Act annexed:

May it therefore please Your Majesty, That it may be enacted, and be it enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal and Commons in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same:

I. That it shall be lawful for the said Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters, as the Trustees of the said Charity Estates, to sell and convey unto them the said Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters, for their own use and benefit the said House and Premises, Number Twenty-nine Throgmorton Street, described in the said Report of the said Master, of the Fourth day of March, One thousand eight hundred and fifty-one, and in the Preamble of this Act, with the appurtenances, for such price, in such manner and subject to such conditions and provisions as to the said Court of Chancery shall seem reasonable, and upon payment of the purchase money thereof, to hold the same purchased hereditaments and premises unto them, their successors and assigns, freed and discharged from all Charitable Uses and Trusts now subsisting and affecting the same; and that, for the purpose of the Sale and Conveyance so hereby authorised to be made as aforesaid, all and singular the powers, enactments, and provisions contained respectively in the said herein-before recited Act of the Tenth year of the reign of her present Majesty, with respect to the hereditaments by the same Act authorised to be sold and conveyed by the said Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters as aforesaid, and with respect to the conveyance of the same purchased hereditaments, and the payment, application, and investment of the purchase money thereof, and the costs of or attending such purchase, or otherwise connected with or relating to the Sale or Conveyance by the same Act authorised to be made as aforesaid, shall extend and apply to and include the aforesaid House and Premises, Number Twenty-nine, Throgmorton Street, with the appurtenances, and the Sale and Conveyance hereby authorised to be made thereof, as fully and effectually as if all the same powers, enactments, and provisions were herein contained and repeated.

II. That it shall be lawful for the Court of Chancery to extend the said Charity to the establishment, maintenance, and benefit of Schools in Wales for the instruction of Girls, and the maintaining, clothing, and providing portions for the Orphan Inmates educated in the Schools to be so established, and the keeping up the Establishment for such Schools in such manner and subject to such provisions and regulations as the said Court shall from time to time order or direct, and from time to time to make and give such Decrees, Orders, or Directions in relation to the Charity and the Premises as shall be requisite or proper, having regard to the extension hereby authorised as aforesaid: Provided, that for the purposes of this Act the whole of the Diocese of Llandaff shall be deemed to be in Wales: Provided also that in preparing such Schemes preference shall be given to the Diocese of Llandaff, both as to the priority and size of the foundations to be established and maintained under the authority of this Act; and that not more than One School shall be established or maintained from the proceeds of the said Charity beyond the present limits of that Diocese.

III. That if any Orphan Maiden, who shall be certified by the Bishop of Llandaff to be of the blood of the said Thomas Howell, shall apply to be admitted into any of the Schools established or maintained under the authority of this Act, such person shall be preferred to all others; and that every Orphan Inmate of any of the said Schools, who shall have been duly certified to be of the blood of the said Thomas Howell, shall, after leaving such School and being of unblemished character, be entitled on her marriage to a Marriage Portion of Two hundred pounds out of the funds of the Charity; and that the Governor may advance a portion of such sum for her benefit in the meantime.

IV. That the Bishop of the Diocese in which any of the said Schools shall be established shall be ex officio a Governor of such School, and shall, when present at a Meeting of the Governors of such School, be the Chairman thereof.

V. That it shall be lawful for the said Company, their successors and assigns, by and under the order and direction of the said Court of Chancery, to purchase and hold such pieces of ground as sites for the Schools to be established as aforesaid, and the Buildings and appurtenances to be attached thereto, as shall be approved of by the said Court; and that such pieces of ground when so purchased shall be conveyed unto or otherwise vested in the said Company, their successors and assigns, upon trust for the said Charity, in such manner as the said Court of Chancery shall order or direct.

Company empowered to purchase House No. 29, Throgmorton Street, according to the provisions of 9 & 10 Vict. c. 19.

Court of Chancery empowered to extend Charity to Establishment and Maintenance of Girls' School in Wales.

Orphans of the Blood of the Founder to be preferred and to have Marriage Portions.

The Bishop of the Diocese shall be an ex-officio Governor of the several Schools.

Company to purchase Sites for Schools.

Company empowered to grant Building Leases, and to sell, exchange, and manage Charity Estates under Directions of Court of Chancery, according to Provisions of Scheme.

VI. That it shall be lawful for the said Company, their successors and assigns, from time to time, with the sanction and approbation of the said Court of Chancery, to grant and contract for the grant of any building, improving, or other Leases for any term or number of years, of all or any part of the lands, estates, and property for the time being belonging to or held in trust for the said Charity, and also to sell and convey or exchange and contract for the sale and conveyance or exchange of all or any part of the same lands, estates, and property for such rents, at such prices, upon such terms and conditions, and with and subject to such powers and provisions, and in such manner respectively, as the said Court of Chancery shall from time to time by its order authorise or direct; and for the purposes aforesaid, or any of them, and also for the improvement or better management of the said Charity Estates, or any of them, to make and execute all or any such Deeds, Leases, and Conveyances, and accept all or any such Surrenders, and to make and enter into all such contracts and arrangements, and do all such acts, matters, and things whatsoever, as the said Court of Chancery shall in manner aforesaid authorise or direct.

Company may lay out surplus of Annual Income in the Purchase of Land.

VII. That it shall be lawful for the said Company, their successors and assigns, from time to time, with the sanction and approbation of the Court of Chancery, to lay out and invest the surplus Rents and Profits and Income of the Charity Estates and Property, and all or any monies arising from any sale or exchange of the said Charity Estates and Property, or any part thereof, and all or any other monies for the time being belonging to the Charity, in the purchase of lands or hereditaments or Government or Real Securities; and that from time to time, when and as often as any such purchase or investment shall be made as aforesaid, the lands and securities respectively so to be purchased or obtained shall be conveyed and transferred unto or otherwise vested in the said Company, their successors and assigns, upon trust for the benefit of the said Charity, as the Court of Chancery may from time to time direct.

Expenses of Act.

VIII. That all the costs, charges, and expenses incident to and attendant or in anywise relating to the applying for, obtaining, and passing this Act, and incidental and preparatory thereto, shall be paid out of the Charity Estates, monies, and property, in such manner as the said Court of Chancery may from time to time direct.

Interpretation of Act.

IX. That in this Act the following words and expressions shall have the several meanings hereby assigned to them, unless there be something in the subject or context repugnant to such construction (that is to say),

"Company."

The expression "Company" shall mean and include the Drapers' Company by their Corporate name of "The Master, Wardens, and Brethren and Sisters of the Blessed Mary the Virgin of the Mystery of Drapers of the City of London," and their successors and other the Trustees for the time being of the Charity.

"Charity."

The expression "The Charity" shall mean the said Charity founded by Thomas Howell as established and administered under the authority of this Act.

Saving Rights of Her Majesty.

X. Saving always to the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, her Heirs and Successors, and to all and every other person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, his and their heirs, executors, administrators, successors, and assigns (other than and except the said Company), all such estate, right, title, interest, property, benefit, claim, and demand whatsoever of, in, to, or out of the said several lands, estates, and premises by this Act directed to be held by or vested in the said Company, their successors and assigns, in trust for the said Charity as aforesaid, or any of them, or any part or parts thereof respectively, as he or they or any of them had before the passing of this Act, or would, could, or might have had in case this Act had not been passed.

Act printed by Queen's Printer to be Evidence.

XI. That this Act shall not be a public Act, but shall be printed by the several printers to the Queen's most Excellent Majesty duly authorised to print the Statutes of the United Kingdom, and a copy thereof so printed by any of them shall be admitted as evidence thereof by all Judges, Justices, and others.

A Bill intituled, An Act to authorise the sale of part of the Charity Estates vested in "The Master, Wardens, and Brethren and Sisters of the Guild or Fraternity of the Blessed Mary the Virgin, of the Mystery of Drapers of the City of London," upon the Trusts of the Will of Thomas Howell, deceased.

WHEREAS an information was, on the 27th day of July 1838, filed by Her Majesty's Attorney-General against the Master, Wardens, and Brethren and Sisters of the Guild or Fraternity of the Blessed Mary the Virgin, of the Mystery of Drapers of the City of London (stating amongst other things),—That Thomas Howell, who died at Seville, in the kingdom of Spain, in or about the year 1540, by his will directed his executors to send to the City of London 12,000 ducats of gold, to be delivered to the house named Drapers' Hall and the wardens thereof, the said wardens to have in charge that as soon as they should receive the same, they should therewith buy for the same house 400 ducats of rent yearly for ever to have in possession; and willed further, that the said 400 ducats of rent yearly should be bestowed in marriage to four maidens, being orphans and of his lineage and blood, if they could be found, and the next of kin to be first served of the said four maidens, and they to have each of them 100 ducats; and if no such maidens of his blood should be found, then to marry other four maidens, although they should not be of his lineage, with condition that they should be honest and of good name and fame, each of them to have 100 ducats, and to spend the said 400 ducats in marriage every year, to marry four maidens for ever; and if the said 12,000 ducats would buy more than the said 400 ducats of yearly rent, to bestow the residue in marriage of maidens, being orphans, and to increase of the said four maidens' marriage as best should seem to the wardens of the said house; and that it was stated by the said Company of Drapers in their answer to the bill in a suit therein-after mentioned, as the fact was, that after long suit and great expense there had at length been sent into England in oils for the use of the Company as much as amounted to 8,720 ducats, but that as to the residue of the said 12,000 ducats, they could not obtain the same from the executors, and that with the money they had received for the said oils, the costs, charges, and losses deducted, they had purchased in tenements and gardens in the city of London as many as amounted to the yearly rent of 105*l.* or thereabouts; and that by an indenture bearing date the 31st day of March 1543, made between King Henry the Eighth of the first part, and the said Master, Wardens, Brethren, and Sisters of the Company of Drapers of the other part, the said King, for the consideration therein-after expressed, bargained, sold, and granted to the said Master, Wardens, Brethren, and Sisters, and their successors, the capital messuage and two gardens and other buildings to the same annexed, in the parish of Saint Peter-le-Poor within ward of Broad Street, in the city of London, and in the parish of Saint Stephen, Coleman Street, paying yearly 10*s.* 4*d.* into the Court of Augmentations, and the said King thereby declared that he would grant to the said Master, Wardens, Brethren, and Sisters, and their successors, the premises aforesaid by Letters Patent, under the Great Seal, with the rents and profits thereof from Lady-day then last, in consideration whereof the said Master, Wardens, Brethren, and Sisters covenanted to pay to the said King the sum of 1,200*l.* And the said Master Wardens, Brethren, and Sisters, in further recompense and satisfaction of the said messuage, gardens, and other the premises before mentioned, did for themselves and their successors covenant with the said King and his successors, that they and their successors should and would yearly thereafter give, distribute, and dispose the rents and profits which at any time thereafter should clearly accrue from the Preamble.

Information filed 27th July 1838.

said premises, over and besides all charges and costs which should be bestowed in the reparation of the said premises, to and for the marriage of poor maidens, being orphans, at the discretion of the said Master, Wardens, Brethren, and Sisters of the said Company for the time being, and that by Letters Patent, bearing date the 4th day of July, in the 35th year of the Reign of King Henry the Eighth, His said Majesty, in consideration of 1,800 marks, granted to the Master, Wardens, Brethren, and Sisters of the said Company of Drapers, the capital messuage, tenements, and gardens mentioned in the said Indenture, in the parish of Saint Peter-le-Poor, and abutting on Broad Street South, and the messuages, tenements, and cellars lying together near the Church of the Convent of the Augustine Brothers, in the said Parish, and in the Ward of Broad Street, abutting on the said Street, leading towards Lothbury on the South, and the way leading to the Priory of the Augustines on the North. Also, a messuage or tenement, cellars, and a gatehouse, fronting south towards Broad Street, and abutting north on the Churchyard of the said Convent, and a Watercourse and running of Conduit Water to the said capital messuage and a way to the said capital messuage and tenements thereto belonging, by the Gate called Friars Gate, to Broad Street: And that the property held by the said Company in the Parish of St. Peter-le-Poor lay all together, and consisted of the said Company's Hall and Gardens on the west side, and partly on the north, and was bounded partly on the north and east sides by Austin Friars, and on the south by Throgmorton Street: And that the remainder of the property was situated as in the said Information stated, and that the said consideration of 1,800 marks in the said Letters Patent were in fact part of the said sum of 8,720 ducats received by the Company as aforesaid, according to the true intent and meaning of the said Testator's Will, and that under the circumstances aforesaid, the said Company were bound to pay and apply the whole of the net income arising from the said property to the purposes of the said Charity, and that they were not entitled to appropriate any part thereof to their own use, and that the whole of the said lands and premises were in fact the property of the said Charity, and were held by the said Company on trust only for the said Charity, and after charging as therein mentioned: It was, amongst other things, prayed that the said Charity might be established, and that it might be declared that the whole of the funds or sums of money which came to the hands of the said Company under and by virtue of the said will were applicable to the charitable purposes in the said will mentioned, and that the whole of the said lands and premises were held by the said Company in trust for the charitable purposes in the said will declared, and that it might be ascertained of what the lands, tenements, and premises belonging to the said Charity in the hands of the said Company consisted, and that all necessary measures might be taken for securing the same to the said Charity, and that an account might be taken for such term as to the Court might seem just of the rents and profits of the said lands and premises, including premiums and fines on granting or renewing of leases thereof, which had been received by the said Company, or on their behalf, and also on account of such sums as during the same time had been properly applied by the said Company to the purposes of the said Charity, and that it might be ascertained what was due from the said Company on the balance of the said account, and that the said Company might be decreed to make good and pay, as the Court should direct for the benefit of the said Charity, the amount of such balance, and that all proper directions might be given for the purpose of securing to the said Charity the rents, profits, and income of the said property for the future, and that it might be referred to the Master to approve of some proper scheme for the application and appropriation of the sum coming from the said Company to the said Charity, and the future rents and profits, and income of the said lands, tenements, and premises, in such manner as the Court might seem fit.

And whereas the said defendants to the said information put in their answer thereto, and (amongst other things) admitted that the property held by the said Company in the Parish of Saint Peter-le-Poor, did lie together, or nearly so, and that (amongst other property) it did consist of the Company's Hall and Gardens and some other Tenements, and that no rent was paid for the said Hall and Gardens, and that the said Hall and Gardens formed part of the said trust property.

And whereas the said Attorney-General amended the said information so filed against the said defendants, who put in an answer thereto, and the cause came on to be heard on the 3rd day of May 1843, before the Right Honourable the Master of the Rolls, and a Decree was pronounced therein.

And whereas by a Decree made by his said Lordship, on the hearing of the said Information on the 29th day of April 1845, his said Lordship did declare that the whole of the funds, or sums of money, which came to the hands of the defendants under and by virtue of the will of the said Thomas Howell, the testator, were applicable to the charitable purposes in the said will mentioned, and that the whole of the said land and premises mentioned in the indenture of the 31st day of March 1543, and the Letters Patent of the 4th day of July in the 35th year of King Henry the Eighth, and which were held by the said Company, were held by the said Company in trust for the charitable purposes in the said will declared, and his Lordship did order and decree that it should be referred to the Master to whom the cause stood referred to take an account of what the property of the Charity then consisted, and what was the then present income arising therefrom; and it was ordered that the said Master should take an account of all sums received by the defendants, or by any other person or persons, by their order or for their use, in respect of the said lands and premises, and property, from the 3rd day of May 1843. And it appearing that the present Hall of or occupied by the defendants, and the buildings attached thereto, stood on the site of part of the Charity Estate, and were rebuilt by the said defendants in the year 1772. His Lordship did declare, that the defendants, the Drapers' Company, ought to be charged with such a ground-rent for and in respect of the site of the said hall and buildings, and for the gardens attached thereto, as according to the value of the said site and gardens in the year 1772 would have been reserved on a building lease thereof, for a term of 99 years, if a building lease thereof had been granted in the said year 1772 for building the said hall and buildings, and laying out the said gardens as the same respectively then were at the date of the order now in recital, and that the said defendants ought to be charged with and to pay such ground-rent, to be so ascertained for the residue then to come of a term of 99 years, to commence and be computed from the said year 1772. And it was ordered that it should be referred to the said Master to inquire and state to the Court whether, under the circumstances of the case, it would be fit and proper, and for the benefit of the said Charity, that instead of charging the defendants, the Drapers' Company, with a ground-rent for the site of the said hall and buildings and for the said gardens, to be ascertained in manner aforesaid, for the residue then to come of a term of 99 years, to commence from the said year 1772, they the said defendants should be charged with and should pay for and in respect of such site and gardens a rent of 360*l.* a year, for a term of 50 years, to be computed from the 3rd day of May 1843, or for any other and what period, or for any other and what term, and if the Master should find that it would be for the benefit of the said Charity that the said defendants should pay the said rent of 360*l.* a year for such term of 50 years, to be computed from the time aforesaid, or from any other time, or for any other term, then it was ordered that the said Master, in taking the accounts of rents and profits therein-before directed against the said defendants, should charge them accordingly with such rent; but if the said Master should be of opinion that it would not be for the benefit of the said Charity that the said defendants should be charged with and should pay the said yearly rent of 360*l.* for the said term of 50 years, or for any other term, instead of such ground-rent, to be ascertained as aforesaid for a residue of a term of 99 years, to commence and be computed as aforesaid, then that the Master, in taking the said account of rents and profits, was to charge the defendants with such ground-rent as aforesaid; and it was ordered that the sum of 3,000*l.* should be paid by the defendants, the Drapers' Company, as and by way of commutation for and in respect of the rents and profits of the said Charity Estate and hereditaments accrued previously to the said 3rd day of May 1843, in manner herein-before directed; and it was ordered that the said Master should approve of and settle a scheme for the future administration of the said Charity, and the application thereof. And it was ordered, that it should be referred to the Master to inquire and state whether, having regard to the charitable objects contemplated by the said Testator, and the increased amount of the rents, profits, and income of the Charity Estates, it would be fit and proper that any and what extension of charitable objects and uses should be made of the said Charity, so as to embrace other objects than those immediately contemplated by the said Testator, and if he should be of opinion that such extension should be made, then he was also to approve of a scheme for such purpose. And the said Master was to inquire and state whether it was necessary that an Act of Parliament should be obtained for carrying into effect such scheme as he might approve of; and if he should be of opinion that an Act of Parliament was necessary, then that he might settle the Draft of a Bill for an Act of Parliament to be applied for by the Defendants for the establishment of any such extended scheme for the appropriation and application of the income of the said Charity Estates, or any part thereof; and also for the absolute purchase by the Defendants of such part of the said Charity Estates whereon the said hall and buildings occupied by the Petitioners the Defendants as aforesaid were built, and of the gardens attached thereto, discharged of the charitable trusts to which the same were then subject, and for the investment and disposition of the purchase money to be paid by the said defendants for the same.

And whereas Sir George Rose, the Master to whom the said cause stood referred, by his report, bearing date the 12th day of February 1846, found amongst other things, that with the money the said Company received from the oils sent to them by the executors of the said testator Thomas Howell, the costs, charges, and losses deducted, they the said Company purchased tenements and gardens in the City of London of the yearly rent of 105*l.*, or thereabouts. And he found that the site of the said Hall, with the gardens thereto belonging, were part of the hereditaments so purchased, and that the site whereon the said Hall and buildings had been built was situate in and had a frontage towards Throgmorton Street, in the City of London, and such site, together with the gardens appurtenant to the said Hall, extended backwards in a northerly direction towards and had a frontage in Austin Friars. And he found that previously to the year 1772 the former Hall of the said Company stood on the same site, but in the year 1772 such Hall was almost entirely destroyed by fire. And he found that after the said year 1772, the said Drapers' Company erected the present Hall and laid out the gardens belonging thereto, and such Hall had a frontage towards Throgmorton Street of 160 feet, and had also a frontage towards Austin Friars of 52 feet. And he found that if the site of the said Hall and Gardens had been let upon a lease for a term of 99 years from the year 1772, with a plan for erecting a Hall similar to the present Hall, with a frontage in Throgmorton Street, the same would have produced 15*s.* per foot, or 120*l.* a year; but if such site had been let on a similar building lease for a term of 50 years from the 3rd day of May 1843, the same would have produced 2*l.* 5*s.* per foot, or 360*l.* a year. And he found that if such lease for 99 years from 1772 had been granted, 28 years of such term would have been unexpired in 1843. And he found that if the said Hall and Gardens were then to be sold, it would be more beneficial to the said Charity that the same should be sold, subject to a lease for 28 years from the year 1843, at a ground-rent of 120*l.* a year, than that the same should be sold subject to a lease for 50 years from 1843 at a ground-rent of 360*l.* a year. The said Master therefore found that it would not be fit and proper, and for the benefit of the said Charity, that instead of charging the Drapers' Company with a ground-rent for the site of the said Hall and buildings, and for the gardens, to be ascertained in manner in the said decree mentioned for the residue then to come of a term of 99 years, to commence from the said year 1772 (and which ground-rent would amount to 120*l.* a year), they the said defendants should be charged with, and should pay for and in respect of such site and gardens, a rent of 360*l.* a year for a term of 50 years, to be computed from the 3rd day of May 1843; but at the request of the Attorney-General, he found, and was of opinion, that it would be for the benefit of the said Charity that the said defendants should be charged with a ground-rent of 120*l.* a year for a term of 28 years, to commence from the year 1843, being the residue of a term of 99 years, commencing from the year 1772.

And whereas, by an order of his Lordship the Right Honourable the Master of the Rolls, bearing date the 10th day of March 1846, it was ordered that the said Master's said report, dated the 12th day of February 1846, should be confirmed, and the defendants by their counsel consenting thereto, it was ordered that it should be referred to the said Master to settle and approve of a proper lease of the Hall and Gardens of the defendants, to be granted to such persons as should be nominated by the said defendants for a term of 28 years, to be computed from the year 1843, being the residue of a term of 99 years from the year 1772, or for a term of 99 years, to be computed from the said year 1772, at the yearly rent of 120*l.*; and the said defendants were to be at liberty to affix their common seal to such lease as the said Master should approve of, and the lessees named therein were to execute a counterpart thereof.

And whereas by an Indenture of Lease, bearing date the 16th day of April 1846, and made between the said Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters of the one part, and Robert Hendrie, of Tichborne Street, in the City of Westminster, Esquire, Nathaniel Huson, of Great Portland Street, in the County of Middlesex, Esquire, Robert Barclay, of Holloway, in the said County, Esquire, and William Vardon, of Half Moon Street, in the said County, Esquire, of the other part: It was witnessed that by virtue of and in obedience to the lastly herein-before in part recited order of the said Master of the Rolls, and in consideration of the rents, covenants, and agreements therein-after reserved and contained on the Lessees' part, to be paid, performed, and observed respectively, they the said Master, Wardens, Brethren, and Sisters granted and demised unto the said Robert Hendrie, Nathaniel Huson, Robert Barclay, and William Vardon, their executors, administrators, and assigns: All that piece or parcel of ground, with the capital messuage or hall, and buildings thereon erected and built, with the gardens thereunto belonging, and then known as Drapers' Hall, in the City of London, being the hall and gardens so ordered to be leased as aforesaid: All of which said premises were more particularly delineated and described in the plan drawn on the back of the 4th skin of the now reciting Indenture: And all ways, paths, passages, party and other walls, fences, watercourses, culverts, drains, lights, easements, profits, advantages, and appurtenances whatsoever, to the said piece or parcel of ground, messuage or hall, buildings and premises, belonging or in any wise appertaining (except and always reserving the free passage and running of water and soil through the chanuels, sewers, and drains), then or thereafter to be made in, upon, or under the said premises, or any part thereof: To hold the said premises thereby demised unto the said Robert Hendrie, Nathaniel Huson, Robert Barclay, and William Vardon, their executors, administrators, and assigns, for the term of twenty-eight years, to be computed from the 25th day of December 1843, yielding and paying therefor, yearly, and during the said term, the yearly rent of one hundred and twenty pounds sterling, by two half-yearly payments, on the twenty-fourth day of June and the twenty-fifth day of December in each and every year, the first payment to be considered as due and payable on the twenty-fourth day of June one thousand eight hundred and forty-four, without any deduction or abatement whatsoever, except for the Income or Property Tax and the Land Tax, and in case the term thereby granted should happen to be determined, under or by virtue of the proviso for re-entry therein-after contained, then yielding and paying a proportionate part of the said yearly rent of one hundred and twenty pounds for the period which should have elapsed of the half of a year pending or current at the time of such determination, the same to be paid immediately thereupon.

And whereas by an order of his Lordship the Master of the Rolls, dated the 2nd day of June 1846, it was referred to the said Master to settle and approve of the Draft of a Bill for an Act of Parliament to enable the said Defendants to purchase such part of the Charity Estates whereon the said Defendants' Hall and Buildings occupied by them were built, and of the Gardens attached thereto, discharged of the Charitable Trusts to which the same are subject, and for the Investment and disposition of the purchase money to be paid by the said Defendants for the same, and with all proper provisions for protecting and securing the rights and interests of the said Charity.

And whereas the said Master Sir George Rose, by his Report bearing date the 4th day of June 1846, certified, that in pursuance of the said Order, he had settled and approved of a Draft Bill for the purposes aforesaid, and he had caused a Copy of the said Draft Bill to be written on thirty-one sides of paper, and in testimony of his approbation thereof he had signed his allowance at the foot of the said Copy.

And whereas by an Order made in the said Cause by his Lordship the Master of the Rolls, dated the 6th day of June 1846, the said Report was confirmed.

And whereas the sale of the said hall, buildings, and premises may be effected without prejudice to the interests of the said Charity, if such Sale be made with the approbation and under the direction of the Court of Chancery.

And whereas the sale of the said hall, buildings, and gardens, discharged from the said charitable uses and trusts, cannot be effected without the aid and authority of Parliament.

Wherefore Your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters of the Guild or Fraternity of the Blessed Mary the Virgin, of the Mystery of Drapers of the City of London, do most humbly beseech Your Majesty,

1. That it may be Enacted, and be it Enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal and authorised to sell, under the direction of the Court of Chancery.

The Company as Trustees of the Charity.

Commons in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that it shall be lawful for the said Master and Warden and Brethren and Sisters, as the Trustees of the said Charity Estates, at any time hereafter, with the approbation and under the direction of the Court of Chancery, absolutely to make sale and dispose of the freehold reversion and inheritance of the hall, buildings, gardens, and premises comprised in the said recited indenture of lease unto the Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters, for their own use and benefit, for such sum or sums of money, or for such sum of Three per Cent. Bank Annuities, or partly for one and partly for the other, and under and subject to such special conditions and restrictions as to the said Court of Chancery shall seem reasonable, and upon payment into the Bank of England in manner herein-after directed of the purchase monies, and transfer of so much Three per Cent. Bank Annuities, as the case may be, for which the said hall, buildings, gardens, and premises shall be sold, the Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters shall grant, convey, and assure the same with their rights, members, and appurtenances, and the freehold reversion and inheritance thereof, and the rent payable in respect thereof under the said recited indenture of lease unto a trustee or trustees to be named by them, to the use of them, the Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters, their successors and assigns for ever, or as they shall direct or require, discharged of and from all and singular the Charitable uses and trusts to which the same hereditaments and premises are now, or shall at the time of such sale, be subject or liable.

Upon the Conveyance by the Company, the premises sold to be effectually discharged from all Charitable Trusts.

2. And be it Enacted, that immediately upon the sealing and delivery by the Master and Wardens, and Brethren and Sisters, under the direction of the said Court of Chancery, of any grant, conveyance, and assurance of the freehold reversion and inheritance of the said hall, buildings, gardens, and premises, comprised in the said recited indenture of lease, or any part thereof, to a trustee or trustees, to or for the use and benefit of the Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters, the hereditaments and premises comprised in such grant, conveyance, or assurance shall be thereupon and for ever thereafter held and enjoyed by the Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters, their successors or assigns, freed and absolutely discharged of, and from all and singular the charitable uses and trusts to which the same hereditaments and premises are now, or shall at the time of the sale thereof under the direction of the said Court of Chancery be subject or liable.

Money arising from the Sale of Hall to be paid into the Bank of England.

3. And be it Enacted, that the Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters, if and when they shall become the Purchasers of all or any part of the said Hall, Buildings, Gardens, and Premises comprised in the said recited Indenture of Lease, and by this Act authorised to be sold as aforesaid, shall pay their purchase money into the Bank of England, or transfer such purchase Stock in the name and with the privity of the Accountant-General of the High Court of Chancery, to be placed to his Account there on the credit of the cause, "The Attorney-General v. Drapers' Company, ex parte the Drapers' Company, purchasers of the Estate of Thomas Howell's Charity, London," pursuant to the method prescribed by the Act of the 12th year of the Reign of His Majesty King George the First, chapter the 32nd, and the General Orders of the said Court, without fee or reward, according to the Act of the 12th year of the Reign of His Majesty King George the Second, chapter the 24th.

Certificate of the Accountant-General, with the receipt of the Cashier of the Bank, to discharge the Purchaser.

4. And be it Enacted, that the certificate of the said Accountant-General under his hand, together with the Receipt of one of the Cashiers of the Bank of England to be thereto annexed, and therewith filed in the Register Offices of the said Court, of the payment into the Bank of England, or Transfer by the Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters, as the case may be, of the Purchase money or Stock, or of any part thereof as aforesaid, or an office Copy of any such Certificate or Receipt, shall from time to time be and be deemed and taken to be a good and sufficient discharge to the Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters for so much or such part of the said Purchase money or Stock for which such Certificate and Receipt shall be so given as aforesaid, and after the filing of such Certificate and Receipt as aforesaid the Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters, or such purchasers, shall be and they are hereby absolutely acquitted and discharged of and from the same monies and every part thereof, and they or any of them shall not afterwards be answerable or accountable for any loss, misapplication, or nonapplication of the same or any part thereof.

The monies paid into the Bank to be laid out in

5. And be it Enacted, that the monies which shall be so paid into the Bank of England in the name and with the privity of the Accountant-General of the High Court of Chancery, to be placed to his Account there, or the Stock so to be transferred "Ex parte the Drapers' Company, purchasers of the Estates of Thomas Howell's Charity," shall be applied from time to time, under the direction of the said Court of Chancery, in paying any costs, charges, and expenses which the Court of Chancery, under the authority herein-after contained, may direct to be paid thereout, and the surplus of the said Purchase monies, or if no costs, charges, or expenses shall be directed to be paid by the said Court of Chancery out of the said Purchase monies, then the whole of the said Purchase monies shall be laid out and invested, under the direction of the Court of Chancery, in the purchase of Freehold Messuages or Tenements, Lands, or Hereditaments, situate either in England or Wales, which Messuages or Tenements, Lands, and Hereditaments, immediately upon or after the purchase of the same, shall, under the like direction of the said Court, be conveyed and assured unto and to the use of the Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters, to and for the general uses, intents, and purposes of the said Charity.

the purchase of other lands to be settled to the uses of the Charity.

6. And be it Enacted, that all sums of money which shall be so paid into the Bank of England in the name of the said Accountant-General to his account there in the said cause, "The Attorney-General versus the Drapers' Company, ex parte the Purchasers of the Estates of Thomas Howell's Charity, and the Masters and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters of the Drapers' Company, London," or so much thereof as shall not, in the first instance, be ordered by the Court of Chancery to be applied in or towards payment of all or any of the costs, charges, and expenses herein mentioned, shall in the meantime, and until such money shall be otherwise applied, be laid out under the direction of the said Court in the purchase of Three Pounds per centum per annum Consolidated Bank Annuities, and the dividends and interest to arise therefrom shall be laid out from time to time in the purchase of other like Bank Annuities. Provided always, that it shall be lawful for the said Court to make such general or special order or orders respecting the said Bank Annuities and the dividends and interest thereof as to the said Court shall seem right.

Until purchase of other lands money to be laid out in 3 per cent. Consolidated Bank Annuities.

7. And be it Enacted, that all the costs, charges, and expenses incident to and attending or in anywise relating to the applying for, obtaining, and passing this Act, and incidental and preparatory thereto; and that all the costs of making the sale or sales of the said hereditaments and premises comprised in the said recited indenture of lease, and hereby authorised to be sold, or any part thereof, and of making out, evidencing, and supporting the title thereto, and of approving the conveyance thereof, and all other deeds relating to such sale, and of paying the purchase monies for the same into and of taking such purchase monies out of the Bank of England, and of investing the same in other lands, and of conveying such lands to the uses of the said Charity, and of investing the said purchase monies in the meantime in the purchase of Bank Annuities, and the costs of all applications which may be made to the said Court of Chancery, under or in pursuance of this Act, and all other costs, charges, and expenses incidental to the objects or purposes of this Act, or to the exercise of any of the powers of this Act, shall be paid by the Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters out of their own proper monies, unless the said Court of Chancery shall direct the same costs, charges, and expenses respectively, or any of them, or any part thereof, to be paid out of the said Charity estates, monies, and property.

Expense of Act. All Costs of and incident to sale, &c. to be paid by the Company, unless the Court of Chancery shall otherwise direct.

8. And be it Enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said Court of Chancery, from time to time, to make such order as the Court shall think fit for taxing and settling all costs, charges, and expenses of and incident to the making the sale or sales of the said hereditaments and premises comprised in the said recited indenture of lease, and hereby authorised to be sold, or any part thereof, and of making out, evidencing, and supporting the title thereto, and of approving the conveyance thereof, and other deeds relating to such sale, and of paying the purchase monies for the same, and of taking such purchase monies out of the Bank of England, and of investing the same in other lands, and of conveying such lands to the uses of the said Charity, and of investing the said purchase monies in the meantime in Bank Three Pounds per Centum Annuities, and of all applications which may be made to the said Court of Chancery, under or in pursuance of this Act, and all other costs, charges, and expenses incidental to the objects or purposes of this Act or otherwise, in carrying this Act into complete execution. And also from time to time to make an order for payment of all such costs, charges, and expenses as aforesaid out of the monies which shall be so paid into the Bank of England in the said cause, "The Attorney-General versus the Drapers' Company, ex parte the Drapers' Company, purchasers of the estates of Thomas Howell's Charity," or out of the monies arising by the sale of any such Bank Three Pounds per Centum Annuities, or out of any other monies or securities for the time belonging to the said Charity, or out of the income of the said Charity Estates and Property.

Court of Chancery may make orders in a summary way as to matters directed by this Act.

9. And be it Enacted, that in all cases in which the direction, approbation, or sanction of the said Court of Chancery shall be necessary under the provisions of this Act, such direction, approbation, or sanction shall be made and given respectively by order of the said Court made in a summary way upon a motion or petition to be made or preferred in a summary way by or on behalf of any party interested. And it shall also be lawful for the said Court of Chancery in like manner from time to time to make such order touching the premises as the said Court shall think fit.

Saving clause.

10. Saving always to the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, her heirs and successors, and to all and every other person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, his, her, and their heirs, executors, administrators, successors, and assigns (other than and except the Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters, as such Trustees as aforesaid), and also all other persons whomsoever, having or lawfully claiming or who shall or may hereafter have or claim any estate, right, title, term, or interest whatsoever in, to, upon, out of, and concerning the Hall Buildings, garden, and premises, comprised in the said recited indenture of lease, or any part thereof, or of the rents and profits thereof, or any benefit whatsoever from the said Charity Estates, under or by virtue of the said recited Will of the said Thomas Howell, deceased, or of the said recited indenture of the thirty-first day of March, one thousand five hundred and forty-three, or the said recited Letters Patent of the fourth day of July, in the thirty-fifth year of the Reign of His Majesty King Henry the Eighth, or the will of the said William Dolphin, deceased, or any of the uses, trusts, limitations, declarations, covenants, or agreements therein respectively contained, or any decree or order of the said Court of Chancery, setting up the said charitable uses, trusts, and purposes aforesaid, or any of them, or otherwise howsoever, on account thereof, all such estate, right, title, interest, property, benefit, claim, and demand whatsoever of, into, or out of the said Hall Buildings, garden, and premises, comprised in the said recited indenture of lease, or any part thereof, or any of the rents or profits thereof, as they or any of them had before the passing of this Act, or would, could, or might have had or enjoyed in case this Act had not been passed.

Interpretation of Act.

11. And be it enacted, that in this Act the following words and expressions shall have the several meanings hereby assigned to them, unless there be something in the subject or context repugnant to such construction (that is to say):—

Number.

Words importing the singular number shall include the plural number, and words importing the plural number shall include the singular number.

Gender.

Words importing the masculine gender only shall include females.

Person.

The word "Person," or the word "Persons," shall include corporations whether aggregate or sole.

Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters.

The expression "the Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters" shall mean the Master and Wardens and Brethren and Sisters of the Guild or Fraternity of the Blessed Mary the Virgin of the Mystery of Drapers of the City of London.

Evidence Clause.

12. And be it Enacted, that this Act shall be printed by the several printers to the Queen's most Excellent Majesty duly authorised to print the Statutes of the United Kingdom, and a copy thereof so printed by any of them shall be admitted as evidence thereof by all Judges, Justices, and others.

THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL V. DRAPERS COMPANY.

(KENDRICK'S GIFT.)

SCHEME approved of by the Report of Sir WILLIAM HORNE, one of the Masters of the HIGH COURT OF CHANCERY, dated the 13th day of March 1847, and an Order dated the 17th day of April 1847, for the future administration of the Charity and distribution of the Income thereof.

SCHEME.

1. That the said Defendants shall, out of the said Rents, apply a sum yearly for ever, in the month of December, equal to twenty-four one-hundred parts thereof, in sums not exceeding five pounds for each person, towards the release of poor prisoners confined for debt in any of the prisons of the City of London, or if any such cannot be found therein, then in any of the prisons near thereto, at the discretion of the Master and Wardens of the said Defendants.

2. That the said Defendants shall also, out of the said Rents, pay a sum yearly for ever equal to twenty-five one-hundred parts thereof to the Curate or Minister of St. Margaret, Lothbury, in the City of London, provided that on every day on which an Epistle and Gospel are ordered by the Rubric to be read in the said church a full morning service with a sermon shall be performed in the said Church of St. Margaret, Lothbury. And the said Minister or Curate shall, out of the said twenty-five one-hundred parts hereby directed to be paid to one of them as aforesaid, pay one-fifth part thereof in equal proportions to the Clerk and Sexton of the said parish.

3. That the said Defendants shall also, out of the said Rents, pay a sum yearly for ever equal to eight one-hundred parts thereof to the poor of the said parish of St. Christopher; but if in any year there shall be no poor of the said parish of St. Christopher, then, and so often and as long as the same shall happen, the said eight one-hundred parts of the said Rents shall be distributed among and paid to the several other objects and persons and purposes herein mentioned, in the like proportions in which the other parts of the said Rents are herein directed to be paid and distributed to and among them.

4. That the said Defendants shall also, out of the said Rents, pay a sum yearly for ever equal to ten one-hundred parts thereof for the relief of the prisoners confined in the following prisons, in manner following: (that is to say), four one-hundred parts to prisoners confined in the prisons of the Compter, in the Poultry, and in Wood-street, or in any other prisons or prison which has been or hereafter may be substituted for such prisons, two one-hundred parts to prisoners in Newgate, or in any other prison which has been or may be substituted therefor; three one-hundred parts in equal moieties to prisoners in Ludgate and the Fleet, or wholly to prisoners in any prison which has been or may be substituted therefor, and one one-hundredth part to prisoners in Bethlem.

5. That the said Defendants shall, out of the said Rents, pay a sum yearly for ever equal to four one-hundred parts thereof to the following officers, viz., To the Clerk of the Drapers' Company one-half part of such sum, and to the Beadle and Upper Porter of the said Company the remaining half part of such sum; to the former, three-fourths of such half, and to the latter one-fourth thereof.

6. That the said Defendants shall, out of the said Rents, pay a sum equal to twenty-five one-hundred parts to and amongst poor religious men and women in the City of London, to some more and to some less as the said Wardens shall find their necessity and desert to be; provided always, that in making such distribution, poor Clothworkers and their Widows shall be first preferred, and next, the poor of the Drapers' Company.

7. That the said Defendants shall, out of the said Rents, pay a sum equal to four one-hundred parts thereof to the four Wardens of the said Company, in equal proportions, for their care and pains in carrying into effect the Trusts of the Will of the said John Kendrick according to the provisions of this Scheme.

THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL V. DRAPERS' COMPANY.

VICE-CHANCELLOR KINDERSLEY'S COURT.

RUSSELL'S CHARITY.

WALTER'S ALMSHOUSES.

SCHEME approved of by the Report of WILLIAM WINGFIELD, Esq., one of the Masters of the HIGH COURT OF CHANCERY, dated the 10th day of December 1845, for the future administration of Thomas Russell's Charity.

Lincoln's Inn, Monday, March 5th, 1860.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL V. THE DRAPERS' COMPANY.

JUDGMENT.

The Vice-Chancellor.—Mr. Glasse, I think I shall not trouble you; for considering the time that the matter has taken, it has given me the opportunity of considering it, and besides which I have had it before me in Chambers, and therefore it is not new to me, otherwise I should have taken the papers home to read through the whole. I have had the opportunity of doing so repeatedly; and therefore I shall not trouble you, except indeed upon the question whether you could make anything (it is not necessary to resort to it) of the recouping argument—the argument whether you are entitled to be recouped. It is not necessary if I decide in your favour.

Mr. Glasse.—No, because the other involves a recouping.

The Vice-Chancellor.—I am bound to say I do not agree with you in that, but it is not necessary to resort to that, because I am of opinion in favour of your argument, that is, of yourself and the other learned Counsel in the same interest, as to the exclusion of the poor of Hereford and the poor of the Drapers' Company to the benefit of the increased income of the property. That is the conclusion at which I have arrived, and I need hardly say it is a case by no means so clear that I can come to that conclusion without entertaining any doubt or hesitation on the subject; but upon the whole, after a great deal of consideration, that is the result at which I have arrived.

Before I express my opinion upon the subject I cannot refrain from expressing my satisfaction at the course which has been pursued by the solicitors for all parties. I mean with reference to this, that instead of merely producing those books and papers of the Drapers' Company, running over 200 years, and leaving the Counsel and the Court to pick out what they could, the solicitors have with great care and attention culled from these books all the entries and all the items which could bear on the subject, and have embodied them in admissions, thereby saving both to the Counsel and the Court a great deal of useless expenditure of time and trouble; and I wish to express my thanks to them for having taken that pains which has been a very useful thing in the administration of justice.

When I suggested to the parties in Chambers the expediency and propriety of examining those books of the Drapers' Company, I certainly entertained a strong hope that I should be able, upon the doubtful construction of this instrument, to derive some assistance from cotemporaneous usage, because undoubtedly it is a principle of this Court that in these old endowment deeds, if there be a fair and reasonable doubt on the construction of any part, the Court will assist itself in arriving at a conclusion by ascertaining what was the cotemporaneous usage; and if that cotemporaneous usage agrees with one construction contended for, and differs from the other, in case of doubt, the Court would give it in favour of that construction that accords with the cotemporaneous usage. That hope has been to a considerable extent disappointed, but not entirely. Unfortunately, the Fire of London having occurred just about 10 years after the death of this testator, who died in 1656, we have very little from which we can derive any assistance in respect of cotemporaneous usage.

Now I propose to consider in the first place the will itself, for the purpose of seeing what upon the will is the just construction to be put upon it; and then, having done that, I shall consider how far the usage derived from the accounts of the Drapers' Company assists me in coming to a conclusion as to the construction.

In the first place, the recitals of this will are very long. They represent that the testator, being a very pious and charitably disposed person, proceeded upon this footing: He considered what it would be right of that which God gave him to devote to his own family, and everything beyond that he determined to devote to pious and charitable uses generally. I am not speaking now with reference to these particular charities, but generally; and in speaking of that design and intention, and in speaking also of what he had already done, both abroad and at home, devoted property which he had acquired to pious and charitable uses, but of which the precise nature does not appear, nor is it material. In speaking of these matters he uses the word "stock." I mention this because the word "stock" in a subsequent part of the will appears to me

SCHEME.

1. That the Drapers' Company shall keep a separate account of the Property given by the Will of Thomas Russell for charitable purposes.

2. That there shall be allowed to the Clerk of the said Company for the time being, or other the Receiver of the Rents of the Charity Estate appointed by the said Company, for the care and management of the Charity Property, and the collection and distribution in manner herein-after mentioned of the rents and income of the said Charity, in lieu of the sums directed to be paid to the Renter-Warden and Beadle of the Company for that purpose, the sum of 20*l.* per annum.

3. That the number of Objects of the Charity shall be increased to Sixteen, and that the said Company shall apply and distribute the income of such trust Property, after such deduction as aforesaid, in equal proportions among such Sixteen Poor Members of the said Company as the said Company shall direct, in equal Quarterly Payments; but in case such Income shall be sufficient to pay more than 25*l.* a year to each of such Sixteen poor Members, in that case such surplus shall be distributed to such other poor Members of the said Company as the Master and Wardens of the said Company shall direct, so that each poor Member shall not receive more than 25*l.* a year; but with this proviso, nevertheless, that if, from any cause whatever, the income of the Charity shall decrease, so that the same will not be sufficient to pay the said Sixteen poor Members the said sum of 25*l.* each, the said Company shall be at liberty to reduce, rateably and proportionably, the amount of the said payments, until such time as the income shall again become sufficient, or until some of the existing Objects shall die, in which case the said Company shall abstain from nominating new objects until the income is sufficient.

4. That in case the income of the Charity Property shall increase, the said Company shall be at liberty to increase the number of the Objects and payments of 25*l.*, so far as such income will extend to pay the same.

5. That the Company shall obtain and preserve vouchers for all payments made by them, and shall annually make up an account of their receipts and payments, and audit the same at a Meeting of the Committee of a Court of the Company.

6. That this Scheme shall be Printed, and a copy given to each Member of the Court of the Company.

THE following PROPERTY is applicable to the TRUSTS of the FOREGOING SCHEME.

1. A Messuage or Tenement situate at or being No. 53, Tower Street, in the occupation of William Heddon Simpson, as lessee thereof, for the term of twenty-one years from Christmas 1843, at the yearly rent of 45*l.*, and subject to an agreement on the part of the said Tenant to lay out the sum of 100*l.*, at the least, in repairing of the said Messuage.

2. A Messuage or Tenement in Birchin Lane, in the occupation of the London Assurance Company, as lessees thereof, for terms of years which will expire at Michaelmas 1853, at the yearly rent of 370*l.*

3. A piece of Ground, attached and used as the Church-yard to the Parish Church of St. Edmund-the-King, and for which the yearly rent of 13*s.* 4*d.* is paid.

Also 1,672*l.* 6*s.*, Three per Cent. Stock, purchased with the residue of 1,880*l.* 8*s., found due by the Master's Report, after payment of the Costs of Suit.

* Settling and approving the Scheme; the costs of the suit were paid by the Company.

to be an extremely material word. When he is using it in the recitals he is using it in a totally different sense from that in which he uses it in the operative part of the instrument. When he is speaking of "stock" in the recital he is speaking of his general fortune and property. For example, in the first page he uses this expression: "I found that in the parishes of St. George in Southwark and St. Mary Newington, near there adjoining, there were many aged, weak, blind, lame, and distressed poor people, and in neither of those parishes any almshouses or comfortable dwellings for them, and but very small means to relieve them, and having by God's goodness a considerable stock or sum of money in my hands for the purpose aforesaid undisposed of, and being desirous," and so on; he is speaking of having in his own hands a stock or sum of money which he had the right to dedicate to any purpose he pleased. That was the description of his own surplus property, which according to his design he meant to dedicate to charitable uses. He mentions the word "stock" again in the recital in page 3. He says, "And so far did the Lord afford his blessing (in much mercy) upon my labours and endeavours by increasing the poor's means and stock as aforesaid." There is not at all speaking of these particular Charities or any stock belonging to these particular Charities, but he is speaking of his general property, which he chooses to call "the poor's means and stock," but he uses that expression with reference to this, as having in a previous part referred to his design. The whole scheme of his life seems to be, that when God has given me sufficient to provide for my family, everything I get beyond that, however large it may be, I consider to belong to the poor. Therefore he calls that which is the surplus beyond what is necessary to maintain himself and to provide for his family, he calls that "The poor's means and stock." There is this to be observed also with regard to the recitals, that the recitals nowhere mention or allude to the poor of Hereford or the poor of the Drapers' Company. If I am not mistaken, perhaps you will be kind enough to correct me if I have overlooked anything, but I think I am right in saying there is not the slightest allusion specifically to them. Undoubtedly after mentioning the poor who were to be in the almshouses at St. Mary, Newington, and the other parishes, he does mention in general terms other charitable uses, but he nowhere specifically mentions the poor of Hereford or the poor of the Drapers' Company in the recitals, whereas the recitals are devoted (and those recitals occupy three pages) almost entirely to an indication of his object and intention with regard to those almshouses. There is what I may call a somewhat tedious description of all he had done and succeeded in doing and intended to do, showing, I think, this fact, not that he had in contemplation, when he was penning these recitals, the poor of Hereford and the poor of the Drapers' Company, but the main object of his mind, what was occupying his mind and attention at the time was, or rather were, the two almshouses, and the poor who were to occupy those almshouses and conferring benefit upon them.

Well, having finished the recitals, which he terminates in this way in the passage which I read with regard to the word "stock," which ends thus, "As well for the relief and comfort of the said poor almspeople in the said several almshouses or hospitals as for other charitable uses as herein-after is mentioned," then he goes on, "And to that end and purpose I the said John Walter," and so on; he proceeds then to devise certain houses, which, of course, I assume to be freehold houses,—freeholds undoubtedly,—to the Corporation of the Drapers' Company and their successors upon the trusts afterwards mentioned.

The first trust is, that all the rents, issues, and profits of all the messuages, tenements, and premises shall be forever received, paid out, and disposed of by the Master, Wardens, Brethren, and Sisters of the Drapers' Company, that is, by the Corporation, "and in such manner and for and about the charitable uses, intents, and purposes as are hereafter mentioned or expressed, that is to say;" then comes the direction as to the application of the rents and profits. The first is 64*l.* a year for the benefit of 16 poor in one of the almshouses in one of the parishes, and 64*l.* a year for the 16 poor in the almshouses of the other parish. Those are the main provisions for the poor people in the almshouses. Besides those provisions there follow a number of provisions, that is, particular payments, which are directed to be made, all of them, I think I may say, though not directly, indirectly connected with purposes for the benefit of the poor in the almshouses. The only doubt, I think, that can be entertained would relate to the two beadies of the Drapers' Company, who are to have between them 13*s.*, that is 6*s.* 6*d.* apiece; and there is nothing to show that any functions to be performed by the beadies of the Company would tend to the benefit of the poor in the almshouses. But I think it is evident that the beadies were to have that small provision because of the imposing this trust on the Corporation; and certain members of the Corporation being the persons who were to act as Governors, one to act as a renter, and so on, some trouble would be imposed on the beadies by reason of that trust, I think I may say that all the trusts which precede the abatement clause are trusts which either directly or indirectly have regard to the benefit of the almspeople in those two almshouses. I think that is the conclusion to be derived from the descriptions, and the directions as to what is to be done. I may take for example, as a specimen, the first that follows the two gifts of 64*l.* and more, to pay 40*s.* a year, namely 20*s.* thereof to one of the almsmen in the hospital or almshouse at St. George, and 20*s.* to one of the almsmen at the hospital or almshouse at Newington, each being a man of good government and understanding, and the same to be paid to each of them by twenty pence a month, with as an increase of his said pension of 6*s.* 8*d.* for each of their pains and care looking to the rest of the poor, and to read carefully and conscionably morning and evening prayer, and praying with the rest of the poor, and so on. That applies more or less to every instance in which he gives a particular sum of money or directs a particular sum of money to be paid to any of these different functionaries. Then comes, after all, those gifts or directions for payment, the abatement clause, which is in page 8.

But, before I come to that, I must consider what the testator seems to have had in mind when in this clause he is giving directions with reference to what he calls "stock," or "stock in hand." What does he mean by that? Now, the testator, I think I must assume, knew that he was not giving away in these particular directions for payment the whole of the income arising from this property. In fact, the first year after his death, after making all the payments directed, there was a surplus of 35*l.* a year and a fraction. It was not, as in some cases that have occurred, where a testator intimating that the rents derived from a property which he gives to a charity amount to so much, he gives 5*l.* to one, 10*l.* to another, and 3*l.* to another, and so on, those sums amounting in the aggregate to exactly the amount of the rents received, in which case, in ordinary circumstances, of course, there is an apportionment in case of an increase, or in case of a deficiency. But I think I must assume that he knew there would be a surplus, and not an inconsiderable surplus, considering the income of the property. The income of the property in the year after his death was, I think, 213*l.*; the expenditure of that was 178*l.*, leaving, as I have said, a surplus of 35*l.* and a fraction. After giving the two sums of 64*l.* each for the benefit of the almspeople in the two almshouses, and the 20*s.* a year a piece to the persons, I do not know what he calls them, who were to pray with the almspeople, he proceeds thus:—"And my desire and appointment is that such honest and godly poor as happen to be sick, extremely aged, blind, or bed-ridden, and cannot work, but by want like to perish, shall, in the time of their necessities, and to avoid extremities, be relieved, as their necessities may require, at the discretion of the said Governor and pay master, out of some part of those monies which shall happen to be in stock for the said poor."

Now on that clause, before this particular question before me was brought forward a prior question arose on that clause, which was this, whether those sick and bed-ridden poor and so on, whether the poor there described were meant to be the poor in the almshouses or the poor of the parish generally, or the general poor of the whole town, or of the whole world. I have come to the conclusion that it only meant such of them as were in the almshouses; that he meant that among those in the almshouses there might be some able to work or help to gain their own livelihood, but there might be others absolutely incapable or more or less incapable, and I came to the conclusion that it meant those; and thus far the search through the books has been satisfactory, for it appears that the contemporaneous usage, that is the usage for the first 10 years after the testator's death until the Fire of London happened, which prevented there being any surplus at all, it appears that that was acted on and expressed to be acted on in the books in accordance with the directions in the will. Therefore I have no doubt that I was right in coming to the conclusion on the mere construction that it meant the poor in the almshouses.

Well, but then comes this question: It has been suggested, and very ingeniously argued, though I confess I cannot concur in the argument, that this imported no more than a power to do this: that whereas the testator has directed these sums of 64*l.* a year for the benefit of the almspeople in each almshouse to be divided among each of the 16 poor people, which would give 4*l.* each per annum, and then the mode of paying that 4*l.* per year by 6*s.* 8*d.* a month, which would in one year amount to 4*l.* It has been suggested that it was not meant to do more than this by this clause, but the Drapers' Company or the Governor and paymaster might anticipate any month's payment; that is, supposing on the 1st of March one of the poor has received his 6*s.* 8*d.*, if, in the middle of March, he should be in one of these unfortunate predicaments described in this language, there is only the power to advance the 6*s.* 8*d.* which otherwise would not be payable until the 1st of April following; no power to supply the deficiency which might then be left on the 1st of April. Now I confess I cannot concur in that contention. It appears to me clear that what was intended was, that over and above and in addition to that 4*l.* a year, that is, the 6*s.* 8*d.* per month, which each almsman was to be entitled to, the Governor and paymaster might, at their discretion, give to persons in the predicaments described some aid, some provision, to prevent their being in a state of destitution, and, according to the language of the testator, "by want like to perish." And it will be observed that the different conditions of the people here described are conditions which, as to some of them at all events must be permanent conditions. "Sick" may not necessarily be permanent, but "extreme aged" must be not only permanent, but constantly increasing. No doubt a blind man, that is one who is partially blind, may to a certain extent recover his sight, but when you come to the word "bed-ridden" the word "bed-ridden" applies to a person who is confined in perpetuity to his bed, some old or infirm person who is confined to his bed, and whose constant, at least his normal, condition is, remaining in bed because he cannot get out of it, incapable perhaps even of sitting up in a chair. That is a permanent condition, and no doubt a person in that condition would be likely to perish from want if he had only 4*l.* a year to provide for him. Therefore, it would be a mockery to say, you have power to advance the 6*s.* 8*d.* which would be payable on the 1st of April, you have power to advance that in the middle of March, but when you come to the 1st of April you must not pay him 6*s.* 8*d.* again then, or, if you do, it must only be by advance of that which would be payable on the 1st of May, so that the time would come, at the time of the year, perhaps it might be two or three months, when this poor, bed-ridden person, or this extremely aged person, might be in the very state of perishing from want which is the very object of the testator to provide against. I think the language is sufficient to show that that is the intention: "My desire and appointment is that such honest and godly poor as shall happen to be sick, extreme aged, blind, or bed-ridden, and cannot walk, and by want like to perish, shall at the time of such their necessities, and to avoid extremities, be relieved as their necessities may require at the discretion of the Governor." I think it is clear that that was the intention; that is, that this authorised an additional gift at the discretion of the Governor and paymaster, an additional gift to those whose necessities require it.

We now come to what I think is the most material part of the case, the use of the word "stock" in this passage to which I have just referred, and in some of the subsequent passages. Out of what is that extra provision to be made for these sick, aged, blind, or bed-ridden persons? Out of what fund or out of what monies? According to the express language of the clause, it is out of sums part of those monies which shall happen to be in stock for the said poor. One thing is clear, that the testator in penning those words contemplated something would be in stock for the said poor, which I understand to mean the said poor or any poor in the almshouses. What was that stock to be? He has nowhere in terms prescribed the forming any stock, but he has assumed that in carrying out the directions here given there will be a stock for the said poor, for the poor in the almshouses; and it is out of that stock that this extra provision is to be made from time to time, at the discretion of these persons, for the benefit of the sick, aged, blind, or bed-ridden persons in the almshouses.

But that is not the only part of the will in which we have reference to the existence of such a stock as I have mentioned, because in page 6, which follows what I have just been referring to in page 5, we have this. This is the last of those gifts which precede the abatement clause; and how is that gift made? "And as there is an order and commendable custom in the Company, several times in the year to visit their almshouses and poor therein,"—their almshouses, not speaking of these almshouses, but of the almshouses of the Drapers' Company,—"though to their charge, which much tends to their own honor and to the poor's comfort, so my desire is that the wardens for the "time being will be pleased twice in the year yearly, once in one of the months of September or October and the other time in April or May, to spend half a day at each time, to go to their several hospitals or almshouses at St. George's and Newington parishes, as they may spend the other half part of the day after dinner in London in viewing other of the Companies almshouses elsewhere." Now we come to the passage in question, "And my desire is that they will be pleased to accept of the sum of 20*s.* of the poor's monies or stock towards their expenses for each day in their said viewing; and that the Governors and paymaster will be pleased to cause the churchwardens of each of those parishes," and so on. Then there is a ceremony to be gone through, which I need not read through in detail. It is with reference to the premises, that is the almshouses, being examined with a view to seeing if they are kept by the parishes in a proper state of reparation. So there, again, the testator considered that there is a certain stock existing for the benefit of the poor. He calls it "the poor's money's or stock." Before he had defined it to be "monies which should happen to be in stock for the said poor." Now he clearly means the same thing in both passages. And I consider that this second clause, which contains the words "poor's monies or stock," means the same thing as what he had before described as "moneys happening to be in stock for the said poor," and some stock which he contemplated the existence of for the benefit of the poor in the almshouses.

We then come to the abatement clause. The abatement clause follows after those gifts, those annual payments or pensions, or whatever they may be called, which I consider either directly or indirectly intended for the benefit of the poor people in the almshouses; and the clause precedes the gifts which are now in question, namely, the gift of 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* to the poor of the Drapers' Company, and the 20*l.* to the poor of Hereford. I think there can be no doubt, and I do not think there has been any contention raised to the contrary, that the effect of this is, that inasmuch as the language of the abatement clause refers only in express terms to an abatement of all the said pensions and payments aforesaid, the effect is that if there be a deficiency there should be an abatement of those trusts, that is of those annual payments which precede this clause, and that the clause is not to apply to those annual payments which follow the clause. That is the express language of the clause: "My will and desire is, that if by any casualty of fire or otherwise (as God defend), the receipts shall come short to make satisfaction of all the said pensions and payments aforesaid appointed to be made, as I trust it will not," that is, of course, preceding this clause; and then comes this very important passage, "and that no such stock shall be left to supply the want,"—observe "to supply the want." What want? The want of funds to supply the prior gifts, that is those gifts which are all, as I think, directly or indirectly, for the benefit of the almspeople. "That no stock shall be left to supply the want (to the end the Company may have no loss), an abatement be made of every pension or payment pro rata according to the sum in the proportion so wanting in payment, which said abatement my desire is may be only in a time of extremity and to have no longer continuance than such necessity shall require." Here we have mention again of "stock," so that in these three passages the testator is clearly contemplating by some means or other—he has not pointed out or defined how it is to arise, but he has contemplated in these three passages the existence of a stock, a stock for the said poor, a stock out of which the sick and blind and bed-ridden of the almspeople shall have additional payments made to them to provide for their necessities; a stock out of which the two wardens (I think they are the gentlemen who are requested to go and visit the almshouses) are requested to receive or to retain 10 shillings a piece for each day, four times 10 shillings, 2*l.*, and out of this same stock any want that may happen for the purpose of making the payments which are directed preceding this clause is to be supplied out of this stock. I do not think that there can be any doubt that the testator contemplated the existence of a stock for the benefit of the poor in the almshouses. Then how was this to arise? He has not told us in express terms, but I think he has told us in terms; that is to say, looking to the whole will together, I think we find what this stock was to be. As I have already observed, the testator knew very well that these annual payments which he specifically directs, including the annual payments to the poor of Hereford and the poor of the Drapers' Company, would not exhaust the whole annual income, and then he contemplates the existence of a stock. That stock then must have arisen from the surplus income; and I think that the conclusion must be that what the testator intended was this, that after making all the payments which he prescribes to be made, there was to remain a certain stock, that is, that the surplus income was to constitute the fund or stock, as he calls it, out of which certain things were to be done; and he has not prescribed what else is to be done if there should be more than enough for the purposes specifically pointed out. Then does he show for whose benefit that stock was to exist? It appears to me that he does. He expressly calls it monies happening to be in stock for the said poor. I think under those circumstances I must come to the conclusion, although I admit it is not at all a clear matter, I think upon the mere construction I must come to the conclusion that the testator contemplated that the surplus income of this property, as long as there was a surplus, should be retained in hand for the benefit of the poor in the almshouses, and he has to a certain extent pointed out certain applications which would be clearly for the benefit of the poor in the almshouses, and for no other purpose.

It has been contended or suggested that, inasmuch as the testator did not mean that there should be, in case of a deficiency, an abatement of the annual payments to the poor of the Drapers' Company and the poor of Hereford, that that alone is an indication of the testator's intention that as they were not to abate so they were not to increase. I cannot say, I confess, that if it stood merely upon that I could come to such a conclusion, because I do not see why, if the testator directs that a certain charitable object should never abate, I am to consider that that was not a charitable object which he rather preferred. When he directs that it shall not abate, but that the others shall abate, that rather indicates a preference for that which is not to be abated; and therefore if it stood merely upon that, I certainly could not come to the conclusion that the direction that they should not abate, or rather the absence of a direction that they should abate, which is tantamount to it,—I could not come to the conclusion that that would be at all a strong argument in favour of their not taking any benefit. But, however, one thing is clear, that if the testator intended, as I think I must assume that he intended, that the stock, which I consider to be the surplus of the income from time to time, was to be for the benefit of the poor in the almshouses,—I think that the absence of his directing that that gift to the poor both of the Drapers' Company and of Hereford should abate is, to a certain extent, not at all a conclusive reason for but consistent with the conclusion that he considered those payments which were not to abate as specific invariable payments, and that, as they were not to abate, they were not to increase. I say it is consistent with that; I do not think it is more than that. I do not think it is a sufficient argument per se against there being an increase although there was to be no abatement. But taking it in connection with what I have already observed upon, that there is the existence of this stock which he must have meant to provide for and which could only be provided for in the way I have mentioned, taking it in connection, it appears to me the whole is quite consistent.

Then the only thing that remains to be considered is whether the cotemporaneous usage throws any degree of light at all upon this. I think it does throw a slight degree of light upon it. In the first year after the testator's death there was a surplus of 35*l*. I do not think it appears from these admissions what was the surplus in every succeeding year preceding the Fire of London, but there can be no reason to doubt that it must have been something about the same thing. I suppose we must assume that when the Fire of London occurred 10 years after the testator's death, the trustees, that is the Drapers' Company, had got in hand a stock which could not have been less than 300*l*. or 350*l*. If it was 35*l*. surplus each year, as it was the first year, it would, of course, be 350*l*. Then out of that we must deduct these payments which appear to have been made to these sick and bed-ridden, which, I think, very seldom exceeded 25*s*., if they amounted to that, in the course of the year. Therefore, at least 300*l*., I think, must have been stock in hand when the Fire of London occurred. In those 10 years what did they do? They kept it as a stock. That cotemporaneous usage confirms the view I take on the construction, thus far at least, that the cotemporaneous usage was to treat that stock as being the stock arising from the surplus income. Well, the stock arising from the surplus income was treated by the trustees, that is, treated by the Drapers' Company, as being the stock which is three times over, at least, spoken of in the course of the will; and if I recollect the language of the entries describing the payments to these sick and poor, we have reference or mention of its being done in pursuance or according to the directions of the testator's will. Now the first of these is this:—"Paid " and given to several of the poor in the almshouses, " according to the Founder's appointment, being found to " be sick and in want, as followeth, viz., 1st February," and so on, mentioning the various amounts, amounting in the year to 6*s*. 10*d*., a very small sum; but they keep the rest as a stock, and so they seem to have done continuously until the Fire of London happening there was no longer any surplus at all; and I think we may assume (although nothing appears with respect to it) that the stock which they had then in hand, which could not have been less than 300*l*., was applied to make good, from time to time, the deficiency in the subsequent years so long as it lasted. I do not rest upon that, because I do not find it stated in the admissions that that was the fact. Therefore, I say we have a certain degree of assistance, not so much as I had hoped for, from the investigation of the books upon this question, namely, we have this, that according to cotemporaneous usage the surplus income was treated as that which was to constitute the stock or fund mentioned in the testator's will. Then we find from the testator's will that the stock is a stock which he describes as being monies in stock for the said poor, which I hold to mean the poor of the almshouses. If, according to cotemporaneous usage, that is, if according to the views of those persons who, coming immediately after the testator, would be most likely to have been cognisant of his views and intentions, if they had considered that any surplus was to be divided among all the objects of the Charity, that is, among the almspeople in the almshouses, and those objects which I consider merely ancillary to the Almspeople on the one hand and the Drapers' Company's poor and the Hereford poor on the other; if they had contemplated that the testator meant that in case of any surplus, any accretion of the funds, they should all benefit, I think they would have divided it among them. I think that when they have got so considerable a sum, and it was no doubt a very considerable sum in those days, for we must not regard 300*l*. then as we regard 300*l*. now; it was a very considerable sum in those days,—I think that the Hereford poor, and the Drapers' Company at all events for their poor, would have said, Our view of the testator's intention is that this surplus must be divided, at all events some of it; keep if you please some pound or two to meet the sick poor in the almshouses, keep that if you please, it has never cost you so much as 25*s*. a year,—if I recollect the sum accurately,—keep 2*l*. or 3*l*. as a fund in hand, but let us have the residue. I think the Drapers' Company would have been justified in saying that if they had had the least idea that that was the intention; but they do not seem to have understood that that was the intention, and therefore, I think I have derived some degree of assistance, I do not say any very great assistance, but some light also, from the cotemporaneous usage.

Upon the whole, both upon the construction, if I had nothing but the construction of the will, but also assisting myself in arriving at that construction by what little light we get from the books showing cotemporaneous usage, my opinion is that now that the property of the Charity has increased the only objects who are to benefit by that are the almspeople in the two almshouses, but with this also, that with regard to all those objects which I consider merely ancillary, the payment of 2*l*. to one functionary and 6*s*. to another, and so on, in the course of the scheme, if I see fit for the benefit of the almspeople, I shall increase them; but it is not that they have a right to say, We shall be increased in proportion to what the almspeople get. They were not the objects of charity in the smallest degree.

Mr. Glasse.—All we shall ask your Honour to decide is as to the city of Hereford and the Drapers' Company not being entitled.

The Vice-Chancellor.—That is all I mean to decide.

Mr. Glasse.—I suppose Your Honour will put this right among your clerks; it is a mere matter of form. What is sent to be inquired into is, how according to the construction of Ann Mill's deed of gift, Richard Mill's deed of gift, the will of Walter Mills, and a grant of Robert Render, in the pleadings respectively mentioned, the respective incomes of their property are to be disposed of. Your Honour has not heard a word of it.

The Vice-Chancellor.—I have not heard of that in Chambers.

Mr. Glasse.—No; I apprehend there will be no dispute about it. That deed of Ann Mills is appended to the admissions. You need not trouble yourself with it, for it is so perfectly clear. I apprehend that nobody will raise a contention. Ann Mill's gift, it is perfectly plain, is for the benefit of the two parishes of St. George and Newington; Richard Mill's is exactly the same. They followed the Founder, and they intended to provide for them, but said nothing about Hereford. Walter Mills, who was the grandson, made a deed of gift, in which he gives equally so much apiece to the inhabitants of those two almshouses and the parish of Shoreditch. The will of Walter Mills is upon this special trust. He gives them 350*l.* capital stock, or so much money as will purchase the same, "upon this special trust that they distribute and pay or cause to be paid out of the dividends, increase, or produce thereof, the sum of 5*s.* apiece to the poor people inhabiting the several almshouses in the parishes of St. George, Newington and Shoreditch, which were formerly founded by my grandfather and grandmother, Mr. John and Mrs. Alice Walter; the said 5*s.* to be paid to each of the said poor some time near Christmas in every year." I take it the recipients of that bounty are those persons only who are there named the parish of St. George Newington and the parish of Shoreditch. Therefore that will be your Honour's direction to the chief clerk. Then Robert Render is the parish of Newington only. I do not apprehend that anybody raises any question on that.

Mr. G. L. Russell.—The costs of all parties will be paid out of the fund?

The Vice-Chancellor.—This is merely an adjourned summons; they will be all dealt with in Chambers.

Mr. Speed.—There was a petition presented by Mr. Crafter, the present solicitor for the parish of St. George Southwark, for the purpose of having delivered up to him certain papers in this matter which are in the possession of a gentleman named Rayson. They were formerly in the possession of the solicitor of the parish. He died in insolvent circumstances, and no one would administer to his estate or prove his will. Under those circumstances his managing clerk has retained in his possession certain deeds and papers, and they are deeds and papers in the suit. Mr. Crafter, on behalf of the parish, is very desirous of obtaining those papers from Mr. Rayson. He made several applications. Mr. Rayson did not feel himself justified in handing them over without the order of the Court, there being no representative of his former employer. Thereupon a petition was presented that Mr. Rayson might hand them over, without prejudice to Mr. Tritton's heir. I appear for Mr. Rayson, and I have no objection that the papers shall be delivered upon payment of a sum for the costs of our appearance; the papers to be held by Mr. Crafter without prejudice to Mr. Tritton's heir, Mr. Crafter undertaking to deal with those papers as the Court shall direct.

The Vice-Chancellor.—I think when the matter was mentioned a day or two ago, it appeared that the Lord Chancellor had ordered it to come on with the cause, but I suppose that does not prevent your making an arrangement.

Mr. Speed.—The meaning of it was that it was to come on with the adjourned summons. If we take it by consent, I apprehend your Honour can make the order.

The Vice-Chancellor.—If you agree in that, I think, notwithstanding the Lord Chancellor's direction, I may authorise it.

FISHMONGERS' COMPANY.

TO THE CHARITY COMMISSIONERS FOR
ENGLAND AND WALES.

In pursuance of a minute of the Board of the 13th day of November 1860 I have inquired into the condition and circumstances of the charities under the management of the Company of Fishmongers of the City of London, and I have stated in the report, under the head of each specific endowment, the result of my investigation.

The Fishmongers' Company is composed of—

The prime warden ;

Five wardens, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th, and 6th; and the court of assistants, consisting of 28 members, exclusive of the six wardens.

The prime warden vacates his office annually, and is elected from the court of assistants. The other wardens are also chosen from the court of assistants. All are elected for two years as wardens. The prime warden is elected to be the prime for the first year, and to be the second warden for the second year. The fifth warden also holds the office of renter-warden for the first of the two years, the sixth warden as renter-warden for the second of the two years. On vacancies in the court of assistants the number is filled up by the court from election out of the liverymen. Freemen are nominated by members of the court for the livery on application. The freedom is obtained by patrimony, by servitude, and by purchase. Patrimony requires the parent to be free at the birth of the child. Servitude is seven years' apprenticeship to a freeman. The sum fixed for purchase is 105*l.*, besides the fees; the exact amount, including the stamp of 3*l.*, is 112*l.* 7*s.* 10*d.*

The livery, including the court of assistants, amounts to about 370 or 380, not having increased or diminished considerably for 20 years past. The fine for the livery is 3*l.* 15*s.*

The freemen and freewomen are more numerous, but the Company have no means of accurately knowing their number. On application they produce the certificate of the father and mother's marriage, of their birth and baptism, and two persons attend before the court to vouch for their identity by repute; in case of servitude the master attends and states that the apprentice has duly and truly served him for the seven years, according to the custom of the City of London. The apprentices are previously bound by indentures made out at the hall of the Company. The fee for taking up the freedom is 1*l.* 12*s.* 4*d.*, including stamp.

The title of the Company is, "The Wardens and Commonalty of the Mistery of Fishmongers of the City of London."

ALLEN'S CHARITY.

Edward Allen, by his will of the 16th August 1624, gave to the Company 66*l*. 13*s*. 4*d*., to be lent to two young men, each paying at the expiration of every three years 6*s*. 8*d*. for the two headles of the said Company.

The fund is in the Trust Loan Fund, and is administered under that scheme. The assigned dividend is paid to the beadies. (See, for the Trust Loan Fund, Cecilia Long's Charity.)

ALLOTT'S CHARITY.

Sir John Allott by his will, 17th July 1588, bequeathed to the Company 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, to be lent to four freemen trading in fish, not of the livery, the said four men yearly to provide three loads of charcoal amongst the poor inhabitants of Bread Street Ward.

The sum of 133*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* forms part of the "Trust Loan" account (see Cecilia Long's Charity). The sum of 4*l.* 10*s.* a year is paid by the Company to the deputy of Bread Street Ward, who divides the money among the alderman and common councilmen of the ward for distribution to the poor.

LADY ALLOTT'S CHARITY.

Lady Ann Allott, by her will (date unknown), bequeathed to the Company 100*l.*, to be lent to two freemen of the Company trading in fish, and paying 4*l.* yearly for the same, viz. :—

To the almspeople at Croydon	-	-	£	3
Towards repairing the church of Sanderstead, Surrey	-	-	-	1

The 100*l.* is included in the "Trust Loan Account." (See Cecilia Long's Charity.)

The sum of 1*l.* is paid to the churchwardens of Sanderstead, and the 3*l.* to nine poor people dwelling in the lesser almshouses at Croydon, in sums of 6*s.* 8*d.* each. This payment is made personally by the clerk of the Company.

ASHTON OR ASTON'S CHARITY.

John Aston, by will dated the 2nd July 1436, gave premises in the suburbs of London, which appear by a document in the Record Office, Guildhall, to have been three messuages and gardens in St. Andrew, Holborn, three messuages and one garden in St. Sepulchre without Newgate, and four messuages and one garden in St. Botolph without Aldgate. It appears by deeds in the Company's possession that the property in St. Botolph and St. Sepulchre was sold in 1551. The property which the Company consider now to belong to the trust (whether owing to any exchange or other transaction is not explained) consists of No. 129, Aldersgate Street, and Nos. 1 and 2, Bowman's Buildings, behind the last-mentioned premises. The will directed that the wardens and commonalty and their successors, after that all the said lands and tenements should have come to their hands, annually and for ever, solemnly to celebrate the testator's obit with note and ringing of bells in the said church of St. Sepulchre. By a deed of the 20th August 1447 the wardens of the Fishmongers' Company granted and agreed that the vicar and churchwardens of the said church of St. Sepulchre for the time being should annually, on the conditions therein mentioned, retain in their own hands, for the use and profit of the parishioners of the church aforesaid, 10*s.* for the fabric of the same church; also, the said vicar and his successors annually shall retain 3*s.* thereof in their possession, namely, 4*d.* for himself, being present at the exequies aforesaid and for saying the mass aforesaid himself or by some other chaplain; also, for recommending of the souls aforesaid, amongst others of deceased persons, every Lord's day, as is the custom of himself or some other chaplain, 2*s.* 8*d.*; but to distribute the same 2*s.* 8*d.* annually in alms to the poor of the said parish church aforesaid every year in which the said vicar shall abstain himself from the recommendation aforesaid.

The sum of 13*s.* 4*d.* a year is paid to the collector for the churchwardens of St. Sepulchre yearly.

A'WOOD'S CHARITY.

John A'Wood devised to the Company, by his will of the 2nd December 1524, two messuages in St. Martin Orgar's parish, to distribute yearly 20*s.* in coal to poor men and women of the Company, and the rest of the said coals (the word in the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry is "the remainder," which was open to the ambiguity of referring either to the remainder of the coals or the remainder of the whole estate), to the poor inhabitants of St. Michael, Crooked Lane, and St. Martin Orgar; also, to the poor of St. Michael, Crooked Lane, in money 3*s.* 4*d.* The estate charged is the property of the Company. It is considered to consist of houses Nos. 134 and 135, Upper Thames Street.

The 20*s.* a year is given away in money to poor freemen and women dwelling in the city. There are eight recipients of the charity. The selection is made by the beadle.

The 3*s.* 4*d.* a year is paid to the churchwardens of St. Michael, Crooked Lane. The Company credit the charity with an annual rentcharge of 30*s.*, and discharge themselves by the above payments and by 6*s.* 8*d.* towards an entertainment to which, under the will, the administrators of the charity are entitled.

BACON'S GIFT.

Alderman James Bacon, by his will of the 22nd April 1573, bequeathed to the Company 10*l.*, to be lent to two freemen, not being of the livery, to provide yearly two cartloads of coal to be distributed amongst the poorest of the Company.

This forms a portion of the Trust Loan Account, and the capital is administered accordingly. (See Cecilia Long's Charity.)

The sum of 3*l.* a year in respect of interest is paid to the "half-yearly poor." (See Trumball's Gift.)

BISHOP BARLOW'S CHARITY.

William Barlow, Bishop of Lincoln, by his will of about the year 1690, gave to the Fishmongers' Company 100*l.*, to be lent to four young men of the Company, paying 3*l.* amongst them, to be distributed as follows :—

For a sermon in Croydon church	-	-	£	s.	d.
For a dinner to the poor of Whitgift's hospital	-	-	0	13	4
To the common box of the hospital	-	-	0	13	4
To the vicar of Croydon, for giving notice of the sermon	-	-	0	10	0
To one of the Company sent to see those things performed	-	-	0	3	4
To four poor old men or women in Fishmongers' Hall	-	-	0	6	8
The fund is part of the "Loan Trust Fund."	-	-	0	13	4

(See Cecilia Long's Charity.)

The Company subscribe, as is stated in the Commissioners' Report, page 126, 2*l.* to the amount of 3*l.*; it is paid on the 22nd March, yearly, at the same time that Sir John and Lady Allott's gifts are, and the clerk of the Company, or some person under his direction, goes to Croydon, previously having given notice through the vicar of Croydon on the Sunday preceding the 22nd March that the annual sum will be given on that day. On the 22nd March, whether it be a Sunday or any other day, the clerk, or some person deputed by him, goes there, hears the sermon, and, after giving the amount of Sir John and Lady Allott's gifts to the Lesser Almshouses, he then proceeds to Archbishop Whitgift's Hospital, and presents the gifts there directed, namely, 13*s.* 4*d.* for a dinner to the brethren and sisters, and 10*s.* to the poor box, the Company adding 2*l.* to the dinner. Then the 13*s.* 4*d.* is paid to the preacher for preaching the sermon in Croydon church, and 3*s.* 4*d.* for his giving notice. Then 6*s.* 8*d.* is paid to the clerk of the Company or his representative, and 13*s.* 4*d.* is distributed among four old men or women; so that that makes up the 3*l.*, exclusive of the 2*l.* which the Company give.

BASDEN'S CHARITY.

Mrs. Basden gave to the Company 20*l.*, to be lent out to a young man for the term of two years. This is in the "Loan Trust Fund." No interest is considered to be chargeable, and none is credited. (See Cecilia Long's Charity.)

BASKERVILLE'S CHARITY.

Randolph Baskerville, by his will 20th February 1653, gave to the Company 200*l.*, to be lent out at 4*l.* 10*s.* per cent., and the interest paid as follows :—

To St. Peter's Hospital	-	-	£	s.	d.
To Jesus Hospital	-	-	4	0	0
To the Company's clerk	-	-	4	0	0
To the beadle	-	-	0	10	0
To the beadle	-	-	0	10	0

The fund is part of the "Loan Trust Account." (See Cecilia Long's Charity.)

The sum of 4*l.* is carried to the credit of St. Peter's Hospital, 4*l.* to the hospital at Bray, and two sums of 10*s.* each to the officers of the Company.

BLUNDELL'S CHARITY.

Peter Blundell, by his will dated the 9th June 1599, bequeathed to the Company 150*l.*, to purchase lands and hereditaments to pay thereout 40*s.* yearly to the poor prisoners in the Compter, and the residue to the wardens.

It appears that at an early period, probably in or about the beginning of the 17th century, the sum of 100*l.* was laid out in the purchase of two small houses in Black Raven Alley, Upper Thames Street, and the expense of the conveyance amounted to a further sum of about 10*l.* The Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry stating that no premises were purchased with these trust moneys is, therefore, inaccurate. At the time of the inquiry of the Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer into the prison charities the statement was corrected.

The investment, however, is unimportant, as the charge is a fixed sum of 40*s.*

The payment is made to Mr. Temple, an officer of the Guildhall, by whom the prison gifts in the city are received.

BROMESGRAVE'S CHARITY.

Ann Bromesgrave, by her will of 12th October 1631, gave the Company 100 marks, to be lent to two freemen of the Company, wet fishmongers, at 50s. a year:—

To the poor of St. Nicholas, Cole Abbey	- 20s.
To the poor of St. Peter's Hospital	- 20s.
To the minister of the hospital	- 5s.
To the officers of the Company	- 5s.

The sum of 66*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, representing 100 marks, is included in the "Loan Trust Account." (See Cecilia Long's Gift.)

The 20*s.* a year is paid to the churchwardens of St. Nicholas, Cole Abbey. 1*l.* forms part of the Christmas gifts to the almspeople in St. Peter's Hospital; 5*s.* is paid to the chaplain, distinct from his salary; and 5*s.* to the clerk and beadle of the Company.

CARTER'S CHARITY.

John Carter gave to the Fishmongers' Company 20*l.*, to be lent out to a young man for the term of two years. No interest is chargeable by any original direction, and none is credited. It is part of the "Loan Trust Fund." (See Cecilia Long's Charity.)

CARTER'S CHARITY.

Robert Carter devised by his will of the 8th November 1563 a tenement in Thames Street, after the termination of two life estates, to the Company to pay,—

	£	s.	d.
To a poor scholar at St. John's College, Cambridge, not having 4 l. a year by exhibitions, or any other ways or means	-	4	0 0
Poor children of Christ's Hospital	-	2	0 0 and the residue to the Company.

The Company on any vacancy of the exhibition address a letter to the Master of St. John's College, Cambridge, stating the terms of the bequest, and requiring to know if any student in the College comes within the description.

The appointment of the scholar is made upon the certificate of the Master.

One of such certificates has been laid before me, and is in the following terms:—

"This is to certify that A.B. entered this College on the day of , and has since conducted himself to my satisfaction, and to the best of my belief has no public exhibition or private income whatever."

(Signed by the Master of the College, a tutor, and junior dean.)

The 4*l.* a year is at present full, and has been so continuously.

The sum of 40*s.* a year is paid by the Company to Christ's Hospital.

The Company were the owners of the estate on which the charge was imposed. It was sold under the London Bridge Acts. The property was valued, without deducting the 6*l.* a year, and it still remains a charge on the purchase money.

CAWNTÉ'S CHARITY.

Edward Cawnte, by his will of the 12th October 1591, gave to the said Company 20*l.*, to be lent to young men of the Company. No interest is required to be made on this gift, and none is charged. (See Cecilia Long's Charity.)

CLEATER'S CHARITY.

Paul Cleater gave the Company 150*l.*, of which 25*l.* was after his decease to be kept to be lent to some young man at 10*s.* per annum to be distributed among the almsfolks in St. Peter's Hospital, to whom the 10*s.* per annum is still given. The 25*l.* is in the "Loan Trust Fund." (See Cecilia Long's Charity.)

COLING'S CHARITY.

Francis Coling, by an indenture dated the 15th January 1648, gave to the Company 200*l.*, to be lent to four freemen of the Company, each paying yearly 15*s.*, to be distributed amongst 10 of the poorest freemen or their widows on the 17th March.

The sum of 200*l.* is in the same position as Cecilia Long's Charity in the "Loan Trust Fund." The 3*l.* a year for interest is given to 10 poor freemen or widows of the Company, in equal sums of 6*s.* in April, yearly.

COMPOSITION MONEY OR ANNUAL PAYMENT TO ST. MICHAEL, CROOKED LANE, AND THE POOR OF THE COMPANY.

A sum of 6*s.* 8*d.* a year, described as composition money is paid to the churchwardens of St. Michael's and 2*l.* to the half-yearly poor. The origin of these payments is not known.

A 14546.

COPYNGER'S CHARITY.

William Copynger devised by his will of the 22nd November 1512 his tenement in St. Catherine Coleman and a shop and cellar in Old Fish Street, on condition to pay 10*s.* yearly to St. Mildred, Bread Street, 6*s.* 6*d.* for his obit, and the residue amongst the poor householders of that parish. The Company pay 3*s.* 10*d.* a year to the churchwarden of the parish of St. Mildred, Bread Street.

COWPER'S CHARITY.

John Cowper, by his will of the 12th August 1584, gave to the said Company 20*l.*, to be delivered yearly to one young man dwelling in Old Fish Street. No interest is to be charged, and there is therefore no income. The fund is in the "Trust Loan Fund." (Long's Charity.)

CRAFTON'S CHARITY.

John Crafton, by his will of the 16th October 1585, gave to the said Company 40*l.*, to deliver forth the same to two young men, freemen of the Company. No interest is to be charged, and none is therefore received. The fund is in the "Trust Loan Fund."

ALICE FIELD'S CHARITY.

Alice Field, in the terms of an indenture of 28th July 1595, paid to the Company 80*l.*, to be lent to four young men, two of Old Fish Street and two of New Fish Street, they paying each 3*s.* 4*d.* yearly, and the money to be distributed in charcoal.

The 80*l.* forms part of the "Loan Trust Account." (See Cecilia Long's Charity.)

The churchwardens of St. Nicholas Olave receive 13*s.* 4*d.* yearly.

GARDENER'S CHARITY.

Henry Gardener devised by his will, 31st December 1579, two tenements in St. Andrew, in Hertford Town, to give yearly to 20 poor folks, fishmongers or their widows, two sacks of coal each or 1*s.* 8*d.* in money.

The property was long ago sold by the Company, who credit the charity with 1*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* a year, which they distribute to the half-yearly poor. (See Trumball's Gift.)

ROBERT GAYER'S CHARITY.

Robert Gayer, by his will of the 15th January 1648, gave to the Company 100*l.*, to distribute at Christmas 5*l.* amongst the poor members of the Company.

This is added to the Christmas distribution to the half-yearly poor. (See Trumball's Charity.)

JESUS HOSPITAL, at BRAY, BERKS.

William Goddard, by his will made in or prior to 1609, gave to the Company, for the purpose of erecting an hospital at Bray for 40 poor people, men or women, certain messuages in the parish of St. Catherine Cree Church, London, and his manor of Crutchfield and land in Bray; the said hospital to be called "Jesus Hospital in Bray, of the foundation of William Goddard," and the testator also directed his wife to convey to the Company a messuage in the parish of St. Dunstan-in-the-West, London.

The testator prescribed by his will the building of the hospital of brick, from the rent of the lands, fit and convenient for 40 poor people to dwell and inhabit in, and that there should be in the said hospital one chapel or place convenient to serve Almighty God in for ever with public and divine prayers and other exercises of religion, and also that there should be provided the domestic offices therein mentioned; and he directed that the brethren and sisters should be appointed and governed as therein mentioned, and that they should have the use, occupation, and profits of the lands in Bray, except the trees and underwoods, to be equally and indifferently divided between them.

The letters patent are dated the 13th August, 14 James 1st, and incorporate the wardens and assistants of the Company as "Governors of Jesus Hospital," &c.; whilst the direction of the will is that the "wardens and commonalty of the Company should be governors." There is a very full entry in the books of the Company of the 19th January 1616, showing that, to obviate the difficulties of a pecuniary sort in the prosecution of the work, Mrs. Goddard gave 100 marks a year during her life, and the Company undertook to finish the buildings within two years after her death.

The present hospital at Bray was erected between 1623 and 1628, and is described by the Commissioners of Inquiry (p. 117, vol. 12) as "a quadrangular building, containing 40 almshouses, surrounding a court divided into gardens, one of which is attached to each house, the whole site covering 2a. 2r. 18p. There is a chapel in the centre of the back of the building. Over the front entrance are apartments occupied by the chaplain."

The will directs that the lands in Bray shall be for the use of the brethren and sisters, but does not make any express limitation with regard to the other lands devised to the Company; but no distinction appears to have been ever made by the Company between the property in London and the Berkshire estate.

The property of the charity is now as shown in the following table, in which the numbers of the several tenements mentioned in the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 12, p. 116) are indicated.

Lands at Bray.

Nos. 3 and 5.—Shortlane Farm, on the margin of Windsor Forest, at a spot called Tutcham End, consisting of farmhouse and buildings, rebuilt in 1850 at an expense of 1,252l. 2s., and for surveyors 49l. 10s. 1d., and of 100l. 12s. for farm buildings in 1855, and to which in 1859 additions were made to the house at the expense of 124l. 15s. 6d., and surveyor 12l. 13s. 6d.

Attached to the farm are five fields, numbered in the Company's map, made in 1825, 21 to 25, containing 36a. 0r. 12p.

Gadbridge Farm lands, without buildings, numbered in the same map 18, 19, and 20, containing 24a. 2r. 5p.

Glenhurst Farm (without buildings), numbered in the same map 15, 16, and 17, containing 23a. 1r. 2p.

This was drained in 1854 at an expense of 109l. 6s. 5d.

Bridgefield, and Almshouse Mead, opposite the almshouses, and near the Thames (formerly let to John Lewis), containing 38a. 1r. 20p. (Nos. 30 and 31 in the same map), all let to Mr. William Heddington on lease for 14 years, from Michaelmas 1854

And interest on the 140l. expenditure, in addition to the house, in 1859 -

No. 4.—Millcroft Field, two fields, Nos. 28 and 29 on the same map, containing 14a. 1r. 11p., let to Charles Fuller for 14 years, from Michaelmas 1849 -

Two plots, formerly 3a. 3r. 4p. now 3a. 1r. 33p. (the quantity having been reduced by the grant of a plot to the school at Bray), let to Joseph Stubbs as a yearly tenant -

No. 7.—Crutchfield Farm, a farmhouse and buildings towards which the tenant was in 1850-51 allowed 277l. 18s., numbered 1 to 5 and 7 to 13 on the same plan (No. 6 being included in No. 5), 80a. 2r. 37p.

No. 6.—Land, containing 7a. 1r. 4p. (No. 14 on the same map), let to John Hercy, Esq., on lease expiring Michaelmas 1863 -

Quit rents -

The lands in Bray are subject to a quit rent now payable to Mr. Pourty -

Copping's Gift (moiety of dividends) -
Cooke's Gift -
Baskerville's Gift -
Owen's Gift -

Total income -

To this income there must be added in respect of the augmentation to the parishionary almspeople under the bequest of Mr. John Hibbert (stated infra, p. 7) annually 85l. 16s., and charged on the property of the Company by their acceptance of the legacies.

It is stated in the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (volume 12, p. 114) from the ancient records of the Company, that the testator directed his wife, Joyce, to convey to the Company a messuage or tenement in the parish of St. Dunstan in the West, but on tracing the various steps taken by the Company in relation to the foundation nothing was found concerning any property in that parish. It appears that deeds were given up by Mrs. Goddard to Mrs. R. Sugden, in January 1609, and on the 3rd April 1610. By entries in the books of the Company on the 18th November 1615, it appears that there was then a long time suits in Chancery touching Mr. Goddard's will, and those were not terminated at that time, although it does not appear that any question remained save that of the execution of the specific trusts relating to the building and incorporation of the hospital and governors. The list of the deeds delivered to Mrs. Sugden in 1609 and 1610 appears in the books of the Company, but does not include any instruments relating to the messuage in St. Dunstan's. It does not appear that the Company have ever been in the possession of any ancient deeds. There seems to have been much litigation with Mrs. Sugden, who was the sister and probably heiress at law of the testator, and the first entry in the books of the Company is of obtaining an injunction restraining her from cutting down woods on the estate at Bray.

Courts of the manor are held every four or five years. The fines are the amount of the years quit rent on change of tenants. It is said that Mrs. Sugden, being offended at the gift of the property by Mr. Goddard, destroyed the documents she had relating to the manorial rights, and it is supposed amongst others the books containing the admissions, &c. The Company have followed the custom of the adjoining manors of Cookham. There seem to have been heriots formerly taken, but have not been recovered or attempted to be enforced since the reign of Henry the 8th.

The balance due from the charity to the Company up to the end of 1857 was 449l. 17s. This was explained in the following letter to the accountant of the Charity Commissioners from the clerk of the Company.

"I am desired to inform you that the balance arose by the outlay of upwards of 1,400l. in repairs to the house on Lord's lands farm, and in rebuilding the house and farm buildings at Short Lane farm in 1851 and 1855. Also from the outlay in 1853 of 150l. in building a wall between No. 10, Aldgate and No. 3, Jewry Street, and a further sum of upwards of 100l. in 1854 in draining the lands in Bray. The income of this trust for last year reduced the balance against the trust by nearly 200l., and as the expenditure on account of the almshouses is not likely to be very different from late years except in the thorough repair of the chimnies and repainting the external work this year, which may occasion an outlay of 200l., the Company anticipate in the course of three or four years the balance will be paid off."

The balance was on the 31st December 1860 reduced to 152l. 6s. 2d. The Company have agreed to substitute for the brick floors in many of the houses wooden floors, which will involve some expenditure and probably prevent the reduction of the balance in the present year.

I append a printed table setting forth the orders for the government of the hospital and the rules to be observed by the inmates.*

JESUS HOSPITAL, at BRAY, in the County of BERKS.

GOVERNORS :

The Wardens and Assistants of the Mistery of Fishmongers, of the City of London.

BENEFACTIONS.

1609—William Goddard, Esquire, who died in the year 1609, by will gave and devised to the wardens and commonalty of the mistery of fishmongers, of the City of London, all his messuages and lands, situate in the City of London, and the parish of Bray, in the county of Berks, to erect an hospital for 40 poor persons, men or women, to dwell and inhabit therein; whereof six are to be of the poorest, most aged, and decayed persons, free of the said Company, and 34 are to be of the poorest and most aged parishioners of Bray, and such as have been dwelling in the said parish of Bray 20 years next before being elected thereto, and every one of the said 40 persons being of the age of 50 years. And Letters Patent were obtained dated 13 August, 14 Jas. I., granting to the Fishmongers' Company authority to erect and establish the said hospital, upon the trusts of the said will, to be called Jesus Hospital, founded by King James, at Bray, in the county of Berks, at the only costs and charges of William Goddard, Esquire.

* JESUS HOSPITAL.

Under the authority of an order of the Board, dated 2nd February 1875, the Company granted a new lease of the premises and their site Nos. 10 and 11, Aldgate, referred to on page 4, for a term of 80 years from the 25th day of March 1874, at an annual rent of 380l. the lessee having expended a sum of 2,500l. in the erection of new buildings thereon.

20th February 1653.—Randolph Baskerville, by will of the 20th of February 1653, gave 200l., and directed the yearly sum of 4l., part of the interest thereof, to be paid half yearly to the poor in Jesus Hospital.

28th April 1676 and 23rd May 1677.—John Owen, by indentures of these dates, gave 270l., and directed the sum of 20s., part of the interest thereof, to be paid yearly on the 20th of March to six poor almsfolks, free of the Company, in Jesus Hospital.

8th January 1686.—Jeremiah Copping, by will of the 8th of January 1686, gave certain monies for the maintenance of nine or ten poor old almsmen of the Company. Under this benefaction the sum of 36l. is appropriated yearly in the relief of the six almspeople, free of the Company, in Jesus Hospital.

28th March 1810.—Thomas Cooke, by will of the 28th of March 1810, gave 5,900l. Consolidated Three per Cent. Bank Annuities to the Company upon trust, to apply the dividends thereof weekly for ever, for the benefit and relief of the 34 parishionary almspeople in Jesus Hospital.

ORDERS FOR THE GOVERNMENT OF THE HOSPITAL.

The paymaster is to attend at the hospital to pay the pensions, to examine into the state of the almspeople, and allow them to have nurses if needful; and if any of them shall offend against the rules and orders, the paymaster shall adopt such measures thereon as he may deem requisite; and in all matters of importance, he shall report the same to the governors.

The chaplain appointed by the governors is to perform divine service in the chapel of the hospital on Tuesdays and Thursdays between the hours of 9 and 12, and to visit the almspeople in sickness, when desired.

The upper keeper, appointed by the governors from among the almsmen, is to take care of the keys of the hospital and of the chapel; to keep clean the chapel; to officiate as clerk, when divine service is performed; to take care of the goods and chattels in the house of any deceased almsman or almswoman, until they are removed by the permission of the paymaster; to see that the almspeople take care of the gardens allotted to them, and that the other parts of the garden and ground, as well as the out-buildings, be kept clean and in good order and condition; to take notice of all offences committed by the almspeople, and acquaint the paymaster therewith.

The under keeper, appointed by the governors from among the almsmen, is to open the gate in the morning and to ring the bell on shutting the gate in the evening; also to ring the bell for assembling in the chapel.

RULES TO BE OBSERVED BY THE ALMSPEOPLE.

1. The almsmen shall according to their seniority in the hospital attend by turns at the gate, on every Lord's day, in order to prevent improper persons from coming into the hospital.

2. All the almspeople (except the almsman attending at the gate, and such of the almspeople as are prevented by sickness) shall both in the forenoon and afternoon of every Lord's day, in due time, repair to some place of public worship, and attend divine service.

3. All the almspeople (except such of them as are prevented by sickness) shall in the morning of every Tuesday and Thursday, at the second ringing of the hospital bell, assemble in the chapel, and join in public prayer, according to the rites of the Church of England.

4. None of the almspeople shall use any blasphemous words or on any occasion be drunk, or at any time make use of any bitter, uncharitable or offensive speeches, or give any blow to any other of the almspeople, or act disorderly or dishonestly, upon pain of being expelled.

5. None of the almspeople shall be allowed to go out of the hospital before the opening of the gate in the morning, or to come into the hospital after the shutting of the gate in the evening, or shall be absent from the hospital during the night, without license from the upper keeper, who is allowed to permit such of the almspeople as he shall see fit, on urgent occasions, to lie out of the hospital; but no permission shall be given to any of the almspeople to lie out more than two nights successively, without the consent of the paymaster.

Under the authority of another order of the Board, dated the 13th August 1875, the Company granted a new lease of the property numbered No. 8, Jewry Street, also referred to on page 4, for a term of 80 years from the 25th day of December 1874, at an annual rent of 330l., the lessee having expended a sum of not less than 5,000l. in the erection of new buildings on the property.

6. The almspeople shall have no person to reside with them or attend upon them, but in case of sickness the paymaster may allow a woman to attend as nurse, being of the age of 50 years.

7. The almspeople shall not damage any of the houses, break down any of the fences, or destroy any of the trees.

8. None of the almspeople or any person whatever shall lay or cast any rubbish, dust, or filth, in any part of the hospital, or the grounds, ditches, or drains thereto belonging, or wash fish, vegetables, or any utensils, at or near the pump.

9. The almspeople shall keep clean their dwellings, and the pavement before and behind the same, and the garden allotted to each house; and shall also keep repaired the glass in their windows, at their own charge, or in default thereof, the expense of repairing them shall be deducted out of their pensions.

10. The almspeople shall behave peaceably and quietly, and be helpful to each other.

11. No almsman or almswoman shall marry, without the consent of the governors, upon pain of being expelled.

12. If any almsman shall have a wife, or any almswoman a husband, the wife of the almsman shall be allowed to dwell with her husband, and the husband of the almswoman with his wife; and in every offence against these orders, the offence of the wife shall be deemed the offence of the husband, and the offence of the husband the offence of the wife.

13. Upon the decease of any of the almspeople, none of the goods and chattels in the house of the deceased shall be removed, without the permission of the paymaster; and that care may in the mean time be taken of such goods and chattels, the key of the house shall be delivered to the upper keeper.

14. The badge of the almsman or almswoman that shall die or be removed shall remain to the house for the succeeding almsman or almswoman, also the coat and gown, if such had been received within six months previously to the decease or removal of such almsman or almswoman.

15. These rules shall be read by the upper keeper or the under keeper, in the presence of the paymaster, on every 24th day of June, and every 21st day of December, and at every visitation of the governors to the almspeople, assembled in the chapel for that purpose.

16. Offences committed against any of these rules to be from time to time stated by the upper keeper to the paymaster.

These orders and rules were revised in the wardenship of—

THOMAS BODLEY, Esq., Prime Warden.

JOHN TOWGOOD, Esq.

SAMUEL MILLS, Esq.

EVAN EDWARDS, Esq.

JAMES DAVIDSON, Esq.

JAMES EBENEZER SAUNDERS, Esq.

} Wardens.

And ordained at a court holden on the 20th day of July 1826.

JOHN DAVID TOWSE,
Clerk to the Company.

No fee or perquisite shall, on any account, be received by the upper or under keeper from the almspeople.

By order of the court, June 24th, 1847.

COPPING'S GIFT.

Jeremiah Copping, by his will, 8th January 1686, gave the Company 1,800*l.* to purchase lands for the maintenance of 9 or 10 poor old almsmen of the Company, and also a rentcharge of 50*l.* a year, payable to the testator and his heirs during the life of Anthony Brown. The Commissioners of Inquiry state that under the above bequest the Company received 2,163*l.* 9*s.* 9*d.*, and that until a purchase should be made in land the Company had ordered 72*l.* a year to be paid to the charity account. On the 22nd October 1838 an information was filed against the Company, at the suit of the Attorney-General, at the relation of Thomas Spencer Hall, charging that some competent portion of the lands or other real estate, public stocks and funds, or other property of the said Company, of which they had a sufficiency for that purpose, ought to be appropriated or otherwise that some adequate purchase or investment of land ought, in performance of the said trust, to be made out of the funds of the Company, as forming the endowment of the said charity, and praying—

That it might be declared that the said Company had made default and acted in violation of the trusts in them reposed in the before-mentioned particulars, and more especially in not having invested the said sum of 2,163*l.* 9*s.* 9*d.*, derived under the will of Jeremiah Copping, within a reasonable time after the receipt thereof, and that the said charitable trust of the testator might be specifically performed under the decree of the Court, and that some adequate portion of the lands or other funds of the said Company might be assessed and appropriated, or otherwise that some competent purchase of land might be made out of the funds of the said Company, as the endowment of the said charity upon the principal of compensation in respect of the loss sustained by the said charity by the neglect of the said Company in not having laid out the said sum in due time, and that the defendants might be decreed to account for the difference between the said yearly sum of 72*l.* and interest on the sum of 2,163*l.* 9*s.* 9*d.* at 5*l.* per cent., or at such other rate as, having regard to the use of the said charity fund by the said Company, or to profit or interest actually realised, as might be deemed reasonable, and that for the last 100, or at least 50, years before the filing of the information. And that it might be declared that according to the meaning of the will there ought to be established a number of almsmen of the foundation of the said testator, independent and distinct of all other almspeople of the said Company already existing and otherwise established; and that it might be referred to the master to settle a proper scheme in that behalf, having regard to such sum as the defendants should be found liable to pay in respect of the arrears of interest as aforesaid and to the due application thereof in advancement of the said charitable trust.

The case came before the Master of the Rolls on the 16th November 1836. The Master of the Rolls delivered his judgment on the 16th January 1837. After stating the questions raised in the suit, his Honour said:—

“As to the alleged obligation of founding a distinct establishment, it is to be observed that in the will the testator has not directed any separate foundation; he has said nothing about almshouses or about any name to be affixed to his charity, or any scheme of selecting the persons amongst the freemen who were to be the objects of his bounty, or to be distinguished as his almsmen, but he describes the persons who are to enjoy his bounty as poor old almsmen of the Company, not as persons to be made solely the receipt of his bounty; and upon the construction of this bequest I cannot say that I think he meant to direct the foundation of a separate and distinct establishment, or to restrain the Company from applying the income to be derived from his gift to the maintenance of persons already almsmen of the Company in aid of funds previously applicable for their benefit. Therefore I cannot declare that according to the true intent and meaning of the will there ought to be an establishment of almsmen of the foundation of the testator independent from all other almsmen of the Company.

“With respect to the investment, it appears to me that the Company ought, within a reasonable time, to have invested the 1,632*l.* 17*s.* 3*d.* in the purchase of land. They, perhaps, could not do so without a license, to obtain which would have been an expense to the charity; but by incurring the expense the license in all probability might have been obtained, and then the will in that respect might have been strictly performed. But supposing there to have been some insuperable difficulty about the investments in land, there ought clearly to have been a separate investment of some sort of both the 1,632*l.* 17*s.* 3*d.* and the 530*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.* These sums ought to have been distinguished from all other funds, so that it might at all times be ascertained, if necessary, by the Court, and at all times easily proved by the Company, that the full income of the testator's gift was properly applied, and it appears to me that it is now necessary that a distinct investment should be made.

“With respect to the allegations that the defendants have paid to the almspeople, whom they have considered to be the objects of the testator's bounty, less than they ought to be charged with for the interest of the money in their hands, I have very carefully considered the evidence, and upon the result of it I am of opinion that the defendants have satisfactorily proved that for many years past they have for the benefit of these poor people annually paid out of their own funds far more than any specific sum of money with which they could be charged by way of interest. There appears to me to be no reason to presume the case was different in times antecedent to the time to which the evidence relates, and being of opinion that proper objects of the charity have been substantially benefited by the defendants as trustees to the full amount of the income to which they are entitled, I do not think fit to make any further inquiry in that respect; and having regard to what the Company has done, and to what I conceive to be the real interest of the objects of the testator's bounty, it does not appear to me to be proper to direct an inquiry when a proper investment might have been made, and whether any and what loss has been incurred by neglecting to make such investment at such time.

“I have considered this case with reference to the costs. The information as to a considerable part of it fails. As to that which succeeds, I do not think that it will substantially promote the benefit of the objects of the testator's bounty, and it appears to have been filed without any previous application to the Company.

"These and other circumstances have made me hesitate considerably in allowing the relators their costs, but considering that the omission of the Company to invest the legacy affords a substantial ground of complaint, that the meritorious application made by the Company of their own funds for the benefit of the objects of this charity could not in consequence of their omission to invest be ascertained without the sort of investigation which this matter has undergone, and having regard also to the decree made by Sir J. Leach in the case of the Goldsmiths' Company, I think myself bound to say, and I say it with reluctance, that the defendants must pay the costs of the suit as between party and party. At the same time I do not think it is proper in this case to give to the relators what Sir J. Leach gave to the relators in the case of the Goldsmiths' Company, the extra costs out of the fund of this charity.

"The decree, therefore, which I make is that this sum be brought into court and invested in 3 per Cents, that the dividends to arise from it be paid to the defendants, the Fishmongers' Company, on the trusts of the charity, with liberty to any party to apply as to the investment, and that the costs of the suit as between party and party be paid by the defendants to the relators."

The fund was paid into court and invested in 2,367*l.* 14*s.* 1*d.* Consols. It still stands to the credit of the cause, and the dividends amounting to 71*l.* 0*s.* 8*d.* per annum are received by the Company, and the amount is carried half to the account of Jesus Hospital and half to the account of the Harrietsham Almshouses. In both of these institutions the only participants in this charity are the almspeople who are free of the Company.

COOKE'S GIFT.

Thomas Cooke, by his will 28th March 1810, gave to the Company 5,900*l.* Consols, to apply the dividends for the benefit and relief of the 34 parishionary almspeople in Jesus Hospital for increasing their pensions.

The fund which was transferred to the Company in full stands in the corporate name of the Company in the books of the Bank of England. It seems to have been the subject of an administration suit, Neale v. Day and others, in 1813, and that the transfer was made and the arrears of interest paid under the order of the court. The annual dividends amount to 177*l.*

BASKERVILLE'S AND OWEN'S GIFTS.

The gift of 200*l.* by Randolph Baskerville, in 1653, is mentioned in the Loan Trust Account (see Cecilia Long's Gift), and the capital is there accounted for.

The sum of 4*l.* is paid to the account of Jesus Hospital. Owen's Charity is mentioned in a subsequent part of this report, and from that gift 1*l.* is paid to Jesus Hospital, part of the 12*l.* a year comprising that gift.

HIBBERT'S CHARITY.

Mr. John Hibbert in 1856, presented to the Fishmongers' Company 500*l.*, on condition that they would increase the pensions of the married parishionary almspeople in Jesus Hospital by 1*s.* a week; and in 1857 he gave a further sum of 500*l.* on the Company agreeing to increase the pensions of such almspeople by a second 1*s.* a week. In 1860 the same gentleman gave 1,000*l.* to the Company on the further condition of adding 6*d.* a week to each of the married and single parishionary almspeople in Jesus Hospital. The Company have accepted these gifts on the conditions expressed by the donor, and the payments are made and are included in the amount of the pensions which I have stated in my account of the hospital disbursements.

The above extra annual payments amount to 85*l.* 16*s.* a year.

THE FREE GRAMMAR SCHOOL AT HOLT, NORFOLK.

Sir John Gresham, early in the reign of Phillip and Mary, granted to the Company certain estates for the maintenance of a grammar school, established previously by letters patent of the 27th April 1654, whereby it was ordained that there should be one grammar school in Holt otherwise Holt Market, to be called "the Free Grammar School of Sir John Gresham, knight, citizen, and alderman of London," for the education, teaching, and instruction of boys and youths in grammar, with one schoolmaster and one usher; and whereby also "the wardens and commonalty of the mystery of Fishmongers of London, governors of the possessions, revenues, and goods of the Free Grammar School of Sir John Gresham, knight, citizen, and alderman of London, in Holt otherwise Holt Market, in the county of Norfolk," were incorporated by that name and licensed to hold goods, chattels, manors, and lands in mortmain.

Sir J. Gresham, by deed of the 16th October 1656 (recited in an instrument which has been preserved), gave to the Company certain manors, messuages, lands, and hereditaments therein mentioned in the county of Norfolk, to hold to the said Company for the sustentation of the said Free Grammar School.

The statutes for the government of the school, made by the governors at different times, and approved by the Bishop of Norwich, are set forth in the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (Fishmongers' Company, vol. 12, p. 106).

The Commissioners state that the school had declined before the appointment of the then head master, but on the gratuitous instruction being extended to English, the school had revived and the increased number of 50 free scholars had been filled up. This report was made in 1823. Subsequently the institution came under the notice of the Commissioners of Inquiry in the county of Norfolk, and by their report, made in 1832 (vol. 26, p. 289), it is stated as follows:—

"In September, when we visited the town, we found that the number of free scholars had been kept up to 50; that 19 of them were receiving classical instruction; and that there were above 20 candidates for vacancies. The master had discontinued taking boarders, but had 10 day scholars receiving gratuitous instruction, or paying from 2*l.* 2*s.* to 8*l.* 8*s.* per annum, according to the circumstances of their parents. These boys are admitted as candidates, and frequently succeed to the vacancies in the number of free scholars.

"In 1831 the Company agreed to give 5*l.* a year for prizes at the annual examination of the scholars before the visitors, the master having previously provided prizes for this purpose at his own expense.

"The national system is adopted in the school as far as practicable, and the school appears to be in great repute. The expenditure is nearly the same as it was in 1823, as stated in our former report."

The school continued under the same master, the Rev. B. Pulleyne, until the year 1857. At that time it was found that owing to the establishment of another school in the town, and the age and incapacity of the master, and other causes, the school had fallen in its standing. This was partly also attributed to the introduction of the national system, which had led to the introduction of a lower class of pupils, and persons of a better condition had been prevented from sending their children to it. In 1857 a deputation of the Company visited the school and examined into its condition. I annex to this report a printed extract of the report of the deputation.

The recommendation contained in such report was agreed to and adopted.

The old schoolroom was taken down, leaving the master's residence standing; the Company erected a new schoolroom capable of receiving 100 pupils (instead of 50).

The cost of the buildings stated in the accounts laid before the Commissioners for the year 1858 was 1,444*l.* 8*s.* 11*d.*

In 1858 the Company applied to the Bishop of Norwich for power to alter the statutes of the school, the principal alterations proposed being the introduction of mathematics, geometry, reading, geography, and history, and the abolition of the clause in the statutes of 1821, which left it to the option of the parents or friends of the scholars whether they should or not be taught Latin and Greek. The new statutes also increased the salary of the master from 100*l.* per annum to 200*l.* per annum, and empowered him to take 10 boarders, "or such other number as the governors may see fit." The Committee on the 18th May 1858 considered and settled the statutes, and resolved to apply for the consent of the bishop. Slight alterations were subsequently made, and the statutes were finally settled on the 8th September 1858. The statutes thus established are set forth in the book annexed to this report (which also contains an alteration as to the holidays approved by the same authority on the 19th July 1860).

In July 1860 the Company also resolved to increase the salary of the usher (stated in section 3, page 10 of the statutes) from 80*l.* to 110*l.* a year. This was done in consequence of a representation being made by the master that a person of sufficient standing could not be obtained for the smaller sum. This also was approved by the bishop.

The court of the Company elected a new master on the 1st July 1858. The appointment was made after advertisement in May 1858 of the intended appointment in July. The qualifications specified in the advertisement were that the candidate must be a graduate of one of the universities.

There were 81 candidates, and the Rev. Charles Allen Elton, B.D., formerly a fellow of Sidney Sussex College, was appointed. He had been engaged in a scholastic occupation formerly.

The master, according to the statutes, appointed the usher. Mr. R. Phillips was appointed to that office, and continued up to Midsummer 1860, when he retired, and Mr. Chas. F. Furbank was appointed from Michaelmas 1860 on the above-mentioned scale of salary. He is a graduate of the University of Cambridge.

An interesting account of the reopening of the school, and a description and view of the house and premises, are contained in the work which is annexed to this report.

The Company were strongly urged by the deputation to take an early opportunity of taking down the old master's house and rebuilding it. In March 1859 a communication on this subject was made to the Commissioners of Charities, and the result is set forth in the order of the board of the 10th May 1859 (under its seal), whereby, upon the statements and evidence therein mentioned, the Charity Commissioners advise the said governors that out of any surplus revenue which might accrue to the said charity, subject to and after answering and satisfying the salaries of the master and usher of the said school as settled by the statutes and orders of the year 1858, and the life pension of the late master, and all other charges and expenses whatsoever of or relating to the said school, as the same is now carried on or conducted, and all costs, charges, and expenses whatsoever of or relating to the management and administration of the said charity, and the property or estate thereof, the said governors might repay to themselves the sum of 1,626*l.* 3*s.* 1½*d.* then due to them in respect of the rebuilding the schoolroom and offices of or belonging to the said school and otherwise, and any sum or sums which the said governors might lay out or expend in rebuilding the master's house (not exceeding for such last-mentioned purpose 3,000*l.*, exclusive of the architect's commission and payments for the clerk of the works and travelling expenses), with interest on the said several sums respectively at the rate of 4*l.* per cent. per annum; but so always that if the state of the surplus revenue would permit such principal moneys and interest should be repaid (in manner and subject as aforesaid) within a period of not more than 30 years from the date hereof; and so also that if such principal moneys and interest should not be fully repaid in manner aforesaid within the said last-mentioned period, then and in such case any principal money or interest which might happen to remain due to the said governors should be deemed to be wholly extinguished and discharged in favour of the said charity.

The master's house was therefore taken down and rebuilt at an expense, including all charges, of	-	3,528	0 3
This amount, added to the former expense of rebuilding the schoolroom, -	1,444	8 11
was	4,972	9 2

The sum of 1,626*l.* 3*s.* 1½*d.* mentioned in the order of the Charity Commissioners was reduced by the deduction of certain expenses of the deputation, &c., paid by the charity out of their own funds, to the sum of 1,435*l.* 1*s.* 11½*d.*, as stated in the accounts for 1859.

	£	s.	d.
Under the order of the Charity Commissioners (mentioned above) the Company is empowered to charge interest at 4 per cent. on the balance of	1,435	1 11½
On the sum limited for the rebuilding of the schoolmaster's house -	3,000	0 0
And on the charges of the surveyor, clerk of the works, and their travelling expenses -	414	10 5
	4,849	12 4½

In the necessary improvements in the reconstruction of the premises it was thought necessary to purchase some adjoining cottages, which was effected by the Company for the sum of 539*l.* 9*s.* 4½*d.* This sum, which was paid by the Company, brings up the actual expense of the entire improvements to 5,511*l.* 18*s.* 6¾*d.* The Company, amongst other things, built a tennis court, and levelled a field for a cricket ground, and rebuilt the boundary wall separating the school from the road, and otherwise altering the fences and filling and draining a road-side pond, flowing into the grounds of the school. The prime warden for the time being presented the school with an apparatus for gymnastic exercises.

The Company, in their corporate capacity as governors of the school, have entered into a bond for 6,000*l.* with the trustees of the Union Life Office in Cornhill, bearing date the 13th October 1859, conditioned for the repayment of 3,000*l.* and interest at 4½ per cent., and by an indenture of even date the Fishmongers' Company covenant to pay the said debt and interest, but shall not pay off the principal in less sums than 500*l.*, nor in less than three years from the date thereof; and the indenture provides that the possessions, revenues, and goods of the Free Grammar School should be the primary fund for the payment of the said 3,000*l.* and the interest thereof, and that the said principal sum and interest should not, nor should any part thereof, be deemed to be a charge upon or be levied or recovered out of any other possessions, revenues, or goods vested in or belonging to the said Company unless the said principal and interest, or such part thereof, cannot in due course of law be levied or recovered upon or from the possessions, &c. of the said Free Grammar School.

The examinations of the school take place under the superintendence of the visitors of the school twice a year, in conformity with the fourth section of the statutes. No paid examiners are appointed, but several of the local visitors are believed to be competent examiners. Examination papers have been prepared by the master (one set of which I append), and the answers are made in writing, and in addition to these there is an oral examination in the presence of the visitors. The visitors afterwards make a report on the state of the school and of the scholars, and of those departed and admitted during the preceding half year, and they distribute prizes at both examinations in books of the value of 5*l.* each time. They also give at Midsummer a prize of 6*l.* in books to the best scholar in mathematics, combined with general good conduct, and which prize is called the Jodrell Prize. This arises from 2,000*l.* new 3*l.* per cent. Annuities, given by Mrs. L. Seale Hayne to commemorate the name of her uncle, the Rev. Sheldron Jodrell, late a visitor of the school, and late rector of Saxlingham; the books (according to the bequest), "Not being novels or other literary trash, to be chosen by the scholar subject to the approval of the governors." And the testatrix provided that the present and future rectors of Saxlingham should be visitors of the school, and entitled to a voice in awarding the prize. The reports made by nine of the visitors since have been favourable as to the progress of the school. The master of the school has made the following report:—

REPORT of the Rev. C. A. ELTON, to the Deputation of Governors, respecting the progress of the Gresham Scholars. June 20th, 1860.

"In February 1859 the school opened with its full complement of 50 foundation scholars, with the exception of two or three, who were permitted to remain at their previous schools until the quarter. A portion of the boys (34 in number) had attended for three weeks in the preceding December.

"Of the whole 50 boys, I found, on examination, that only 12 had been at school where Latin was taught, and out of this number (12) only four (now in class 5) were sufficiently advanced to read the text-book now in use in class 3. The remaining eight had a most imperfect and inaccurate knowledge of what they professed to have learnt; indeed 12 only out of the 50 had commenced the Latin grammar, the remaining 38 then commenced the elements thereof:

"The ages of the scholars were as follows:—

8	between 14 and 15,
8	" 12 " 13,
13	" 9 " 12,
12	" 8 " 9,

of these younger boys admitted 21 could barely read an elementary narration of one syllable; not one of the group could write more than the four or five first words of the Lord's Prayer, and seven could not read the first verse in St. John's Gospel without spelling the words, and only four wrote the Lord's Prayer correctly as regarded spelling.

"It will require, I conceive, quite two years to eradicate this defect, which has nearly disappeared in class 5, and in the others the ratio of mistakes to the number of lines of written English is rapidly decreasing; in one class as much as an hour a day is devoted to its correction. I mention this because it would obviously lead to false inferences respecting the boys' progress if their extreme ignorance of their own language, &c. on entering the school be not now taken into account.

"With regard to mathematical knowledge in February 1859, no boy could work a single proposition in Euclid; our present status stands thus: nine have got up (I believe fairly) books 1 and 2; eight have got up book 1; and 14 have advanced some little way in the same.

"In arithmetic, in February 1859, seven boys only could do the simplest form of a rule-of-three sum, in which, however, three were fairly advanced, five only had mastered decimal fractions, and of the remainder 13 could neither get through a numeration sum or the very first steps of the multiplication tables. The lowest boys now are in the compound rule of elementary arithmetic. The examination papers (arithmetical) set at this time were framed for 34 boys, and—

"In algebra, two boys then professed to have learnt the elements; at present six have reached the geometric series and 13 to the handling of algebraic fractions.

"In Latin 12 only had commenced the Latin grammar, not more than three of the syntax, none the prosody in the present stage; the classical books used in the 5th form have been Livy, Virgil, Cicero's Orations, Greek Delectus; the Greek grammar up to in pu Arnold's Latin composition; Latin versificator, Grecian and Roman history.

"In mathematics, algebra to the end of series, arithmetic generally, Euclid books 1 and 2. In English the text books are Morell's "Analysis of an English sentence," French on the "Study of Words," and for an exercise, Goldsmith's "Deserted Village."

"In the 4th form the same course is used, saving that Cæsar is read; that the boys have not yet commenced Greek, and are not so advanced in mathematics.

"In the 1st form they have just got through the first elementary Latin book, and average a fair knowledge of geography and English history.

"Specimens of handwriting are before the governors.

"The boys are accustomed to produce weekly the map of some country which they have prepared the previous week out of school hours. I would call the attention of the governors to some of them, as being finished with much neatness and precision.

"The attendance of the scholars since the opening of the school has been unmarked by a single case of absenteeism, save from illness, or by leave of the master. I have known more than a fortnight to elapse without an instance of one coming in after the doors were closed (at 2 minutes to 9), and in the afternoon such does not occur at the rate of once in two months.

"There is at present a French master attached to the school, who instructs 25 of the boys in the French language daily.

"Two are learning drawing.

"I am happy to say that in respect of the healthiness of our schoolroom the ventilation is excellent, and by aid of the apparatus which does not get out of order the room is kept at a very even temperature (though at the expense of a large amount of fuel). The health of the boys has been excellent.

"I would further add that the boys' conduct towards myself and the other masters, likewise towards each other, is quite satisfactory.

"Two additional desks are needed in the schoolroom.

"The windows also are moved with difficulty.

"The boys' library is scarcely large enough to afford the necessary variety for the tastes and wants of so many boys, moreover, a higher class of works is needed for the upper lads, the present series having been selected mainly with reference to the younger scholars. There is, moreover, no sufficient room in the closets fixed in the new schoolroom for their reception. The classical works in the schoolroom are of little use for instruction or reference, and they might be advantageously moved to shelves in the master's study, as during the winter holidays the covers attract the mould.

"I would ask the governors to give their attention to the inadequacy of the usher's salary compared with the increasing demands on his attainments, which arise from the alteration of the statutes and the raised standard of the subjects of instruction.

"The clock presented by Mr. Moore has not yet been fixed, and during their visit it may possibly be desirable for the deputation to give instructions respecting it.

"June 20th, 1860. (Signed) C. A. ELTON."

The governors receive half-yearly a statement of the names and ages of the boys on the foundation in each of the five classes, and the books used in each class. The children are the sons of professional men of small means, of farmers, and of respectable tradesmen. The foundation boys are 50 in number; they are admitted on a certificate of two of the local visitors, and deposited with the master, as vacancies occur, in rotation. In addition to 50 foundation boys there are 12 day scholars, who pay the master, but the amount of this payment is not reported to the governors.

The master had not at Christmas 1860 more than one boarder, but his residence had been then very recently completed. The master under the statutes (page 9) receives from the school fund a gratuity for each boy, according to his class. These gratuities in 1860 were as follows:—

The property granted by the founder was increased before the demise to Harrison, by a purchase made by the Company by their own funds. It is obvious that the state of the disbursements and the receipts at present wholly exclude the possibility of paying interest on the debt. The interest therefore is paid by the Company out of their own funds. The capital debt with which the charity is chargeable, as I have before stated, is 4,849*l.* 12*s.* 4½*d.* On this (or on so much of it as had been expended) the interest at 4 per cent. up to 31st December 1859, 83*l.* 15*s.* 3*d.*, 1860, 163*l.* 15*s.* 5*d.*, and for future years it will be 193*l.* 18*s.* 10*d.*

It is anticipated that the property in St. Giles, Cripple-gate, and Barbican will at the expiration of the leases be much more productive, and the governors therefore look to the increased income from these estates as the means of recouping the debt which is thus, at present, rapidly accumulating against the charity.

As a part of the charge of the year 1860 a sum of 11*l.* 6*s.* 7*d.* was expended in the redemption of the land tax on the cottages adjoining the Holt school, removed upon the late improvements. There are also law charges, expenses of the deputations, expenses relating to the woods which have been occasional, and which with the excess of expenditure on the improvements beyond that for which the governors are allowed to charge the property as security with interest, make up a sum of 6,381*l.* 4*s.* 3½*d.* due to the Company on account of the charity on the 31st December 1860.

The rental in 1863, on the termination of Wither's lease, of a part of the property in Norfolk (No. 5) will be increased by the amount of 55*l.* a year. The annuity to the late master of 100*l.* a year will, of course, terminate with his life, and Christmas 1871 the present lease of the property in Fore Street will expire, when an increased rental is expected. It is to these several sources that the charity must look for the reduction of the present large deficit of annual income, and for the gradual payment of the advances which have been made for improvements.

APPENDIX.

EXTRACT from the REPORT of the late Deputation to HOLT, with the Proceedings and Recommendations of the Committee thereon, forwarded by Order of Court, 1st instant, a Special Court being summoned to consider the same on Thursday the 6th instant.

EXTRACT from the REPORT of JOHN KYNASTON, Esquire, Prime Warden, THOMAS BODDINGTON, and WESTERN WOOD, Esquires, who were appointed by the Court, the 12th of March last, to be a Deputation to visit the Estate and School at Holt, in Norfolk.

We beg to report that on Monday afternoon, the 15th instant, the deputation, accompanied by Mr. Towse, proceeded to Holt, and on the following morning went to the schoolhouse; and on the arrival of the Rev. E. Brummell, the rector of Holt (one of the visitors of the school), the proceedings of the day were commenced by the master reading the rules, &c. of the school. 43 scholars answered to their names. Shortly after the following visitors arrived, viz., the Rev. J. Bulwer, Rev. J. B. Sweet, Jas. Gay, Thos. Boyd, and John Clark, Esquires. Three scholars of the first class were then examined in the Greek Testament, one scholar in mathematics, several in arithmetic, in which branch considerable proficiency was shown, especially by one scholar, who evinced rather unusual quickness and skill. Many produced their writing books. The deputation having remained some time in the school-room, requested the visitors would retire with them to a private room, when the prime warden brought the state of the school, and the age of the Rev. Benj. Pulleyne, under their notice, and solicited their opinion thereon, stating that it was the desire of the governors that there should be a greater efficiency manifested in the establishment, that it was considered Mr. Pulleyne had been long enough attached to the school, and that it might be desirable a younger man should be appointed.

Mr. Gay, on the part of the visitors, replied, calling the attention of the deputation to the fact that Mr. Pulleyne had now been master 48 years; that he was now 72; and that, whatever his talents might have been, he could not now be expected to be the most proper party to hold the appointment; that from the manner in which the school had been conducted for several years, the class of boys had been materially lessening in point of rank in life; and that at least the greater number now in the school were only fit to be educated in the national school; that respectable people declined sending their sons to the school, or if they did so, that it was only for a short time; that if fit and proper persons were appointed masters, a greater number of boarders allowed to be taken, the school continued to be a grammar school, as originally intended, that there were quite sufficient persons in Holt and its immediate neighbourhood who would only be too glad to avail themselves of the opportunity of placing their sons at the school, instead of sending them, as they now felt obliged to do, miles away; and that he had no doubt, in time, a class of boys would be raised, equalling those formerly in the school, who were sons of some of the most respectable families in the county; that the townspeople considered the present school only equal to their present national school; that he did not think there was much probability of any subscriptions being made to the alteration of the school premises, which were so much required, as parties in the town, &c. would consider they would not be allowed to participate in the management of the school, or share any of the Company's privileges; that the visitors generally thought Mr. Pulleyne should, if funds for that purpose were available, be now allowed to retire with an allowance of l. per annum; that a new schoolroom should be at once erected, the present being too small and low, and therefore very unhealthy; and that, as funds admitted, a new residence for the master should be erected; but that, whatever alterations might be made, they trusted a good playground would be made, as at present the boys played in the public street with the lowest class of children. Mr. Gay concluded by stating that the visitors would be very thankful if something could now be done, and that they would be ready at all times to give their best advice on the subject.

The visitors then resumed the examination of the scholars, being shortly afterwards joined by the Rev. A. T. Hudson; and the deputation, after viewing the lands, returned in the evening and were present at the distribution of the prizes. On this occasion, as on the last, no scholar was found worthy of the "Joddrell Prize," which was therefore not given.

On the following morning the deputation again visited the school premises, &c. We found the state of the buildings and their general character such as to render any permanent repairs and alterations perfectly useless. If attempted, it would be a rebuilding in a most unsatisfactory manner, and only money thrown away, if reconstruction at a remoter period be contemplated.

We cannot recommend anything being done beyond some trifling repairs to keep out the rain from Mr. Pulleyne's house.

Rebuilding of school.

Bearing in mind the suggestions of the court, we devoted our best attention to the consideration of the distribution and condition of the building, the former standing of the school and its future prospects, the intention of the founders, and what we believe to be the earnest desire of the governors; and we think that the time has now arrived for the total reconstruction of the buildings, taking down all the present ones, as well as the unsightly cottages on the road-side purchased by the Company.

We recommend the school being continued as at present till Christmas next, when it should be closed until, at least, the new schoolroom be erected.

Plan.

We would suggest that a plan and estimate for the whole construction be obtained, to consist of a schoolroom, residence for the master, with sufficient accommodation for boarders and necessary offices; that it should occupy a site further back than that on which the present building now stands, affording a good playground for the boys in front of the building, to be enclosed by a dwarf wall with rails.

The building, which we submit should be in the style of the period of the foundation of the school, to face the town (as the present one does), thus becoming a great ornament to the street and a fit monument to the liberality of the founder and the Fishmongers' Company.

By this change of site there would be no occasion to interrupt the school during the construction of the building.

Advance of funds.

The deputation earnestly suggest that the Company should advance to the trust upon loan, without interest, the funds necessary for the new buildings; and should the court consider it better to spread their advances over a wider surface, we suggest that the new schoolroom only should be built according to the general plan adopted, and that the new master should continue to reside in the present house until further funds could conveniently be spared.

Playground.

The visitors drew our serious attention to the absolute want of a playground, but we are of opinion that this may be deferred, at all events until the appointment of a new master.

Assistance towards the expenses.

We regret that the visitors could not hold out any hopes to us of pecuniary assistance from the neighbourhood towards the expense of rebuilding the school. We are happy, however, to add, that the rector of Holt, and many of the visitors, appear to take a very zealous interest in the renewal of the school, and expressed their desire to see its character restored to the position which it maintained when some of them were themselves amongst its scholars.

Removal of
master.

We are decidedly of opinion, and which is shared unanimously by the visitors, that the present master of the school, at his advanced age of 72, should be replaced by a young and more efficient one. We think that, after so lengthened a period of service as 48 years, during which, we have every reason to believe, Mr. Pulleyne has faithfully devoted his best energies to the school, he has a strong claim to the acknowledgment and liberality of the court, and is entitled to such a retiring pension as may prevent his feeling too keenly his removal from his accustomed dwelling and his old habits, and the loss of the privileges of his position, and of the income he derived from it, averaging probably from 150*l.* to 200*l.* per annum.

Annuity.

We venture to suggest that an annuity of not less than 100*l.* be granted him, together with a gratuity of 100*l.* to cover the loss and expenses of his removal to another residence.

His only other income appears to arise from church preferment, yielding about 90*l.* per annum, of which he now pays 40*l.* per annum for assistance, which would be saved when he retires from the school.

A 14546.

A less pension than that suggested would not, we think, adequately provide for his few remaining years, and give him that comfort to which the court would consider him entitled after a service of nearly half a century.

From a private conversation with Mr. Pulleyne, we found him quite willing to place himself in the hands of the court, and that, while he would prefer being released from his duties, if some adequate provision could be made for him, he was quite ready to continue his services, though he admitted that they were becoming onerous to him, especially in summer, when the low and ill-constructed schoolroom became very oppressive.

Mr. Pulleyne's feeling.

We submit that the new master should have the selection of the "usher," and that the present one be retained or changed by the governors at the master's recommendation; and that, in the event of his being discharged after giving him due notice, he be presented with a gratuity of 20*l.* to 30*l.*

Usher.

It is the opinion of the deputation and of the majority of the visitors that, if the character of the school were raised by the appointment of a fit and proper master, and a greater number of boarders allowed to be taken, and the school continued (as originally intended) as a grammar school, there is every reason to believe that it would be amply attended by the sons of the respectable families of Holt and its neighbourhood, and obtain a reputation in the county.

Prospect of the school.

The opinion of the visitors, and of such residents as we had an opportunity of conversing with, is strongly in favour of the present system of education being continued and that classical classes be maintained; which appears also the opinion of the neighbourhood, from the fact that the largest proportion of even the present lower class of scholars is entered for classics, there being now only four boys who are not learning Latin. The Greek and Latin languages would, however, continue to be taught (according to the present statutes) only to those scholars whose parents or friends desire it.

System of education.

We agree with the visitors in their views, that the larger the number of boarders allowed, the greater would be the efficiency and higher the standard of the school; and we recommend that the present rules and orders of the school be reconsidered; and we think that the selection of fit and proper persons as master and usher would be extremely limited, unless the master be allowed to take more boarders than 10, as at present sanctioned by the statutes.

Increase of boarders.

We are bound to add, that there was not an unanimity of opinion amongst the visitors as to the supply of candidates for the school from that class of society by which we believe the court would wish to see it filled, as it was stated by some of them that at the neighbouring school of North Walsham (even with a good master), the numbers, from some cause or other, had dwindled from a hundred to about one dozen boys. This we have heard attributed to the indiscriminate introduction into the school of boys of all classes.

We feel much satisfaction in thinking that we have a very efficient visitor in the Rev. E. Brummell, the rector of Holt, who feels a strong interest in the school, and whose attainments in mathematics and the classics peculiarly qualify him for the examination of the scholars, which he chiefly conducted on the present occasion.

Rev. E.
Brummell

In conclusion, we would assure the court that we have devoted our best attention to the objects of our visitation, and recommended a course which, in our judgment, while it is best adapted to meet the requirements of the case, would also reflect the greatest credit on the governors, and we trust that the court will consider the matter in that spirit of liberality which characterises the proceedings of the Fishmongers' Company.

All which we beg to submit.

Signed by the Deputation.

Dated 23rd June, 1857.

The court having referred the said report to the Holt Committee, that committee met on the 16th ult., and agreed to the following recommendations, viz.:—

That at Christmas next the Rev. Benjamin Pulleyne be allowed to retire, and that the services of the usher, Mr. John Kent, be then dispensed with.

That a gratuity of 100*l.* be then presented to the Rev. B. Pulleyne, and that an annuity of 100*l.* be granted to him from that date.

That a gratuity of 30*l.* be presented to Mr. Kent, and

That such gratuities and yearly annuity be from time to time carried to the debit of the school and trust accounts, but that the trust account be afterwards credited with the amounts, and that the same be placed to the debit of the Company's "general account."

G g

The committee again met on the 20th ult., and resolved on the following report, viz. :—

The committee having, agreeably to the directions of the court, taken into consideration the remainder of the report of the late deputation, beg to refer to their minutes of the 16th inst., as to several recommendations upon certain matters contained in such report. As to the larger question relating to the school itself, the committee had hoped that an experiment might have been made with a new master, retaining the buildings in their present state, thereby ascertaining whether the educational demands of the neighbourhood were such as to justify the Company in incurring such large expense as the rebuilding of the master's house and school would demand; but the deputation report that these buildings are in such a defective state as to render the experiment wholly impossible. This being the case, your committee inquired anxiously of the gentlemen forming the deputation whether they had made inquiry of the inhabitants of Holt, as well as of the visitors, as to the wants of the town as well as neighbourhood, of such a school as would be established with a new master and new buildings. It appears that such inquiry was made, and that an anxiety was expressed, both by the inhabitants and the visitors, that the Company would supply the want which they said certainly does exist.

Upon reference to specifications and plans for a new schoolroom, made in 1850, the committee find that the estimate for a new schoolroom was 500*l.*; and in referring to Mr. Suter as to the cost of a master's residence, with accommodation for 20 boarders, and the alteration of ground consequent upon both, his opinion is that the expenditure of at least 5,000*l.* would be incurred to complete these works.

The committee, in the event of the court determining upon erecting a new building, beg to recommend the suggestion of the deputation, viz., that the Company should advance the necessary funds, without interest to the trust, to be repaid as the funds of the trust will permit.

The committee beg to state the above facts to the court; but as so large a sum is involved in the ultimate decision of this question, they think that it ought to be for the court at large to determine, rather than any small section of their body.

In order to adjust the present state of the trust account, the committee recommend that the account be credited with the charge made for members attending committees since August 1836, and that in future such charge be not carried to the debit of the trust.

The committee also submit to the consideration of the court, that, in the event of the school premises being entirely rebuilt, the cottages now standing to the south thereof, which were purchased by the Company, and for which a sum of 508*l.* 19*s.* 5*d.* was due to the Company at Christmas last, would have to be taken down, and consequently that sum would have to be written off to the debit of the Company.

STATUTES AND ORDERS OF HOLT SCHOOL, Norfolk.

SECTION I.

Of the Scholars.

The number of free scholars shall be 50, chosen from the town of Holt and its neighbourhood.

They shall be called Sir John Gresham's scholars, and shall be instructed, free of expense, in reading, writing, arithmetic, English grammar, history, geography, and latin; and at the discretion of the master, in mathematics, geometry, and Greek.

Scholars (being of the age of 7 years or upwards, and able to read) shall from time to time, as vacancies occur, be admitted by order of the governors, or by the master, with the approbation in writing of at least two of the visitors, the master in the latter case being satisfied as to the eligibility of the scholar; and a scholar may in like manner be dismissed from the school.

The name and age of each free scholar, and the names of the visitors with whose approbation he is admitted, together with the dates of his admission and final departure from the school, shall be registered in a book to be kept for that purpose by the master, or by the usher under his direction.

Every scholar at his admission shall be accompanied by a parent or friend, who shall pay to the master 1*s.* for entering such scholar's name in the register, and shall sign an engagement that the scholar shall not be detained from school except on account of sickness, nor removed without one calendar month's notice in writing being given to the master, and that he shall attend at the school, clean in his person and neatly clothed, at the appointed hours, viz., from 9 to 12 in the forenoon, and from 2 to half-past 4 in the afternoon; * or at such other hours as the governors may from time to time order and direct.

The only holidays shall be—

- One week at Easter,
- Five weeks at Midsummer,
- One week at Michaelmas,
- Five weeks at Christmas,
- And every Wednesdays and Saturday afternoons.*

For the encouragement of the scholars, the governors have founded an exhibition of 20*l.* per annum, to be held (subject to conditions) for four years by a free scholar removing from the school to any university of the United Kingdom, upon proper certificates and good recommendation of the visitors and the master.†

The governors will pay two thirds of the cost of all books (excepting writing books) used in the school by free scholars, they paying the remaining one third.

A printed copy of this section shall be delivered to the parent or friend of each scholar on his admission.

* I hereby consent to and approve of these alterations.
(Signed) JOHN T. NORWICH.

19th July 1860.

† The Reverend Sheldon Jodrell's Prize, Established 1858.—The yearly interest of 800*l.* New Three Per Cent. Annuities to be presented in books to the best mathematical scholar, combined with general good conduct; the choice of the books being left to the scholar, subject to the approval of the governors.
Prizes in books are also given by the governors at Midsummer.

SECTION II.

Of the Master.

There shall be one master, whose appointment shall be in conformity to the following orders, viz. :—

An election of master shall take place every second year, on the Monday before the feast of St. John the Baptist.

Upon any vacancy of the mastership, every candidate, before his name be put on the balloting list, shall produce satisfactory certificates of his qualifications for the office, and shall engage, in writing, to sign (if elected) a bond, in which the terms of his appointment to the office shall be expressed, and by which he shall bind himself to resign the same whenever called upon by the governors so to do.

The master shall have the superintendence and management of the school; direct the usher in, and take care that he performs his several duties. He shall appoint the books to be read in the different classes, and personally instruct the scholars, more especially the higher classes, in Latin, Greek, mathematics, and geometry; he shall read prayers once a day in the school, or cause them to be read by the usher; during school hours he shall constantly wear a gown, to be provided by the governors; and shall not be absent from his duties except on urgent occasions.

He shall not take upon him any cure or other employment without the previous consent of the governors in writing.

He shall be allowed a salary of 200*l.* per annum, and a further sum in case a residence be not provided for him by the governors.

He shall be allowed 15*s.* per annum for each of the free scholars, for which he shall provide writing books, pens, ink, and paper for their use. He shall also be allowed the sums of 10*s.*, 15*s.*, 20*s.*, 25*s.*, and 30*s.*, annually, for each boy in the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, and 5th Latin classes respectively.

He shall have the privilege of taking 10 boarders, or such other number as the governors may see fit.

Seven tons of coals will be provided annually by the governors for use in the school.

SECTION III.

Of the Usher.

The usher shall be appointed by the master, with the approbation of the governors, and in like manner displaced.

He shall teach reading, writing, arithmetic, geography, history, and English grammar, and be qualified to assist, if necessary, in the instruction of the lower classes in Latin, under the direction of the master; he shall direct the opening, shutting, and cleansing of the school, and not be absent from his duties without leave of the master.

He shall be allowed a salary of 110*l. per annum, providing his own board and lodging.

SECTION IV.

Of the Visitors.

There shall be such a number of visitors of the school appointed from time to time as the governors shall think fit.

There shall be an examination of the free scholars publicly in the school immediately before the Midsummer and Christmas vacations respectively, in the presence of the visitors; on which occasions the statutes shall be audibly read by the master.

The master shall give to the visitors 10 days' notice of the day appointed for each examination; and notice thereof shall be put upon the church door on the preceding Sunday by the parish clerk, who shall receive 2*s.* 6*d.* for his trouble.

The visitors shall certify the number and names of the free scholars, the dates of their admissions, and the names of the visitors with whose approbation they were admitted, distinguishing their several classes and the books read by each scholar; and shall report generally on the state of the school, which report is to be transmitted by the master to the governors.

We do consent and approve of the above statutes and orders so far as by law we may.

JOHN T. NORWICH.

Norwich, 8th September 1858.

* I hereby consent to and approve of this alteration.

AN ACCOUNT of the RE-OPENING of the GRESHAM FREE GRAMMAR SCHOOL, at HOLT, NORFOLK, on the 3rd of NOVEMBER 1858; including the ADDRESS delivered by THOMAS BODDINGTON, Esq., Prime Warden of the FISHMONGERS' COMPANY; with Extracts from the Report of the Deputation appointed by the Court of the 2nd August 1858; also, an Account of the Proceedings on that occasion, collected from the "Norwich Mercury," the "Norfolk News," and "Norfolk Chronicle"; followed by a Biographical Sketch of Sir John Gresham, Knt., Founder of the School.

EXTRACTS from the REPORT of the DEPUTATION, appointed by ORDER of the COURT of the 2nd of AUGUST 1858, to open the SCHOOLROOM lately built in HOLT.

In pursuance of the above order, the deputation, consisting of Thomas Boddington, Esq., Prime Warden, William Edwards, Esq., Second Warden, Joseph Underwood, Esq., Renter-Warden, and John Towgood, Gilbert W. Mackmurdo, James Spicer, George Moore, and Sidney Gurney, Esqrs., Assistants, accompanied by Mr. W. B. Towse, and Mr. Suter, assembled in Holt, on Tuesday, the 2nd November.

On the following morning the deputation viewed the new building, which appears to have been substantially erected by Mr. Orman, of Ipswich, under the management and superintendence of Mr. Suter.

The room is 57 feet long, by 20 feet wide, and 18 feet high, and Mr. Suter seems to have carefully studied the important matters of light and ventilation, whilst the exterior of the building, which is constructed of red and black brick (although at present but a wing of the old building), presents a pleasing feature, and promises to be a great improvement to that part of the town of Holt. The room is divided by a partition with folding doors, so arranged as to unite the advantage of two separate class rooms, and on occasions to enable the whole interior to be thrown into one. Two bookcases at the west end of the room have been made for the valuable Greek and Latin books presented by the Company in 1729, and for the small library of English works presented in 1844, as well as for other books which may be added to the collection. Between the east end of the school and the barn a playground has been formed, the north side thereof being appropriated to a play shed, a washing place, and other conveniences for the master and the scholars. The ground however, being very confined, directions were given to the Rev. C. A. Elton to have the small meadow immediately connected with the playground levelled and appropriated as a cricket ground for the recreation of the scholars.

Invitations (in pursuance of the orders given by the committee of the 27th of September last to the Prime warden and renter-warden) were sent to the visitors of the school and to the Honourable and Right Reverend the Lord Bishop of Norwich, to the Marquis of Lothian, Earl of Orford, Earl of Leicester, Lord Hastings, and Lord Sondes, also to the Dean of Norwich, and several Clergymen, noblemen, and gentlemen of influence, resident at Holt and its neighbourhood, to meet the deputation in

Re-opening of the school, 3rd
November.

It having been arranged that the re-opening of the school should be celebrated, first, by an attendance in Holt church, as on the occasion of the appointment of the late master, the Rev. Benjamin Pulleyne, in 1809, application was made to the rector, the Rev. E. Brumell, to read the afternoon prayers, and afterwards to give a short address upon the interesting event. That gentleman, however, being but recently married, was unavoidably absent, and the Rev. J. Bulwer, of Hunworth, one of the visitors of the school, kindly undertook to perform the duties.

Attendance
church.

Most of the visitors assembled in the church about twelve o'clock, when prayers were read and an appropriate discourse delivered by the Rev. J. Bulwer, taking his text from the fourteenth chapter of Proverbs and the thirteenth verse. The deputation walked from the school to the church in their livery gowns, preceded by two mace-bearers, the Company's beadle, the clerk, the Rev. J. Bulwer, and the chaplain to St. Peter's Hospital (the Rev. G. W. Cockerell), and, after service, returned in the like manner to the school.

Déjeuner in the schoolroom.

About two o'clock the guests invited on the occasion assembled in the schoolroom, to partake of a cold collation, laid on long tables down each side and across the top and bottom of the room. The walls had been decorated the day before with festoons of evergreens, mixed with flowers, and hung with various flags, including the banner of the Gresham family, and at each end of the room that of the Fishmongers' Company, the whole producing a lively and agreeable effect.

After the substantial part of the déjeuner was over, the prime warden gave the health of Her Majesty, after which that of the Bishop of Norwich, regretting the unavoidable absence of his Lordship, expressed in a note, which he read to the company. The prime warden then addressed the meeting on the subject of the school, and introduced the newly elected master, the Rev. C. A. Elton. Several other toasts were afterwards given by the prime warden. The whole of the proceedings of the day are reported in the "Norwich Mercury," and other Norfolk papers of the 6th instant.

The entertainment seemed to give great satisfaction. Dr. Buck, the celebrated organist of Norwich Cathedral, feeling deeply the kindness done to him by the governors in partly educating his nephew (now the Rev. F. Buck) in Holt school, and afterwards granting him an exhibition of 20*l.* per annum, which he has lately resigned, requested that his nephew, as well as himself, might be present on the occasion.

An invitation having accordingly been sent, he attended, bringing with him a pianist, and three choristers of his cathedral, who first sang in the church, and added much to the enjoyment of the day by singing some admirable glees and songs after the repast. He also presented to each guest a small printed book of the musical performance during the entertainment.

Deputation meet at the school to elect the scholars.

On the following morning, the deputation (with the exception of George Moore and Sidney Gurney, Esqrs., who were obliged to leave Holt) attended in the schoolroom, to receive (in pursuance of notice given) the applications from parents for the admission of their children into the school. The deputation, having first agreed to the form of a document for parents to sign on the admission of their sons into the school, by which they agreed to conform to the statutes as lately revised, examined a report submitted by the master, the Rev. C. A. Elton, as to the circumstances and respectability of the candidates, and as to their educational wants and future prospects.

Forty-five
examined.

The deputation then went minutely through each application, for the admission of 45 scholars, most of whom, with their parents or friends, attended before the deputation.

As the candidates appeared before the deputation, the prime warden informed them that their applications and references had been duly considered (together with those of every candidate submitted to them), and that the nomination should be announced at the end of the meeting, upon which they retired in succession.

Thirty-four scholars
elected.

The whole list of candidates having been gone through and considered, the deputation decided upon electing 34 scholars, who, with their parents or friends, were then called in, and addressed by the prime warden.

Sixteen scholars subsequently elected.

Since these nominations, 16 more scholars have been elected, to complete the total number of 50 free boys, according to the statutes of the foundation.

The deputation had not an opportunity of seeing the usher, Mr. Phillips, appointed by the Rev. Mr. Elton, that gentleman not having arrived during their stay at Holt.

The deputation having completed their business, returned to London on Friday, the 5th of November.

5th Nov.

London.

The deputation conclude their report by praying that the step taken by the Company, in building a new schoolroom, and in the selection of a new master, may prove as conducive to the benefit of the future scholars of Sir John Gresham's school, as every one connected with its future prosperity seemed to expect, and as the governors can desire, and by strongly recommending to the consideration of [the court the completion of the building as soon as it may be deemed reasonable to carry it out.

Signed by the deputation, and dated
18th Nov. 1858.

REVIVAL OF THE FREE GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

The interest created by the revival of the Gresham Free Grammar School was evident by the notice taken of the looked-for occurrence by the local papers. The following appeared in the "Norfolk News" of Oct. 30 :—

"We are glad to learn that the ancient Free Grammar School in this town, founded by Sir John Gresham, is about to be re-opened, and that it is arranged for a deputation of the governors—the Worshipful Company of Fishmongers of the City of London—to come down on Wednesday, the 3rd of November, to open the schoolroom, which has recently been rebuilt, and to introduce the newly appointed master. The gentleman selected is the Rev. Charles Allen Elton, late Lecturer and Fellow of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, where he obtained a high position in the mathematical Tripos. He is well known as a distinguished scholar, and has been chosen on more than one occasion by the master and fellows of his college to examine the cathedral school at Gloucester. Mr. Elton, we understand, has recently been residing at Willingham, in Cambridgeshire, where he officiated for upwards of six years as curate, with full charge of that important parish, and where, from his devotion to his clerical duties, and the ability and address exhibited in school management, he gained the general respect and affection of his parishioners. We hope we may accept as an auspicious augury of the success of the Holt school the appointment of the present master, who is well known to have given much of his time and energies to the theory and practice of education. From all that we can learn there is every ground for confidence that the re-establishment of the school under such auspices will be beneficial not only to the town of Holt and its neighbourhood, but to the county generally."

The School.

Three hundred years ago Sir John Gresham founded in this town a Free Grammar School, and endowed it with certain property to be held in trust by "the Wardens and Commonalty of the Mystery of Fishmongers" in London. The school has educated 50 boys at a time, chosen from the town and neighbourhood, besides others not on the foundation, but taken as boarders by the master. The structure is Elizabethan, and afforded accommodation not only for the school, but also for the master's residence. At Christmas last the Rev. Benjamin Pulleyne, who had presided over the establishment for nearly 50 years, tendered his resignation in consequence of his advanced age and his increasing desire to be more closely united with his parishioners at Weybourne. The rev. gentleman's withdrawal was of course accepted, but not without regret, for few who have occupied a position of such responsibility have discharged their duties with so much satisfaction, and have, on surrendering office, carried with them a more sincere respect and esteem than is entertained for Mr. Pulleyne by those who, as youths, received their education under his care and direction. Mr. Pulleyne's resignation was deemed by the Worshipful Company of Fishmongers a fitting opportunity for imparting fresh vigour to the institution by the erection of a new and more commodious schoolroom, and the election of a younger and consequently a more active master. The old school-house, which bore marks of the destroying hand of time, could not be properly repaired or extended so as to suit the exigencies or requirements of the present day; and a new room has therefore been built on a plan furnished by Richard Suter, Esq., of London, who has on other occasions acted as the Company's architect.

The Building.

The new schoolroom is erected on the left-hand side of the old building, and abuts upon the road leading to the parish church. The contrast between the new and the old structures is as marked as it well could be, the deep red colour of the brickwork throwing the dirty gray of its plaster-covered companion completely in the shade, and presenting anything but an agreeable and harmonious whole. It is, however, we believe, the intention of the Company hereafter to confirm their right to be remembered with gratitude in Holt, by a residence which shall render the work complete, and worthy the founder and renovators. The interior of the school is spacious and lofty, and calculated to afford accommodation for a large number of scholars. It is an oblong room, 57 feet long, by 20 feet in width, and 18 feet high, lighted by several lofty windows. An apparatus is fixed by which abundant ventilation may be obtained. For several feet from the ground the sides of the room are boarded with stained pine, having a flat panelled ceiling of the same material, with provision for dormitories over the school, if required. Upon the walls are tablets emblazoned with the arms of the Fishmongers' Company, and bearing the names of the deputations who have visited the school at various periods since its foundation. The new building, which is about twice the size of the original structure, is of red and black brick, in the style of the period in which the whole was erected; and we think that the governors have shown good taste in restoring the school very nearly to the form in which the trust was originally committed to them by Sir John Gresham. The style has been carried out plain, but not niggardly, and the few parts which may be thought to claim any attention, would, we think, bear comparison—as far as they go—with similar features in the several superior examples of brick Tudor buildings with which our own and the neighbouring county of Suffolk so richly abound.

Mr. Orman, of Ipswich, was the contractor, and he appears to have done his work well.

The inauguration or reinvigoration of a school in a district like that of Holt, and particularly at a time when the feeling for an enlarged system is so universally prevalent, would naturally be a matter of considerable interest to all who have been scholars or who have children to educate. The great name of the founder of this school, and its connexion with a Company, whose liberality and wealth are equally known, would also create a further interest in the neighbourhood and in the town, since to both the quality of the education, as well as the mode by which access to the school was to be obtained, was of considerable importance. In this case the Worshipful Company of Fishmongers apparently have placed the school on a liberal foundation, while they have guarded the selection of free scholars by very proper, yet not stringent, restrictions. Fifty are to be the number of free scholars; they can be admitted from seven, as vacancies occur, by order of the governors, or by the master, with the approbation in writing of at least two of the visitors, who are selected from the nobility, clergy, and gentry of the neighbourhood, and who may therefore be supposed to have competent means of knowing the character of the parties who may apply. The hours of school are from nine to twelve, and from two to four; the holidays are one week at Easter, five weeks at Midsummer, one week at Michaelmas, five weeks at Christmas, and every Saturday afternoon. An exhibition of 20*l.* a year can be held for four years by a free scholar removing from the school to any university upon proper certificates from the master and the visitors. The governors pay two thirds of the cost of all books (except writing-books), the free scholars paying the remainder.

The master is to be elected every second year, and to engage in a bond, in which the terms of his appointment are expressed, to resign whenever called upon by the governors so to do. He is to take no cure without leave, and his salary is 200*l.* per annum, and a further sum in case a residence be not provided for him. He is allowed 15*s.* per annum for each free scholar, he providing writing-books, pens, ink, and paper; and he is also to be allowed 10*s.*, 15*s.*, 20*s.*, 25*s.*, and 30*s.* annually for each boy in the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, and 5th Latin classes respectively. He has the privilege of taking 10 boarders, or such other number as the governors may see fit; and seven tons of coals are allowed annually for the use of the school.

The usher's salary is 80*l.* An examination is to take place before the visitors at Midsummer and Christmas, of which notice is to be given on the church door the preceding Sunday. The visitors to report generally on the state of the school.

The instructions to be in reading, writing, arithmetic,

English grammar, history, geography, Latin, and, at the discretion of the master, mathematics, geometry, and Greek.

Such are in brief the outlines of the statutes of the school, which the prime warden of this company, Thomas Boddington, Esq., and a number of its members, opened on Wednesday, first by divine service, and immediately after by a déjeuner in the newly-erected schoolroom.

The Sermon.

The ladies and gentlemen, and clergy in the neighbourhood, who had been invited to the celebration, began to arrive between eleven and twelve, and about the hour appointed the church was nearly full.

The prime warden and the members of the deputation, accompanied by the clerk of the Company, attended at the school-house, where, having robed, they proceeded to church, preceded by their mace-bearers, officials, and chaplain, and took their seats at the entrance of the chancel. The service commenced by an anthem, sung, without accompaniment, by four of the cathedral choristers in a manner that did them much credit, although the effect of Mendelssohn's music was greatly marred by the want of the organ. Prayers were read by the Rev. J. Bulwer, in the absence of the Rev. E. Brumell, the rector. The sermon was preached from the 4th chapter of Proverbs, 13th verse—"Take fast hold of instruction; let her not go; keep her; for she is thy life." The rev. preacher said it was his intention to take a short general view of education, as it affected man's position in this and the future life. It was a trite illustration which likened the mind of man to the soil he was appointed to cultivate. "Man's nature," said the great Lord Bacon, "runs either to herbs or weeds; therefore let him reasonably water the one and destroy the other." If the soil were neglected it became a rank and foul mass, overrun with noxious and offensive weeds, and the abode of hurtful reptiles; but if cultivated with care, and prepared to receive and extract the blessings of heaven, it presented a prospect grateful to the senses, and fertile in whatever was good and useful. Just so if the human mind were left to itself, without direction or control, the reason lay in darkness, the appetites and passions became inflamed, and evil habits became permanent, until at length wickedness tyrannised over the whole man, and he became lost both with regard to this and the future world. But if early and wholesome instruction were given, if the young mind were taught to value the objects on which true happiness depended, and to thirst after knowledge, thence would proceed the dutiful and affectionate child, the useful member of society, and the hopeful candidate for a happier estate hereafter. Looking at instruction as regarded the understanding, there was nothing which more strongly impressed the mind of the thinking man than the prodigious contrast between the lowest state of uneducated nature, and the highest state of mental culture or civilization. The untutored savage, ignorant of nature and the use of everything around him, roamed the shore or the woods in search of whatever accident might present to his wants. He might succeed, and, having satisfied the cravings of hunger, he sank into a state of torpor, until, once more aroused by the wants of nature, he again sought for the means of satisfying them, and if they could not be found, even his poor life could not be saved. Such had been the state of existence on both the continents of America, and in other regions of the globe, where life had been without enjoyment, and existence a burden. But of what was man capable? In the gradual progress of society, from the humblest beginnings, observation grew on observation, the aged communicated knowledge to the young, one generation helped the next, and as circumstances occurred, the reason was strengthened, new combinations arose and experience put them to use, the mind learnt to reflect on what passed without, the likeness of one state of things to another taught men to foresee the future, and thus gradually man became a highly intellectual creature. As the principles and uses of things were from time to time discovered, the blessings of earth, air, fire, and water were extracted, nature was made to bestow her treasures on all that lived, and things of beauty and perfection gladdened the heart of man; cities were built, ports were opened, commerce connected distant lands, and the knowledge, as well as the products of nations, were mutually interchanged; hence, arts and science arose, knowledge begat knowledge, the human mind became enlarged, man became a wonder in his attainments to himself, and his achievements raised his nature, and reflected glory on his Maker. Herein the wisdom of God seemed more admirable than if man had been at once formed in the full vigour of his faculties. But man was not furnished with reason and understanding alone. There were also implanted in his nature, and for the wisest and best purposes, affections and passions. All were conscious of desires or dislikes, of gratitude or resentment, of self-love or sympathy, of approving or disapproving tendencies, and of the more intense feelings of joy or sorrow, friendship or hatred, admiration or depreciation. These things gave energy and effect to human life, but, permitted to become unruly, to operate as mere impulses that sway the mind, every evil that rendered an individual wretched and disturbed society, arose uncontrolled. Here instruction, the dictates of wisdom, the lessons of a well-conducted education, converted into blessings those lively affections which, if not controlled by education, and not directed by religious and virtuous motives, impelled all the excesses that poisoned human happiness. When the motive was good, when the object to be gained was praiseworthy, then these lively feelings, this warmth of heart, rising to virtuous enthusiasm, gave energy to those worthy exertions in the cause of benevolence, both public and private, which seemed to ennoble our nature; but when reason and religion were not the guides, when ambition, vanity, avarice, or other selfish passions ruled the heart, then were to be noted the fatal consequences on families, communities, and nations. We had heard of tremendous examples in our own time in the various revolutions on the continent, and the troubles of more distant lands, where the bonds of society were broken, the domestic ties violated, public institutions demolished, the wise, the good, and the moderate sacrificed to ambition, and vice inflamed into madness. We, thank God! had been preserved from these calamities, our public or private institutions had given instruction to every class, and taught us to value the blessings we enjoyed. Wholesome instruction had been early imbibed, we had been taught what miseries followed in the end of the tyranny of our passions, what happy effects followed from the direction of our affections to worthy purposes; and when we at the same time had been so guided by precept and example as to feel in our own conduct the blessing of instruction, the whole course of life took its tone and colour from such guidance, and our friends in society, as well as ourselves, reaped the substantial and lasting benefits of it. Even with respect to the present life, were we so devoid of reason, independently of revelation, as to consider it our only portion, even then instruction would be a blessing. But when an educated man had been taught the higher lessons of revelation, then truly instruction, as the text declared, became life indeed, and the lessons of the Bible sowed the seeds of eternal life. Having dwelt upon the blessings of religious instruction, the rev. preacher went on to observe, that those who were in the possession of education, should the more earnestly desire it for those who needed it, and whom Providence had made the objects of their care. There was abundant testimony as to the opinions of the most enlightened characters in England on this great question; and whatever difference of opinion might prevail on minor points among those who were benevolently carrying out the important work—thanks to their efforts thousands were from day to day growing in useful knowledge, religion, piety, and virtue. He did not address any one present who thought that a humble position in life ought to be denied a better education, lest it should tend to make them scorn their proper duties, and thus render them bad members of the community. Unless indifference to religion and morals were instilled, instead of the pure principles of Christianity, that could not happen. In every human breast God had implanted, in some degree, the seeds of every talent and every virtue, and they were met that day to ask God's blessing on efforts to expand the blossom and produce the fruit for the benefit of society and the glory of the Almighty. Might God grant to this school His abundant blessing; might He direct and guide the minds of those who set over it to that course which should most conduce to the benefit here and hereafter of those committed to their charge; and might all who were privileged to attend this school be esteemed for their virtues as well as for their endowments; and, after a useful and Christian life, be made happy with Christ in the glory of his heavenly name!

After service a large party of ladies and gentlemen sat down to a sumptuous repast in the schoolroom, which had been appropriately decorated for the occasion.

At each end a purple banner displayed the arms of the Company, bearing the Company's motto, "All worship be to God only;" the walls were festooned with flowers and evergreens, and numberless flags and banners formed a gay canopy above the heads of the company.

The guests included, in addition to the deputation of the Fishmongers' Company, viz.:—

The Lord Bishop, the Very Rev. the Dean, the Marquis of Lothian, Earl of Orford, Earl of Leicester, Lord Hastings, and Lord Sondes, Sir John Boileau, Bt., J. Scott Chad, Esq., Col. Fitzroy, Gurney Hoare, Esq., and other gentlemen of the county were invited, but were unable to be present. Masters Smith, Mann, and Baldry were in attendance, and sang some choice selections during the evening to the evident gratification of the company.

The Déjeuner.

The déjeuner comprised all that the good taste of this celebrated Company could suggest or procure, and the wines, which were brought down expressly from their own cellars, were of the very finest quality. The substantial were provided by Mr. Parke, of the Feathers, and were first rate, while the arrangement and attention did both himself and his establishment great credit.

The prime warden presided, and was supported on the right by Sir Willoughby Jones, Bart., and on his left by the Rev. J. Bulwer. When this large company was seated, the appearance of the school was exceedingly brilliant.

The PRIME WARDEN first proposed "The health of the Queen," a sovereign who not only possessed the entire confidence and the sincerest affections of her people, but who also claimed the admiration and esteem of the world. She had already reigned many years over us, and he would express the hope that her reign might be prolonged for many years to come, and insure to us a continuance of those blessings of peace and of liberty which we had hitherto enjoyed.

This toast was drunk standing, and with three times three cheers; and was followed by the National Anthem, beautifully sung by the boys from the Norwich cathedral choir.

The PRIME WARDEN said—Before he had the honour of addressing them on the subject of their meeting to-day, he must express the regret of the deputation at the absence of the Bishop of Norwich, which they regretted the more, as his lordship, to whom the statutes of the school had been submitted for his sanction and approval, had been willing to show great interest in the success of the foundation. He knew he was speaking the sentiments of all present when he said that no bishop ever entered more thoroughly into the interests of his diocese, or considered with more zeal, care, and solicitude the position as well as the wants and requirements of the various churches under his charge than the present Bishop of Norwich. (Hear, hear.) He trusted that health and strength would be given to his lordship equal to the vigour of his desire to promote in all things the glory of God, and to fulfil those arduous duties which attached to his sacred office. (Hear.) In the absence of his lordship, which they all regretted exceedingly, he begged to propose his health, and he begged to couple with that toast the name of the Rev. J. Lee Warner. (Applause.) Before he sat down, it might be satisfactory to the meeting to hear him read a note which the bishop had been pleased to address to the deputation. It was dated from the Palace, October the 27th. In it his lordship said—"I beg to acknowledge your kind letter accompanying a copy of the revised statutes of the Holt School. I much regret that my engagements will not allow me to meet you at Holt on the 3rd of November. I should have been truly glad to have been present on so interesting an occasion. I trust that it may please God to prosper the efforts made by your honourable Company to make this grammar school a sound and an efficient means of education in the town and neighbourhood of Holt." (Applause.)

The prime warden concluded by proposing the health of "the bishop and clergy," and coupled with the toast the name of the Rev. James Lee Warner. (Applause.)

The Rev. J. LEE WARNER, in responding, said, when he entered this noble room and looked round under the evergreens and flowers with which it was so tastefully decorated he imagined that he noted the absence of his very worthy friend, the rector of this parish. The occasion of that absence was shortly afterwards hinted to him, and it was to that circumstance that he believed he was indebted for the honour of being called upon to address the company on this occasion. With respect to the absence of their friend, all he could say was, that he wished him a pleasant excursion and a speedy and safe return—(hear, hear)—and he was sure that his friend would have performed the task which now devolved upon him (Mr. Lee Warner) much better than he could expect to do. With respect to the bishop of this diocese, he was so well known to them all, and so justly valued, that he was sure it would be unnecessary for him to say anything in his behalf, saving and excepting, that he, in common with the clergy, felt, and must necessarily feel, proud of the honour done to him on this occasion, and of the terms in which the prime warden had introduced the toast. With respect to the clergy generally, he thought he might say, without arrogance, that they were the friends of education. (Hear, hear.) If he were called upon to produce proof of that assertion, he would appeal to the list of subscriptions to any national school in this kingdom. (Applause.) The clergy were undoubtedly the friends of education. They did not, of course, arrogate this title exclusively to themselves; on the contrary, they rejoiced to think that the cause of education was being extended and promoted in every way. It had been mentioned to him, and if he were wrong there were those here who were able to contradict him, that the wish of the patrons and supporters of this school was to throw the doors of education as widely open as possible—in fact, to open them a little wider than they had hitherto been opened. (Hear, hear.) He confessed that he was of those who rejoiced in this. (Hear, hear.) They had been very properly reminded, in the admirable discourse they had heard this morning, that they were working to educate men for eternity. (Hear.) Strange, then, would it be if they did not rejoice in every opportunity of beginning the education of those immortal beings as early as they could obtain them; for this life was the portal to eternity. (Hear, hear.) He believed there was on this point some little difference of opinion, but he was going to say that he rejoiced that the doors of education were thrown open, and about to be thrown open more than ever, to their dissenting brethren. (Hear, hear.) It was the case in the universities, and he had been told that it was likely to be the case here. (Applause.) When he looked back to the founders of this school, he looked to Sir John Gresham, and the times in which he lived. He knew that the statutes of many of these schools were based on rather a restricted foundation, but he imagined that it was the privilege of posterity to supplement the good deeds of their worthy ancestors—(hear, hear)—and had Sir John Gresham lived in the present day, he imagined he would have thrown his school open to every Englishman. (Applause.) They were all assembled here by the invitation of a guild of the city of London, which dated (he believed) from the days of Edward III. Now, if Sir John Gresham had lived in those days, instead of being the munificent founder of everything great as connected with the trade and commerce of his native city, we should have seen him walking about in a suit of chain armour, and dreaming of the fields of Cressy and Poitiers, while we should have seen those arts which had now raised our country to the highest pinnacle of glory thrown in the shade and background by the warlike spirit of those early times. (Hear, hear.) Therefore, he said, Sir John Gresham was a man far in advance of that period, and that it was our duty in the present day to carry on the institutions of our country and advance them so as to render them as universally beneficial as it was possible for them to be. (Applause.) The rev. gentleman concluded by again thanking the meeting for the honour done to the bishop and clergy of the diocese.

The PRIME WARDEN then rose and spoke as follows:

THE PRIME WARDEN'S ADDRESS.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,

"THE deputation of the Fishmongers' Company feel highly gratified in meeting you here to-day, and I beg to thank you for so numerous and influential an attendance on this occasion, one of great interest, not only to the governors of this school and to the town of Holt, but to the county in general, as it has for its object the promotion of education—a subject which now occupies so much the thought and wisdom of the country. (Hear, hear.) I need scarcely tell you that this ancient school was founded in the reign of Philip and Mary, in the year 1554, by Sir John Gresham, Knight, citizen, and alderman of London. The name of Gresham is handed down to us as an ornament to the commerce and enterprise of England—one of which this county, as well as London, may be well proud, as so eminently connected with acts of munificent charity and foundations of religious and practical education—a name reminding us of the ancient prince-merchants of Florence, with this difference, that I doubt whether Italy can boast of liberal and philanthropic institutions founded by the Medici, such as in this country bear the name of Gresham. (Cheers.) Although, when abroad, we stand in admiration before the central establishments raised by regal power for public and philanthropic purposes, we are not the less proud of those innumerable proofs of individual energy at home, exemplified in the educational and charitable institutions—nowhere more numerous than in this county—and which are inscribed as "supported by voluntary contributions." I trust such institutions will long exist amongst us, stand upon their own merits alone, and continue to be supported on religious and constitutional principles, according to the free wisdom and discretion of their benevolent patrons. (Applause.) It is the boast of England that we have not waited until now for compulsory measures of state to rouse our sympathy on behalf of the poor and the uninstructed, or to enforce on us the duty of every one to take by the hand the children of the destitute, and to reform the vicious; but we have, on that characteristic and wholesome principle of local self-government and self-assistance, ever been voluntary labourers in the great cause of general education in this country. It must be remembered that, at the period of the foundation of this school, education was but glimmering in the horizon, and but in its dawn, when compared with the height it has now reached, and the blaze of light it now throws into the dwellings of our remotest villages, and into the darkest corners of our manufacturing towns, formerly so corrupt with ignorance and vice. It may be interesting to you to know that on this very spot, where, upwards of three centuries ago, stood the old manor house of Holt market, supposed to have been originally built about 1483, in the reign of Richard III. (but since reconstructed), lived John Gresham, of that ancient family who derived their name from the village in this neighbourhood, father of Sir John Gresham, founder of this school. You will find in Mr. Burgon's interesting "Life and Times of Sir Thomas Gresham," that Sir John Gresham was born in this house. He afterwards bought the family mansion of his brother, William Gresham, in 1546, and in 1554 he converted it into the present Free Grammar School for the inhabitants of Holt and the whole neighbouring county, and endowed it in 1556 with the manor of Holt Pereers and a grove called Prior's Grove, and other property, together with certain freehold estates in the City of London, to be held in trust and managed by the wardens and commonalty of the "Mistry" of Fishmongers of London: the total rental of these now amounts to about 450*l.* a year. It will perhaps be as well to inform those who have not seen the account of the Fishmongers' trusts, published in the report of the Commissioners of Charities, wherein the expenditure is shown to surpass the income derived from the estate, that, although every part of that income is devoted to the sole objects of the trust, the governors have been obliged to make advances out of the funds of the Company to meet the necessary expenses, without any participation whatsoever in the benefit of this school by themselves or by the children of their own freemen. (Great applause.) Three centuries have passed since that time, and many masters, as you may imagine, have succeeded each other in teaching rising generations in this school. It is not known who was the first master of the school, but Christopher Williams was master in 1594, and from that period 20, I believe, are counted to the present time, none, however, of historical repute, excepting John Holmes, to whom a monument is erected in the church of Holt, and save one Thomas Cooper, who probably would have preferred not being an exception, as he was so unlucky as to be hung before the school door, during the civil wars, for his adherence to Charles I. (Laughter.) To see the vestiges of so old a building about to pass away, and to be replaced by a new structure, however much in the character of a remote period, is a painful sight to the lover of typographical antiquity. The arms of the Greshams, and those of the Fishmongers' Company, are still over the arched doorway; but the altered state of the building, and the modernised and patched-up interior, scarcely speak of the real antiquity of the foundation. Such as it is, however, with its gray walls, with its moss, with its time stains, it finds itself in its old age out of place next to the newly erected schoolroom, and with a good grace sooner or later must yield to its successor; and when it shall have disappeared altogether, probably many an aged inhabitant of this town will regret the absence of the familiar old school front, and the substitution of a modern structure. (Cheers.) When the building arrived at the period of its natural decay, it became a matter of consideration with the governors how far its reconstruction, and the appointment of a young and energetic master, would ensure the full benefit of the objects of the trust; and the income of the endowed estate being, as I told you, unequal to meet such an expenditure, it was decided to advance the necessary funds to rebuild the schoolroom alone, leaving the completion of the remainder of the building to depend upon the position of importance and usefulness the school might attain in future. (Hear, hear.) It is not to be forgotten, that, at the period of the foundation of this school, no national free school existed at Holt, as at present, and that probably this foundation offered the only opportunity of instruction for the inhabitants. Considering, therefore, that such effective elementary instruction, based upon popular and systematic principles, is now offered by the free schools of Holt and the neighbourhood, the governors are desirous of raising this school to a more advanced standard of education, and the late revision of the statutes has been made with the object of obtaining that end, and restoring the school to what was probably the intention of the founder. (Cheers.) It has been thought desirable that the selection of scholars be made as far as possible from that class to whom, from their position and probable future calling, such education would be suitable and advantageous; for it is evident that the talents of a master such as the one recently appointed would be thrown away in imparting the mere rudiments of primary instruction so admirably taught in national schools. With such an object in view, the choice of a master has occupied the closest attention of the governors, and the election has not been the result of private interest or party influence, but has been dictated by the degree of excellence and qualifications of the numerous candidates who sought for the mastership of Holt School, advertised for public competition. (Cheers.) And here I must be permitted to express a hope that parents whose children enter this school will appreciate the value of what is now offered them, and I especially trust that boys will not be taken away before the needful time has been allowed them for the full development of the benefits of a sufficient course of study; for nothing is more distressing to a master, more injurious to success, than that children, reared to a certain point with so much care in the principles of religion, habits of industrious application, and, above all, in that knowledge of God which alone is understanding, should be prematurely stopped in their course, and taken away, too often on vague pleas of usefulness at home. Although, fortunately, not applicable in this case, I cannot help alluding to those poor children, who, in crowded cities, are taken away too soon from all moral training, and thrown into mental idleness and temptation, and too often exposed to contact with vice and to scenes of practical immorality, before which, still weak, still wavering at that early age, they lose all the good sown in the school, and we see vanish, one after the other, the wholesome impressions we had endeavoured to foster, the simple faith, the sensitive conscience, and that saving spirit of religion and virtue which we had hoped to establish. The interval between childhood and apprenticeship of the young is the most precarious period for the morality of this country, where, especially in factory districts, children are taken from the salutary discipline of the school to live in the overcrowded dwellings at home, in which there is no escaping the sight of injurious examples and the contamination of close habitations, in which both sexes are heaped together, and the frailties of human nature brought before their view. I have now the pleasure of introducing to you the newly elected master, the Rev. Charles Allen Elton, of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, whose long and tried abilities and practical experience in teaching render him so eminently suited to the task. He enters upon his important situation under the auspices of the best wishes of all those who have known him for years past, not only as an active labourer in the vineyard, but as a vigilant guardian of the interests here and hereafter of the numerous parishioners confided to his charge. I need scarcely refer to his acquirements as a teacher or a scholar, which his position at Cambridge sufficiently testifies. He brings not only his heart, but his head and shoulder to the work, with an ardent desire, as well as hope of success. His exertions, I trust, will be assisted by all those present, and we sincerely hope that this ancient school of Holt will rise to that reputation which, in institutions such as this, the talents, the energy, and the popularity of the master can alone insure. (Great applause.)

The Rev. C. A. ELTON, in returning thanks, said he was afraid, if he did not make a better schoolmaster than he was a speaker, the encomiums which the prime warden had passed upon him would have been somewhat misplaced. He could assure them that he considered it both a privilege and a pleasure to be called upon to respond to the good wishes of the friends of the Gresham Grammar School, who had so kindly expressed themselves in reference to its future usefulness and stability. He need not tell them that in the action of every new piece of machinery, let it be adjusted as nicely as it might, there must, at the outset, be a very considerable amount of friction to overcome. (Hear, hear.) From his own experience of schools and school matters, and especially of new schools, he must expect this law to prevail on the present occasion. He trusted, however, that, by bringing to his new duties a sincere desire to devote what faculties the Almighty had given him to the conscientious discharge of the duties he had undertaken, a blessing might rest upon his endeavours, and that they might result in a good issue to His glory. With regard to the education to be pursued in this school he had only to ask one thing, and that was, that parents who confided their boys to his charge would place them with him early, and continue them with him late, not only that they might derive the full benefit from their privileges as Gresham scholars, but that they might give that scheme of liberal and generous instruction, which he hoped would be pursued here, a fair chance. Thus, when the pupils were sent forth into the battle of life, to move in that groove for which Providence had destined them, they might not only leave this place as young men of cultivated minds, refined tastes, and humanised manners, from the training they had received, but, what was still more important, that they might have fixed and rooted in them those good moral and religious principles, without which all instruction was nothing but a simple curse. (Hear and applause.) It was a legitimate ambition of the master to turn out good scholars—to the man who had been educated at Cambridge, perhaps, it was even a higher ambition to turn them out good reasoners—but to the man who, with the profession of a schoolmaster combined that of minister, there could be nothing higher than to train up, not only good scholars, but, above all, good Christians. (Applause.)

The PRIME WARDEN, in proposing the next toast, said—"Having introduced to you the new master, the Rev. Charles A. Elton, who represents the rising hopes of this foundation, I cannot delay expressing the thanks of the Fishmongers' Company to the excellent and esteemed late master, the Rev. Benjamin Pulleyne, whose valued services for nearly half a century in this school will continue in their recollection, as they ever must in that of the inhabitants of Holt. (Applause.) We had wished at the same time we rebuilt and renewed the old school that we could also have restored that bodily house in which he lives, and have imparted fresh vigour and new youth to his frame, worn by length of service. Probably, however, he would not have been desirous to recommence his course of arduous duties, and to again enter the field of laborious action. Indeed, it is not the intention of Providence that such a desire should prevail in any of us when we arrive at that period, when our task is almost accomplished. It is, therefore, only left to us to thank him for his long services, and to express a hope that he may in his retirement continue to enjoy the comforts of peace and health as fully as he possesses the esteem and consideration of the Fishmongers' Company." (Loud cheers.)

The Rev. B. PULLEYNE, in returning thanks, said, he had met with a thousand difficult tasks in his life, but he had never met with one that was more difficult than the present. Those who had known him for many years in this town, knew that he had laboured long and anxiously, and most conscientiously, in the discharge of his duties as master of this school—(hear, hear)—and he wished he could find words adequate to the expression of his feelings on the present occasion. When he remembered the number of years he had been connected with this Company, and the uniform kindness and attention he had always received from them; and when he also considered that they had this day invited him to have the honour of meeting them on this interesting and important occasion, and that the prime warden had expressed himself in such kind and commendatory terms towards himself, and, above all, when he considered that it was owing to the bounty of the governors of this school that he had been able to retire from his laborious duties as its master, to his own parish, where he might contribute, so far as in him lay, to the spiritual and temporal wants of those committed to his charge, he could not but say that they had conferred on him more than he had language to express. He was scarcely 24 when, in September 1809, he was elected to the mastership of this school, and he was now in his 74th year, having only ceased his labours in that capacity during the past year. He had laboured long, and he hoped diligently in the service of the Company, and from the manner in which his health had just been proposed, he thought he might confidently say that he had redeemed the pledge he had made at the commencement—namely, that he should endeavour conscientiously to discharge his duties, whatever might be the result of his efforts. (Hear, and applause.) He had reason to hope that the young people who had gone from the school had fully borne him out in saying that they had received the greatest benefit from their connection with this institution as Gresham scholars. The education that had been given in that school was a happy mixture of the profane and religious, but he would also state that during the whole of the time he had held the mastership he had endeavoured to impress on the minds of the youths that their duty to their parents and themselves was always the primary and first consideration, and he hoped it would continue to be so. As might be supposed, during the period he had been connected with the school—nearly 50 years—he had seen many and affecting changes, for there was not one now alive on the list of the wardens or assistants who was alive when he was elected master of this school. The clerk who was present when the school was opened at that time was no more, and had been succeeded by his son, and those by whom he had been surrounded had also passed away. It had happened to him, as had happened to most men who lived beyond the usual limits of life, that he had outlived his contemporaries. All the sweet companions of his youth were gone, and he alone remained; but he had the satisfaction to know that he had done his duty so far as he was able. It had been well said by Mr. Gay, on a recent occasion, that those who departed were not missed. He had outlived a great many who were useful and valuable men, but they were not missed. Others had come in their steads, and they were no longer wanted. The prime warden, and those by whom he was surrounded, had arisen to fill the places of those who had lived before them, and who had done their duty with an ability and zeal fully equal to that of their successors. He (Mr. Pulleyne) had ceased to occupy the position of master of this school, and he, likewise, should not be missed; for they had elected in his stead one who he trusted came to the school with abilities more cultivated and with greater energy than he could claim, for Mr. Elton was a young man whose mind was active while he was physically strong. He (Mr. Pulleyne) had seen many and wonderful changes in this town. When he first came here there was only this school and a mixed day-school. Now they had, in addition, a national and British school, very large Sunday-schools, and an excellent grammatical day-school. When he was young the school was most limited in its capacity, but now they had for the Gresham scholars a noble and excellent building, well lighted and ventilated, and suitable in every respect to the objects intended. (Hear, hear.) The rev. gentleman concluded by again returning his sincere and heartfelt thanks for the honour that had been done to him in drinking his health.

Sir WILLOUGHBY JONES next rose and said, the prime warden had given him leave to propose a toast, and he was about to propose one which he was sure would be drunk with the utmost enthusiasm and cordiality by every one present. He considered it an honour as well as a pleasure to be allowed to propose the health of the prime warden of the Worshipful Company of Fishmongers. (Loud applause.) Those great London Companies were an honour to England, and there was none that knew better that property had its duties as well as its rights than the Worshipful Company of Fishmongers. (Hear, hear.) The occasion that had this day brought among them in Norfolk the prime warden, who was now sitting at the head of this board, and the deputation who had kindly accompanied him from London to open this schoolroom, was one of the utmost interest to all in this neighbourhood, and in their behalf he begged to return to the prime warden and the deputation their thanks for the noble and munificent liberality of the Company of Fishmongers. (Applause.) The Fishmongers' Company showed themselves worthy descendants of that Sir John Gresham, so aptly styled the merchant prince, compared to the merchant princes of Florence by the worshipful prime warden. (Hear, and applause.) It was not for him (Sir W. Jones) to enter into any of the antiquities of this foundation, for he remembered that next him there sat an Astley, of Melton Constable, and that the Astleys of Melton Constable were living there when the Greshams were living on the spot where the company now met. (Hear, hear.) He would, therefore, leave it to Colonel Astley to lay before them the antiquities of this noble old foundation, nor would he detain them by following the prime warden through any of the topics of the very admirable address he had given them in proposing the health of the new head master; but there was one point of the prime warden's remarks on which he would express his cordial sympathy and approbation, and that was the hope the prime warden had enunciated, that the voluntary system and the local system of education in England would long last, and would never be merged in any government or centralised system. (Hear, hear.) He did most cordially re-echo this sentiment, for he believed they were none of them aware how much of their character as Englishmen they owed to the fact that in their early years they were not under the thumb and screw of any government whatever. (Hear, and applause.) Long might the education of this country be based on the voluntary system for the different classes that required it; might it go through the various gradations of the national school, the middle-class school, the grammar school, and our noble old universities, which were the head of all. He would remind them, and the worthy head master, Mr. Elton, whom he remembered at Cambridge, where they were together in former years, that the universities were now placing themselves in the position they ought to occupy at the head of the education of the middle classes, and that those examinations, which would be initiated this year at Norwich, would be the most potent means of enabling any young man to distinguish himself, by obtaining a certificate of knowledge, which might be of use to him in after life. (Hear, hear.) The master of this school would, therefore, have the great moral power of the university to back him, and the object to place before the boys of obtaining the certificate, which would be a real, a high, and a true reward of industry and application. (Hear, hear.) Therefore the present master was in a far better position than the previous master had been in; and feeling as he (Sir W. Jones) did a deep interest in these middle-class examinations, he had felt bound to mention here how powerful a support they would be to the new head master in raising the intellectual level of the school. (Hear, hear.) He had detained the meeting as long as he felt justified to offer the thanks, not only of the inhabitants of Holt, but of the gentry of the county, among whom the invitations of the Worshipful Company had been most liberally sent, to the prime warden of the Company for the handsome entertainment to which they had been invited, and for the munificent and liberal spirit in which everything had been done—a spirit that reflected honour on the Company, and which was one of the principal characteristics of those bodies, among which the Company of Fishmongers occupied so distinguished a position. He gave “the health of the prime warden and the deputation of the Fishmongers’ Company.” (Repeated applause.)

The PRIME WARDEN, in acknowledging the toast, assured all present that nothing could be more gratifying to the Fishmongers’ Company than the interest they had taken in the object of their visit. To minister to the wants of the poor, to assist the aged, and to promote the education of the young were among the highest privileges possessed by them, and he really believed that the trust which the confidence of their ancestors had placed in the Company’s keeping had been fulfilled, and would continue to be fulfilled to the utmost of their power. (Applause.) He had only to hope on the part of the deputation, that when they had again the honour of meeting those present it would be to celebrate the completion of a still greater work than that which they had seen brought to so happy a termination to-day, and that according to the success which the revival of the school would obtain, they might ere long be in a position to restore the whole of this ancient building. (Applause.)

The PRIME WARDEN then rose and said—“I now beg to propose ‘the health of the visitors of the school,’ for whose superintendence and assistance the Fishmongers’ Company are so much indebted. We look forward with confidence to a continuation of their support, and we feel assured that as far as lies in their power the interest of the scholars of the Holt School will be promoted. (Applause.)

In acknowledging their services, I beg to express the thanks of this deputation to the Rev. Mr. Bulwer for his assistance to-day, in the absence of the rector, the Rev. Mr. Brumell, and for officiating for us on this interesting occasion. (Applause.) It would be superfluous in me to add any remark concerning a gentleman so thoroughly respected and esteemed as the Rev. Mr. Bulwer, who is so well known to you. We thank him personally for the great interest he takes in the object of this meeting, and I beg to propose his health with that of the other gentlemen who have accepted the office of visitors of the school of Holt.” (Applause.)

The Rev. J. BULWER replied—The prime warden had referred to the absence of the rector of the parish, and this was a circumstance which he (Mr. Bulwer) had occasion to regret, for he had discharged duties to-day at a very short notice, which would otherwise have been performed by the worthy rector. He was glad to see that the interests of the school were likely to be advanced, from the fact that the examinations would in future become more competitive than hitherto, as the Fishmongers’ Company had endowed a scholarship of 20*l.* a year, and there were also the prizes given by the late Rev. Mr. Jodrell. Mr. Bulwer then referred in marked terms to the valuable assistance rendered to the school by Mr. James Gay, one of the most active and energetic of the visitors, and concluded by proposing the health of that gentleman. (Applause.)

Mr. J. GAY, in returning thanks, stated that he had himself been educated at this school, and having derived great benefit from it, he could not do otherwise, when he came to reside in this neighbourhood, than give it such assistance as it was in his power to afford. (Hear, hear.) It was now 65 years since he had entered this school as a scholar, and it was to the education he had received here that he was indebted for the advancement he had been fortunate enough to make in life, and for those high appointments that had been conferred upon him while residing at Ceylon. (Applause.) It was consequently a source of much gratification to him to see the school put in such a state as would confer a great and lasting benefit on those residing in the neighbourhood. At the time he came to the school it was frequented by the sons of all the gentry in the neighbourhood; but from circumstances which it was difficult now to enter into, the school had drooped by degrees, until at last he believed scarcely a gentleman’s son entered it. He had no doubt that the liberal course pursued by the Fishmongers’ Company in erecting this noble building, and in having appointed to it a master of such eminent talents as were possessed by Mr. Elton, would raise it to be a credit to the county of Norfolk. (Applause.) It gave him great pleasure to see such an assembly on the present occasion, for the numbers present convinced him that the gentry of the neighbourhood felt a great interest in the school. He should have great satisfaction, should he live long enough, in seeing the house restored, as he was happy to hear from the prime warden was likely to be the case. (Applause.)

The PRIME WARDEN—“I now beg to propose ‘the health of the architect of this building, Mr. Suter,’ a gentleman whose talents and whose great practical knowledge of his art, though perhaps not known to all here present, are sufficiently exemplified in the various structures he has erected in different parts of England. It is difficult to estimate the many obstacles an architect has to contend with in the construction of buildings of a public or parochial character, especially when acting under boards composed of numerous members. The variety of tastes—the internal accommodation—the external appearance of the building—the material to be used—and especially the frequent insufficiency of funds to insure perfection, are obstacles which all architects have to overcome. (Hear.) The present school, although it is but a part of a whole, speaks for itself. (Applause.) I cannot, however, do better justice to the talent of Mr. Suter than by referring you to the extensive structure of St. Peter’s Hospital he erected for the Fishmongers’ Company at Wandsworth, and which I hope you may all have an opportunity of seeing, when I am sure it will convince you of the taste and the skill displayed in his works.” (Applause.)

Mr. SUTER, in responding, remarked that if in raising this structure he had met the requirements of the prime warden’s large heart, and those of his colleagues, he had not laboured in vain.

The PRIME WARDEN—“I now beg to offer the last toast, one which I always feel proud to give—‘The health of the ladies.’ (Applause.) It is no commonplace compliment I wish to pay to their attractions, which we all sufficiently acknowledge, but I am glad of every opportunity of expressing my conviction that much of the comfort, the peace, and the morality of this country is due to their exertions and their influence. (Hear, hear.) When I see in this country and elsewhere the daughters of the highest families occupied in the education of the young—occupied in the Sunday-school, teaching infant lips to lip the praises of their Creator—when I see sisters, real sisters of mercy, carrying comfort, food, and raiment into the lowly habitations of the destitute, I am proud of a country where such devotion constitutes the real value of woman, and where men seek her co-operation and assistance in all great works of philanthropy and moral good. (Applause.) I could not undertake to enumerate the many examples of devotion, sacrifice, and love known to you all as well as to myself. I cannot, however, refrain from paying a tribute to the memory of that admirable woman, Miss Gurney—(applause)—whose acts of philanthropy and benevolence scarce yield to those of the inestimable Mrs. Fry. (Applause.) Nor can I help adding the name of Miss Stanley—(applause)—who joined that glory of her sex, Florence Nightingale—(loud cheers) in the relief and rescue of our suffering soldiers in the Crimea. (Prolonged applause.) Ladies, I thank you for your attendance here to-day. In your hands I leave the interests of the children who now enter upon the foundation of this school. (Hear.) You are best enabled, if acquainted with any of their parents, to impress upon their minds the inestimable blessing of early education, and the benefits we have endeavoured to prepare for them to-day.” (Cheers.)

Col. ASTLEY having been called upon to respond for the ladies, said he had a most delicate task to perform, and he was quite satisfied that there were many ladies in the room who could return thanks for the toast in a far more able manner than he could. When he entered that room he was not at all aware that he should be called upon to return thanks for that sex which as men they must all respect; and considering that they were the comfort of their homes, and that whenever they pleased to take an interest in any work prosperity must follow, he thought that the thanks of the neighbourhood and of the gentlemen present were due to the prime warden and the deputation for having kindly invited the ladies to join in the opening of that school. He could only say that he trusted that every benefit that had been wished for might arise in that school, and that intelligence and education might flourish in that town and spread over the country but, particularly in the neighbourhood of Holt. (Applause.) They wanted very little to keep them moving, and he was happy to say that the Company of Fishmongers had given them the opportunity of bringing education and enlightenment into the neighbourhood at a cheap rate. There were men of a certain station who could afford to educate their children in what manner they pleased; but there were a vast number who could not, and it was through this charity, founded by Sir John Gresham, and carried out by the Worshipful Company of Fishmongers, that education was brought within the reach of all. He expressed the regret of his brother, Lord Hastings, who, as the representative of a family who had held possessions in this part of the county as long back as the time in which Sir John Gresham founded this institution, naturally felt a great interest in everything which affected the welfare of its inhabitants, was not able to be present; and concluded by simply returning thanks for the ladies, whom no people valued more than Englishmen. (Applause.)

The proceedings were brought to a close by Masters Mann and Baldwin singing "My pretty Page," which they did with an effect that elicited the loud applause of the company. The same young gentlemen with Master Smith also sang several other pieces in the course of the evening, including a very pretty duet "Merry gipsies all are we," composed by a pupil of Dr. Buck—Mr. Atkinson. The musical part of the entertainment was under the direction of Dr. Buck, and the selection appeared to give great satisfaction.

A tablet to commemorate this event has been erected in the schoolroom, with the following inscription:—

THE WORSHIPFUL COMPANY OF FISHMONGERS OF LONDON, GOVERNORS OF THE FREE GRAMMAR SCHOOL, HOLT, founded by SIR JOHN GRESHAM, Knt., A.D. 1554, rebuilt this schoolroom and formed a playground for the recreation of the scholars A.D. 1858.

A deputation attended on the 3rd November 1858, and, in the presence of many visitors re-opened the school and introduced the newly appointed master, the Rev. Charles Allen Elton, B.D.

APPENDIX.

Being a Biographical Sketch of Sir JOHN GRESHAM, Kt., Founder of the FREE GRAMMAR SCHOOL at HOLT. Compiled chiefly from Mr. Burgon's Life and Times of Sir Thomas Gresham.

The family from which Sir John Gresham was descended, like most other Norfolk families, derived its name from a little village where it had been settled for many generations. One John Gresham resided at Gresham during the latter part of the fourteenth century, in the reigns of Edward III. and Richard II.

His son James appears to have been clerk to Sir William Paston, the judge. He was lord of East Beckham, and is said to have settled at Holt, which is only a few miles from the village where his father resided.

Here he probably erected the old Manor House, which occupied the centre of the town, and constituted the chief ornament of Holt.

James Gresham was succeeded by his son John, who married Alice, daughter of Alexander Blythe, Esq., of Stratton in Norfolk; this lady brought her husband an ample fortune, and by her he had four sons—William, Thomas, Richard, and John; the two younger of whom had the honour of knighthood conferred upon them by Henry VIII. Richard was father of the celebrated Sir Thomas Gresham. John, the youngest son, was born at Holt; he was a merchant of great importance, and admitted a member of the Mercers' Company in 1517. We may infer from various accounts that he was held in high consideration, and lived, as our ancestors would have said, "in great worship."

Liberality and benevolence appear to have been qualities inherent in the Gresham family. In 1546, Sir John Gresham, having purchased* of his elder brother William the mansion house at Holt, he converted it by letters patent, dated 27th April, 1 and 2 of Philip and Mary, 1554, into a free grammar school, which he endowed by deed of gift with the manor of Pereers and Holt Hales, in Norfolk, and a grove called Prior's Grove, and certain freehold estates in London. The master was to have a salary of 30*l.* per annum, and the usher 20 nobles; and the government of the school was left to the wardens and commonalty of the Mystery of Fishmongers, London; who were to make statutes and ordinances concerning the governance and direction of the master, usher, and scholars of the school, subject to the approval of the bishop of the diocese.

It is stated by Mr. Burgon that the school was endowed by its founder with demesnes sufficient, had they been properly managed, to set it on a level with the first establishments of a similar nature in England; but there is no record of any demesnes excepting the property now constituting the endowment having ever come into the possession of the Fishmongers' Company.

There remain at present about 165 acres of land, and the total revenue of the school amounts to not quite 450*l.*, about two thirds of which arise from the rents of the estates in London. A large increase of revenue is expected on the leases of the London estates falling in, but which will not be till the years 1871, 1877, and 1899 respectively.

Holt School is not altogether destitute of historical interest, for in the year 1650 a few loyal inhabitants of Norfolk having agreed to adventure their lives and fortunes in the service of their royal master, we are told that one Mr. Cooper, a minister and schoolmaster, was apprehended and sentenced by the minions of Cromwell to be tried on Christmas day, "partly to show their dislike of the observance of that day, and partly to add to his affliction, whom they knew to honour that festive day; and although they had no evidence against him that he was privy to the plot, yet they condemned him and . . . he was executed at Holt, before his schoole-house doore."†

Sir John Gresham succeeded in obtaining from Henry VIII. the hospital of St. Mary Bethlem, which has continued ever since in the hands of the corporation of London as an asylum for lunatics. He was sheriff of London, 30 Henry VIII., 1537, his brother Richard being then lord mayor. In 1547, 2 Edward VI., Sir John Gresham being lord mayor of London, he revived the splendid pageant of the Marching Watch—a ceremony which had been practised from time immemorial by the citizens of London at Midsummer, till the year 1539.

Sir John was repeatedly employed as agent in Flanders, to Henry VIII.; nor did his commission cease with that monarch's reign, as appears from the council book of his successor, Edward VI., where he obtains frequent notice as a financial agent.

† "Archæologia," vol. xxv., p. 593.

After having amassed a considerable fortune in trade, by which he was enabled to purchase many estates in Norfolk, besides the manor of Titsey, in Surrey, he died of malignant fever, on the 23rd of October 1556, in the reign of Queen Mary, seven days after he had made final dispositions for the government of Holt School, and he was interred in the beautiful church of St. Michael Bassishaw, London, in which parish he resided at the time of his death.

"He dwelt," says Stowe, "where Sir Leonard Halliday, 'who was mayor anno 1605, afterwards dwelt.' Strype has given us a list of several worthies who, in a short space, fell victims to the same pestilential malady; and he does not omit to mention Sir John Gresham amongst the number.

The day of his interment happening to be a fast day, says Strype, an extraordinary fish dinner was provided on the occasion, at which were admitted all that came; and the funeral sermon was preached by the celebrated Dr. Harpsfeld. The ceremonial of his interment is one of the proofs of his having been a personage of great consideration. "He was buried," says Stowe, "with a 'standard and penon of armes, and a coat armour of damask (Damascus steel), and four penons of arms; besides a helmet, a target and a sword, mantles and the crest, a goodly hearse of wax, ten dozen of pensils,* and twelve dozen of escutcheons. He had four dozen of great staff torches and a dozen of long torches. . . . The church and the streets were all hung with black, and arms in great store; and on the morrow three 'goodly masses were sung; one of the Trinity, another 'of Our Lady, and the third of Requiem."

Many were his charitable bequests. Besides 100*l.* to poor maids' marriages, and considerable sums to the different prisons and hospitals of London, he left to sixty poor men and forty poor women, as many black gowns of the value of 26*s.* 8*d.* and 20*s.* each, respectively.

Sir Rowland Hill and Sir Andrew Judd, Kts., conjointly with "his well-beloved nephew, Thomas Gresham," were appointed overseers to his will.

To the Mercers' Company he left 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, for a feast, "desiring them afre dynner, to have my soul in 'remembrance with their prayers."

He was twice married: first to Mary, daughter and coheirress of Thomas Ipswell of London, Esq.; 2ndly to Katharine, daughter of — Sampton, Esq., and widow of Edward Dormer, of Fulham, Esq. By his first wife he had eleven children, from the eldest of whom was descended Sir John Gresham, the representative and last baronet of the family, who died at Titsey, on 20th of October 1801.

On a tomb in the south side of the quire of Bassishaw church, in London, and prior to the fire in 1666, was this inscription:—

Here lyeth buried vnder this tombe the body of Sir John Gresham, knight, sometime alderman and lord mayor of this City of London, who had two wives, dame Mary, his first wife, by whom hee had issue five sonnes and six daughters. By dame Katharine, his last wife, no issue—which Sir John deceased the xxiii. day of October, Anno Domini MDLVI., and dame Mary died the xxi day of September, MDXXXVIII. Dame Katharine died

GRESHAM GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

EXAMINATION PAPERS, DECEMBER 1860.

SCRIPTURE HISTORY.

A.

1. Give a list of the Judges, noticing briefly any events which marked their history. Sketch the history of Ruth.
2. How were criminal offences punished under the Mosaic code? Give instances of the considerate temper of the Hebrew law. What were the regulations relating to slavery? What were the political benefits of the year of Jubilee?
3. What provision was made for the Priests and Levites? Describe the dress and duties of the High Priest?
4. Describe geographically the extent of Solomon's kingdom. Give a list of the Kings of Judah and Israel, with the principal dates.

* Small pennons.

5. Against what Egyptian superstitions were the plagues of Egypt specially directed?

Give a sketch of the career of Joab. Draw a map of the Holy Land, mentioning those places only which occur in Scripture prior to the entrance of the Hebrews under Joshua.

B.

1. Draw a map indicating the route taken by the Hebrews in their passage out of Egypt. Name the stations where they rested in their desert wanderings, and the sins committed by the people thereat.
2. How was the Promised Land portioned among the Hebrew tribes? What were the principal achievements of Joshua in taking possession? Give a brief account of Balaam.
3. Write what you can about Jethro, Achaa, Keturah, Miriam, Korah, Doeg, Shimei.
4. Mention the principal events in the life of David, after he was crowned the second time.
5. Give a sketch of the life of Elisha. Give the dates of some prominent events in the Scripture narrative.
6. How was prophecy fulfilled in regard to Eli, Samaria, Zedekiah king of Judah, Ahab?
7. Give instances from Jewish history showing God's displeasure for breaches of each of the ten commandments.

C.

1. Write a short history of Joseph.
2. Describe the Feast of Passover. Describe the country of Mesopotamia. Mention any events which occurred while the Hebrews were with Moses in the wilderness.

GRECIAN HISTORY.

1. Give the substance of the legend of the Argonauts. Explain fully what is meant by the "Return of the Heraclidæ." Enumerate the causes which gave union to the different Grecian States.
2. What was the state of political parties in Athens subsequent to Solon's departure? What was the nature of the reform introduced by Cleisthenes?
3. What colonies were founded by Athens in Sicily, Italy, and Asia Minor? Mention any historical events with which the cities of Sardis, Potidæa, and Halicarnassus were associated?
4. Sketch the train of events which led to the Peloponnesian war. Specify the allies of Sparta and Athens respectively. Name, with dates, the principal events of the war.
5. Give some account of the events which first brought Greece and Persia into collision.
6. Describe briefly the different public buildings in Athens, and draw a plan of the city and its environs.
7. Sketch the career of Alcibiades.
8. Describe the principal features of the Sicilian war.

1. When and where was Horace born? What works of his are extant? Whom does he describe as "præsidium et dulce decus meum," and whom as "animæ dimidium meæ"?

Translate:

Quem vocet Divom populus ruentis
Imperi rebus? prece quâ fatigent
Virgines sanctæ minus audientem
Carmina Vestam?

To what event does this Ode allude? Who were the "Virgines sanctæ," and what was their usual employment? Explain the peculiarities in "Divom" and "Imperi."

2. Translate:

Perrupit Acheronta Hercules labor,
Nil mortalibus arduum est:
Cælum ipsum petimus stultitia, neque
Per nostrum patimur scelus
Iracunda Jovem ponere fulmina.

Write a short account of the labours of Hercules. Name the other two Grecian heroes who are frequently classed with him. Over what period was the heroic age supposed to extend, and what was its greatest achievement?

3. Translate:

O Navis, referent in mare te novi
Fluctus? O quid agis? fortiter occupa
Portum. Nonne vides ut
Nudum remigio latus,

- Et malus celeri saucius Africo
 Antennæque gemant? ac sine funibus
 Vix durare carinæ
 Possint imperiosius
 Æquor? Non tibi sunt integra lintea,
 Non Di, quos iterum pressa voces malo.
- Distinguish between mālus and mālus, lātus and lātus, pōpulus and pōpulus. Explain the terms antennæ, funibus, carinæ. Parse remigio and gemant. What is represented by navis, and what by fuctus?
5. Draw a plan of Thermopylæ. Give the dates of the battles of Marathon and Chæronea, and name the parties between whom they were fought. Mention the principal incidents in the life of Alcibiades.

ALGEBRA. (A.)

1. If $a=25$, $b=16$, $c=9$, find the value of the expressions

$$\frac{a}{b+c} \sqrt{\{(a-b)+\sqrt{b+c}\}}, \text{ and}$$

$$\frac{a}{b+c} \sqrt{\{(a-b)(b-c)+(b-c)^2+(b-c)(c-a)\}}$$ and shew that if $z=y \cdot \frac{x^2+y^2}{x^2-y^2}$, then $\frac{y^2}{x^2} \cdot \frac{z+y}{z-y} = 1$.

2. Reduce to their simplest forms the expressions:

$$(1) \frac{x^3-y^3}{x^2-y^2} + \frac{x+y}{x^2+xy+y^2};$$

$$(2) \frac{a}{(a-b)(x-a)} + \frac{b}{(b-a)(x-b)};$$

$$(3) \frac{x+y+z}{x+y-z} + \frac{x+y-x}{z-y+x};$$

$$(4) \left(\frac{x^2-y^2}{y^2-x^2}\right) \left(\frac{x}{x+y} + \frac{y}{x-y}\right) \div \left(\frac{x}{y} + \frac{y}{x}\right).$$

3. Find the least common multiple of $3x^4+14x^3+9x+2$ and $2x^4+9x^3+14x+3$.

4. Solve the following equations:

$$(1) \frac{3x+1}{4} - \frac{3x-1}{3} = \frac{x}{3} + \frac{x-1}{4};$$

$$(2) \frac{x-3}{x-2} - \frac{x-4}{x-1} = \frac{7}{20};$$

$$(3) \frac{2x}{3} + \frac{3y}{2} = 16\frac{1}{6} = \frac{3x}{2} - \frac{2y}{3};$$

$$(4) x^2+xy=96, y^2+xy=48.$$

5. If α, β be values of x which make $ax^2+bx+c=0$, shew that $ax^2+bx+c=a(x-\alpha)(x-\beta)$.

Hence resolve the expression $2x^2-11x+12$ into its factors.

6. Shew that if $a:b::c:d$, then $a+b:a-b::c+d:c-d$; and if $a:b::c:d::e:f$, &c., then $a:b::a+c+e+&c.:b+d+f+&c.$

7. Find the arithmetic mean between two quantities a and b ; and also the geometric mean; and shew that the former is greater than the latter.

Find how many terms of the series 27, 24, 21, &c. will amount to 126; and explain the two solutions.

8. A rifleman shoots at a target under the following conditions; each time he hits the bull's eye he receives half-a-crown; each time he misses it he forfeits sixpence. After he has finished shooting he receives three shillings. If out of the same number of shots he had put twice as many balls into the bull's eye, he would have received 12s. How many shots did he fire?

9. At half-past eleven A sets out from his own house to walk at the rate of 4 miles an hour to B's house, which is 8 miles off. In the meanwhile B sets out from home with a carriage which travels 7 miles an hour to meet A; and as soon as he meets him he takes him up, and they reach B's house at one o'clock. When did B leave home? and how far did A walk?

ALGEBRA. (B.)

1. Find the value of the expressions:

$$\frac{a}{b+c} \sqrt{\{(a-c)+\sqrt{b+c}\}};$$

$$\frac{a}{b+c} \sqrt{\{(a-b)(b-c)+(b-c)^2+(b-c)(c-a)\}}$$ where $a=25$, $b=16$, $c=9$.

Simplify $2a-[2a-\{2a-(2a-2a-a)\}]$; and represent as simply as you can the sum of the following expressions:

$$2(a+b+c)x+(a+b)y+2ax; \quad 2(a+c-b)x+(a+c)y+2bx;$$

$$2(b+c-a)x+(b+c)y+2cx.$$

2. Multiply $2x^2-3x+1$ by $3x^2-x+2$; and divide

$$4x^3-12x^2+11x-3 \text{ by } 2x-3.$$

3. Multiply $x^2-\frac{3x}{4}+1$ by $x^2-\frac{x}{2}$; and divide

$$x^3-(a+b+c)x^2+(ab+ac+bc)x-abc \text{ by } (x-a).$$

4. Simplify the expressions:

$$(1) \frac{x-a}{x-2a} - \frac{x+a}{x+2a}; \quad (2) \frac{x^2-y^2}{x^2-y^2} \times \frac{x+y}{x^2+xy+y^2};$$

$$(3) \frac{x+y+\frac{y^2}{x}}{x^2}; \quad (4) \frac{a}{(a-b)(x-a)} + \frac{b}{(b-a)(x-b)}.$$

5. Solve the equations:

$$(1) \frac{3x+1}{4} - \frac{3x-1}{3} = \frac{x}{3} + \frac{x-1}{4};$$

$$(2) \frac{4x-7}{8} + 2\frac{1}{3} + \frac{7-4x}{4} = x + \frac{1}{2};$$

$$(3) \frac{6x+8}{2x+1} - \frac{2x+38}{x+12} = 1;$$

$$(4) \frac{\frac{3x-1}{4} - \frac{2x-3}{3}}{\frac{2x}{3} - \frac{x-1}{2}} + \frac{3-x}{3} = \frac{12-2x}{6}.$$

6. Find the greatest common measure of $$20x^4+x^2-1 \text{ and } 25x^4+5x^2-x-1.$$

7. Find a number the sum of whose fifth and sixth parts exceeds the difference between its fourth and seventh parts by 109.

8. A and B shoot by turns at a target; A puts 7 balls out of 12 into the bull's eye, and B puts in 9 out of 12. Between them they put in 32. How many shots did each fire?

EUCLID, I., II., III.

A.

1. Distinguish between a definition and an axiom. Define a plane angle; a right angle; a trapezium. Is the circumference of a circle a figure?

2. PROP. VII. Upon the same base, and on the same side of it, there cannot be two triangles which have their sides terminated in one extremity of the base equal to one another, and also those terminated in the other extremity.

3. PROP. XXII. To make a triangle, of which the sides shall be equal to three given straight lines, but any two whatever of these must be greater than the third.

Point out where the construction would fail, if two of the straight lines, namely A and C, were not together greater than B.

4. If a triangle and a parallelogram be upon the same base and between the same parallels, the parallelogram shall be double of the triangle.

Show from first principles, with the aid of Euclid, that if the base of any triangle be 3 and its perpendicular altitude 4 inches, its area contains 6 square inches.

5. PROP. XLVII. In any right-angled triangle, the square which is described upon the side subtending the right angle is equal to the squares described upon the sides which contain the right angle.

Can straight lines $\sqrt{2}$, $\sqrt{3}$, $\sqrt{5}$ inches long be represented with the same accuracy as a line 1 inch long? If so, explain how.

6. BOOK II. PROP. VI. If a straight line be bisected and produced to any point, the rectangle contained by the whole line thus produced and the part of it produced, together with the square of half the line bisected, is equal to the square of the straight line which is made up of the half and the part produced.

7. BOOK II. PROP. XI. To divide a given straight line into two parts, so that the rectangle contained by the whole and one of the parts shall be equal to the square of the other part.

8. BOOK III. PROP. IV. If in a circle two straight lines cut one another, which do not both pass through the centre, they do not bisect each other.
9. BOOK III., PROP. XIII. One circle cannot touch another in more points than one, whether it touches it on the inside or outside.
10. BOOK III., PROP. XVIII. If a straight line touch a circle, the straight line drawn from the centre to the point of contact shall be perpendicular to the line touching the circle.

B.

1. Define a plane rectilineal angle; a square; and parallel straight lines.
2. PROP. IV. If two triangles have two sides of the one equal to two sides of the other, each to each, and have also the angles contained by those sides equal to one another, they shall also have their bases, or third sides, equal, and the two triangles shall be equal, and their other angles shall be equal, each to each, viz., those to which the equal sides are opposite.
- Give an instance in which two quantities are equal to other two, but not each to each.
3. PROP. IX. To bisect a given rectilineal angle, that is, to divide it into two equal angles.
4. PROP. XIII. The angles, which one straight line makes with another upon one side of it, are either two right angles, or are together equal to two right angles.
5. PROP. XXI. If from the ends of a side of a triangle there be drawn two straight lines to a point within the triangle, these shall be less than the other two sides of the triangle, but shall contain a greater angle.
6. All the interior angles of any rectilineal figure together with four right angles are equal to twice as many right angles as the figure has sides.
7. PROP. XXXVII. Triangles upon the same base, and between the same parallels, are equal to one another.
8. PROP. XLVII. In any right-angled triangle, the square which is described upon the side subtending the right angle is equal to the squares described upon the sides which contain the right angle.

Find the diagonal of a square field that contains 2,450 square yards.

ARITHMETIC.

I.

1. If 6 ounces of silk can be spun into a thread two furlongs and a-half long, what weight of silk would supply a thread sufficient to reach to the moon, a distance of 240,000 miles?
2. The price of .0625 lbs. of coffee being .4583 shillings, what is the value of .075 of a ton?
3. If a number of labourers can reap a field in 25 days, in what time will $1\frac{1}{2}$ of that number reap a field $2\frac{1}{2}$ times as large, supposing that 2 of the first set can reap as much in an hour as 5 of the second set in 2 hours, and that the second set work $\frac{1}{2}$ as many hours per day as the first set?
4. The net rental of an estate, after deducting 10d. in the pound for property tax, and 5 per cent. on the remainder for the expenses of collecting, is 458l. 17s. 0d. What is the gross rental?
5. A merchant bought 150 quarters of wheat, of which he sold 50 at 45 shillings per quarter, and found that he was thereby gaining $7\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.; at what price per quarter must he sell the remainder so as to clear 10 per cent. upon the whole?

ROBERT and SIMON HARDING'S CHARITIES.

Robert Harding devised by his will, 20th November 1568, a rentcharge of 3l. 6s. 8d., issuing out of tenements in Pudding Lane, and Simon Harding, his son, by deed of 7th September 1576, confirmed the grant to pay 3l. to poor inhabitants and artificers of Old and New Fish Street, compelled by necessity to repair thither to buy the cuttings of fish and refuse of fish, and the residue to the wardens. The 100l. New 3l. per Cents received by the Fishmongers' Company from the Butchers' Company, in satisfaction of these charges, has been since reduced to 100l. New 3l. per Cents. It forms part of the distribution to the "half-yearly poor." (See Trumball's Charity.)

HARDING'S CHARITY.

Robert Harding granted, by deed of 1st May 1564, a rentcharge of 40s. a year out of two tenements in Crooked Lane, to the intent to distribute 36s. amongst poor fishmongers in the parishes of St. Magnus and St. Margaret, and the residue to the wardens. The identity of the property charged became questionable in 1815, as mentioned in the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry, and the Company have not since recovered the charge. It is therefore lost.

HAYNE'S CHARITY.

John Hayne devised, by his will 13th May 1682, a rentcharge of 40s., out of his tenement in Creed Lane, for the relief of the poor of the Company. The sum of 2l. a year is received from Mr. J. E. Craney, of 52, Fore Street, being payable out of No. 18, Creed Lane. It is given to the half-yearly poor, as described under Trumball's Charity.

HERON'S CHARITY.

John Heron, by his will of the 19th March 1510, after reciting that he had purchased of the Fishmongers' Company for 320l. a messuage in Friday Street, and three messuages adjoining, let for 12l. a year; a tenement and shop in Bridge Street let for 7l. a year; a messuage in Finch Lane let for 40s. a year, ordained that the said Company should pay yearly to the parson of Little Ilford, Essex, 5 marks (3l. 6s. 8d.), in augmentation of the profit of his benefice; and that the wardens of the said Company should divide amongst themselves 13s. 4d. for their labour.

The sum of 3l. 6s. 8d. is annually paid to the rector of Little Ilford, and the 13s. 4d. paid to the wardens of the Company. The property originally derived under this will were premises in Bread Street, Friday Street, Pudding Lane, and the Salmon in Bridge Street, the latter being now part of No. 21, Fish Street Hill. The property was by the testator subjected to obits, and it was therefore seized by the Crown, and was, as it is alleged, repurchased by the Company, although the Company have only to pay 4l. per annum, which they consider as a rentcharge upon them, yet for the purpose of showing the manner in which their title to each estate is derived, the Company since Midsummer 1835 have credited the account with the full rents, including a third of the rent of the house No. 21, Fish Street Hill, carrying off the balance to their own account at the end of each financial year.

HEYDON'S GIFT.

John Heydon bequeathed, by his will of 6th March 1579, the sum of 100l., to be lent to two young men at 3l. 6s. 8d. per cent. interest, and the interest paid to the Mercers' Company.

This forms a portion of the "Trust Loan Account." (See Cecilia Long's Charity.) The 3l. 6s. 8d. a year in respect of interest is paid to the Mercers' Company.

HOPKINS' CHARITY.

John Hopkins, by his will of the 27th December 1558, directed his executor to pay to the wardens 20l., to be put into the hands of young men of the Company. No interest is directed to be made or is credited on this account.

JENYNS' CHARITY.

Thomas Jenyns made several gifts to the Company, that by his first will of 20th August 1572, of a shop in New Fish Street, to pay 13s. 4d. for coal to each of the parishes of—

St. Mary Magdalen, Old Fish Street;
St. Mary, Somerset;
St. Michael, Crooked Lane;
St. Margaret, Bridge Street;
St. Magnus the Martyr; and
St. Ethelburga.

And by his second will, 31st March 1579, of a rentcharge of 40s. to Christ's Hospital out of two tenements, which he gave to the Fishmongers' Company, to pay 6l. 13s. 4d. towards the relief of the poor of Braughing, Herts; also—

The Company hold a house, No. 27, Fish Street Hill (the Commissioners stated No. 26 erroneously), let to Evan Evans for a term of 21 years, from Lady-day 1858, at a rent of 75l. Of these premises the Company consider that a portion equal to about 8/30ths of the entire site constitutes the property charged with the gift. The payments of 13s. 4d. each are made to the seven different parishes above stated, in the month of December of every year.

The property called the Chequer and the Horse Head, near London Bridge, was part of 121, Upper Thames Street, and part of Nos. 26 and 27, Fish Street Hill, which still remain, and other property which was sold under the London Bridge Act for 6,387l. 12s. cash, which produced 7,638l. 7s. 9d. 3l. per cent. Consols. Part of the latter sum was laid out in February 1858, namely, 2,628l. 2s. 5d. Consols for the purchase of the freehold of No. 28, Fish Street Hill, and a further portion of 527l. 0s. 2d. Consols was laid out in February 1860 in the purchase of the interest of the Corporation of London in a small part of the said premises, No. 121, Upper Thames Street. The account of the estate is audited according to the direction of the will annually by the Chamberlain of London.

The only charitable gifts arising out of this property are—

JORDEYN'S CHARITY.

Henry Jordeyn, by his will dated the 15th October 1468, gave all his lands and tenements in St. Catherine Cree Church, and the messuage and garden in the said parish, and all his tenements in St. Bridget parish, for certain superstitious uses, and for buying and delivering 138 quarters of coal or money to buy the same at 8d. per quarter, as follows:—

	qrs.
To 16 poor householders of Old Fish Street, two quarters each	32
To 10 poor householders of Bridge Street, two quarters each	20
To 8 poor householders in Thames Street, two quarters each	16
To 30 poor householders of St. Botolph, Aldgate, one quarter each	30
To 20 poor householders of the Founders, one quarter each	20
To 10 poor householders of St. Catherine Cree Church, one quarter each	10
To 10 poor householders of Fleet Street, one quarter each	10 and to pay to the mayor 10s. yearly, to the common clerk 3s. 4d., and the residue of the rents to the Company; and the testator provided that if the coals be bought for less price than is aforesaid, that then there should be delivered and given more coals after the good discretion of the wardens for the time being.

The Commissioners of Inquiry stated that the Company were possessed of a house in Leadenhall Street, and one in Billiter Lane, under this devise, but of no houses in Fleet Street, and that the Company made certain small annual payments to the poor members of the Company for coals, and to the churchwardens of the three parishes, and the Founder's Company.

In 1832, Thomas Marks, of the Minorities, publican, on behalf of himself and all other the inhabitants of the parish of St. Botolph without Aldgate, and George Smith, of Salisbury Square, Fleet Street, on behalf of himself and all other the inhabitants of the parish of St. Bride, presented their petition to the Lord Chancellor, alleging that the whole of the rents and profits devised by the will were intended and ought to be applied for the charitable purposes therein declared, and praying that it might be referred to one of the masters of the court to take an account of the rents and profits of the messuages, &c. subject to the devise received by them in respect of any lettings of the said premises; and that the said master might also be directed to compute the value, year by year, of the coals bequeathed or directed by the testator's will to be annually provided and distributed by the said Company; and that the said Company might be charged with and ordered to pay the full value and amount of such coals, and interest thereon; and that it might be declared that the quantity of coals bequeathed by or which ought to be distributed under the said will ought to be increased proportionably to the increase of the rents and yearly value of the said devised estates; and that it might be referred to the master to ascertain the same, and also to fix the sum to be annually paid by the said Company out of the rents of the estates in respect of the aforesaid bequests of coals, and to approve of a proper scheme for distribution of the same with all usual and necessary directions respecting the same; and that the costs, &c. of and attending the application might be ordered to be paid by the said Company.

The petition was heard before the Vice-Chancellor, Sir Lancelot Shadwell, on the 22nd December 1832, and was dismissed with costs, his honour holding that the testator meant to give the option to the Company of either giving coals or sums of money not exceeding 138 eightpences, that is, 4l. 12s., and he had provided for the benefit of the poor to this extent, namely, that if the coals were less in price than 8d. a quarter that still they should have more coals, so that at all events they should have up to the value of 4l. 12s.; but the vice-chancellor saw nothing at all in the will which at all indicated an intention on his part that against the will of the Fishmongers' Company they should have more in value than 138 eightpences.

It appeared to the vice-chancellor that the testator did not mean here that the whole of the land should go for charitable uses, but meant that certain specified objects of charity should receive certain definite sums only, and that the surplus should go to the Company as a benefit to them. But then he said if the mayor of London sees that they do not give those specific sums which he had appointed, and giving them warning for two or three years, and they do not comply with that, then that all those charities so first-named should cease so far from being permanent objects of the bounty of the testator, and the land should be given to the commonalty of London for different charitable purposes, and the ultimate residue applied to the reparation of London Bridge. The vice-chancellor's opinion, therefore, was that the Company as against the persons who were called the poor and who were entitled to a certain quantity of coals were entitled to keep the surplus of the estate beyond the 4*l.* 12*s.* for their own benefit.

The petitioners appealed to the Lord Chancellor, and the petition was heard before Lord Brougham on the 25th and 31st May 1833, when his lordship affirmed the vice-chancellor's order and dismissed the petition with costs as well on principle as on the ground of the last clause in the will above stated.

The Company have, therefore, simply continued the expenditure of the several sums, amounting altogether to 4*l.* 12*s.*

The headle endeavours to find out whether there are persons of the craft of fishmongers coming under the denomination of 16 householders of Old Fish Street, 10 of New Fish Street, and of 8 of Thames Street, standing in need of the gift, and if there are not, the amount of 2*l.* 5*s.* 4*d.* is added to other small gifts and distributed in money amongst the half-yearly poor on the third Thursday in December, yearly. The 1*l.* is paid to the churchwardens of St. Botolph, Aldgate, 13*s.* 4*d.* to the Founder's Company, 6*s.* 8*d.* to the churchwardens of St. Catherine Cree, and 6*s.* 8*d.* to the parish of St. Bride.

JOYE'S CHARITY.

John Joye, by his will of the 6th June 1556, directed his executors to sell his two houses in Shoreditch, and the money to be delivered to two of the poorest men of the Company, and to have the advantage thereof for one year. It does not appear that the Company received more than 20*l.* on this account, which forms part of the "Loan Trust Fund." No interest is credited on this account.

KING'S CHARITY.

Warner King, by his will of the 25th April 1597, gave to the Company 40*l.*, to be lent to two young men free of the Company and not of the livery. No interest is to be charged and none is credited.

The fund is in the "Trust Loan Fund." The Court of Chancery did not notice the direction to take no interest in these cases and it forms no part of the scheme.

PART II.

KNESEWORTH'S CHARITY.

Sir Thomas Kneseworth, by his will of the 13th April 1513, devised all his messuages, lands, and tenements in the parishes of St. Dunstan-in-the-East, St. Margaret, Bridge Street, and St. Magnus—

	£	s.	d.
To 13 poor men and women weekly, and four goods of Welch cloth yearly, not exceeding the price of 8 d. , the goods to be of the fellowship of the Fishmongers if so many be found	0	8	0
To the prisoners of Newgate and Ludgate - Chamberlain of London at the yearly account to see that it be well and truly done	2	0	0
To the wardens, &c. for a breakfast	0	3	4
Rentgatherer	0	13	4

and the residue to be safely kept to the intent that there-with the tenements and premises might be maintained and repaired, and new built as often as need should be.

The testator also gave to the wardens 100 marks, to be placed in the chest to the intent that the premises should be better performed, and that every honest man of the said fellowship which should borrow 20 marks, or 10*l.* of the said 100 marks, and of the money remaining of the said issues and profits, for half a year, and lay a sufficient pledge for repayment thereof, should have the same; and also there should be said five paternosters and five aves, and a credo for his soul and the souls of his wife, his father and mother, and of their benefactors, and for all Christian souls, and in case the said wardens should make default in performing any of the articles of the said will, then he willed the bequest to the said wardens and fellowship of Fishmongers to be from thenceforth utterly void, and the same to remain to the corporation of the City of London upon the same trusts.

The Commissioners of Inquiry, after stating the seizure of the property by the Crown, and the grant of the same property subsequently by letters patent to certain persons, observe, that "if the Company, as seems to have been the case, took back this estate by purchase, they were entitled to consider it as their absolute property discharged from the trusts of Kneseworth's will, with the exception, perhaps, of the few charitable payments legally charged thereon. They have, however, always appropriated the whole income of the estate to certain specific charities, and therefore, although we do not find that they have bound themselves to this appropriation by any legal instrument, we have thought it right to enter fully into the examination of the state of the property."

After the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry, and on the 21st November 1833, an information was filed by the Attorney-General at the relation of Thomas Spencer Hall and George Smith against the Fishmongers' Company, stating the will and the purchase of the estates from the Crown, after the Reformation, and stating that under the West India and London Dock Acts, and the Act for the Legal Quays, various parts of the estates had been alienated by the Company. The information states the Act of the 4th James I., and charged that the whole of the said premises devised by the will of Sir Thomas Kneseworth was then vested in the Company under the said Act, subject to the charitable trusts and purposes of the will or like or corresponding trusts. The information charged that the Company had in 1818 laid a statement of the trust before Sir Samuel Romilly, with the draft of a proposed petition to the Lord Chancellor admitting such trusts, and it prayed a discovery of the premises acquired by the Company as therein-before mentioned; and that the said charitable trusts of Sir Thomas Kneseworth might be established and made effectual under the decree of the court, according to the directions in his will, or as near thereto as might be, having regard to the change of circumstances, and in such manner as to the court might seem expedient; and that it might be declared that the whole of the rents and profits of the said estates and property derived from and under the will of Sir J. Kneseworth, then vested in the said Company, were applicable to such charitable trust, or, at all events, that the same were only subject to the said several sums of 53*s.* 4*d.*, 12*s.*, 10*s.*, and 10*s.*, so purchased or acquired by the said Company under the said letters patent of King Edward VI. so alleged by the defendants with the proper money of the said Company; and further, that an account might be taken of all legacies and other gifts and sums of money theretofore given by any other donors to the said Company in aid or advancement of the charitable trusts of the will of the said Sir J. Kneseworth or otherwise applicable thereto; and that the said defendants might be charged therewith accordingly, and in particular that a due regard might be had to the said disposition of the residue in making loans for the advancement of the members of the said Company in trade; and that the defendants might, if the court should think fit, be charged with the sum of 100 marks, and such arrear of interest thereon as might be deemed reasonable; and that an account of the said rents and profits and income of the said charity estates received by the said Company and the appropriation and application of the same for the last 20 years before the filing of the information or such larger period as might under the circumstances be deemed necessary.

The Company by their answer insisted that the gifts to the two prisons of Newgate and Ludgate were the only charitable gifts in the will, and that the uses in respect of which the other payments were directed were superstitious.

In the course of this suit an application was made by the informant for the production of the title deeds and documents relating to the property mentioned by the defendants in their answer and admitted to be in their possession, and the application having been made before the Vice-Chancellor of England and refused, was brought by appeal before the Lord Chancellor on the 22nd January 1835, and after a lengthened argument his Lordship delivered judgment on the 31st March 1835. This judgment contains some observations on the effect of the statute of the 4th James I. His Lordship said:—"It appears that these estates were appropriated to certain charities, and also to certain superstitious uses, and that a seizure was made either of the estates or of those rents which were appropriated to the objectionable uses in the reign of "Edward VI. Afterwards, in the fourth year of that reign, there was a grant which, in terms, applies only to the rents, annuities, and yearly payments without making any mention whatever of the messuages and lands out of which those payments were made, and it would be uncertain upon the construction of that instrument whether there had been an actual seizure of the messuages and lands, or whether the seizure extended only to those rents and annual payments which had been appropriated to the superstitious uses. On looking, however, at the instrument itself, and comparing the consideration which amounts to 18,000*l.*, I am mentioning this instrument as applicable not only to the Fishmongers' Company, not only the grant of the rents and annuities to the Company, but to various other companies similarly circumstanced, of whose property seizures have been made under the statute of Edward VI., the consideration of the re-grant appearing to be a sum as large as 18,000*l.* and upwards, and on looking at the total amount of the rents that are granted, it is clear upon the construction, I think, of this instrument, and on comparing the one with the other, that the rents so granted by the Crown form no equivalent or anything like an equivalent for the sum that was paid. It does not, however, follow, as it appears to me necessarily that therefore the lands and messuages were seized, but as they were liable to seizure the probability is that this large sum was paid not merely in consideration of the rents as a composition for the receipt of the rents, but also for the quiet enjoyment of the property generally; it was a composition by which the Crown abandoned all its claim which it might have enforced under the statute of Edward VI." Thus the matter rested till the reign of James I., and that doubt appears to have occurred at that period, because in the Act of Parliament to which reference has been made, it is stated in the preamble of the Act: "Nevertheless, His most Excellent Majesty, taking knowledge of the several compositions made and great sums paid, grants" so-and-so. Then it goes on and says, "divers doubts and questions had been moved whether the several rents mentioned in those letters patent or the messuages, lands, and hereditaments whereout those rents are mentioned in the same letters patent to be issuing or employed were concealed from the Crown, and both for the one and the other divers compositions heretofore made." The doubts, therefore, to which I am now referring seem also to have occurred at that time, and the Act of Parliament was passed for quieting those doubts and for assuring to the Company the quiet enjoyment of their land. After reciting those doubts it goes on thus: "Therefore, His most Excellent Majesty, for the taking away of all questions or doubts that hereafter might be moved or stirred, either concerning the said rents or messuages, lands, and hereditaments in the same letters patent mentioned and respectively belonging to the same several Companies." Then it proceeds thus: "And it is enacted by the authority of the same that all such rents, messuages, lands, tenements, yearly profits, and hereditaments as had been theretofore devised and assured or are mentioned by any will, letters patent, writings, or conveyances to be conveyed, bequeathed, or assured to any of the said Companies," and so on, "should for ever thereafter be lawfully held, retained, and enjoyed by the said several Companies." So that those doubts existing at that time it appears that Act of Parliament was passed for the quieting of those doubts and for enabling the Companies to retain their messuages and lands, as well as the rents which had been specifically conveyed by the Crown free from all doubts and claim in future.

"Now the question is as to the effect therefore of the whole of this transaction. It appears to me that the substance of it is nothing more than this: that here were certain estates held in trust for certain charitable purposes which the Crown had a right to seize by virtue of the statute of Edward VI., that in all probability the Crown did not seize the lands and messuages, but only those rents which had been appropriated to the superstitious uses; and by way of composition a large sum of money was paid by the different Companies for the purpose of securing to themselves the enjoyment of the property. It appears to me, under these circumstances, that that does not at all affect the trusts under which this property is held. It is held still subject to the same trusts as it was before held, notwithstanding the compositions that have been so paid. Therefore, if it is held subject to those trusts, subject, amongst others to the charitable trusts, which it is the object of this suit to enforce, it appears to me the Company are bound to produce those deeds, documents, and accounts mentioned in the answer. I am of opinion, therefore, that the motion under these circumstances, on these grounds, ought to be granted.

The cause came on to be heard before the Master of the Rolls, and judgment was delivered on the 9th of November 1839. The material part of his Lordship's judgment was as follows:—

"It appears to me that the effect of the statute was to vest in the Fishmongers' Company, for their own use, such lands, or interest in lands, mentioned in the letters patent of King Edward VI., as the Crown was entitled to under the statute of the 1st of Edward VI. By the statute of the 1st of Edward VI., chap. 14, it was enacted that the king should enjoy it for ever all lands which by any assurance, will, devise, or demise were given to be employed wholly to the finding or maintaining of any anniversary or obit, or other like thing, intent, or purpose, or of any light or lamp in any church or chapel to have continuance for ever which had been kept or maintained within five years next before that Parliament; and also that where but part of the issues or revenues of any lands had been given or appointed to be bestowed or employed to the finding or maintaining of any anniversary or obit, or any like thing, intent, or purpose, or of any light or lamp in any church or chapel to have continuance for ever, that then the king should for ever have and enjoy every such sums of money that in any one year within five years next before that Parliament had been expended and bestowed about the finding and maintaining any such anniversary or obit or other like thing, intent, or purpose, or any light or lamp, to him, his heirs and successors, for ever, as a rentcharge, to be paid yearly, with a power of distress and entry in default of payment. Now one of the purposes for which Sir Thomas Kneseworth directed the rents of his estates to be applied, was the finding and maintaining an anniversary and obit for ever, and it was properly, and indeed necessarily, admitted that this was a superstitious use within the statute; and supposing that any part of the rents was to be applied to purposes not superstitious, the Crown, though it might not be entitled to the land, was, under the statute, entitled in the nature of rentcharges to such sums of money as in any one year during the preceding five years had been applied to purposes deemed superstitious within the statute.

"Other companies of the city were in similar circumstances, and an arrangement took place between the Crown and the companies for the purchase by the latter of the rentcharges to which the Crown had, or was supposed to have, become entitled for the sum of 18,744*l.* 11*s.* 2*d.* and Augustine Hinde, Richard Turke, and William Blackwell appear to have been appointed to carry that arrangement into effect, and by the letters patent, dated the 14th July, in the 4th year of Edward VI., in consideration of the same sum of 18,744*l.* 11*s.* 2*d.*, paid to the treasurer of the Court of Augmentation by Hinde, Turke, and Blackwell, the queen granted to them various rents, annuities, and yearly sums issuing out of the lands belonging to the several companies, and amongst other companies the Wardens and Commonalty of the Mystery of Fishmongers, and amongst the rents, annuities, and yearly sums issuing out of lands and hereditaments of the Fishmongers' Company were the following: 'All that our rentcharge, annuity, and annual sum of 53*s.* 4*d.* per annum issuing out of two quays called Crown Quay and Quay, and 18 messuages or tenements of the said wardens and commonalty situate and being within the parish of St. Dunstan,' and so on, 'which said yearly sum, rentcharge, and annuity the said wardens and commonalty have lately paid and yearly been accustomed to pay towards the perpetual support of two anniversaries for the soul of Sir Thomas Kneseworth, Knt., late alderman of the City of London, deceased.' And then the letters patent particularly describe three rents, one of 12*s.*, another of 10*s.*, and another of 10*s.*, and then the habendum of those is, to have, hold, and enjoy all the rents therein mentioned, and their appurtenances to Hinde, Turke, and Blackwell, their heirs and assigns for ever for their own proper use without account, rent, service, or other thing for the same to be paid, rendered, or done. It is to be observed that the three rents of 12*s.*, 10*s.*, and 10*s.* mentioned in this grant are particularly mentioned in the will of Sir Thomas Kneseworth as quit-rents to be paid by the receiver, and that consequently the 2*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* described as the sum which the Company had been accustomed to pay for the soul of Sir T. Kneseworth is all that in this instrument is described as quay rent or annuity in respect of such application. This was one of the points upon which the relators relied, admitting, as they have done, that the maintenance of the anniversaries and obits was a superstitious purpose, and contending that the king never took, and was not entitled to take, more than was granted by these letters patent.

"There is no evidence to show what was the revenue arising from the estates in question, though, from the disposition made by the will, it would seem probable that the income greatly exceeded the three quit-rents and the 2*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* Neither is there any evidence to show whether King Edward VI. or Queen Elizabeth took any other part of the rents or rentcharges under the statute of Edward IV., although the Act of James I. may afford some reason for thinking that other compositions besides that which was carried into effect by the letters patent may have been made; but on the whole, it appears to me that any rent or payment to which the king was entitled, as concealed under the statute of Edward VI., and the land out of which the same was payable, was assured to the Company by the statute of James; and taking into consideration the effect of this Act, and also having regard to the nature of the present suit, which seeks to establish the trusts of Sir Thomas Kneseworth's will, and to carry those trusts and not any other trusts created in any other manner into execution, I think that the question to be determined in this cause is, whether the trusts of Sir T. Kneseworth's will, or any of them, are good and charitable trusts which have been violated by the defendants, and the execution of which ought to be and is now required to be enforced by the decree of this court.

"The testator, after devising the estates to the Company to the intent that they would perform his will, and after giving directions for repairs, and for the obits and anniversaries with various superstitious ceremonies attending the same, and without having limited any particular sum within which the whole expenses of the obits and anniversaries was to be confined, proceeded to other directions, and willed that the Company should provide four honest priests, studying in art or divinity in the university, to sing and pray there for ever, especially for his soul, the soul of his wife, the souls of his father and mother, and of their benefactors, and of all Christian souls, paying to every of the said priests for their salaries 4*l.* by equal quarterly payments; and he gave directions for maintaining a perpetual succession of such priests and for securing the payment of their salaries. He next directed the Company to provide 13 poor honest men and women, being of good fame and in poverty, to pray especially for his soul, his wife's soul, and the souls aforesaid, and all Christian souls; and he provided for a perpetual succession of such poor persons, and directed the Company to pay to every of them weekly the sum of eightpence and deliver to every of them yearly a certain quantity of cloth, and the poor persons were to be required to pray daily and to attend to the anniversaries or obits. After having thus provided for the souls of those he mentioned by four priests and 13 poor men and women, he directed the Company to pay to the prior and convent of Royston every year 4*l.* by equal quarterly payments, on condition that the prior and convent there should find a priest to say mass in his church there every day, and the bell was to be rung. The priest was to have 3*l.* part of the 4*l.* given to the prior and convent, and was to pray for Sir T. Kneseworth's soul at the altar, and to say "De profundis" for his soul and all Christian souls, and the bellringer for ringing the bell and assisting the priest was to have a noble, the prior and convent were to have the remaining two nobles for performing the other ceremonies therein directed.

"In the argument for the relators, it was urged that the directions to which I have last referred are only directions to pray for the souls of the dead; that such directions are not unlawful and never have been prohibited by the Church of England, and were not deemed to be superstitious at the time when the statute of the 1st of Edward VI. was passed.

"It does not appear to me to be necessary for the purpose of deciding this case to enter into a minute examination of the doctrine of the Church of England respecting prayers for the souls of the dead. The question is whether the uses to which the testator has directed his property to be applied in perpetuity, are such as to vest the lands or the moneys applicable to the uses directed by the will in the Crown according to the intent and true effect of the statute of King Edward VI., and although prayers for the souls of deceased persons might not according to the doctrines of the Church of England be necessarily connected with the doctrine of purgatory, and although it might not be considered as an ecclesiastical offence to pray for the souls of deceased persons or request others to do so, on which points I do not think it necessary to express any opinion, yet it might nevertheless as I conceive be properly deemed superstitious to create an establishment or endow a foundation to be continued in perpetuity, conducted with certain ceremonies supposed to be religious for the purpose of securing the perpetual continuance of prayer for the souls of the dead either alone or in connection with other observances within the express terms of the statute, and it appears to me that this question has been determined by authority. Soon after the statute of Edward VI., questions arose sometimes upon the uses which were to be deemed superstitious within the statutes and more frequently on the effect of the statute in giving to the Crown either the land, the rents of which were to be applied to the uses, or only the sums of money which had been annually applied to the uses. And on that subject some distinctions which may appear rather nice were made; for it seems to me that the case of Adams v. Lambert, as reported by Coke, and by Moore, and several of the authorities therein stated, and the case of Pitt v. Farmer, as reported by Rolle, and other cases which are stated in Duke, cannot be read without coming to the conclusion that establishments or foundations for securing prayer for the souls of the dead were deemed to be superstitious and within the statute of Edward VI., and upon those authorities I am of opinion that the directions of the will, to which I have referred, are such, and the payments made in respect thereof became the property of the Crown.

"The next direction in the will is the payment yearly to Newgate and Ludgate of 40*s.*, at the discretion of the wardens of the Company, in such things as the prisoners there should have most need of. To this gift no objection is made, the defendants allege they have performed the trust, and there is no proof to the contrary.

"The testator next directs the Company to appoint a receiver of the rents, who was to oversee the repairs and buildings, and out of the rents to pay for the reparation and other charges, and to keep accounts, and the Chamberlain of London was to attend at the taking of the accounts and to receive 3*s.* 4*d.*, and on the occasion a breakfast was to be provided at an expense of 13*s.* 4*d.*, and the receiver was to have 40*s.* a year, and if the account was not yearly made, the wardens were to forfeit 40 marks, to be levied upon the devised estates to the use of the City of London. The testator then directed that all the rents above the charges and outgoings should be laid in a chest in the treasury house of the Company, to the intent that the lands and messuages should be repaired and new builded when need should be. He then directed that his executor should pay 100 marks to be kept in the treasury house, to the intent that the premises might be the better and more truly performed, observed, and kept; and he willed that every honest man of the Company who would borrow 20 marks or 10*l.* of the said 100 marks, and of the money remaining of the rents, half-yearly, and lay a sufficient pledge in the treasury for the repayment thereof, and also say five paternosters, and five aves, and a creed for the testator's soul, and the souls above said, should have delivered to him by the said wardens 20 marks or 10*l.*, and on repayment the same money might be re-lent, the party borrowing always saying at the time five paternosters, five aves, and a creed for the testator's soul and the souls aforesaid, and in case the Company of Fishmongers should make default in performing the trusts or any of them, the testator declared the gifts void, and gave the estate over to the City of London, to the intent that the trusts might be performed by them, except the lending any money, and except that the Fishmongers' Company should have no benefit but by the direction of the mayor and aldermen of the city. There is no evidence to show whether the sum of 100 marks was ever paid, but the gift of this sum for the better performance of the trusts above mentioned leads to the inference that at the time the rents were not more than sufficient to answer the purposes to which the testator directed them to be applied. Even in the direction for making and renewing loans out of the reserved fund, the testator has intermixed directions for religious observances to be performed for his soul, and the souls of others, and the only charitable gift unmixed with superstition, which I find in the will, is that to the prisoners in Newgate and Ludgate. This might be sufficient to save the land from vesting in the Crown, but all the other applications directed to be made of the rents appear to me to be either gifts for superstitious uses, or so connected with superstition or contrived for the continuance and perpetuation of a superstitious use, that the rents payable, and paid in that respect, became the property of the Crown under the statute of Edward VI., and under all the circumstances of the case I am of opinion that the estates devised by Sir T. Kneseworth became the property of the Company, subject only to the performance of the trust for the prisoners of Ludgate and Newgate, which trust appears to have been performed. I am therefore of opinion that this information must be dismissed and dismissed with costs."

The suit came before the Lord Chancellor on appeal, and judgment thereon was delivered by Lord Cottenham on the 13th of January 1841, when the following judgment was delivered by his Lordship, after stating the will:—

"It is impossible to attend to the provisions of the will and to entertain any doubt but that according to the principle of the cases of the Attorney-General v. the Corporation of Bristol, 2nd. Jacob and Walker, the Attorney-General v. Smithies, 2nd. Russell and Mylne and the Attorney-General v. the Cordwainers' Company, 3rd. Mylne and Keen, that the gifts and directions in this will, which precede the provisions as to the loans, are merely charges upon the property, and if they had been legal those who have the property so given subject to such charges would be only bound to discharge them as given whatever might be the value of the property.

"I am also of opinion that the same principle applies as to the loans to members of the Fishmongers' Company, though that is less definite as to the amount, and that if there had been no legal objection to that provision, all the Company would have been bound to do would have been to furnish out of the surplus rents the accommodation intended.

"The Company were to have the benefit of the surplus of the property, subject to the observance of the testator's direction, for the benefit of the poor members of it. This, though a charitable provision, was only a mode prescribed by the testator, in which the Company were among themselves to enjoy the gift. So far, therefore, as this information seeks to fix upon the whole of the property devised to the Company by the will of Sir T. Kneseworth, I am of opinion that it wholly fails.

"It has, however, a secondary and a very subordinate object, that is, the establishing and carrying into effect the objects and directions of the will in the several particulars which have been the subject of discussion.

"Much of that discussion has turned on the effect of the letters patent of 1 Edward VI. and the Act of 4 James I. The view I take of this case makes it unnecessary for me to follow that discussion further than to say that the effect of the two was, in my opinion, the gift of the Company for their own benefit (for there was no pretence for the suggestion that what they took from the Crown was subject to any trust) all such interest in the property given by the will of Sir Thomas Kneseworth as the Crown became, or might have become, entitled to under 1 Edward VI. But even that proposition is not very essential to the decision of the present case, for whether the Company so became entitled or not, it is clear that I cannot establish charities or carry into effect directions which are made illegal by the last-mentioned statute. Of the objects attempted to be provided for by the will, these only have been supposed to be free from the operation of the statute: 1st. That for the benefit of the prisoners in Newgate and Ludgate prisons; and 2nd. That for furnishing loans for members of the Company. Of the first nothing need be said, as there is no case established of the provision having been neglected, and as there is no ground for contending that the Company are bound to increase that sum, the only question therefore is as to the second. The gift in the will is that of the funds so to be composed of the surplus rents and of the 100 marks, 10*l.* should be lent to every honest man of the fellowship for six months, but only upon certain conditions, that is, the laying a sufficient pledge in the treasury for the sure repayment thereof, and also saying five paternosters and 5 aves, and a creed for the testator's soul and the souls before-mentioned, and if at the end of the six months the party borrowing wished to have the loan continued for six months more, he was to have the same for another six months, again laying a sufficient pledge for the sure repayment of the same at the said half year, he saying "De profundis" or five paternosters, five aves, and a creed for the testator's soul and the souls before-mentioned. The 5th of 1 Edward VI. c. 14. gave to the king all lands given to the finding or maintaining of any anniversary or obit, or other like thing or purpose. And by many decisions referred to in Adams v. Lambert, 4th Coke's reports, 102 b, it was decided that praying for souls was a like intent and purpose as an anniversary or obit within the meaning of the Act, although not to be performed by a priest or in any chapel, and that where the gift was for the benefit of the poor, but connected with such superstitious uses as their praying for souls, the whole went to the king. I particularly allude to the case of Adams v. Lambert itself, and to the cases of Cayley, Gregory, Colbourn, and Turner there cited in pages 114 and 115 b. It is, therefore, impossible to maintain that the provisions for loans to the members of the Fishmongers' Company were not within the operation of the Act of 1 Edward VI. c. 14. The king therefore became entitled to the whole estate, this purpose applying to the whole of the surplus rents if required, and there being, therefore, no distinct part or portion which could go to the king, in which case it was early decided that he was entitled to the whole, the authorities for which are also to be found in Adams v. Lambert, the result of which is that the Company by means of the letters patent and the Act of 4 James I. obtained all the title which the Act of 1 Edward VI. c. 14. would have given to the Crown, or even if that had not been so, the gift was superstitious and void under the last-mentioned Act, and the Attorney-General cannot call upon this court to establish it or to carry its provisions into effect.

"I therefore think the decree of the Master of the Rolls was perfectly correct and dismiss this appeal with costs."

The information was accordingly dismissed with costs.

The steps thereupon taken by the Company are stated in the following narrative, printed by order of the court of Company, to be annexed to the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry:—

"The decree of the Lord Chancellor was communicated to the court of the Fishmongers' Company on the following day, the 14th January 1841. At the Trust Committee, the 7th May 1841, a letter referred by the court the 8th April, from Mr. J. B. Towse, solicitor, was read, and he being heard thereon, the committee directed him to lay before them 'a general report on the situation of the Company in consequence of the late decree;' accordingly Mr. J. B. Towse laid a report before the committee on the 6th July 1841, when he was directed to prepare the draft of a case, to be submitted to the committee previously to Mr. Pemberton's opinion being taken thereon, agreeably to Mr. Towse's suggestion.

"The Trust Committee, 24th September 1841, approved of the case so drawn, and directed it to be laid before Mr. Pemberton; he, Mr. Pemberton, declining to receive the case without a junior, the court, 11th November 1841, ordered a copy of the case to be submitted to Mr. Romilly, to meet Mr. Pemberton in consultation thereon. The joint opinion of those gentlemen was laid before the Trust Committee, the 31st December 1841, the same being entered in the proceedings of that day. The committee recommended the court to carry out the opinion of Mr. Pemberton and Mr. Romilly by discontinuing the keeping of the account and audit; to cease the payments to the chamberlain, and for the breakfast; to continue the payment of 40*s.* to the prisons of Newgate and Ludgate, but to cease the increased allowance to them; and that the printed account (made by order of court, 20th July 1826) of the 'benefactions given to St. Peter's Hospital' should be reprinted, omitting all reference to Sir Thomas Kneseworth, which the court the 18th January 1842 agreed to, and ordered accordingly.

"By virtue of the above decree, the estates alluded to in the annexed report as being derived from Kneseworth, are declared as not of his gift, but that they were taken from the Company; that the purchase of them from the Crown was from out of the Company's own funds, and therefore the Company are at liberty to do as they may please with the yearly income, &c.

"This report, therefore, of the Commissioners of Charities, as contained in pages 94, 95, 96, 97, and 98, Rep. 12, is no longer correct in ascribing that the Company hold the property therein described as belonging to Kneseworth's Trust, or that the property is in any way connected with Saint Peter's Hospital, &c. The references to Kneseworth in the account given by the Commissioners of Saint Peter's Hospital, in pages 98, 99, 100, 101, and 102, may therefore be considered erroneous, as even the badges, which are stated in page 102 to represent Kneseworth's arms have been by order of court, 10th February 1842, discontinued, and new badges, with the Company's arms on, substituted.

"By the discontinuing the keeping of the accounts, and from the property being declared to be the Company's own, the income derived from the property is not now appropriated (as mentioned in page 95 of the Commissioners' Report) to certain specific charities, although the Company intend, during pleasure, to support those charities out of their own funds, except as regards the increase made to the prisons, which, as before mentioned, is discontinued, they being entirely unconnected with the Company, excepting the small payment of 40*s.* annually."

The questions and opinion above referred to were as follows:—

1. Whether the Company is now at liberty to discontinue the keeping the account and audit in the manner as directed by the will of the testator, and bring them into the general accounts of the Company, and cease the payments to the chamberlain, &c., and for the breakfast.

2. Whether the payment of 40*s.* to the prisons of Newgate and Ludgate is a trust which they are now bound to perform under and according to the directions of the testator's will.

3. Whether the will of the testator was not by the operation of the statutes passed for the suppression of superstitious uses, and relating thereto, or some or one of them made absolutely void and destroyed, and the lands thereby entirely vested in the Crown; if not, to what extent were the same affected, and what is the present position of the Company in respect to the will as regards those statutes, and as regards the judgment of the late Lord Chancellor.

4. And to advise the Company what course of proceedings they should adopt for the silencing of all doubts and for the prevention of future litigation and generally on the case.

OPINION.

1. We are of opinion that the Company is now at liberty to discontinue keeping the account and audit in the manner directed by the will of Sir T. Kneseworth, to bring them into the general accounts of the Company, and to cease the payments to the chamberlain and for the breakfast.

2. The judgments pronounced by the Master of the Rolls and the Lord Chancellor in this case do not decide this point, but we think that the Company cannot safely dispense with this payment, although the doctrines laid down in Adams v. Lambert, 4 Rep., and the other authorities which were cited in this case, if they can be supported to their full extent, decide that this trust is not one which the Company is now bound to perform, according to the directions contained in the testator's will.

3 and 4. We are of opinion that the will of the testator was, by the operation of the statute 1st Edward VI., and the letters patent of 4 Edward VI., and the statute of 4 James I., rendered absolutely void except so far as relates to the payment of 40s. to the prisoners of Newgate and Ludgate, and that by the force of these statutes and letters patent the Company is now the owner of the property devised by this will as purchaser for valuable consideration, and that they have full power and right to deal with it as they may think fit, but considering the great length of time which has elapsed during which the Company has invariably applied a considerable portion of the rents arising from these estates towards certain charitable purposes, a diversion of the whole of the property to other purposes might still create doubts, and give rise to questions which it would be unwise to occasion. We think that if not already done the decree had better be enrolled, which may prevent a rehearing at some distant period; independently of this, we cannot point out any step which can be taken by the Company to silence doubts and prevent future litigation, the decisions which have already been pronounced will, if extensively known, do more than any course which the Company can adopt to effect these objects.

(Signed) THOS. PEMBERTON.
JOHN ROMILLY.

Lincoln's Inn,
21st December 1841.

The 40s. a year has since been paid to the city officers for the prisons of Ludgate and Newgate, and constitutes the only sum paid in respect of this devise. The accounts laid before the Charity Commissioners under the Charitable Trusts Acts comprise this charge and its annual discharge, and no other account in relation to the estate.

KNIGHT'S GIFT.

Richard Knight, by his will of the 11th October 1501, gave his messuage or great house and six tenements in Lime Street towards the relief and comfort of the Company.

The sum of 13s. 4d. a year is deemed to be chargeable on this estate, and is carried to the account of the half-yearly poor.

LARKIN'S CHARITY.

John Larkin, by his will of the 18th November 1656, gave 400*l.* to the said Company, to be lent to four poor men free of the Company at interest at 3*l.* per cent. at the end of four years. The fund is part of the "Loan Trust Fund." (See Cecilie Long's Charity.) The sum of 3*l.* a year is carried from "Loan monies interest" to the credit of the Company.

LONG'S CHARITY.

Cecilie Long bequeathed, by her will of the 8th September 1559, to the Company 150*l.* to be lent to six poor young men, and paying yearly 3*l.* for coals amongst poor and needy persons inhabiting the city. This forms part of the "Trust Loan Account," and is administered as stated under the decree of the Court of Chancery. The Company pay in April yearly 7*s.* 6*d.* each to eight poor persons, who are members of the Company.

The Commissioners of Inquiry observe in their report: "Many similar benefactions of money for the purpose of being lent to poor freemen of the Company occur in this report, but no such loans have been made for a great number of years. The present clerk of the Company remembers only two applications for them in the course of 50 years; but neither the parties or the securities were approved of. In all cases, however, where the loans were not to be made gratis, the Company make the charitable payments to which the interest to be received was directed to be applied by the respective donors."

An information was subsequently to the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry filed against the Company at the relation of Edward I'Anson,* and came on to be heard before the Master of the Rolls on the 25th April 1837, when it was declared that the 34 sums therein mentioned, making together the sum of 2,911*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* then in the hands of the defendants were charitable bequests applicable to the several trusts of the wills or instruments of the several donors in the pleadings mentioned, and it was referred to the master to make the several inquiries thereby directed, and it was ordered that the relator and the said Fishmongers' Company should be at liberty to propose before the master a scheme for the application of the said several sums, or so much thereof as the master should find could not be so applied as directed by the said several wills and instruments, and the master was to settle and approve of a proper scheme for that purpose.

The master made his report, dated the 9th day of July 1841, and therein set forth the dates and particulars of the bequests of 34 endowments for loans, namely:—

An abstract of the terms of each donation is set forth under the head of each charity, and will be found under the alphabetical arrangement.

The master found that the several sums of money were then retained and kept, save as therein-after mentioned, in the possession of the Company for the purpose as they alleged of having the same ready for such applicants as might require the same, and fulfil the conditions necessary for obtaining the loans thereof respectively, according to the several trusts of the wills or investments of the donors. And he found that the persons who according to the directions of the said donors would be entitled to call for and require the said 34 loans had not for the last 50 years called for and required the same, save and except that upon the 1st day of August 1836 the sum of 200*l.* in compliance with the directions contained in the said will of the said Randolph Baskerville was advanced and lent by the defendants to one Samuel Rutty, who had applied for the same, and who, together with his sureties, executed the necessary bond for the repayment thereof, and for the payment of interest thereon in the meantime as directed by the said will of the said Randolph Baskerville; and also, save and except that since the said application the defendants had received three other applications for the loan of money from the defendants, but with which last applications in consequence of this suit being then pending, and under the various circumstances therein-after mentioned, the defendants had not hitherto complied. And he found that of the said 34 several sums of money amounting together to the sum of 2,911*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, part thereof consisting of the 18 donations next therein-after mentioned, amounting to the sum of 2,148*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, were directed to be lent on loan at interest varying from 6*s.* 8*d.* to 4*l.* 10*s.* per cent. per annum, and from one to four years, with the exception of one, which had no limited time, that is to say, Cicely Long's gift of 150*l.*, at 2*l.* per cent. per annum, to be lent for three years in sums of 25*l.* each. Lawrence Williams's gift of 120*l.*, at 2*l.* 10*s.* per cent. per annum, to be lent for three years in sums of 40*l.* each. Johan Hecker's gift of 100*l.*, at 2*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* per cent. per annum, to be lent for three years in sums of 50*l.* each. Dame Anne Allott's gift of 100*l.*, at 4*l.* per cent. per annum, to be lent for three years each in sums of 50*l.* each. Alice Field's gift of 80*l.*, at 16*s.* 8*d.* per cent. per annum, to be lent for two years in sums of 20*l.* each. Ann Broomsgrove's gift of 66*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, at 3*l.* 15*s.* per cent. per annum, to be lent for two years in sums of 33*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* each. John Halsey's gift of 200*l.*, at 1*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* per cent. per annum, to be lent for three years in sums of 50*l.* each. Fras. Coling's gift of 200*l.*, at 1*l.* 10*s.* per cent. per annum, to be lent for three years in sums of 50*l.* each. Randall Baskerville's gift of 200*l.*, at 4*l.* 10*s.* per cent. per annum, and as to the loan of which no time was limited or sum specified. William Barlow's gift of 100*l.*, at 3*l.* per cent. per annum, and as to the loan of which no time was limited or sum specified. William Thwaites' gift of 50*l.*, at 2*l.* per cent. per annum, to be lent for three years in sums of 25*l.* each. Thos. Palley's gift of 50*l.*, at 2*l.* per cent. per annum, to be lent for one year in sums of 10*l.* each. John Haydon's gift of 100*l.*, at 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* per cent. per annum, to be lent for four years in sums of 50*l.* each. Edward Allen's gift of 66*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, at 6*s.* 8*d.* per cent. per annum, to be lent for three years in sums of 33*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* each. Magdalene Stoke's gift of 40*l.*, at 2*l.* 10*s.* per cent. per annum, to be lent for two years. Paul Cleater's gift of 25*l.*, at 2*l.* per cent. per annum, to be lent for two years. Jno. Larkin's gift of 400*l.*, at 15*s.* per cent. per annum, to be lent for four years in sums of 100*l.* each; and John Owen's gift of 100*l.*, at 2*l.* per cent. per annum, to be lent for three years in sums of 50*l.* And he found that the interest to arise from the loan of the last-mentioned donations amounted in the aggregate to the sum of 46*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.* per annum; that, with the exception of the sum of 3*l.*, part thereof the produce of the said Jno. Larkin's donation, and as to the disposal of which no direction was given; by his said will, the same was to be applied as follows (that is to say), the sum of 3*l.*, the produce of the said Cicely Long's donation to the Fishmongers' Company, for the buying of coals to be given at Christmas to poor and needy persons inhabiting in the City of London as the wardens of the said Company think meet; the sum of 3*l.*, the produce of the said Lawrence William's donation, to the churchwardens of Ashwell, Herts, the sum of 2*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* the produce of the said Johan Hecker's donation, to be divided as to one moiety equally between the poor persons in the King's Bench and common gaols of Surrey, and as to the other moiety to be distributed in coals among poor people of the Fishmongers' Company; the sum of 4*l.*, the produce of Ann Allott's donation, to the poor in the lesser almshouse in Church Street, Croydon, and to the parson and churchwardens of Sanderstead, Surrey, in the sums and in the manner in the will mentioned; the sum of 13*s.* 4*d.*, the produce of Alice Field's donation to the Fishmongers' Company to purchase charcoal to distribute among the poor of the parish of St. Nicholas Olave in December; the sum of 2*l.* 10*s.*, the produce of Ann Broomsgrove's donation, in manner following, that is to say, 1*l.* to Nicholas Cole Abbey, 1*l.* to St. Peter's Hospital, 5*s.* to the reader there, and 5*s.* to the officers of the Fishmongers' Company; the sum of 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, the produce of Jno. Halsey's donation, in manner following, that is to say, 3*l.* to the Fishmongers' Company to purchase sea coals for the poor of St. Mary Magdalene, Old Fish Street, and 6*s.* 8*d.* to the officers of the Fishmongers' Company, for providing and seeing to the delivery, of the same sum of 3*l.*, the produce of Fras. Coling's donation, to 10 poor freemen or widows of freemen of the Fishmonger's Company not receiving a pension at the court next before or on the 17th day of March or the next court thereafter; the sum of 9*l.*, the produce of Randall Baskerville's donation, in manner following; that is to say, 4*l.* to St. Peter's Hospital, 4*l.* to Bray Hospital, 10*s.* to the clerk of the Fishmongers' Company, 5*s.* to each of the two beadles of the said Company; the sum of 3*l.*, the produce of William Barlow's donation, to be distributed in the hospital of Croydon, founded by Archbishop Whitgift, in sums and manner in the will mentioned; the sum of 1*l.*, the produce of Wm. Thwaites' donation, for the churchwardens of St. Mildred, London, for the poor; the sum of 1*l.*, the produce of Thos. Palley's donation, to the wardens of the yeomanry towards a dinner; the sum of 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, the produce of John Haydon, to be paid to the Mercers' Company; the sum of 4*s.* 6*d.*, the produce of Edward Allen's donation, to the two beadles of the Fishmongers' Company; the sum of 1*l.*, the produce of Magdalene Stoke's donation, to a discreet preacher for a sermon on New Year's day at St. Botolph's; the sum of 10*s.*, the produce of Paul Cleater's donation, to the parish of St. Mary-at-Hill, and the sum of 2*l.*, the produce of Jno. Owen's donation, to the poor of the Fishmongers' Company at Christmas. And he found that of the said 34 donations other parts thereof, consisting of the two donations next hereafter mentioned and amounting together to the sum of 233*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, were directed to be lent out upon (among others) the conditions following, that is to say, James Bacon's gift of 100*l.*, to be lent in sums of 50*l.*, for which the borrowers were to provide two cartloads of coals, of 30 sacks to the load, per annum, and to have the loan for two years, and Sir Jno. Allott's gift of 133*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, to be lent in sums of 33*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, for the loan of which three loads of great coals called Caroli, three sacks to the load, four bushels to the sack, are to be provided per annum, and the loan to be lent for three years. And he found that the average value of the 240 bushels of coals which were to be provided yearly in respect of the said James Bacon's gift, amounting to the sum of 12*l.* or thereabouts, being equivalent to interest at the rate of 12*l.* per cent. per annum for the loan, and that the annual value of the 360 bushels of coals which were to be provided yearly in respect of the said Sir John Allott's gift amount to the sum of 18*l.*, or thereabouts, being equivalent to interest at the rate of 3*l.* 10*s.* per cent. per annum for the loan. And he found that the remainder of the said 34 several sums of money consisted of the following 14 donations next thereafter mentioned, amounting together to the sum of 530*l.*, and were directed to be lent out without interest in manner following; that is to say, Owyne Waller's gift of 100*l.* to be lent for two years in sums of 25*l.* each. Lawrence Williams' gift of 40*l.* to be lent out for three years in sums of 10*l.* each. Richard Turk's gift of 100*l.*, to be lent for one year in sums of 20*l.* each. John Joy's gift of 20*l.*, to be lent for one year in sums of 10*l.* each. John Hopkins' gift of 20*l.*, to be lent for one year in a sum of 20*l.* Henry Walley's gift of 20*l.*, to be lent for two years in a sum of 20*l.* John Cowper's gift of 20*l.*, to be lent for one year in a sum of 20*l.* John Crafton's gift of 40*l.*, to be lent for two years in sums of 20*l.* each. Edward Cawnte's gift of 20*l.*, to be lent for five years in a sum of 20*l.* Warner King's gift of 40*l.*, to be lent for two years in sums of 20*l.* each. Leonard Smith's gift of 20*l.*, to be lent for two years in sums of 10*l.* each. Roger Owfield's gift of 50*l.*, to be lent for one year or more in sums of 25*l.* each. Mrs. Basden's gift of 20*l.*, to be lent for two years in a sum of 20*l.*, and John Carter's gift of 20*l.*, to be lent for two years in a sum of 20*l.* And he found that the said defendants by the said state of facts, after alleging to the effect therein-before mentioned, stated that the objects of the charity of the eight several donors therein-after named, as specified by their respective wills or deeds, could not at the present time be found, viz., Alice Field, Ann Broomsgrove, Jno. Halsey, Richard Turk, Edward Cawnte, Warner King, Leonard Smith, and Paul Cleater, and it was extremely doubtful whether the objects of the charity of the said three several donors therein-after named, as specified or referred to by their respective wills or deeds, could at the present time be found, viz., Henry Walleys, John Haydon, and Magdalene Stokes. And further, that the objects of the charity of the 23 several donors therein-after named, as specified or referred to by their respective wills or deeds, might at the present time be found, viz., Cicely Long, Jas. Bacon, Owyne Waller, Lawrence Williams, Johan Hecker, Alderman Jno. Allott, Dame Anne Allott, Fras. Coling, Randall Baskerville, William Barlow, William Thwaites, Jas. Joy, Thos. Palley, Jno. Hopkins, Jno. Cowper, Jno. Crafton, Roger Owfield, Edward Allen, Jno. Larkin, Jno. Owen, Mrs. Basden, and Jno. Carter. And after further stating that although the objects of the several last-mentioned 23 donors might be found, yet by reason of the smallness of the amount of many of the said sums of money for loans, the depreciation of the value of money, the increase in the price of the necessaries of life, the expenses of inquiring into the responsibility of the sureties, the preparing and execution of the bonds for repayment of such loans, and the stamp duties imposed thereon. And also by reason of the trade in fish in the City of London being carried on in a manner wholly different from that which prevailed at the respective dates of the said several wills and deeds, and also the conditions necessary to be fulfilled it would not be beneficial to persons standing in need of such assistance to accept any of such last-mentioned 23 loans, the said defendants submitted that, under the circumstances aforesaid, the said 34 several sums of money could not then be applied according to the directions contained in the said several wills or instruments, having regard to the intentions of the said several donors, and that it was therefore expedient that some measures should be adopted so that the charitable intentions of all the aforesaid respective donors might, as far as circumstances and the alterations of the times would permit, be carried out and complied with according to the spirit thereof, and that an increase in the number of the said loans should take place. And the master set forth the following scheme which had been submitted to him by the Company.

* I am informed that the original relator was one Henry Milne, but the suit was not comprehensive enough to include all the funds within the same description, and the relator was subsequently changed and the information amended with the consent of the Company.

SCHEME.

1st. That the said before-mentioned several 34 sums of 160*l.*, 100*l.*, 100*l.*, 120*l.*, 40*l.*, 100*l.*, 133*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, 100*l.*, 80*l.*, 66*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, 200*l.*, 200*l.*, 200*l.*, 100*l.*, 50*l.*, 100*l.*, 20*l.*, 50*l.*, 20*l.*, 20*l.*, 100*l.*, 20*l.*, 40*l.*, 20*l.*, 40*l.*, 20*l.*, 50*l.* 66*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, 40*l.*, 25*l.*, 400*l.*, 100*l.*, 20*l.*, and 20*l.*, amounting to the sum of 2,911*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, should be amalgamated, and that after such amalgamation the amount of such costs as the court shall direct should be deducted and paid out of the said sum of 2,911*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*

2nd. That the sum of money till after such deductions should be from time to time lent out by the said court of assistants of the defendants to any of the poor members of the said Company, upon their giving security for the repayment thereof as therein and herein-after is mentioned to the satisfaction of the said wardens or assistants, or the major part of them, and their successors, in several sums of money not less than 50*l.* each, and not exceeding 300*l.* each, and for a term not exceeding four years, according to their discretion, at interest after the rate of 3*l.* per cent. per annum. That the interest arising from the said loans should be applied by the defendants, the said wardens and commonalty, and their successors annually in the first instance in the payment of the sum of 73*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.* in the sums and to the uses following; that is to say, —

WILLIAMS.

To pay (pursuant to the will of Lawrence Williams as aforesaid) to the churchwardens of the parish of Ashwell, in the county of Herts, 3*l.*, 52*s.* whereof to be employed and bestowed on bread, which should be weekly distributed in the parish church of Ashwell only on every Sunday, one dozen to the poor of the same parish that should have most need thereof, by the discretion and oversight of the vicar and churchwardens there, and the odd loaf to the sexton weekly for his labour about the distribution of the rest; and 2*s.*, another parcel of the same 3*l.*, to the parish clerk of the same parish of Ashwell yearly, for his pains about the premises; and 6*s.*, the residue of the same 3*l.*, to be bestowed and employed for ever towards the reparation of the same church.

ALLOTT.

To pay (pursuant to the will of Dame Anne Allott as aforesaid) to and amongst the poor almspeople inhabiting and dwelling in the lesser almshouse in Church Street, in the town of Croydon, in the county of Surrey, the sum of 3*l.*, to be equally distributed and paid amongst them upon the 23rd day of March; and also to pay at the times last aforesaid unto the parson and churchwardens of the parish of Sanderstead, in the said county of Surrey, the sum of 20*s.*, which is to be bestowed and laid forth yearly in repairing and amending the parish church of Sanderstead aforesaid, at the oversight of them, who are referred to by the said will of the said Dame Anne Allott, and if the said 20*s.* a year should be converted to any other use or uses otherwise than to the repairing of the said church, that the said 20*s.* a year should cease for the next year following and be paid and equally divided to and amongst the poor people inhabiting in the lesser almshouses aforesaid, and so from time to time be withdrawn from the said parish of Sanderstead as often as they neglect the employment thereof to the use intended, provided that the parson and churchwardens should have warning by him or them who had oversight of the repairs as aforesaid to repair the said church within one year, after which, if they should not perform and do it, then the said 20*s.* to be distributed to the poor almspeople aforesaid.

BROOMSGROVE.

To pay (pursuant to the will of Anne Broomsgrove as aforesaid) 20*s.* unto the parson and churchwardens for the time being of St. Nicholas Cole Abbey, London, for the use and benefit of the poor people of the same parish to be distributed to and amongst them where most need is on the feast day of the Annunciation of our Blessed Lady the Virgin, yearly; and also to pay and distribute other 20*s.* amongst the poor people of St. Peter's Hospital, in the parish of St. George, in the county of Surrey, upon the same feast day last-before mentioned yearly; and also to pay 5*s.* to the minister or reader of prayers for the time being in the said hospital last mentioned; and also to pay 5*s.* to the officers of the said wardens and commonalty and their successors.

COLING.

To distribute (pursuant to the said deed of the said Fras. Coling as aforesaid) the sum of 3*l.* amongst 10 of the poorest freemen, or widows of freemen, of the said Company, not receiving any pension, at the court next before, on or next after the 17th day of March yearly, as the major part of the wardens and assistants of the said Company present at such court should think most fit.

BASKERVILLE.

To pay (pursuant to the aforesaid will of the said Randall Baskerville) to St. Peter's Hospital the sum of 4*l.*, to the hospital of Bray the sum of 4*l.*, to the clerk of the said wardens and commonalty and their successors the sum of 10*s.*, and to their two beadles the sum of 5*s.* a piece.

BARLOW.

To distribute (pursuant to the aforesaid will of the said William Barlow, Bishop of Lincoln) the sum of 3*l.* for the hospital in Croydon, in the county of Surrey, founded by the most Rev. Prelate Archbishop Whitegift in this manner, viz., 13*s.* 4*d.* for one that is a preacher licensed to preach in the parish church there yearly a sermon on the 22nd March, being the day on which the hospital was founded, in which he should make honourable mention of that most Rev. Prelate Archbishop Whitegift, his person and action; 13*s.* 4*d.* to make a competent dinner for all or as many of the poor of the hospital as should be at the sermon that day, if not sick or bedrid; 10*s.* to be put into the common box of the hospital for a dividend among the poor, and 3*s.* 4*d.* for the vicar of Croydon to give notice in the church unto the parishioners every year on the Sunday before the day of that sermon; and 6*s.* 8*d.* for one of the Company of the said wardens and commonalty and their successors to be sent by the master and wardens on that day every year to see this performed; and 13*s.* 4*d.* to be equally divided every year in the Fishmongers' Hall among four poor old men or women of London at the nomination and appointment of the aldermen alone, if there be any, or the master of the Company alone for the time being.

THWAITES.

To pay (pursuant to the aforesaid will of the said William Thwaites) 1*l.* unto the churchwardens of the parish of St. Mildred, London, to be by them distributed and employed to the use of the poor of the same parish.

PALLEY.

To give (pursuant to the aforesaid will of the said Thomas Palley) to the wardens of the yeomanry of the Fishmongers towards their dinner, whensoever they shall make it, 1*l.*

HEYDON.

To deliver and pay (pursuant to the aforesaid will of the said Jno. Heydon) the sum of 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* into the hand of the master and wardens of the Company or Mystery of Mercers of London and their successors.

ALLEN.

To pay (pursuant to the aforesaid will of the said Edward Allen) 4*s.* 6*d.* to the two beadles of the said wardens and commonalty and successors of Fishmongers.

STOKES.

To pay (pursuant to the aforesaid will of the said Magdalene Stokes) 1*l.* unto a discreet preacher of God's word for one sermon that he shall make every New Year's day, that is, the 1st of January, for ever at St. Botolph's within the City of London.

CLEATER.

To pay (pursuant to the aforesaid will of the said Paul Cleater) 10*s.* to the churchwardens of the parish of St.

Mary at Hill, London, for the use of the poor of the said parish.

OWEN.

To pay (pursuant to the aforesaid will of the said Jno. Owen) the sum of 40s. amongst the poor of the said wardens and commonalty and successors of Fishmongers at Christmas yearly.

HECKER.

To pay (pursuant to the aforesaid will of the said Johan Hecker) the sum of 1l. 6s. 8d. to the relief of the poor prisoners of the King's Bench in Southwark, and the poor prisoners of the common gaols for Surrey, to be divided betwixt them equally amongst them; and also the further sum of 1l. 6s. 8d. for coals to be distributed amongst the poor people of the Company of Fishmongers where need is.

LONG.

To pay (pursuant to the aforesaid will of the said Cicely Long) the sum of 3l. for the buying of coals, which are to be against the feast of Christmas, given to and amongst such poor and needy persons inhabiting within the City of London as to the wardens of the said Company of Fishmongers for the time being shall be thought meet.

HALSEY.

To pay (pursuant to the aforesaid will of the said John Halsey) the sum of 3l. 6s. 8d. which shall be employed and bestowed by the wardens of the said Fishmongers' Company in form following, that is to say, 3l. thereof to be employed and bestowed yearly at such time of the year as they shall think fittest in sea coals to be sent to the parish of St. Mary Magdalen in Old Fish Street, London, and there to be by the churchwardens of the said parish laid up and kept to the use of the poor until winter time, and then to be distributed to amongst the poor of the said parish in such manner as the said churchwardens and overseers of the poor shall in their discretion think most fitting, and the remaining 6s. 8d. to be given to such beadle or other officer of the said Company for his pains as shall be appointed by the wardens of the said Company to provide the said coals and to see the delivery of the same to the churchwardens of the said parish.

BACON.

To pay (pursuant to the aforesaid will of the said James Bacon) the sum of 12l. in buying and providing two loads of coals called cart coals, amounting to 30 sacks to the load, and the same shall, from time to time as the wardens of the said Fishmongers' Company appoint, be delivered one load between the 1st day of November and the 20th day of December, and the other load between the 1st day of January and the 2nd day of February, and distributed among the poorest of the said Company, according to the discretion of the said wardens.

ALLOTT.

To pay (pursuant to the aforesaid will of the said Sir Jno. Allott) the sum of 18l. for the buying and providing of three loads of great coals called caroli, every load containing 30 sacks, and every sack containing four bushels, which shall be distributed by the oversight and direction of the wardens of the said Company of Fishmongers every year yearly to and amongst the poor inhabitants within the ward of Bread Street, London, in manner and form following, viz., one load thereof always and somewhat before the feast of Easter, one other load thereof somewhat before the feast of All Saints, and the other always between the feasts of All Saints and Christmas.

FIELD.

To distribute (pursuant to the aforesaid deed of the said Alice Field) the sum of 13s. 4d. either in money or in so many sacks of charcoal as should amount to that sum among the poor people of the parish of St. Nicholas Olave, in the City of London. That in case the said wardens and Company and their successors should not be able to pay the said 73l. 4s. 6d., or any part thereof away annually as before set forth by reason of the failure of the objects to receive the same herein-before mentioned, then it should be lawful for them to pay the said 73l. 4s. 6d. or such part thereof as should remain in their hands or possession unapplied as aforesaid towards the aid, support, and relief of any of the poor members of the said Fishmongers' Company as they the said wardens and commonalty and their successors at a court of assistants of the said mystery or the majority there present should deem proper; that such portion of the said principal sum which at any time should not be out on loan, or should not be required for that purpose, and would otherwise be in the possession of the said defendants, the said wardens and commonalty and their successors should pay into the hands of the bankers of the said wardens and commonalty for the time being to an account in their books entitled the Worshipful Company of Fishmongers' Trust Loan Monies, there to be and remain until application or applications be from time to time made to the said wardens and commonalty at a court of assistants for the loan thereof, or some part thereof. That upon any such application or applications being made to the said wardens and commonalty, such court of assistants or the major part of them shall in their discretion determine whether or not the same is or are fit to be complied with, and if the same shall be complied with it shall be lawful for the said wardens and commonalty and their successors at such court of assistants, or the major part of them, to direct a warrant or check to be issued to such their banker for the time being to pay so much of the said loan monies to the bearer as should be expressed or mentioned in the said warrant or check; that the borrowers together with their sureties (such sureties to be approved of by the said defendants and their successors the wardens and commonalty for the time being of the said mystery at a court of assistants, or the major part of them, to be evidenced by a resolution of that court of assistants, and entered in the book or books of the said mystery from time to time) shall be respectively required to execute a joint and several bond or note of hand as by such resolution shall be directed to the defendants and their successors, the conditions of such bonds or the terms of such notes of hand to be in the form or substance following, viz.: That the borrowers with such sureties should jointly and severally bind themselves, their heirs, executors, and administrators to the said defendants, the wardens and commonalty and their successors, in a penal sum therein to be named, to pay to them the said defendants or their certain attorney at Fishmongers' Hall, in the City of London, the sum borrowed with interest after the rate of 3l. per cent. per annum, either in one sum or by instalments to be therein stated, on a certain day or certain days to be therein named, and in default of payment of the said sum and interest, or any instalment thereof, on the days and times therein-before mentioned, then the said defendants, the wardens and commonalty and their successors, to be at liberty to sue forthwith for the whole sum remaining due.

5th. That the clerk for the time being of the said wardens and commonalty and their successors shall be at liberty to charge the borrowers respectively for the stamps and for the other reasonable costs attendant upon such loans.

6th. That when any portion of the principal monies aforesaid shall be in the possession of the said defendants, the wardens and commonalty and their successors, to be lent out, advertisements shall be inserted twice at the least in every year in two or more of the daily newspapers, at the discretion of the said defendants, the wardens and commonalty and their successors, or the major part of them, at a court of assistants of the said mystery assembled, offering to lend out the same pursuant to the terms aforesaid, and notice thereof in writing shall also be put up in some conspicuous part of the hall or premises of the said mystery.

7th. That a separate account be kept by the said wardens and commonalty and their successors or their clerk, in which shall be entered an account of all the loan monies included in the pleadings of this cause; and in which also shall be entered the names and residences of the respective borrowers and their sureties, with their respective profession or business, the sums lent, the times of making the loans, and when payable, with the interest thereon, and the terms for which such loans were lent, and such further and other particulars as may by the said court of assistants be thought material or necessary.

8th. That in case the said wardens and commonalty or their successors should have any large sum of the aforesaid loan monies standing in the hands of their bankers for want of borrowers, it shall be lawful for them in their discretion to invest the same or any part thereof in the purchase of 3l. per cent. Consolidated Bank Annuities, and there to retain and keep the same until they have applications or application for the loan thereof or of any part thereof, and then to sell the same, and with the produce make the loan upon the terms aforesaid.

9th. That the interest to arise from the said charity funds, whether the same consists of the interest on such loans so to be made as aforesaid or of the interest on such investments as lastly therein-before mentioned, or partly of the interest on such loans and partly of the interest on such investment, shall be applied first towards payment of the said sum of 73*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.* in the several sums, and in the manner herein-before mentioned, and in the next place towards defraying all costs, charges, and expenses which the said wardens and commonalty and their successors shall have paid or incurred, or may hereafter pay or incur, in and about the management of any of the aforesaid matters and incidental to the carrying of this scheme into effect whether they are law proceedings or otherwise, other than the costs, charges, and expenses properly chargeable to the borrowers of the said loans in the manner herein-before specified, and the balance, if any, shall be paid to the poor men and women of the said mystery, as the wardens and commonalty and their successors, at a court of assistants, or the majority of them, shall think proper.

10th and last. That the said wardens and commonalty and their successors, and the estates of the said mystery shall not be liable to make good any loss that may arise from the failure of the borrowers of the whole or any portion of the said loan monies or their sureties, or from the failure of the said wardens and commonalty, or in, by, or through any such investment or investments as aforesaid, or in any other manner, unless such loss shall arise from the wilful default or neglect of the said defendants.

And the master certified that upon consideration of the said scheme and of the several matters aforesaid he found that, except as therein-before mentioned, the said 34 several sums of 150*l.*, 100*l.*, 100*l.*, 120*l.*, 40*l.*, 100*l.*, 133*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, 100*l.*, 80*l.*, 66*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, 200*l.*, 200*l.*, 200*l.*, 100*l.*, 50*l.*, 100*l.*, 20*l.*, 50*l.*, 20*l.*, 20*l.*, 100*l.*, 20*l.*, 40*l.*, 20*l.* 40*l.* 20*l.*, 50*l.*, 66*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, 40*l.*, 25*l.*, 400*l.*, 100*l.*, 20*l.*, and 20*l.*, could not then be applied according to the directions contained in the said several wills or instruments of the said donors thereof, and the master settled and approved of the said scheme as a proper scheme for the application of the said several sums in such manner as would be most beneficial for the poor members of the said Fishmongers' Company, and as would be most nearly in accordance with the directions contained in the said several wills and instruments, except that he was of opinion that the sums of money in which the said funds were to be lent by the said court of assistants should not exceed the sum of 200*l.*, instead of 300*l.*, as proposed by the said defendants. All which he humbly certified and submitted to the honourable court.

The case came before the court for further directions on the 10th day of August 1841, when it was ordered that it be referred to the master to tax all parties their costs of the information, as between solicitor and client, and that the same when taxed be paid out of the sum of 2,911*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* in the hands of the said defendants; and that what should remain of the said sum of 2,911*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* be set apart by the said defendants; and that an account thereof be opened in the book of the said Company to be entitled the "Trust Loan Account;" and it was ordered that the defendants by their court of assistants were to be at liberty and required to lend out to any of the poor members of the said Company, who should apply for the same, sums not below 50*l.* and not exceeding 200*l.*, for any time not exceeding four years, according to the discretion of the said court of assistants, at interest after the rate of 3*l.* per cent. per annum, upon the said poor members who should apply for the same giving such security for the repayment thereof as should be deemed satisfactory by the said court of assistants; and that the interest arising from the said loans was to be applied by the defendants, the said wardens and commonalty and their successors, annually, in the first instance, and as far as the same would extend, in the payment of the sum of 73*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.* to the persons and objects and in the manner specified in the scheme herein-before set forth as contained in the master's report; and the court thereby ordered that in case the said wardens and commonalty and their successors should not be able to pay the said sum of 73*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.*, or any part thereof, away annually as therein-before directed, by reason of the failure of the objects therein-before specified, or of any one or more of them to receive the same, then the said 73*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.*, or such part thereof as should remain in their hands or possession unapplied as aforesaid, was to be paid and applied by the said defendants towards the aid, and support, and relief of any of the poor members of the said Fishmongers' Company, in such sums, and in such manner, as they the said wardens and commonalty and successors at a court of assistants of the said mystery or a majority there present should deem proper; and after payment of the said sum of 73*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.* the said interest was to be applied in the next place towards defraying all costs, and charges, and expenses which the said wardens and commonalty and their successors should have paid or incurred, or might thereafter pay or incur, in and about the management of any of the aforesaid matters and incidental to the carrying thereof into effect, whether they were law proceedings or otherwise, other than the costs, charges, and expenses properly chargeable to the borrowers of the said loans, in the manner herein-after specified, and the balance, if any, was to be paid to the poor men and women of the said mystery as the said wardens and commonalty and their successors at a court of assistants should think proper; and it was declared that such portion of the said principal sum which at any time should not be out on loan, or should not be required for that purpose, and which would otherwise be in the possession of the said defendants and their successors, was to be paid by them into the hands of the bankers of the said wardens and commonalty for the time being to an account in their books entitled "The Worshipful Company of Fishmongers' Trust Loan Monies," there to be and remain until application or applications be from time to time made to the said wardens and commonalty, at a court of assistants, for the loan thereof or some part thereof; provided, however, that the said defendants were to be at liberty as their discretion to invest the same, or any part thereof, in the purchase of 3*l.* per cent. Consolidated Bank Annuities; provided also, that the dividends to arise from such sums so to be invested should be applied in like manner as the interest to be paid by the borrowers of the said sums; and it was declared that upon every such application or applications being made the said wardens and commonalty, at such court of assistants, should in their discretion determine whether or not the same was or were fit to be complied with, and if the same should be complied with, the said wardens and commonalty and their successors at such court of assistants were to be at liberty to direct a warrant or check to be issued to such their banker, for the time being, to pay so much of the said loan monies to the bearer as should be expressed or mentioned in the said warrant or check, or to sell out and apply so much of the said 3*l.* per cent. Bank Annuities so invested as aforesaid as might be necessary for that purpose; provided, however, that the sureties of such borrowers be approved of by the said defendants and their successors, the wardens and commonalty for the time being of the said mystery at a court of assistants, and entered in the book or books of the said mystery from time to time, and that the said borrowers and their sureties be respectively required to execute a joint and sealed bond or note of hand as by such resolution should be directed to the defendants and their successors, the conditions of such bonds or the terms of such notes of hand to be in the form or substance following: namely, that the borrowers with such sureties should jointly and severally bind themselves, their heirs, executors, and administrators, to the said defendants and their successors in a penal sum, therein to be named, to pay to them the said defendants or their certain attorney at Fishmongers' Hall, in the City of London, the sum borrowed, with interest after the rate of 3*l.* per cent. per annum, either in one sum or by instalments, to be therein stated, on a certain day or certain days to be therein named, and in default of payment of the said sum and interest or any instalment thereof on the days and times therein-before mentioned, then the said defendants and their successors to be at liberty to sue forthwith for the whole sum remaining due. And it was declared that the clerk for the time being of the said wardens and commonalty and their successors should be at liberty to charge the borrowers respectively for the stamps and for the other reasonable costs attendant upon such loans. And it was declared that when any portion of the said principal monies aforesaid should be in the possession of the said defendants and their successors to be lent out, advertisements were to be inserted twice at the least in every year in two or more of the daily newspapers at the discretion of the said defendants and their successors, at a court of assistants of the said mystery assembled, offering to lend out the same pursuant to the terms aforesaid, and notice thereof in writing should also be put up in some conspicuous place of the hall or premises of the said mystery. And the said wardens and commonalty and their successors or their clerk were to keep a separate account of such loans and of the expenses relating thereto in the books of the Company, in which was to be entered an account of all the loan monies included in the pleadings of the cause, and in which also was to be entered the names and residences of the respective borrowers and their sureties with their respective professions or businesses, the sums lent, the times of making the loans and when payable, with the interest thereon, and the terms for which such loans were lent; and also the costs charged against the borrowers on each loan, and such further and other particulars as might by the said court of assistants be thought material or necessary. And it was declared that the said wardens and commonalty and their successors and the estates of the said mystery were not to be held liable to make good any loss that might arise by reason of the failure of the borrowers of the whole or any portion of the said loan monies or their securities, or from the failure of the bankers of the said wardens and commonalty, or in, by, or through any such investment or instalments as aforesaid, or in any other manner, unless such loss should arise from the wilful default or neglect of the said defendants.

The total fund in the loan account is declared in the suit to be 2,911*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, out of this the costs were ordered to be paid. The costs were taxed at 619*l.* 13*s.* 5*d.*, which left 2,291*l.* 19*s.* 11*d.* The sum has been lent out in conformity with the scheme from time to time in sums varying from 50*l.* to 200*l.*, at 3*l.* per cent. per annum. The fund at present (January 1861) out on loan is 1,436*l.* 17*s.* 10*d.* to nine different persons, all members of the Company. The money is lent on bonds with two sureties, but in some cases security on property has been taken. The loans are for the most part of the larger sum. The balance of the fund, which has not been applied for or taken upon the conditions required pursuant to an order of the court of the Company of the 8th May 1845, is deposited in the London Joint Stock Bank, and at the present time (14th January 1861) amounts to 855*l.* 2*s.* 1*d.* The bank allows interest as upon deposit accounts, which varies; it is now 5*l.* per cent.

It has been the habit to insert advertisements annually in July according to the decree, but the court of the Company have recently directed that such advertisements be inserted four times a year.

The existence of a fund for loans to freemen is made known by being suspended on the notice board in the entrance hall. The Company have lately considered the practicability of devising means for rendering the loan monies more useful. The loans are made for the term of four years.

The interest is placed to a "Loan Monies Interest Account," and the interest is then appropriated to the several objects expressed in the decree. A copy of the account is annually laid before the Commissioners of Charities with the other accounts of the Company.

The specific application of the interest of each portion of the fund is mentioned under the head of each of the several charities in this report.

MARTYNE'S CHARITY.

James Martyne, by his will (date unknown), gave to the poor of the Company 50*l.*, to remain in the Company's hands as stock to distribute 50*s.* yearly to their poor at Christmas. This is annually given to the "Half-yearly Poor." (See Trumball's Charity.)

MOUGEHAM'S CHARITY.

John Mougeham, by his will of the 20th May 1514, directed his executrix to purchase lands of the yearly value of 50*s.* to the use of the Company for making certain payments at the celebration of his obit in the church of St. Mary at Hill, London.

In a book recording the benefactions entrusted to this Company, and prepared by a committee some years back, there is the following note on this bequest.

"Premises in Salutation Alley, St. Mary's at Hill, sold in 1551 for 120*l.*, see paper entitled,

"Rents of Fishmongers' Company given to superstitious uses,"

"To pay 3*s.* to the parish of St. Mary at Hill, and 10*s.* to the wardens."

The sum of 3*s.* a year is paid to the churchwardens of St. Mary at Hill. I have perused the ancient copy of the will of the testator in the book of records of the Company, and I find a detailed direction for the singing the mass at the obit or anniversary of the testator's death, but I am not able to ascertain the principle or manner in which this gift came to be commuted into a payment of 3*s.* a year to the churchwardens. It may probably be in performance of that part of the gift which directed a certain distribution of bread and ale at the anniversary. A rentcharge of 20*s.* for sustaining the anniversary of the testator arising out of the messuage in "Salvation Alley," was granted to Hynde and others as trustees for the Company by the letters patent of Edward VI., a copy of which is appended to this report.

MOWSE'S CHARITY.

Arthur Mowse granted to the Company, by indenture of the 1st June 1638, all those four messuages in Do-Little Lane, St. Mary Magdalen parish, out of the rents to pay as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
To the poor of St. Peter's Hospital, 9 s. 2 d. a week (except the first Sunday in the month) - - - - -	18	6	8
To the churchwardens of St. Michael, Crooked Lane, for bread to 12 poor people - - - - -	2	12	0
To poor prisoners in the King's Bench, Marshalsea, and White Lion, every Sabbath day in clear Lent - - - - -	2	0	0
To the renter-warden - - - - -	0	10	0

The property consists of a warehouse in Knightbridge Court, let to a Mr. George Bowles for 21 years, from Michaelmas 1841, at 25*l.* per annum. The St. Peter's Hospital account is credited with 19*l.* 11*s.* 2*d.* in respect of the 9*s.* 2*d.* a week for 40 weeks (18*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*) directed by the will to be given to the inmates, and a proportion of the residue.

The churchwardens of St. Michael, Crooked Lane, receive 2*l.* 12*s.* a year, together with 3*s.* 5*d.* as their proportion of the residue.

The prisoners in the three prisons receive for each prison 13*s.* 4*d.*, according to the will, and 11*d.* to each as their proportion of the residue. The Marshalsea and Queen's Bench are paid to Mr. Colville, and the other to Mr. Keene for the Surrey County Gaol. The renter-warden receives his 10*s.*, and 8*d.* for his proportion of the residue. The whole of the rent is thus disposed of annually, leaving no balance in hand.

OWEN'S CHARITY.

John Owen, by an indenture of the 28th April 1676, gave to the Company 270*l.* for the several uses following:—

	£	s.	d.
To the master of the free school at Barnet - - - - -	3	0	0
Towards the reparation of that school - - - - -	3	0	0
For the reparation of the physic well - - - - -	1	0	0
To the poor of the parish, in bread - - - - -	2	12	0
To six poor almsfolk in Jesus Hospital and the almshouses at Harrietsham, Kent - - - - -	2	0	0
To the clerk of the Company - - - - -	0	8	0

The sum of 12*l.* a year is appropriated annually as follows:

The sum of 9*l.* 12*s.* is paid to Mr. James Hill, the treasurer of the Barnet Grammar School, under the proviso of a second deed of the 23rd May 1677, in which the donor declared that if the physic well should be obstructed or be disused, the gift for that object should go to the school. (See printed reports vol. 12, p. 125.) Mr. Hill informed me by letter that 2*l.* 12*s.* is expended in bread and given to the poor every alternate Sunday at Barnet Church, and the remainder is applied in aid of the payment to the master of the school for teaching eight boys on the foundation, and for the repairs of the school and the physic well. 1*l.* is carried to the credit of the Bray Hospital, and 1*l.* to the Harrietsham almshouses, and 8*s.*, the remainder, is given to the clerk of the Company.

OWFIELD'S CHARITY.

Roger Owfield, by his will of the 26th November 1668, gave to the Company 50*l.* to be lent forth to two young men of the Company freely. This was to be lent without interest, and it now forms part of the Trust Loan Fund. No interest is credited.

PALLEY'S CHARITY.

Thomas Palley, by his will of the 22nd October 1558, directed his executors to deliver to the said Company 50*l.*, to be yearly delivered unto five honest young men of the Company, and to occupy the said 50*l.* each of them 10*l.* for their advantage, they and every of them putting in sufficient pawn of good security for the repayment of the money at the year's end, and then the said money to be delivered to other five young men of the Company for one other year, and so to change every year, so that every person having the money should not have it again until three years more be past. And he willed that the persons occupying the money should pay from time to time all sums of money due to the King or Queen's Majesty in that year that any of them should occupy the same money; and also the said five persons should amongst them all give yearly to the wardens towards their dinner 20s. And the said testator bequeathed to the Company 10l. upon condition that the wardens should be bound under the common seal to his executors to see the aforesaid 50l. to be bestowed yearly for ever according to the true meaning of his will, if the law of the realm would suffer it to continue so long; and if they would not be bound so to do, then he willed that his executors should see the same 50l. to be put by them to the use above written so long as they should live, and that before their decease they would set such order for it might continue for ever if the law of the realm would suffer it; and if such order cannot be firmly made, then he willed that the said 50l. should be bestowed in making and mending the highways between Rye and Tonbridge by the oversight of the wardens of the said Company.

This fund is in the "Trust Fund Account." The sum of 1l. is charged to the loan moneys interest, and carried to the credit of the Company annually.

PENDLEBURY'S CHARITY.

Nicholas Pendlebury, by his will (date unknown), gave to the Company 20 marks and the profit thereof, bestowed yearly in coals and faggots amongst the poor of the Company. 1l. a year forms part of the gift to the half-yearly poor. (See Trumball's Charity.)

ST. PETER'S HOSPITAL.

Letters patent of King James I., dated the 2nd October 1618, reciting that the wardens and commonalty of the mystery of Fishmongers had represented that there were many aged poor and indigent persons, being freemen and freewomen of the Society, and who were destitute of houses for dwelling, and of competent means, and for whom the said wardens and commonalty were willing in some convenient measure to provide, and reciting also the gift of Thomas Hunt, hereafter stated, enabled the incorporation thereby created and their successors to hold the lands of Hunt to the value of 20l. a year, and other lands to the yearly value of 80l. a year, and to found, erect, and establish within the parishes of Newington and St. George, in the county of Surrey, or one of them, one hospital or almshouse for the abiding, habitation, and relief of such and so many poor people, men and women, of the Company of Fishmongers, to be sustained and relieved in the same, with such other persons and officers as the Company and their successors should think fit; and the said letters patent incorporated the wardens and assistants of the Company and their successors to be governors of the same.

The almshouses were erected in Newington-Butts, and remained in that situation until 1851, when in pursuance of an application to the Court of Chancery, by an information instituted, at the instance of the Company, in which the Company (not the governors of the Hospital) were defendants, on the 27th March 1849, and of the report of the master therein of the 20th July 1849, which set forth the letters patent of 1618, and that the Company purchased a piece of ground in the parish of Newington and erected thereon 12 buildings, which were called St. Peter's Hospital, and also referring to the bequests of Richard Edmonds and James Hubert, and that out of the trust funds accruing to the Company under the said will of the last-mentioned donor 20 other almshouses had been built on land belonging to the Company in Newington, adjoining the Old Hospital. The report also stated that it had been deposed before the master that it would be greatly for the benefit of the inhabitants of the almshouse not to rebuild the same on the then site, which was close, confined, and unhealthy in consequence of the great increase of buildings in the neighbourhood, but to remove them to a more healthy situation, and that the Company had lately purchased for the sum of 4,050l. a piece of ground at East Hill, in the parish of Wandsworth, and that the same was larger and more open and elevated than the piece of ground on which the almshouses then stood; and the master found that the premises at Newington being released from the charitable trusts to which the same were subject, the Company were willing at their own expense to pull down the 42 almshouses then existing, and at their own expense to rebuild 42 new almshouses on the said piece of ground at East Hill, Wandsworth, of equal or greater dimensions, and in every manner as suitable for the accommodation of the inhabitants thereof as those standing on the premises at Newington aforesaid; the almshouses when so built to be held by the defendants on the same trusts and subject to the same requirements as the then existing almshouses were subject unto; and the master found that by the affidavit of Richard Suter the value of the land, and of the almshouses standing thereon, at Newington was estimated at 13,530l., and that the expense of erecting 42 almshouses and a chapel and rendering the same fit for habitation and use would amount to 20,000l. at the least; and the master found that the plans and specifications of such almshouses and chapel had been laid before him, and he allowed the said proposal and approved thereof, and of the drawings, plans, and specifications therein mentioned. The cause came on, upon further directions, and the Master's report, on the 27th July 1849, when the court ordered that the wardens and commonalty of the mystery of Fishmongers should be at liberty at their own expense to take down the 42 almshouses at Newington, and erect an equal number of new almshouses in lieu thereof upon the piece of ground belonging to the said defendants at Wandsworth, upon the terms of the said defendants being allowed to appropriate to their own use the materials of the almshouses so to be taken down, and to appropriate and hold the site thereof discharged from the charitable trusts to which the same were then subject, and which last-mentioned terms were assented to by the said defendants.

The conveyance of the site of the almshouses at Wandsworth was made to the Company on the 29th January 1849, and was approved by the master, whereby the land was declared to be held by the Company upon the same uses as certain estates of the Company taken under the London Bridge Acts and which were not charitable trusts. This approbation of the master had no reference to the charitable trusts, nor was it made under the information. It was a proceeding under the London Bridge Acts or the Land Clauses Act.

It will be seen that the decree omits to declare that the Company shall hold the premises at Wandsworth upon the trusts for St. Peter's Hospital, but such was evidently the basis of the transaction and the terms of the master's report, and the decree adopting and confirming that report imply such a dedication of the property. It will be observed also that the corporation created by the letters patent of King James as governors of the hospital was not a party to the suit, except as their members were included in the Company at large, and from the form of the conveyance of the present site of the almshouses, as above stated, it will be seen that the new almshouses and premises are not vested in the governors of the hospital but in the Company without any express declaration of trust for the benefit of the Hospital except by inference from the whole transaction of the transfer of site.

The almshouses at East Hill were subsequently built. The cost of the site was £ s. d.
4,050 0 0

The buildings, planting, &c. cost upwards of - 24,000 0 0

The almshouses are occupied by 42 persons, men and women.

A chaplain performs divine service in the chapel of the hospital on the mornings of Tuesdays and Thursdays. There is also a full service on the evening of Sundays in the same chapel, the almspeople not being then compelled to attend. The almspeople have the option of attending divine service on Sundays at such place of public worship as they may individually select. The duty of the chaplain is also to visit the almspeople in sickness.

The medical attendant of the hospital resides at Wandsworth. He is the same person who attended the almshouse before its removal and since 1823. He attends at the almshouse daily and visits such of the people as may be ill. He finds the medicines which may be necessary without charge to the almspeople.

The rules of the Company require that every man or woman should have been free of the Company five years and shall be 50 years of age at the time of their election, or that they should be widows of freemen, and of the same age. The rules contain no other qualification.

One of the almsmen is chosen by the Company as the upper keeper, and receives 16l. a year extra, and another is chosen as under keeper, and receives 12l. per annum extra. The wife of the upper keeper or some other almswoman is appointed matron, receiving 5l. per annum (extra if she be an almswoman). I append a printed copy of the rules of the almshouses, and also an address delivered by the prime warden of the Company, William F. Vowler, Esq., on the laying of the foundation stone of the new almshouses.

The annual disbursements of the Company on account of St. Peter's Hospital for the last 10 years were as follows:—

		£	s.	d.
To Midsummer	1850 -	-	-	1,661 19 5
"	1851 -	-	-	1,653 17 1
"	1852 -	-	-	1,831 5 6
"	1853 -	-	-	1,930 15 9
To Christmas	1854 (1½ years)	-	-	3,742 10 9
"	1855 -	-	-	2,072 1 0
"	1856 -	-	-	2,124 8 6

		£	s	d.
To Christmas	1858 -	-	-	2,351 19 1
"	1859 -	-	-	2,183 17 6

The allowances of the almspeople are:—

1	receiving	15s.	a week.
13	"	14s.	"
1	"	11s.	"
3	"	10s.	"
23	"	9s.	"

The regular allowance is for each single person 9s. per week, and to each married couple 14s. Additional allowances are made at the discretion of the Company to persons of greater age. The salary of the chaplain, and all other expenses as well as allowances of coals, clothes, &c. are set forth in the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 12, page 102), but some additions have been made.

It will be found that the annual payments on account of St. Peter's Hospital, far exceed the income of the special charities and donations received by the Company for the use of that institution.

The eight auxiliary charities which follow, as well as some small payments out of Baskerville's, Broomsgrove's, and Mowse's Charities form portions of the fund constituting the endowments of the hospital.

APPENDIX.

THE ADDRESS delivered by WILLIAM FLEXMAN VOWLER, Esquire, the Prime Warden of the FISHMONGERS' COMPANY, on laying the first stone of the NEW ALMSHOUSES, called ST. PETER'S HOSPITAL, Wandsworth, Surrey, on the 23rd June 1849.

THE PRIME WARDEN'S ADDRESS.

Having been deputed by the court, in virtue of the office of prime warden of the Company, which I have held during the last 12 months, to lay the first stone of the almshouses we are about to erect in lieu of the old and decayed buildings at Newington, known as St. Peter's Hospital, I cannot but congratulate you upon our having thus auspiciously commenced so good a work, and express my own earnest hope, a hope in which I am sure we are all united, that the building we have this day commenced may progress without interruption to its completion; that it may reflect credit alike on the architect and the contractor, may give entire satisfaction to the court and the Company, may afford great and increased comfort to those poor but respectable members of our brotherhood for whose benefit it is intended; and that while it adds to our credit and renown with our fellow citizens of the present time, it may prove to distant generations an evidence and a memorial of the liberal spirit in which the fishmongers of the nineteenth century receive and execute the trusts which have been handed down to them.

The occasion of our meeting here to-day is, indeed, a most interesting one; and it cannot, I think, at such a moment be unreasonable to call to mind the time and circumstances under which this hospital was founded, which has been for more than two centuries a subject of congratulation and of thankfulness in our fellowship, and which I look upon as a proof not only of the piety and benevolence of our forefathers, but also of the strong faith they had in the brotherhood, of their conviction that there never would be wanting among us men of honourable and upright character to fulfil the trusts confided to them, and of like charitable minds with themselves to protect and take charge of their less fortunate members. And it is with a like faith and conviction that we are now laying the foundation of this new home for our poor, which may be expected to endure for centuries to come.

It was about the year 1615 that Sir Thomas Hunt, in anticipation of the erection of some such building, bequeathed to the Company an annuity of 20*l.* for the support of six of the poor occupants thereof, and from this small beginning ultimately arose the extensive charity in the promotion and support of which we are now engaged.

Having reference to this bequest, the court, in 1617, came to a resolution to build 12 such houses; a piece of ground at Newington been offered to them at that time for 110*l.*, the whole cost being estimated at 400*l.*

In 1633 a resolution was come to, to build six additional houses, and in the following year a dining hall.

Subsequently, a Mr. Edmonds added two houses, and two more were afterwards superadded to these.

Then came that noble bequest of Mr. Hulbert, who, in 1721, gave the residue of his estate, amounting to more than 9,000*l.*, for the purpose of building and endowing 20 additional houses, making the number altogether 42, as they now are.

In consequence of the building of the hospital thus brought about, several benevolent members of the Company were induced to make bequests towards its support, of annual sums varying in amount, many of them very small, but in the whole not exceeding 350*l.* or 360*l.*, including the income arising from the residue of Hulbert's estate, after the building of his 20 houses.

The amount we now annually spend in its support is not less than 1,700*l.*, or thereabouts; and whereas the entire cost of the old hospital did not exceed 3,000*l.*, the entire cost of the new one will probably be 25,000*l.*

Such is the liberal and munificent spirit in which we are carrying on the good work handed down to us; and in the selection of a site for the building, we have also borne in mind the example of the founders, and have chosen an open, airy, and, we believe, very healthy spot, remembering that two centuries ago Newington was a place in the country, and not what we now see it, a noisy, crowded, smoky place, in the very heart of a dense population.

And now a few words to the expected occupants. I trust it is unnecessary to point out to the present inmates of St. Peter's Hospital the many and great advantages they enjoy in consequence of their connexion with the Fishmongers' Company, and the gratitude which should daily fill their hearts for the mercies they enjoy. And I hope they will evince this by their kind and charitable feelings towards each other, by the sober and orderly course of their lives, by the cleanliness and tidiness of their dwellings, and by their careful preservation of everything connected with the hospital. But I am very anxious they should impress upon their families and connexions, that, although it is a creditable and desirable thing to be selected on account of past good conduct as a fit occupant for one of these houses, it is a much better and more creditable thing to have made provision for declining years by one's own exertions, and by the industry and prudence, and forethought of our manhood; and, therefore, that no fishmonger should allow the existence of this asylum to relax in any degree the exertions every man is bound to make, not only for his present support, but for his future provision also.

I have now only to express the gratification I feel at the presence of so many of our body to take part in this interesting ceremony, thereby evincing the interest they take in whatever concerns the honour and reputation of the Company, and the welfare of all who belong to it.

Permit me to add that it is very gratifying to me also that this event which had been so long looked forward to has occurred during my year of office, and it is especially so, that it happens during the reign of our present most excellent Sovereign, who is, by descent, a daughter of the Company, and I therefore propose that we now conclude the business of the day by giving three hearty cheers for Her Majesty, and then singing the National Anthem.

ST. PETER'S HOSPITAL, at WANDSWORTH, in the county of SURREY.

GOVERNORS:

The Wardens and Assistants of the Mistery of Fishmongers of the City of London.

Orders for the Government of the Hospital.

The renter-warden is occasionally to visit and to examine the state of the almspeople, and to give such directions as he may deem requisite.

The paymaster, being the clerk of the Company, is to attend at the hospital to pay the pensions monthly, and is from time to time to examine the state of the almspeople, and allow them nurses if needful. If any of the almspeople shall offend against the rules and orders, the paymaster shall adopt such measures thereon as he may deem requisite; and in all matters of importance shall submit the same to the consideration of the renter-warden, and if necessary report thereon to the governors.

The chaplain is to perform divine service in the chapel of the hospital, on Tuesdays and Thursdays, in every week, between the hours of 10 and 11 in the forenoon; he is to visit the almspeople in sickness, and on every occasion to enter in a book to be kept at the hospital for that purpose the exact time of his arrival and departure.

The medical attendant is to visit the almspeople daily, to supply and deliver to them such medicine as may be needful, and to make daily entries in a book to be kept at the hospital for that purpose, of the names of the almspeople under treatment, and the nature of their several sicknesses or diseases.

The upper keeper is to have charge of the keys of the entrance gates of the hospital and of the chapel, hall, and the rooms adjoining, to open the gate of the hospital at six o'clock in the morning, and lock the same on the bell ceasing to ring in the evening, to see that the chapel, hall, and rooms adjoining are kept clear; to summon the medical attendant when requisite, to officiate as clerk when divine service is performed, to prevent the removal of the goods and chattels from the house of any deceased almsman or almswoman until the removal is sanctioned by the paymaster, to see that no damage to the trees, shrubs, or fences about the grounds of the hospital is committed, and that the several drain-grates in the walks and about the houses and the gutters of the houses are kept clear and unobstructed, to take notice of any offence committed by the almspeople, and report the same to the paymaster forthwith. The upper keeper with his wife (or with an almswoman to be appointed by the governors) shall, on the day next preceding the holding of every general court of the governors, inspect every apartment in each house in the hospital; and the upper keeper shall enter in a book to be kept for that purpose, a report upon the state of cleanliness and order of the several houses and premises, and of the furniture and bedding thereof; and shall attend at the Company's Hall with such reports at every general court.

The under keeper in addition to the duties herein-after prescribed, is to perform those of the upper keeper during his absence, or while the office of upper keeper shall be vacant. He shall be allowed duplicate keys of, and shall keep clean the chapel, the hall, the two rooms adjoining, and the closets, and also keep clean the passage and stairs leading to the chapel; and the passage way from the front to the back grounds, to light and attend the fires when required in the above apartments; and keep the grates clean and in good order, to superintend the supply of water to the almshouses, to see that the cisterns are kept clean, and to ring the bell for a quarter of an hour previously to the locking the gate in the evening, and for ten minutes for assembling the almspeople in the chapel or hall.

Members of the Company who have been free five years, being 50 years of age, are eligible to the hospital.

The widow of an almsman, or of a freeman, who has been free five years, is eligible, being 50 years of age.

The almspeople are elected to hold their almshouses during the pleasure of the governors only.

Rules to be observed by the Almspeople.

1. The almspeople shall behave peaceably and quietly, and be helpful to each other.
2. None of the almspeople shall use any blasphemous words, or at any time be drunk, or make use of any bitter, uncharitable, or offensive speeches, or give any blow to any other of the almspeople, or act disorderly or dishonestly.
3. The almsmen, except the upper and under keepers, shall, unless prevented by sickness, attend by turns at or near the entrance gate, according to such directions, as shall from time to time be given by the paymaster, to prevent improper persons from coming into the hospital.
4. All the almspeople, excepting such as are prevented by sickness, shall every Tuesday and Thursday, at the ringing of the hospital bell, assemble in the chapel, and attend there during the performance of public prayer, according to the rites of the Church of England.
5. All the almspeople, excepting such as are prevented by sickness, shall on every Lord's day repair to some place of public worship and attend divine service.
6. None of the almspeople shall be allowed to go out, or come into the hospital except when the gates are open between the following hours, viz.—from 1st of March to 31st of October from six o'clock in the morning to ten at night; and from 1st of November to 28th of February from seven o'clock in the morning to nine at night, or to be absent from the hospital during the night without license from the upper keeper, who is hereby authorised to permit such of the almspeople as he shall see fit, on urgent occasions, to remain out of the hospital, so as no such permission be given to any one of the almspeople for more than two nights in any one calendar month, without the consent of the paymaster. Almspeople not sleeping on the premises are required to leave their keys with the upper keeper for him to use, but only in cases of necessity.
7. No almsman or almswoman shall have any person to reside with or attend upon him or her without the permission of the governors, but in case of sickness, the paymaster may appoint a woman as nurse, of the age of 50 years.
8. The almspeople shall not damage any of the houses, break down any of the fences, or destroy or injure any of the trees or shrubs.

9. The almspeople shall not lay or cast any rubbish, dust, or filth in any part of the hospital, or the grounds, ditches or drains thereto belonging.

10. The almspeople shall keep clean their respective dwellings, and the pavement before and behind the same, and shall also keep repaired the glass in the windows thereof, at their own charge, or in default thereof, the expense of repairing them shall be deducted out of the pensions respectively.

11. If any almsman shall have a wife, the wife shall be allowed to dwell with her husband, and in every offence against these orders, the offence of the wife shall be deemed the offence of the husband.

12. No almsman or almswoman shall marry without the consent of the governors.

13. None of the goods or chattels in the house of any deceased almsman or almswoman shall be removed without the permission of the paymaster, and if needful for the security of such goods and chattels, the upper keeper is hereby authorised to take charge of the key of the house until the order of the paymaster shall be received.

14. Every offence committed against any of these rules shall be from time to time reported by the upper keeper to the paymaster, and shall subject the almspeople so offending to be expelled from the hospital, at the sole discretion of the governors, or of the major part of such of the governors for the time being, as shall be present at any of their meetings.

15. Every person who shall be elected to any almshouse, shall before being admitted thereto sign an acknowledgement of being admitted; to hold the almshouse during the pleasure of the governors only, and subject to the above orders and rules, and such other orders and rules as the governors, or the major part of such of the governors, for the time being, as shall be present at any of their meetings, shall from time to time make or ordain.

These orders and rules were revised in the wardenship of—

JAMES WESTON, Esq., Prime Warden.

SIR JOHN EASTHOPE, Bart.

HENRY WILSON, Esq.

SAMUEL SMITH, Esq.

ROBERT GRAHAM, Esq.

WILLIAM ABBOTT KENT, Esq., Renter-Warden.

And ordained at a court held on the 12th of February 1852.

WILLIAM BECKWITH TOWSE,
Clerk to the Company.

HUNT'S GIFT.

Sir Thomas Hunt gave by his will, dated the 28th April 1615, out of his land in Kent Street, 20l. a year to the poor of the Company, to build an hospital containing houses for six men free of the Company, each man to have yearly 40s. and a gown, and 6s. in money to make it up, the wardens to have 10s. a quarter and two capons to recreate them. The Company receives from the family or executors of Mr. Whittle the sum of 19l. 8s. 8d., the lan tax of 1l. 1s. 4d. being deducted. The account is balanced by carrying 18l. 8s. 8d. to the disbursements of St. Peter's Hospital.

HIPPISLEY'S GIFT.

William Hippisley, by his will in 1766, bequeathed 500l. South Sea Annuities for the maintenance of the almsman or woman of St. Peter's Hospital who had not then had any particular donor as the other almspeople.

On the 12th October 1792, the stock which had been transferred to the Company in the shape in which it was bequeathed, was sold by the direction of the Company, and produced 441l. 17s. 3d. cash. The account was not kept distinct from other like stock belonging to the Company, and the sale took place in conjunction with other such stock amounting in the whole to 5,000l. stock. Nearly the whole of this fund remained in cash in the hands of the Company. It was then the habit of the Company to keep the balance in their hands, and it was appropriated in this case by the clerk for the time being to his own use. The fund was recovered from his sureties in the year 1809. It has not been subsequently traced. On the 3rd May 1793, the term of years under the dean and chapter of St. Paul's, in property adjacent to property of the Company, was purchased, and is still held by the Company. The amount of this investment was 457l. 17s. 6d. cash, and it now forms part of No. 130, Upper Thames Street, and 18 and 19, Miles Lane. It is renewable every 14 years. Whether this purchase should be considered as an investment made for the benefit of the charity, following as it did so soon after the sale of the stock, and corresponding so nearly in amount with the value of that portion of the South Sea Annuities then sold out, is a question of some difficulty, and would, perhaps, be of some importance if the payments in support of the almspeople did not so far exceed the endowments with which they are chargeable.

The premises referred to are let together at a rental of 325*l.* a year, but the value of the property comprised in the term has not been apportioned, and the clerk of the Company states that he is unable to apportion it. The ground rent paid to the dean and chapter is 15*l.* 11*s.*, including the land tax. The last fine was 192*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.* The Company have entered into an agreement to enfranchise this property and acquire the fee simple from the dean and chapter for a sum of 1,833*l.*, and all the expenses of the enfranchisement.

The Company since Midsummer 1835 have continued to credit the trust with the 15*l.* per annum presumed to be the original dividend of the South Sea Annuities, and the account is balanced by debiting St. Peter's Hospital with the same annual amount.

One of the almsmen is always considered to be on the Hippisley foundation. The house appropriated to this pensioner is No. 1, which is inhabited by the upper keeper. He receives 14*s.* a week as the almsman. As upper keeper he has an additional salary of 20*l.* per annum. As the total charge of the hospital was 2,200*l.*, the average of cost would be about 50*l.* attributable to this appointee.

HULBERT'S GIFT.

James Hulbert bequeathed, by his will of the 14th August 1719, the residue of his personal estate to the Company on trust, to lay out so much as was necessary in erecting an almshouse for maintaining 20 poor men and women, and to lay out such further part in purchasing lands for the yearly maintenance of such 20 poor men and women.

The Commissioners of Inquiry state (vol. 12, p. 101) that the residuary estate of the testator amounted to 9,467*l.* 2*s.* 5*d.*, and that the expenditure in erecting the 20 additional almshouses was 1,928*l.* 4*s.* 5*d.*, being 7,538*l.* 18*s.* applicable to the maintenance of the almspeople and the hospital, and that this had not been invested in any purchase of land, but remained in the Company's general stock.

On the 22nd October 1833 an information was filed at the relation of Thomas Spencer Hall and another against the Company, praying that it might be declared that the Company of Fishmongers ought, in the due performance of the trusts in them reposed, to have invested the said sum of 7,538*l.* 18*s.* (being the residue of the estate of James Hulbert) in the purchase of some specific lands or other real estate or specific funds, and to have distinguished, appropriated, and set apart the same from their general property so specifically constituting the property and funds applicable to the said charitable trust, and that they had made default and acted in breach of the said trust, and that the said trust might be specifically performed under the decree of the Court, and that the Company might be decreed to be answerable in that behalf, and to make such compensation to the said charity in respect of such breach of trust as under the circumstances might be found expedient, and that some competent part of the estates then vested in the defendants as part of their general corporate property might be set apart and appropriated in that behalf, or otherwise that some investment or purchase of real estate or of other funds or property might be made by the defendants out of the general corporate property of the said Company.

The cause came before the Court on the 30th June 1834, when the Master of the Rolls (Sir J. Leach) directed that the suit should be brought to the attention of the Attorney-General, and that the proceedings should be laid before him in order that he might form an opinion whether with a view to the benefit of the charity it was expedient that he should in this case call for the interference of the Court. The matter was again mentioned to the Court on the 6th November 1835, when the Master of the Rolls made an order to the effect suggested at the previous hearing. The Attorney-General, Sir John Campbell, was attended upon the suit and made an order of the 22nd September 1837, as follows:—

"In pursuance of an order made in this cause of the 6th November 1835, whereby it was ordered that the proceedings in the cause should be laid before me in order that I might form an opinion whether, with a view to the benefit of the charity, it was expedient that I should call for the interference of the Court, and it was ordered that the cause should stand over; in the meantime I have been attended by the counsel and solicitors for the relators and for the defendants respectively, and the proceedings in this cause have been laid before me for the purpose mentioned in the said order, and having heard what has been alleged before me by the respective counsel and solicitors, and on consideration thereof and of the proceedings in the cause, and the terms herein-after mentioned having been agreed to between the parties, I am of opinion and do humbly submit that the defendants ought to make a distinct and separate investment of the sum of 7,538*l.* 18*s.*, admitted by the defendants' answer as a balance of the residuary estate of the testator left in their hands, applicable to the performance of the trusts for the maintenance of the said charity or of the stocks, funds, or securities in or upon which the said sum of 7,538*l.* 18*s.* may have been laid out or invested so as to constitute a fund set apart and appropriated as a trust fund belonging to the said charity, and that the defendants ought to pay to the relators their costs, to be taxed as between party and party, but that no extra costs be allowed to the relators out of the charity fund, and that on such terms being complied with all further proceedings should be stayed."

The suit came again before the Master of the Rolls on the 8th November 1837, when the following order was made.

"It appearing that the defendants have invested the sum of 7,538*l.* 18*s.* in the purchase of 8,161*l.* 4*s.* Reduced 3*l.* per cent Annuities. It was ordered that the defendants should make a distinct entry of the same in the books belonging to them under the head of Hulbert's Charity, as part of the charity property in the pleadings mentioned, and that the defendants should keep separate accounts thereof; and it was referred to the master to tax the relators their costs of the suit, not including their costs before Her Majesty's Attorney-General, and that such costs when taxed be paid by the defendants."

The fund stands to a separate account in the books of the Company, but forms part of a larger sum of like stock standing in the Company's corporate name in the books of the Bank of England.

The dividends amounting to 244*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.* are received and form part of the disbursements of St. Peter's Hospital

EDMONDS' GIFT.

Richard Edmonds devised, by his will of the 29th December 1620, his freehold tenement in St. Michael, Crooked Lane, with the first five years' rent, to build two almshouses to adjoin St. Peter's Hospital, and to place two widows of freemen, or two poor men of the Company, to dwell there and to have 2*s.* weekly, and once a year a black cloth gown.

The houses erected under this gift formed part of the hospital at Newington, which has been pulled down and rebuilt at Wandsworth, as before stated. The premises form part of the house in No. 133, Upper Thames Street, the whole of which belongs to the Company. Out of the rent the Company appropriate a sum of 14*l.* 8*s.* as a rent-charge, or 4*s.* a week in money for each of the two poor men in the hospital, and 4*l.* for the two coats or gowns.

POYNTALL'S GIFT.

Richard Poyntall, by his will dated the 31st January 1621, gave the Company the sum of 120*l.* for supplying half a chaldron of coals yearly to each of the 12 almshouses then built. The Company credit the trust with the income of 9*l.* per annum as the presumed value of six chaldrons of coals, and the sum is discharged as a payment to St. Peter's Hospital.

LEMAN'S GIFT.

Sir John Leman devised, by his will of the 8th July 1681, a rentcharge of 12*l.* issuing out of his messuage in Thames Street, and out of his two messuages adjoining, for purchasing sea coal for the poor in the almshouses. The sum, deducting land tax, now reduced from 2*l.* 8*s.* to 18*s.*, and therefore leaving in the last year 11*l.* 2*s.*, is annually paid to or on account of the proprietor, Mr. Rawlins, to the Company, and debited to the charges of St. Peter's Hospital.

HARPER'S GIFT.

John Harper, by his will of the 10th July 1682, bequeathed to the Company 100*l.* for purchasing 6 chaldron of sea coals for the poor of St. Peter's Hospital. The sum of 9*l.* a year is credited by the Company in their accounts, and the same amount is debited to St. Peter's Hospital.

SIR JOHN GAYER'S GIFT.

Sir John Gayer bequeathed, by his will of the 19th December 1649, the sum of 100*l.* to buy lands therewith, the rent thereof to be employed in coals or wood, to be yearly given in December to poor people of St. Peter's Hospital. The question whether the Company committed a breach of trust in omitting to obey the direction of the trust to invest in land would seem to have been raised by the analogous case of Hulbert's Charity, in which the Master of the Rolls considered that there was so little apparent cause for the suit that he directed the matter to be brought before the Attorney-General for his especial consideration, and the suit was ultimately disposed of by a mere direction to keep a separate account of the fund. This decision will probably be considered as applicable to the same suggested duty in reference to this charity.

The Company credit the charity with 5*l.* a year, and discharge the account as by a payment of the same sum to St. Peter's Hospital.

FLETCHER'S GIFT.

John Fletcher, by his will (date not known), bequeathed to the Company 120*l.* to pay 10*s.* for a dinner every month for the poor in St. Peter's Hospital.

The Company allow 6*l.* a year as the interest of this donation, and send monthly between 1st and 7th of every month 10*s.* to the upper keeper, who divides it amongst 22 of the almspeople, who are considered as especially representing the occupants of the houses on the old ground at Newington (the block containing the 22 houses).

PART III.

PRESTON'S CHARITY.

Henry Preston, by his will of the 20th February 1434, devised one tenement in Gracechurch Street; also one tenement called the Bell on the Hoop in the same street; also three other tenements in Lombard Street; also the great tenement formerly belonging to Sir William Walworth, Knight, in Thames Street, in aid of the support of poor men and women of the Company for ever.*

The Commissioners of Inquiry, by their report (vol. 12, p. 91), set forth the state of the property taken by the Company under the will, which then produced a rental of 790*l.* a year, and the amount distributed by the Company in weekly pensions and annuities, and to the half-yearly poor, as well as the amount given in casual relief, which appeared greatly to exceed the income of the estate.

The Commissioners also stated that the site of Sir Wm. Walworth's tenement was occupied by the Company's Hall, which it appeared to have been previously to the fire of London.

An information by the Attorney-General at the relation of Thos. Spencer Hall was filed on the 27th September 1832 (amended the 15th November 1833) against the Fishmongers' Company, alleging that the defendants had divers estates, property, and funds of considerable value, other than the said messuage, tenements, and premises of the gift of Henry Preston, vested in them in trust, the annual income of which was devoted to the general benefit of the poor of the said Company, and that the aggregate amount of the rents and profits, or annual income of the said several estates, &c., and of the said messuages, tenements, and premises of the gift of the said H. Preston, greatly exceeded the amount of monies expended by the said Company in each and every year to and for the general benefit and relief of the poor of the said Company, the overplus of which fell into and formed part of their general funds.

The information also charged that the Company had never paid and applied or in any manner allowed or given credit for in any account or in any manner whatsoever any specific sum of money or otherwise howsoever made allowance or compensation for or in respect of the rental or the use or occupation of the said large edifice as a common hall for the relief of the poor men and women of the said Company, so that the said Company had by means thereof had the use thereof for their general and corporate purposes without any compensation and in exclusion of any benefit whatsoever to the said charitable trust or to the poor men and women of the Company the objects thereof.

The information prayed that an account might be taken of the rents and profits or annual income, and all sums of money received or possessed by the said Company, or in respect of the said several messuages, tenements, and premises constituting the said charity estate, and vested in the defendants, including the purchase money received from the sale of any part thereof, with interest thereon, and that in such account the defendants might be charged with an occupation rent or adequate compensation or allowance for the use and occupation of the said edifice and building with the appurtenants in Thames Street, part of the said gift so occupied by the said defendants as a common hall as aforesaid; and an account might be in like manner taken of the application of such rents and profits by the defendants, and that such accounts might be taken for 20 years before the filing of the information, or for such other period as the Court might think proper; and that the defendants might be charged with and compelled to pay all such sums of money as upon the taking of the said accounts should appear not to have been paid and applied by them according to the charitable trusts and purposes of the said will, and that so much as should be so charged might be applied and disposed of under the direction of the Court in advancement of the said charitable trust in such manner as might be deemed expedient; and that the defendants might be charged with the costs of the relators of and incident to the suit to be paid out of the general fund.

The Company by their answer set forth in great detail the substance of various instruments prior and subsequent in date to the will and affecting the property the subject of the suit, alleging in particular that the house of Sir William Walworth occupied only a small part of the site of the Company's Hall, and that the testator, Henry Preston, however as to this and other portions of the property had been in fact a trustee for the Company; and they said that the Company had applied a sum of money out of the rents and income of the said estates annually and in every year, but varying from year to year, to the support of the poor men and women of the said Company who stood in need of relief and support and that they had therein after set forth the particulars thereof; but defendants said they believed that it was the fact that the said Company for the time being had not and they said that they had not applied or appropriated the whole of the income of the said charity estates to such charitable trusts as aforesaid, but defendants said that such parts of the annual income arising from the messuages, &c., which had been so applied had been, as defendants were informed, out of the free will and mere motion of the said Company for the time being.

The Company, by their answer to the amended information, admitted that at the time of the inquiry before the Commissioners in 1824 the Company did not claim to be entitled to the lands, &c. in the said amended information mentioned as vested in them in fee simple as purchasers for a valuable consideration, but the said Company laid before the Charity Commissioners all the deeds, wills, and documents in their possession, whether copies or originals, and that they made no claim relating to the said estates or to any other estates, but submitted the whole, and the questions arising thereon, to the judgment of the said Commissioners. And they said that the further information they had obtained had arisen from the various laborious and expensive searches which they had caused to be made amongst the various records preserved as therein-before mentioned in order to be able to refer to the original wills and deeds and to give full answers and information to the several points mentioned and inquired after in the said original and amended informations of the Attorney-General and in four other matters against the defendants and which the defendants were advised it was their duty to cause to be made.

The cause came on to be heard before Lord Langdale, M.R., who, by his decree of the 9th November 1839, dismissed the information with costs.

It appears to me important that the grounds on which this decision proceeded should be brought before the Commissioners. The case is one, no doubt, of great importance and peculiarity, and I have therefore obtained a copy of the shorthand note of his Lordship's judgment, which is as follows:—

Rolls Court,
Westminster,
November 9th, 1839.

The Attorney-General
v.
The Fishmongers' Company } Re Preston.
Judgment.

The Master of the Rolls.—This information prays for a declaration that the defendants are seised and possessed of certain property which was devised to the Fishmongers' Company by the will of Henry Preston in trust for the uses expressed in the said will, and not for their own use, subject only to the payment of two yearly sums of 26*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* and 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* chargeable thereon; and that the great hall of the Company, or a part thereof, constitutes part of the charity property, that an account may be taken of the rents of such parts of the property as have been let, and that the defendants may be charged therewith and with an occupation rent for the use of the hall for 20 years before the information was filed, and that a scheme may be settled for the future application of the charity property having regard to the testator's will in that behalf.

The will under which this relief is sought is dated the 20th February 1435, nearly 400 years before the information was filed. More than 400 years have elapsed since the death of the testator to whom the property is alleged to have belonged. The estate came into the possession of the Company within a few years after the death of the testator, and during the whole time which has since elapsed the property has been used and dealt with as part of the general property of the Company, and has been applied to the general purposes of the Company. These general purposes have been in part charitable, but no special destination has been given to the revenue arising from this property as distinguished from the other general property to which the Company is entitled.

The property was, by the will of Preston, devised to the wardens and commonalty of the Company, to be held by them in aid of the support of the poor men and women of the mystery and commonalty of the Company for ever; and this, the relator insists, is a charitable purpose to be executed by this Court, which ought to interfere, notwithstanding the lapse of time. The defendants contend that they have shown an absolute title in themselves; and it is necessary to advert to the circumstances under which the estate was acquired. The property consists partly of property situate in Gracechurch Street and Lombard Street, and partly of property which has been described as the great tenement in Thames Street. The Gracechurch Street and Lombard Street property in the time of King Richard II. belonged to John de Hillesdon, who charged it with a rentcharge of 20 marks for superstitious uses; and subject to that charge the property afterwards became vested in John Coventry, whose executors, having power to sell under his will, sold it to John Radwell, William Londsop, John Fitzgeoffrey, and Walter Pejon, by whom it was conveyed on the 27th day of May, in the eighth year of the reign of King Henry VI. (1429). Upon the death of Radwell this property became vested in Londsop, Fitzgeoffrey, and Pejon, the three survivors. The great tenement in Thames Street in the year 1368 belonged to John Lovekin; in 1413 it had become the property of William Axham, whose acting executor, Thomas Boteler, sold it to Sir Thomas Sackville and five other persons; and in the year 1432, by deed executed then, or in the course of a year or two next following, it was conveyed to Sir John Cornwall, Lord of Fanhope. It thus appears that in the year 1432 a part of the property now in question belonged to Sir John Cornwall, and that the remainder was vested in Londsop, Fitzgeoffrey, and Pejon. From the circumstances which afterwards took place it is at least probable that Londsop, Fitzgeoffrey, and Pejon were trustees for Sir John Cornwall. About the same time the Fishmongers' Company obtained a new charter, which was dated the 8th of February, in the 11th of Henry VI. (1432). This charter contains a licence to hold land in mortmain to a limited amount; and it is remarkable that the licence was "to hold land to the wardens and commonalty and their successors for ever in aid of the support of poor men and women of the mystery of the Company aforesaid," the same words which are employed by Preston in his will in relation to the property thereby imported to be given to the Company.

On the 11th of November 1434 Sir John Cornwall conveyed the great tenement to Londsop, Fitzgeoffrey, and Pejon, the three survivors of the four persons to whom the property in Gracechurch Street and Lombard Street had been conveyed a few years before; and on the 18th of November 1434 Londsop, Fitzgeoffrey, and Pejon granted to Sir John Cornwall an annual rent of 40 marks issuing out of both properties; an additional rent of five marks was payable if the rent of 40 marks was in arrear or unpaid for three months, and there was a power to enter and distrain. On the same 18th day of November 1434 Londsop, Fitzgeoffrey, and Pejon executed a deed, whereby, after reciting a lease which they had granted for 40 years to the re-lessees after named at the rent of a red rose, they released both properties together with other property which had formerly belonged to Thomas Wilford to John Mitchell, who is described as a citizen and alderman of London, to Thomas Cushons, John Whatton, Thomas Blakenhall, Henry Preston, Thomas Boteler, John Taxburgh, Thomas Lyncoln, Richard Banaster, and Thomas Badley, who are described as citizens and Fishmongers, and to Elizabeth, the wife of Thomas Wilford. On the next following day, viz., the 19th of November 1434, these 12 persons in whom the legal estate, not only of the property now in question, but also of the property formerly Wilford's, was vested, granted a rent of 40*l.* per annum to Sir John Cornwall, payable out of all the property so vested in them with powers of entry and distress; but there was a proviso that no levy should be made during the life of Elizabeth Wilford, and a further proviso that Londsop, Fitzgeoffrey, and Pejon should pay to Sir John Cornwall the rentcharge of 40 marks according to the former deed the annual rent of 40*l.* and the payment thereof should not be in any manner liable, but should be suspended, and only be raised when the rent of 40 marks was in arrear and unpaid. A confirmation of this deed was executed two days afterwards, and by means of it it would seem that Sir John Cornwall obtained an additional security for the payment of the rentcharge of 40 marks granted to him on the preceding 18th of November.

The whole property being now vested in John Mitchell and the 11 other persons named in the release of the 18th of November subject to the payment of the rent of 40 marks granted by the deed of even date, and to the payment out of Hillesdon's property of the rentcharge of 40 marks created by Hillesdon, and Sir John Cornwall having obtained an additional security for his rentcharge of 40 marks, it appears by a recital in a subsequent deed, and also by a recital in Preston's will, that on the 22nd of November 1434 John Mitchell and the 11 other persons demised, enfeoffed, and confirmed the great tenement to Hamwell, Watkins, and Gift, and their assigns for the whole life of Sir John Cornwall, Lord of Fanhope; and on the following 15th December 1434 John Mitchell and his co-lessees in a deed of the 18th of November, except Preston, without any consideration expressed released their right and claim to the estates to Henry Preston, his heirs and assigns for ever.

Upon a consideration of the facts thus stated, and having regard to the state of the law at the time, it appears to me that the property in question was acquired by the Company under an arrangement between them and Sir John Cornwall, that Henry Preston became and was a trustee for the Company, and that the Company acquired the property with an intention to hold it subject to the charges under the licence contained in their charter.

On the 1st of April 1437 Sir John Cornwall, Lord of Fanhope, made a will, whereby he devised the rentcharge of 40 marks to the prior and convent of Friar Preachers, near Ludgate, for superstitious uses. He made a subsequent will dated the 10th of December 1443 which did not alter that disposition and disposed of other property. After his death a deed dated the 20th of April 1446 was made between his executors and the wardens of the Fishmongers' Company, and thereby after stating the grant of the rentcharge of 40 marks, the enfeoffment to Mitchell and 11 others, the release to Henry Preston, the will of Henry Preston, and also the will of Sir John Cornwall it was witnessed that the executors of Sir John Cornwall by their common assent of their good grace, zeal, and love that they had unto the soul of Sir John Cornwall and the souls therein referred to, and to the intent that Sir John Cornwall's will might in all things be the better observed and kept for ever, paid to the wardens of the Company 400 marks sterling to have the same in recompense of the great charge and cost the Company had borne and done and to the helping of the reparation of the lands and tenements whereout the rentcharge was issuing, so that the will of Sir John Cornwall might be observed and kept in time coming. The sum of 400 marks being thus voluntarily paid by the executors of Sir John Cornwall to the Company in recompense of the costs and charges they had incurred, and in order to secure the performance of the will of Sir John Cornwall with respect to his intended application of the rentcharge of 40 marks, it seems to follow that in the opinion of the executors the performance of the will would have failed without this assistance, and consequently that the property was not then considered to be sufficient. But we may presume that the Company having received this assistance undertook to pay the rentcharges and continued to pay them for the intended purposes until the time of the Reformation; for we find a yearly sum of 26*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, being 40 marks issuing out of the whole of this property, and a yearly sum of 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, being 20 marks issuing out of the property situate in Lombard Street and Gracechurch Street, comprised in the letters patent or grant made for valuable consideration by King Edward VI. to the Company in the fourth year of his reign. In the meantime the property was treated as absolutely belonging to the Company.

Upon this case the relator contends first, that this was the property of Preston and is subject to the trusts of his will under which the defendants derived title; but, probably, perceiving that under the circumstances it might appear that Preston was not entitled beneficially or otherwise than as trustee for the Company, he further contends that, supposing Preston to have been only a trustee and to have made his will according to the directions of the Company, still the will expresses the terms upon which the Company took and professed to hold the property, and that those terms describe trusts from which the Company cannot be relieved. To this it is answered for the defendants, first, that the terms of Preston's will exactly correspond with the terms of the charter and cannot show a charitable trust any more than the charter shows that any other property held under the same licence is held upon a charitable trust to be executed in this Court, that property given by will, even if given by a stranger, which they insist, and, I think, with reason, Preston was not, for the very same purpose for which they were licensed to hold lands in mortmain could be held only on the same trusts, and in the same manner as all other lands held under the same licence; and it being, as was alleged, clear that the Court has no jurisdiction over other lands held under that licence it is argued that the Court has no jurisdiction over these lands.

It is, however, further contended that even if these lands, or the surplus rents, after satisfying the charge were subject to a charitable use, which might be executed in this Court, yet they were charged with annual sums exceeding the annual value of the property, and charged with those sums for superstitious uses; that those annual sums became the property of the Crown, and were by the Crown granted to the Company; and that afterwards by the Act of 4th James I.* the lands out of which the rents were issuing were secured to the Company, and that thereby the property became theirs; and I am of that opinion. We are now at a distance of 400 years from the time when the transaction took place, and it is very difficult, if not impossible, satisfactorily to explain every particular of the whole transaction; but I am of opinion that after so long an uninterrupted usage anything which seems ambiguous ought to be presumed in favour of the Company's title; and although the words of the charter and of Preston's will, which in my view must be taken to have been made in concurrence with the Company, import a trust such as might be executed by this Court, yet a trust could only attach on the surplus which remained after satisfying the specific charges, and in this case, with such reasons as the circumstances afford for thinking that at the time when the transaction took place the value of the property did not equal the charge, without any evidence that the value had increased before the grant of King Edward VI., and with an uninterrupted use of the property as belonging to the Company for so long a period, it appears to me that I ought to presume that the charges to which the Crown became entitled, and which were granted to the Company, were equal to if they did not exceed the whole value of the land. For these reasons I am of opinion that by the grant of the subsequent statute of James I. the estate became the property of the Company, and that this information must also be dismissed with costs.

The Attorney-General, by the same relator, appealed to the Lord Chancellor, and the cause came on to be heard before Lord Cottenham on the 19th June 1840. The Lord Chancellor gave judgment on the 13th of January 1841, when his Lordship dismissed the appeal with costs.

The judgment of Lord Cottenham was as follows:—

Westminster Hall,
Lord Chancellor's Court,
13th January, 1841.

The Attorney-General v. the Fishmongers' Company.
Judgment.

Preston's Charity.

The Lord Chancellor:—The object of this information is to impeach the title to absolute ownership which the Fishmongers' Company have enjoyed for upwards of 400 years in various tenements in the City of London, and to have it declared that they have from the commencement of that period been and are now trustees of such property for charitable purposes. The case rests altogether upon the expressions used in the will of one Henry Preston under which the informants assume that the Company derive their title to the property, and by which will Henry Preston devised the property to the wardens and commonalty of the Company and their successors to have and to hold it to the said wardens and commonalty and their successors in aid of sustaining poor men and women of the mystery of the commonalty for ever. It was argued upon the principle that this Court recognises no limitation of time in case of trust, that no regard was to be paid in this case to the lapse of 400 years, which have passed away since the title of the Company appears to have accrued. Such a doctrine would be most dangerous, and might, if acted upon, be destructive of many of the best titles of the kingdom. If there be no doubt as to the origin and existence of a trust the principles of justice and the interests of mankind require that the lapse of time should not enable those who are mere trustees to appropriate to themselves that which is the property of others. But in questions of doubt whether any trust exists, and whether those in possession are not entitled to the property for their own benefit, the principles of justice and the interest of mankind require that the utmost regard should be paid to the length of time during which there has been enjoyment inconsistent with the existence of the supposed trust, one of the principal reasons for admitting limitations of suits is the difficulty of ascertaining the facts necessary to make it safe to exercise the judicial power. Upon this principle this Court has in many instances limited the period within which it will exercise its power; and it would, indeed, be strange if in case it has not done so it were altogether to disregard the lapse of time as applicable to the evidence on which it is called upon to act. To dispose of rights or property upon any evidence however apparently clear against a title and a course of dealing of 400 years would in any case be full of danger; and no judge, not destitute of that degree of prudence and discretion which is essential to the due administration of all systems of law, but particularly to that of equity, would feel justified in doing so, if any reasonable suggestion could be made reconciling the history of transactions long since passed away with the enjoyment of the property. Of this the present case furnishes a strong example. There is nothing upon the face of the will to show that Henry Preston was not the beneficial owner of the property or to explain the expressions to be found there from which a charitable trust might be inferred. But if a court of equity having nothing but the will before it were to take from the Company the beneficial interest in the property, an act of the greatest injustice would, I believe, have been the consequence. Fortunately, I am not in that difficulty, for I have evidence before me, which if it does not demonstrate that the Company were from the commencement beneficial owners of this property, raises so strong a presumption that such was the case as to relieve me from all doubt as to the duty I have to perform.

The Fishmongers' Company, though it had previously existed as a guild or fraternity, was not incorporated until the year 1433, and their charter contains a licence to hold lands of the value of 20*l.* per annum, notwithstanding the then statutes of mortmain. Before that time the fraternity could only hold lands by procuring them to be conveyed and held by trustees, and as they were within the statute of the 15th Richard II., chap. 5., they could not do this openly, and after that time they could in their own right only hold lands of the annual value of 20*l.*; but by the ascertained custom of the City of London, citizens, though they could not convey lands in mortmain, were entitled to devise them in mortmain, and the corporations were entitled to accept the lands so devised, whatever might be their value, and from this a course of proceeding was adopted to enable the city corporations to hold more lands than their charters authorised. The corporations purchasing lands procured them to be conveyed to trustees, and such trustees conveyed them to some one person who, by his will, devised them to the corporations. The evidence of Mr. Hardy, and the documents to which he refers, proves that such was the course of business in the City of London at the date of the transactions now under consideration, which is the whole that is necessary. The answer puts in issue facts, and there is sufficient in the books to show the probability of such having been the object and legal consequence of such facts, and no attempt was made to meet by evidence or authority the case so made on behalf of the defendants. Assuming therefore, as I must, that such was the usual course of proceeding, the examination of the documents in evidence, as to whether they establish the theory of the plaintiff or of the defendants, will lead to a short, and I think, a satisfactory conclusion, the theory of the plaintiff being, that Henry Preston was absolutely entitled to the property, and devised it to the Company upon the charitable trusts mentioned in his will, and the theory of the defendants being, that he was only a trustee for them, and that his will was only an execution of the trust on which he before held the property. It is important for this and for another purpose to keep in mind that there is very strong evidence that the property was not at the time worth so much as the rentcharges upon it, or did not produce sufficient income to pay them. The inquisition post-mortem of John Lovekin, charging 40 marks upon other property as well as on the great tenement, and the deed of the 20th April 1446, which assumes the inadequacy of the premises to pay the charges, establish that fact sufficiently to justify its assumption in the examination of the history of the transactions. If, therefore, the property did belong to Henry Preston, his devise of it to charitable purposes was a mere mockery; but if it was then the property of the Company no such absurdity follows from his restoring it to its rightful owners.

In 1429 the property in Gracechurch Street and Lombard Street was vested in four persons, Radwell, Londsop, Fitzgeoffrey, and Pejoir; and the first having died, the three last subsequently dealt with it alone. This was before the incorporation of the Company, which was not until 1433. If, therefore, these persons hold this property on trust for the Company, the course usually at that time adopted for such a purpose would appear to have been followed, and the subsequent transactions will show whether they were so or whether they were beneficially entitled to the property. The great tenement had become vested in Sir John Cornwall, and by deed of the 11th November 1434 he conveyed it to the same persons, Londsop, Fitzgeoffrey, and Pejon; and on the 18th November 1434 they granted to him, charged upon this property and other property which they held under the deed of 1429, an annual rent of 40 marks with a power of entry and distress, and in the event of nonpayment bound themselves personally to pay five marks as a penalty. On the same day Londsop, Fitzgeoffrey, and Pejon executed another deed, by which they conveyed all the property in Gracechurch Street and Lombard Street, and the great tenement, in fee to John Mitchell, described as a citizen and alderman of London, and 10 other persons, of whom Henry Preston was one, described as citizens and fishmongers. By another deed of the 19th of November 1434, Mitchell and the other 10 charged an annual rent of 40l. upon all the property comprised in the last deed, and upon various other properties stated to be vested in them, in favour of Sir John Cornwall, but with a proviso that such annual rent should not be demandable if the rent of 40 marks was regularly paid, and with a proviso against their being personally liable. It may well be asked why if these parties were purchasers they should charge this and other property with the rent of 40l. to secure the 40 marks? By another deed of the 15th December, Mitchell and 9 of the 10, Henry Preston being omitted, released to Henry Preston and his heirs all their estates and interests in the property in Gracechurch Street, Lombard Street, and the great tenement; and on the 20th February Henry Preston made his will, which recites the transactions as to the property in Gracechurch Street, Lombard Street, and the great tenement; and reciting that he had thereby become solely seized thereof in his demesne as of fee simple, devised the whole of such property to certain persons named and described as "the wardens of the Company and the commonalty of the same mistery and their successors for ever, in aid of the sustentation of the poor men and women of the said mistery and commonalty for ever." The will is confined to this object, and takes no notice of any other property, and is in the form in use at that time for passing trust property, as is proved by Mr. Hardy. If Radwell, Londsop, Fitzgeoffrey, and Pejon were trustees of the Gracechurch Street property and the Lombard Street property, and if the Company purchased the great tenement from Sir John Cornwall, it is very consistent with such a supposition that after the death of Radwell the other three should deal with the property, and that after the purchase of the great tenement the consideration for such purchase, that is, the 40 marks, should be charged upon other property belonging to the Company, and that these three should convey the whole to other trustees, viz., Mitchell and the 10 others. And if these 11 were trustees for the Company it is proved to have been according to the usual course of business in such cases that the trustees should convey to one that such one might by will vest the property in the Company for whom it was held in trust, but if Henry Preston was beneficially entitled to the property so must have been Mitchell and the other 10, and so must have been Radwell, Londsop, Fitzgeoffrey, and Pejon. But besides the improbability of so many persons acquiring and immediately departing with their shares and interests in this property, and the impossibility of accounting for their dealing with the property on that supposition, there is no appearance of any consideration being given by the 11 to the three, or by Henry Preston to the 10, for the transfer of their interests; and the deed between the executors of Sir John Cornwall and the Company strongly confirms the supposition that the transaction was from the beginning between him and the Company. I observe that the Master of the Rolls seems to think it probable that Londsop, Fitzgeoffrey, and Pejon were trustees of the property in Gracechurch Street and Lombard Street for Sir John Cornwall. For the purpose of the present question it is not material whether they were trustees for him or for the Company, though for the reasons I have given I think the better presumption is that they were trustees for the latter. The plaintiffs' proposition is that they were the beneficial owners; the contrary of which is all but demonstrated by the evidence. I have, therefore, no difficulty in coming to the conclusion that the Company did not derive the beneficial interest in the property from Henry Preston's will; whereas before I could entertain the case made by the informants I must have been satisfied beyond any reasonable doubt that they did derive their title under it.

It was then said that although Henry Preston might be in fact a trustee for the Company, yet that the terms of his will imposed upon the Company a duty of applying the property to charitable purposes.

It is not easy to conceive how an expression used by a trustee can alter the estate and destroy the interest of the cestui que trust, but the fact that the words used are precisely those that are to be found in the licence to hold lands in mortmain comprised in the charter of the Company explains the ground of their introduction into Henry Preston's will, and proves there was no intention of affecting the estate and interest of the Company in this property.

There is another ground of defence on the part of the defendants which remains to be observed upon. I have before stated that the property in question appears to have been of less annual value than the two rents charged upon it, which seems to have been a sufficient ground for the title of the owners of the property itself under the statutes of the 1st Edward VI., chap. 14. In Adams v. Lambert, 4th Coke's Reports, 112b., it is said to have been resolved in a case in which land of the value of 20l. per annum was given, 10l. to a priest, 5l. for an obit, and 5l. for a lamp, all the uses being superstitious the land itself belongs to the king, "for inasmuch as all the profits are limited to the superstitious uses, it was the intent of the Act to give all the land to the king by a reasonable construction upon the coherence and intention of all parts of the Act." That being so, I have observed in another case it was immaterial whether the Crown actually seized the land itself or only the rents, the letters patent of the 4th Edward VI. and the Act of the 4th James I. having had the effect of giving to the Company all that the Act of the 1st Edward VI. had given to the king.* This probable ground of title coupled with 400 years' enjoyment would of itself have been an answer to the claim made by the information. In this case it is unnecessary to pursue that point further, as this additional ground is not required to support the decree of the Master of the Rolls, which I now affirm and dismiss the appeal with costs.

But I cannot part with this case without expressing my regret that this proceeding should have been instituted without that ordinary degree of consideration and research which, if exercised, must have satisfied the relators that there was no foundation for the case attempted to be made. The title to the property after an enjoyment of 400 years is questioned, and great trouble and great expense necessarily incurred to the owners upon some expressions found in a will of the year 1434, which even a slight attention to the history of the times, the then state of the law, and the transactions relating to property which the relators do not appear to have taken any pains to ascertain, would have shown to be wholly unavailing for the purpose of supporting the claim made. The loss which this attempt will occasion to the relators is no compensation for the injury which it must have occasioned to the defendants, from which I regret the inability of the Court to relieve them beyond the costs of the suit given by the decree of the Master of the Rolls and the costs of the appeal which I now order them to pay to the defendants.

The claim of the Company to be the absolute owners of the entire estate in question, free from any charitable trust, is therefore established by these decrees. It is right, however, to add that the Company have not discontinued the relief to the poor members of the Company which they were in the habit of bestowing before the above-mentioned suit was instituted. Large sums are constantly distributed in weekly pensions, annuities, and payments to what are called the half-yearly poor, and in casual aid. The amount thus granted to the poor of the Company amounted, as I am informed, in the last year to the sum of 4,314l. 0s. 5d. The effect of the decree has been that these sums instead of being debited to any particular charities are allowed and paid out of the general funds of the Company.

ALMSHOUSES OF MARK QUESTED AT HARRIETSHAM, KENT.

Mark Qusted, by his will 27th January 1642, gave to the Company all his manor of Pencourt at Hollingbourne, let at 182*l.* per annum, on trust with one year's income and 100*l.* added, to purchase a piece of land and build 12 almshouses for 12 poor almsfolk, and to pay to every one 6*l.* a year.—72*l.*

To four Masters of Arts of Oxford or Cambridge, 8 l. a piece	32	0	0
To four students of ditto, 4 l. a piece	16	0	0
To 10 poor children of Christ's Hospital, 4 l. a piece	40	0	0 and the residue to the wardens for a dinner to the livery.

The estates devised by the will, and still belonging to the Company, are—

Pencourt Farm, consisting of a farmhouse and buildings, and about 176 acres of land, some portion having been exchanged since the last inquiry

Allington Farm, farmhouse, and buildings, and 202 acres, 1 rood, 30 perches of land let to Batchelor Roper, junr., on lease

The total acreage, including some acquisitions made by the Company, exceeds the above quantity.

The rent exceeds the sum of 160*l.*, which is the amount of the charge, and the Company do not consider themselves bound to render any further account of the rental of the estates which they claim as the property of the Company subject to the specific charges.

It is to be observed that the question is whether the gift of the "residue" to the Company, under the circumstances in which the testator sets out first the annual value of his estate at 182*l.*, and then specifically appropriates the sum to divers objects, amounting to 160*l.*, and concludes by saying "the residue" shall go to the Company, the word "residue" should not be read as if he had said and the remaining 22*l.* a year.

The almshouses at Harrietsham were first built in 1651, and were rebuilt by the Company in 1770 and 1772. They consist of 12 distinct houses under the same roof with a good garden to each, which the almspeople had in their own occupation. Six of the almspersons are free of the Company, and six are parishioners of the parish. They are all chosen by the Company, but as to the parishioners a presentment is made by the clergyman, churchwardens and parishioners, and two justices of the peace of the names of eligible persons, from whom the Company elect. I append a printed copy of the orders and rules of the almshouses.

The six almspeople of the Company receive each 12*s.* per week if married, and 7*s.* per week if single. The sums paid in 1860 amounted together to 135*l.* 4*s.* This included the 35*l.* 10*s.* 4*d.* per annum under Copping's gift. (See page 7 of this Report.)

The parishionary almspeople are paid each 6*l.* per annum, 36*l.*

This payment has been made to them since the 1st August 1827, soon after the last inquiry. (See Vol. 12, page 122.)

They also receive under Owen's gift annually (see page 36 of this Report) 1*l.*

The Company allow the free people 36 cwt. of coal, and the parishionary almspeople 12 cwt. of coal, it being understood that the parish provides them with additional fuel.

In 1860 the coals were furnished by the Company at an expense of 21*l.* 12*s.* The clothes supplied to the 12 almspeople requires an expenditure of about 12*l.* a year. The upper keeper is allowed 5*l.* 5*s.* a year as superintendent, formerly the reader, a duty which is now performed by the rector or curate gratuitously. The paymaster, who is the tenant of the Company of the estate, is allowed 10*l.* a year. There are also repairs which are done at the expense of the Company, and which in 1860 amounted to 13*l.*

The Company also pay Mr. Sedgwick, surgeon of Hol-

* MARK QUESTED'S CHARITY.

By an order of the Board of Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, dated 21st January 1868, a scheme was established for the regulation of that portion of the endowments of this charity which is applicable to the payment of exhibitions to four poor Masters of Arts of Oxford or Cambridge. In 1860 about 6*l.* was paid for nursing one of the poor almspeople, and 3*l.* for the funeral; the Company also contribute to the local schools.

The income arising from the endowments, for the special purpose of the almshouse, thus appears to be,

MASTERS OF ARTS AND STUDENTS IN THE UNIVERSITIES.

It appears by the books of the Company that from 1652 to 1654 the students appear first to have been paid, and that in 1689 a person was elected an exhibitor, but payments to them appear to have ceased from 1690. In February 1704 there was a reference to a committee to report on these exhibitions, but no report seems to have been made. On the 5th July 1838 the court of the Company ordered that four Masters of Arts of Oxford or Cambridge, being poor and having need thereof, be appointed to exhibitions at 8*l.* per annum under Qusted's will; also, that four students of Oxford or Cambridge be appointed to exhibitions of 4*l.* a year under the same will, and it was referred to a committee to consider the best way of carrying it out. The committee on the 25th July 1838 recommended that advertisements should be published in the newspapers of the counties of Oxford and Cambridge, as follows:—

"Notice is hereby given that the Fishmongers' Company have now in their gift eight exhibitions, viz., to four Masters of Arts 8*l.* a piece yearly, and to four students 4*l.* a piece yearly so long as they shall abide at their study in either of the Universities of Oxford or Cambridge being poor and having need thereof. Parties desirous of being candidates will be pleased to apply to Mr. Towse, at the Fishmongers' Hall, London, by letter on or before the 1st November next."

On the 1st August 1838 the court approved the report, and ordered the advertisement to be inserted. On the 15th November following the court proceeded to the election, and chose a gentleman of Trinity College, and a gentleman of Queen's College, as two of the Masters of Arts; and at a subsequent court the other two nominations of masters were filled up. One of these gentlemen has ever since held it. I append the forms of election and of the certificate under which the payment is made.

On the 18th November 1839 a sum of 112*l.* was invested in 3*l.* per cent. Annuities of 1726, and from that period any balance which arose from the exhibitions not being paid to the Masters of Arts, or from dividends of the stock, have been invested until 1854, when the 1726 stock was paid off and the amount converted into 3*l.* per cent. Reduced Stock. The total amount invested up to the 19th October 1860 was 256*l.* 4*s.* 7*d.* cash, producing 274*l.* 2*s.* 4*d.* 3*l.* per cent. Reduced Stock. In consequence of the dividend on that stock amounting to 8*l.*, by order of the court of the Company of the 12th March 1855 each of the Masters of Arts now receive 10*l.* a year instead of 8*l.*

The nominations are all now full. Advertisements are inserted on the occurrence of vacancies.

The same general orders of the Company applied for the nomination and election of students as of masters, and on the 15th November 1838 the four exhibitions of 4*l.* per annum each were filled up, and the same have since been filled up, to the number of four, as vacancies have occurred. I append the form of certificates applicable to the student-ships.

In November 1839 the sum of 48*l.* was invested in the 3*l.* per cent. Annuities 1726; and in like manner the dividends or unapplied surplus was accumulated until 1854, when the fund was converted into 3*l.* per cent. Reduced Stock. The total amount of money invested up to October 1860 was 146*l.* 4*s.* 2*d.* cash, producing 155*l.* 18*s.* 9*d.* 3*l.* per cent. Reduced Stock; and according to the order of the court of the Company of the 12th March 1855, the dividends thereon exceeding 4*l.* per annum, the exhibitions to the students were raised to 5*l.* per annum each.*

Scheme.

1. The annuity or yearly sum of 32*l.* applicable under the provisions of the founder's will to the payment of four annual exhibitions of 8*l.* each to four poor Masters of Arts residing in one of the Universities of Oxford or Cambridge, and the annual dividends and income arising from the accumulations thereof (which accumulations are now

CHRIST'S HOSPITAL.

It appears by the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (p. 123, vol. 12), "that in consequence of the "embarrassment which took place after Mr. Quedsted's death, in the execution of the trusts of his will, the benefaction given by him to Christ's Hospital remained inoperative until the year 1683, when a conference took place "respecting it between a committee of governors of the "hospital and a committee of the Company. The result of "this conference, upon a statement made of the difficulties "which the Company had encountered, and the inadequacy "of the trust fund to fulfil the charities charged thereon, "was an agreement that the Company should pay to the "hospital 200*l.*, and that the governors should receive into "the hospital six poor children presented to them by the "Company, being paid for each of them 4*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.* a year "towards their maintenance."

The Commissioners add that the Company had ever since paid yearly to Christ's Hospital 25*l.*, and had always six children maintained there, sons of freemen of the Company.

In the year 1841 the Company laid a case before counsel, stating the constitution and early history of Christ's Hospital, and that long before the agreement of 1683, "disputes "had frequently arisen among the governors respecting "the manner in which children were usually admitted so "as to render the right of presentation in many cases "merely nominal and always extremely troublesome. By "the customary mode of proceeding either all petitions "were read and the general court made choice of the "most prominent cases, or a committee was appointed to "reduce the number of petitions, according to the conditions of the several parishes from which they came, the "final decision still resting with the court, or else the "aldermen and governors in a body presented each a "petition, and the selection depended as usual upon the "court. The rejected petitions naturally gave rise to "murmuring and discontent, whilst the canvassing which "was necessary to secure a majority of votes was at once "unpleasant and laborious. In order therefore to silence "these complaints, many of which proceeded from benefactors to a large amount, and from others from whom "the hospital had considerable expectations, it was resolved "upon one occasion that every alderman should forthwith "be complimented with two presentations and every "governor with one."

The case then stated the rules of admission to Christ's Hospital adopted in 1683-84, and the articles of agreement of 1782. It set forth the various proceedings of the court of the Fishmongers' Company on the subject of that portion of Mark Quedsted's bequest in connexion with Christ's Hospital, and the minutes of the conference of the 18th February 1683, at which the agreement referred to was made, the material part of which is as follows:—

"Mr. Freeman Hause here present, being one of the assistants of the said Company, reported the case concerning the said will and the reasons why the 40*l.* yearly therein mentioned hath not hitherto been paid, partly by reason of the great demands of the testator's widow, and the payments made to her thereout during her life, and also of the great charges expended in a suite of lawe to settle the same; and, moreover, for that the lands for some years could not be lett to a certayne tenant, and acquainting them that about eight years now last past the lands that were given to pay charities and other legacies, amounting to 180*l.* per annum, were lett but at 110*l.* per annum. And that the Company were ready to divide and pay out 100*l.* yearly in those charities in proportion to his will, represented by the sum of 305*l.* 10*s.* 1*d.* Reduced 3*l.* per cent. Annuities) shall be applied by the said Company, as the trustees of the said charity, first in payment of the necessary and proper costs and expenses attending the administration of the charity according to the provisions of this scheme, and then in providing for the payment of the annual exhibitions herein-after mentioned.

2. There shall be four annual exhibitions under this scheme amounting, in the first instance, to the yearly sum of 10*l.* each.

3. The exhibitioners shall be appointed by the said trustees, and shall be respectively persons in poor circumstances, not more than 30 years of age at the time of appointment, who shall have taken the degree of Master of Arts at the University either of Oxford or Cambridge, and who shall be pursuing the study of some liberal or learned profession with the view to the bonâ fide practice thereof either at one of the said universities or elsewhere in Great Britain.

4. Every exhibition shall be tenable for a period of reserving the odd 10*l.* for and towards the reparations of 12 almshouses, and for other charges incident thereto, whereby there would be payable to Christ's Hospital about 25*l.* yearly towards the maintenance of poore children therein, as appeared by a particular account thereof now here produced and showed; and he did believe that the Company of Fishmongers would be willing to give to the governors of Christ's Hospital the sum of 200*l.* in money, so as the governors will take and keepe six children in their hospital for the time to come upon the allowance mentioned in his will.

"All which being by the several committees above named considered of and debated, as also the foote of the accompts for those lands in the Company's hands, it was agreed by the committee for the said hospital that the said Company paying to the said governors the sum of 200*l.*, they would receive 6 poor children into the said hospital to be presented to them by the said Company upon paying the sum of 4*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.* a pease yearlye to them towards their maintenance therein, but that the badge should not be worn by the said children, for that none weare badges there only those of the King's Majesty's foundation; and that as any dyed and were disposed of, others should be presented and taken into their roome. And that if hereafter the rents of the lands did rise or fall, the number of the children should be increased or lessened accordingly.

To all which the committee for the said Company, according to their order, desired to reporte the same to the next courte to be holden for their said Company for their order therein."

The question submitted to counsel arose on the latter part of the above agreement (underlined). The case stated that "the revenue of the estate was now more than sufficient to pay the 40*l.* per annum," and it asked the opinion of counsel whether the Fishmongers' Company could, under the will of Mark Quedsted, present 10 children of poor freemen of the Company to Christ's Hospital, and require the governors of Christ's Hospital to accept and receive such 10 children on the terms of the said will, or on the basis of the agreement between them and the Company; if not, how otherwise? And if they could present 10 children, then to advise what is the best course for the Company to adopt to ensure the acceptance of such 10 children in their presentation, and to advise the Company generally on the premises.

It will probably be anticipated that the advice of counsel was, that the Company could not maintain their claim, and that it did not advise them to insist upon it, looking upon the agreement to reduce the number of children to six as having been always treated as absolute and unconditional. I mention this claim and its nature chiefly as showing that the Company must consistently have regarded the increase of rent as being for the benefit of the different branches of the charity, as well as of the parties interested in the gift under the word "residue," and as therefore affecting the construction I have above hinted at.

The sum paid to Christ's Hospital still continues to be 25*l.* a year, and the Company always have six presentees on the hospital books. It is sufficient that the parents of the children are free of the Company, or according to the will not free, if there are none eligible who are free. There have been always free applicants. It is not necessary that they should be free of the city, and the Company guard against the freedom of the city, if possessed, being in any respect used at the time of the presentation. The nomination is made nearly once a year. It is made upon the petition of the parent or guardian to the court.

There have been 59 nominations in the present century.

four years, but the trustees may, if they so think fit, in special cases at the termination of any such period renew the appointment of any exhibitioner for a further or additional period of not more than four years.

5. Every exhibitioner shall be removable at any time by the trustees for misconduct or disqualification, or for any other cause, to be determined by the trustees, who shall in every case be the exclusive and absolute judges of the sufficiency of the grounds for such removal.

6. The surplus or residue of the income of the said charity, which shall remain after providing for and satisfying the several payments aforesaid, shall be reserved and invested by the trustees from time to time as an accumulating fund, to be added to the endowment of the said charity applicable to the purposes of this scheme, with the intent that when and so often as there shall be a sufficient amount of available income, at the disposal of the trustees the amount of each, of the said annual exhibitions under this scheme shall be increased by successive additions thereto of the annual sum of 1*l.*

ALMSHOUSES at HARRIETSHAM, in the county of KENT.GOVERNORS :

The Wardens and Assistants of the Mystery of Fishmongers of the City of London.

BENEFACTIONS.

1642, 27th January.—Mark Quedsted, Esq., by will dated the 27th of January 1642, devised and bequeathed to the wardens and commonalty of the mystery of Fishmongers of London all his messuages and lands, with his manor of Pencourt, situate in Hollingbourne, in the county of Kent, with directions (among other things) to purchase ground in the parish of Harrietsham, in the said county, where he was born, and to build thereon 12 almshouses for 12 poor almsfolks, six of whom to be of the poor of the parish of Harrietsham, and six to be of the poor, free of the said Company.

1676, 28th April, and 1677, 23rd May.—John Owen, by indentures of these dates, gave 270*l.*, and directed the sum of 20*s.*, part of the interest thereof, to be paid yearly on the 20th of March, to six poor almsfolks, free of the Company in Harrietsham almshouses.

1686, 8th January.—Jeremiah Copping, by will of the 8th of January 1686, gave certain monies for the maintenance of poor old almsmen of the Company. Under this benefaction the sum of 36*l.*, is appropriated yearly in the relief of the six almspeople, free of the Company in Harrietsham almshouses.

Orders for the Government of the Almshouses.

The paymaster is to attend at the almshouses to pay the pensions, to examine into the state of the almspeople, and to report thereon, with every other matter, in writing, to the governors at Midsummer and Christmas.

If any of the almspeople offend against the rules and orders, the paymaster is to adopt such measures thereon as he may deem requisite, and in all matters of importance report the same to the governors.

The superintendent appointed by the governors from among the almsmen is to read prayers to the almspeople, assembled in his house, and he is to take care of the goods and chattels in the house of any deceased almsman or almswoman, until they are removed by permission of the paymaster; to see that the almspeople take care of the gardens allotted to them, and that the other parts of the ground, as well as the out-buildings, be kept clean and in good order and condition, to take notice of all offences committed by the almspeople, and acquaint the paymaster therewith.

Six members of the Company who have been free five years, being 50 years of age, are eligible to be admitted into the almshouses.

The widow of an almsman is eligible to be elected, being 50 years of age.

The governors have also elected a freeman's widow, being 50 years of age.

Six persons, parishioners of Harrietsham, are also eligible to be admitted into the almshouses.

The widow of a parishionary almsman is eligible to be continued in the almshouses.

Rules to be observed by the Almspeople.

1. All the almspeople (except such as are prevented by sickness) shall both in the forenoon and afternoon of every Lord's day, in due time, repair to some place of public worship, and attend divine service.

2. All the almspeople (except such as are prevented by sickness) shall attend every Wednesday morning, at 10 o'clock, at the superintendent's house, to join in public prayer, according to the rites of the Church of England.

3. None of the almspeople shall use any blasphemous words, or on any occasion be drunk, or at any time make use of any bitter, uncharitable or offensive speeches, or give any blow to any other of the almspeople, or act disorderly or dishonestly, upon pain of being expelled the hospital.

4. None of the almspeople shall be absent from the almshouses during the night, without leave from the superintendent, who is allowed to permit such of the almspeople as he shall see fit, on urgent occasions, to lie out of the almshouses; but no permission shall be given to any of the almspeople to lie out more than two nights successively, without the consent of the paymaster.

5. The almspeople shall have no person to reside with them or attend upon them, but in case of sickness the paymaster may allow a woman to attend as nurse being of the age of 50 years.

6. The almspeople shall not damage any of the houses, break down any of the fences, or destroy any of the trees.

7. None of the almspeople, or any person whatever, shall pay or cast any rubbish, dust, or filth in any of the almshouses, or in any part of the grounds, ditches, or drains thereto belonging, or wash fish, vegetables or any utensils, at or near the pump.

8. The almspeople shall keep clean their dwellings, and the pavement before and behind the same, and the garden allotted to each house; and shall also keep repaired the glass in their windows at their own charge, or in default thereof, the expense of repairing them shall be deducted out of their pensions.

9. The almspeople shall behave peaceably and quietly, and be helpful to each other.

10. No almsman or almswoman shall marry without the consent of the governors, upon pain of being expelled.

11. If any almsman shall have a wife or any almswoman a husband, the wife of the almsman shall be allowed to dwell with her husband, and the husband of the almswoman with his wife, and in every offence against these orders, the offence of the wife shall be deemed the offence of the husband; and the offence of the husband the offence of the wife.

12. Upon the decease of any of the almspeople, none of the goods or chattels in the house of the deceased shall be removed, without the permission of the paymaster; and that care may in the meantime be taken of such goods and chattels, the key of the house shall be delivered to the superintendent.

13. The coat and gown of the almsman or almswoman, that shall die or be removed, shall remain to the house for the succeeding almsman or almswoman, if such had been received within six months previously to the decease or removal of the said almsman or almswoman.

14. These rules shall be read by the superintendent to the almspeople assembled for that purpose at his house, on every 24th day of June and every 21st day of December.

15. Offences committed against any of these rules shall be from time to time stated by the superintendent to the paymaster.

These orders and rules were made in the wardenship of—

RANDOLPH'S CHARITY.

Barnard Randolph having paid the Company the sum of 200*l.*, the Company, by indenture of 20th March 1582, for themselves and their successors, promised to make the following payments:—

To the churchwardens of Ticehurst, Sussex,	£
40 s. for mending the horseways, and 40 s. for the poor	4
For the poor of St. Nicholas Olave, London	1
For the poor of St. Mary Magdalen, London	1
For a scholar at Cambridge	4

The payment for the parish of Ticehurst is made to the churchwardens of that parish, and the 1*l.* each to the two city parishes is also paid to their respective churchwardens.

The scholar at Cambridge, who is to be "towardly and a student of divinity," to be named by the Bishop of London, and on a vacancy of the see, by the Lord Mayor of London, and in default by the wardens, is always nominated by the court of the Company. It is at present full, having been held five years by the same person.

SMITH'S CHARITY.

Lettice Smith devised, by her will in 1510, her shop to the Company to pay,—

To the prisoners of Ludgate, in bread and	s.	d.
drink	3	4
To the prisoners of Newgate,	3	4 of the King's Bench	3	4
of the Marshalsea	3	4

The sum of 6*s.* 8*d.* is paid to an officer of the corporation, as representing the city prisons, and the other 6*s.* 8*d.* to the governor of the Queen's Bench.

It is stated in the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (volume 12, page 94) that "the Company cannot tell what were the premises given by Lettice Smith." From an examination which a committee of the Company made in 1835 and 1836 it was considered that the premises called the Maidenhead in Bridge Street (now forming part of No. 21, Fish Street Hill), having a frontage of 7 feet and a depth of 12 feet 8 inches, were what came originally from Lettice Smith. The will directs that certain masses shall be performed, and the Company state that the property was seized by the Crown, but was afterwards, as they allege, repurchased by the Company. They consider themselves only bound to pay the 13*s.* 4*d.* a year, although in the first instance (since Midsummer 1835) they have credited the trust with one third of the rent received half-yearly from No. 21, Fish Street Hill, and after debiting the account with the amount paid to the prisons, the balance has been carried to the general funds of the Company.

In March and April 1852 the Lord Chief Baron with the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of London held courts for inquiring into the gifts due to prisons under the statute 4 Geo. 4. c. 64. At that time the following examination took place as is reported in the minutes of proceedings.

MR. WM. BECKWITH TOWSE (SWORN).

Q. Are you the clerk of the Fishmongers' Company?—

A. Yes.

Q. Is that a copy of Lettice Smith's will?—A. Yes.

Q. Where is that taken from?—A. From the will book.

Q. Is that the whole will or an extract?—A. The whole will, so far as I know, dated in 1510.

Q. Do the Company take anything under this will except the shop of testator?—A. Not anything.

Q. Where is that shop situated?—A. In Fish Street Hill.

Q. What rent does it now pay?—A. It is only one portion of the premises, the portion that is derived from it may be worth about 12*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*

Q. The original shop forms part of the house now?—A. Yes; being a fourth part of one house.

Q. Does the rent of the house belong to the Company?—A. Not altogether, we had to lease the centre part of it from the parish of St. Peter's, Cornhill.

Q. It is, "I bequeath to Our Lady Altar, where I have bequeathed my body, a bodkin, a white silk with flowers of gold; and as for my shop I give it to the Company of Fishmongers. Howbeit by my life it is mine, and after my decease it is to them to perform my will." That is the bequest?—A. Yes.

Q. "First, I will that my son, John Neve, shall have during his life, out of my said shop, 40*s.* every year; also I will that the Company of the clothing of the Fishmongers be at my burial, both at dirge and at mass; and also I will that the six wardens of the Company with the clothing shall keep yearly for my husband's soul, James Smyth, and for my soul, Lettys Smith, and for the soul of John Neve, and for all their friends' souls, and all Christian souls yearly a dirge and a mass by note; also I will that the six wardens shall have every year to each of them twenty pence apiece for their labours; and I will that there shall be spent in bread, cheese, and ale on the Company of the craft of Fishmongers and on the poor people of St. Margaret's, 10*s.*; also I bequeath to the prisoners of Ludgate 3*s.* 4*d.* in bread and drink, and to the prisoners of Newgate 3*s.* 4*d.*, and to the King's Bench 3*s.* 4*d.*, and to the Marshalsea 3*s.* 4*d.*, all in like manner as is to Ludgate."

During what period can you speak of the payment of the 3*s.* 4*d.* to the different prisoners?—A. From the time the Company's books go back.

Q. A hundred years probably?—A. More than that.

Q. The same sum is paid to each?—A. Yes.

Q. The receipts are taken from the keeper of the prisons?—A. Yes. The Ludgate and Newgate are paid to the hall keeper, the King's Bench and Marshalsea to the Queen's Bench people.

Q. What is done with the remainder of the 12*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*?—A. It belongs to the Company.

Q. The whole of that is applied to the purposes of the Company?—A. It is a specific right.

Q. I was only asking in fact what is done. The remaining portion in fact goes to the Company's funds?—A. I believe I must not answer any further questions. We pay the amount as directed by the will.

I should add that it appears by the letters patent of Edward VI. before referred to, that the king granted to the Company 10*s.* yearly, issuing out of a message of the Company in Bridge Street, which the Company had lately paid towards the perpetual support of the anniversary of Lettice Smith, in the church of St. Botolph near Billingsgate, and that the title of the Company to the same messuage, as against the Crown, is confirmed by the statute of King James, also before referred to.

SMITH'S CHARITY.

Leonard Smith, by his will of the 31st March 1601, gave to the Company 20*l.* for two of the yeomanry. The sum forms part of the "Loan Trust Fund," and as no interest was to be taken none is credited.

SPENCE'S CHARITY.

Awdrey Spence purchased by indenture of 25th October 1619, in consideration of 50*l.*, a rentcharge to be paid by the Company to the churchwardens of St. Leonard, Shore-ditch, for the relief of the poor of that parish of 50*s.* per annum.

The sum is regularly paid.

STOKES' CHARITY.

Magdalene Stokes, by her will of the 14th June 1625, gave to the Company 40*l.*, to be lent to a young man of the said Company, paying 20*s.* to a discreet preacher for a sermon on New Year's Day at St. Botolph's. The fund is administered as part of the "Loan Trust Fund" under the scheme. The 20*s.* a year is paid to the rector of St. George, Botolph Lane, Thames Street.

THWAITES' CHARITY.

Alderman William Thwaites, by his will (date unknown), gave to the Company 50*l.*, to be lent to two young men, they paying 10*s.* yearly apiece, and paid to the churchwardens of St. Mildred, Bread Street, for the use of the poor. The sum of 1*l.* a year is paid to the churchwardens of St. Mildred, Bread Street. The fund is part of the "Loan Trust Fund." (See Cecilia Long's Charity.)

SIR THOMAS TREVOR'S CHARITY.

The Company covenanted by indenture of 18th January 1618, in consideration of the sum of 100*l.*, to pay yearly to six poor widows of the City of London 6*l.*, to every of them 20*s.* at Midsummer and Christmas.

The Company gave 1*l.* apiece to six poor freewomen or widows of freemen, 20*s.* a year each, by quarterly payments, at the hall of the Company. The selection is made by the clerk or beadle.

TRUMBALL'S CHARITY.

Thomas Trumball devised to the Company, by his will of the 7th July 1557, a rentcharge of 20*s.*, for coals at All Saints and Christmas amongst the most needy householders of the Company, inhabitants of St. Botolph's and St. Margaret's. The rentcharge of 20*s.* is paid by the tenant of 23, Fish Street Hill, and is distributed amongst what are called the "half-yearly poor."

The Company ordinarily distribute to poor members of the Company who are not considered to require weekly relief, or to stand in the position of constant petitioners, sums of 2*l.* 10*s.* in June and 5*l.* at Christmas, or, if the case should be thought to require it at either period, somewhat more. If it be thought expedient, they are taken from this list and added to that of the weekly poor. The 2*l.* 8*s.* 3*d.* forming the endowments have always been disposed of, and the balance made up by the Company have varied from 15*l.* to 30*l.* At the present moment (January 1861) there are five persons on this list.

TURK'S CHARITY.

Richard Turk, by his will of the 7th October 1552, directed his executors to pay to the Company 100*l.*, to purchase quit-rents or annuities and the income applied for the election dinner of the yeomanry, and if the money cannot be thus invested, then he willed that the said 100*l.* be laid up in the treasury of the said Company. And he willed that the wardens of the said Company should lend the said 100*l.* to five young men of the Company, not of the livery, 20*l.* apiece, to occupy the same for one whole year, the said five young men putting in good securities for the repayment of the said 20*l.*, and if any of the said five young men cannot put in good securities, then the testator willed any of the said five young men desiring to have the said 20*l.* to put into the wardens' hands a good and sufficient pawn for the repayment of the said 20*l.*, such pawn to be of the value of 20*l.*, which said writings, obligations, and pawns thus taken as aforesaid he willed to be laid up and kept. Of which said five young men he willed three of them to be of the Bridge Street and the two to be of Old Fish Street if the wardens should think any two young men in Old Fish Street to be meet to borrow the said money, and if not, the two young men to be of Temes Street if the wardens think any two young men there meet, and if not, all the said five young men to be of Bridge Street. And he willed that the said 100*l.* should be lent out from time to time and from year to year for ever.

This money is also included in the "Loan Trust Account." (See Long's Charity.) No interest is credited on account of this charity.

WALLER'S CHARITY.

Owen Waller, by his will of the 9th May 1574, bequeathed to the Company 100*l.*, to be lent to 50 poor men of the Company. And he gave a messuage in Black Raven Alley for providing for the churchwardens of St. Michael, Crooked Lane, 12*d.* in bread every Sunday to 12 poor folks of that parish, and the residue of the rents for the maintenance and reparation of the said premises.

The sum of 100*l.* forms part of the "Trust Loan Account." (See Cecilia Long's Charity.)

The charge in favour of the parish of St. Michael, Crooked Lane, is 2*l.* 12*s.*, which is paid to the churchwardens out of the rental of No. 106, Upper Thames Street, the property of the Company.

HENRY WALLY'S CHARITY.

Henry Wally, by his will of the 28th November 1758, willed that his executors should deliver to the Company 20*l.*, to be lent to one young man of the Company for two years. There is no direction that interest should be taken and none is credited. (See Cecilia Long's Charity for the "Loan Trust Fund.")

WARE'S CHARITY.

Thomas Ware, by will (enrolled 36th Elizabeth in the Court of Hastings at Guildhall), devised two tenements in Churchyard Alley, St. Magnus the Martyr, and out of the rents to pay 5*l.* 8*s.* annually.

To the churchwardens of St. Michael, Crooked Lane—

For bread to the poor of the parish - - 52*s.*

For the poor children of Christ's Hospital - 52*s.*

For the churchwardens for their pains 4*s.*

and the residue of the rents to the Company.

The rentcharge of 5*l.* 8*s.* a year to the churchwardens of St. Michael, Crooked Lane, is annually paid by the Company. The houses, Nos. 1, and 2, Churchyard Alley have been taken down under the London Bridge Approaches Act, and produced 920*l.* cash, which was invested in 1,041*l.* 0*s.* 4*d.* 3*l.* per cent. Consols. The sum was a few years since sold out and the amount invested in some premises in Queenhithe, purchased from the parish of St. Mildred, Bread Street. The Consols produced 925*l.* 4*s.* cash. The Company from the time of such investment have kept the amount of Consols and the interest thereupon as still representing this property. The charity being, however, entitled to the fixed rentcharge only, such appropriation is unimportant, except as preserving the identity of a sufficient fund to meet the annual payment.

WESTON'S CHARITY.

Thomas Weston, by his will of the 15th December 1435, gave part of a wharf to the Company, charged with the annual sum of 13*s.* 4*d.*, partly for an obit at St. Nicholas, Cole Abbey, and what should remain to be distributed amongst the poor of the parish.

The Company pay 6s. 8d. a year to the churchwardens of the parish of St. Nicholas, Cole Abbey. The gift of the wharf is upon condition for the observance of the obit and the payment of small sums to the rector and clerk. The 6s. 8d. has, I presume, been assessed at some remote period since the Reformation as an estimate of the surplus. The letters patent of King Edward VI. before referred to grant to Hynde and others, trustees for the Company, "all that our rent, annuity, and yearly sum 10l. by the year issuing out of seven messuages or tenements and one wharf of the same wardens and commonalty situate, lying, and being in the parish of St. Michael at Queenhithe, London, which same yearly sum, rent, or annuity the same wardens and commonalty have lately paid and yearly have been accustomed to pay towards the perpetual support of two chaplains to celebrate in the church of St. Mary, Mounthaw, London, according to the ordinance of John Gloucester and John Weston."

This grant, and the confirmatory statute of James I., confer, I have no doubt, the title to the residue in the Company.

WILLIAMS' CHARITY.

Lawrence Williams, by his will 10th September 1582, bequeathed to the Company 120l., to be lent to three young men of the Company, 40l. apiece for three years, each paying 20s. yearly for the same, to be employed as follows:—

For bread to the poor of Ashwell, Herts - 52s.

To the parish clerk - 2s.

Towards the reparation of the church - 6s.
